EAN'S LIST SHOWS ENIORS STILL LEAD

ain Place Largest Number on Dean's Honor List—Class of 1931 Has Smallest Number of Men with B Average For Year

VIFT ISSUES LIST AS COLLEGE BEGINS YEAR

Seniors again lead with the number of students on the Dean's Honor st for the academic year 1928-1929. he class of 1932 comes next, and the niors last.

An average of B places a student in e College of Arts and Sciences on e list.

1930—Paul Bacon, Phillip Baker, . S. Bird, Georgia Bostwick, E. O. undy, Pauline Burridge, Belle urch, Lillian Cohen, A. S. Conlin, . C. Crawford, Ella Cummings, Alice ain, Doris Dupraz, Anne Edmunds, dith Fishman, Phoebe Flint, Mabel reeman, Iva Harris, Beverly Houseolder, Harriet Howard, Susan Howrd, Major Jenks, H. M. Macomber, rene Marcotte, J. M. Moore, Magdene Orvis, E. Henry Powell, F. V. Rich, Joyce Richardson, Annette Rosenberg, Cora Sargent, Peter Scuakes, F. A. Sears, R. L. Stewart, Anna Gray Tracy, Evelyn Trask, Mary Waddell.

1932—S. B. Barker, Cornelia Baylies, Edna Blackwood, Doris Brennan, Chester Bush, Verna Carrier, Louise Clark, R. T. Connor, Ruth Cook, Alice Dalton, Evelyn DeBrune, E. Giannarelli, F. R. Hackett, Rosetta Harlow, Lucy Hope, F. W. Householder, Jr., Caroline Howard, Eleanor Isaacs, Arthur Maislen, Elizabeth Mandigo, Elizabeth Mosher, Katrina Munn, Florice Murch, Roberta Powers, A. A. Scharbius, H. Silverman, F. M. Stevenson, H. I. Varney, Margaret Watkins.

The following is a list of students who attained a B average for one semester only—not for the year 1928-1929. (The numbers in parenthesis indicate the semester.)

1930—Doris Barrett (2), Leila M. Bates (2), H. K. Borkland (1), Amelia Farrell (2), Ethel Heller (2), H. B. Levine (2), W. P. Mavraides (2), Cornelia Mould (2), Elizabeth Robelen (2), N. F. Sparhawk (1), Ruth Wedell (2).

1931—E. Germain (1), Georgina Hubert (2), Caroline S. McGennis (2), Margaret Rice (1), J. B. Vander (1), T. Webster (1), Sara Wescott (1).

1932—Natalie Carleton (2), Charlotte Carpenter (1), Esther Fishman (2), Jean Galbraith (2), Mildred I. Gile (1), Crystal Lawes (1).

THREE CARBEE FUNDS TO AID U. V. M. MEDICS

Mrs. May D. Carbee of Haverhill, N. H., has established in memory of her late husband, Moses Dyer Carbee, M.D., of the class of 1873, three funds at the University of Vermont, to be known as the Carbee Prize Fund, the Carbee Scholarship Fund and the Carbee Loan Fund.

The Carbee Prize Fund is $3,000, the income from which is to be given annually at commencement to the student in the College of Medicine who shows the greatest proficiency in the subject of obstetrics.

The scholarship fund is $3,000, the income from which is to be given annually to a deserving student in the College of Medicine, this scholarship award to be made by the scholarship committee of the University.

The loan fund is $4,000, the same to be loaned to deserving students in the College of Medicine subject to the usual University regulations governing the administration of student loan funds.

SORORITIES AGAIN LEAD IN SCHOLASTIC RATINGS

Women continue to lead the men in scholarship at the University of Vermont. The relative standing of fraternity scholarship at the University for the last half of the college year, 1928-1929, announced from the administration office, shows the eight women fraternities leading the list, with the 13 men's fraternities trailing them.

The custody of the Mabel Nelson Jacobs cup, awarded annually to the sorority, the members of which have won the highest scholastic standing for the preceding year, goes to Sigma Gamma, which stands at the top of the scholastic list. Then come in the following order the other women's Greek Letter organizations: K. E. L. Society, Alpha Chi Omega, Pi Beta Phi, Delta Delta Delta, Alpha Xi Delta, Kappa Delta and Kappa Alpha Theta.

Following these women's organizations, the men's fraternities stand in scholarship as follows: Sigma Delta, Delta Psi, Phi Mu Delta, Zeta Chi, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Phi Sigma Delta, Tau Epsilon Phi, Phi Delta Theta, Alpha Tau Omega, Sigma Nu, Kappa Sigma, Lambda Iota, Sigma Phi.

SENIOR MEDICS TO GAIN PRACTICAL EXPERIENCE THROUGH JENNE'S PLAN

Seniors in Medical College Will Continue Plan Started Last Year of Spending Several Weeks With Practicing Physician

So satisfactory was the plan inaugurated last year by Dr. J. N. Jenne, dean of the University of Vermont College of Medicine, to have seniors in the medical college spend several weeks of the college year with some practicing physician in Vermont and in one of the State institutions as a medical spectator, that the plan will be continued this coming college year.

Dean Jenne said that he was very well satisfied with the way in which the plan had worked out. Not only were the medical students themselves enthusiastic over it, but the practicing physicians, who last year acted as preceptors to the students, had all indicated their pleasure in the working out of the plan and in the companionship of the young men who had been sent to them. As a result, Dean Jenne found no difficulty in securing preceptors who will act as medical tutors for the students this year.

Original at U. V. M.

The idea of this plan, which is original to the University of Vermont Medical College, is that the medical college seniors, who have covered most of the book work for a medical education, should go to some town in the State and spend a month with a reputable and successful practitioner. During that time, the student practically lives with the experienced doctor, visits his cases with him, learns about office routine and making professional calls, sees various types of cases common to the life of a general practitioner and generally gets a background of practical experience.

The medical student not only has the guidance of a practicing physician under every-day conditions of practice, but he is also allowed to assist the physician in minor cases, under supervision, so that he may acquire confidence in his own abilities before he is obliged to go out and take the full responsibility of a licensed practitioner.

Varied Institutional Experience

In addition to the month spent with a practicing physician, each senior in the medical college will spend two weeks at each of five State institutions, including the State Hospital at Waterbury, the State School at Vergennes, the Vermont Sanatorium at Pittsford, the State School for Feeble Minded at Brandon and the Free Dispensary in this city. This gives each senior 14 weeks of practical experience with men who are on the firing line in the fight against disease in its various forms.

FROSH ATTEND 1929 CAMP THREE DAYS

V. C. A. Presents Faculty Men, Ministers and Over a Dozen Upperclassmen to Address Freshmen on College Problems

CAMP ATTRACTS MANY WITH VARIED PROGRAM

Forty freshmen and half as many upperclassmen attended freshman camp at Abnaki, about thirty miles from here on North Hero Island on Lake Champlain, last week from Friday evening to Monday morning. The conference was sponsored by the University of Vermont Christian Association with Joseph Carter, '32, as the camp manager.

The conference was held for the purpose of assisting freshman men to adjust themselves to their new life. To achieve this end, a series of talks was arranged for the freshmen, touching the major points in student life. Personal contact with upperclassmen was afforded the freshmen and from this perhaps, life-long friendships have developed.

On Friday evening Al Sirois, president of Boulder, senior honorary society, spoke on the various honor societies. Dean Swift, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences then addressed the students on scholarship and Phil Perry, cheer-leader, led in Vermont cheers, followed by the singing of Vermont songs.

Second Day

Reveille was at seven o'clock the next morning. The morning dip, flag raising, and breakfast came next, followed by a devotional service led by Mr. W. J. Kitchen, of the New England Y. M. C. A. Robert Stewart, '30, spoke on "Fraternities"; Cal Walker, '31, member of Key and Serpent, junior honorary society, gave a talk on Key and Serpent; while Everett Wilder, '32, spoke on track. Mr. Kitchen then spoke again, this time on "Bridging the Gap Between High School and College." The first part of the afternoon was devoted to sports, to baseball, swimming and boating. At five o'clock everyone assembled at the Open Air Chapel. There were a few piano selections played by Edmour Germain, '31. Then the Rev. C. C. Adams gave an address on "Hope." After supper, a meeting was held in the Wigwam where talks were given by Louis Lisman, '31, news editor of the VERMONT CYNIC, on the CYNIC and also on debating. Robert Stewart gave another talk; this time on the International Relations Club of which he is president. Herrick Macomber, '30, possessor of numerous honors, spoke on "Extra-Curriculum Activities." The Rev. A. Ritchie Lowe, of Colchester, Vt., asked the question: "Is Life Worth Living?" He then proceeded

WOMEN'S STUDENT GOV'T ORGANIZES ACTIVITIES

Women's Student Government, under the leadership of Dorothy Dailey, '30, has started its year's activities by organizing the dormitories. House meetings were held at each of the dormitories Friday evening, and officers chosen for the coming year.

The first meeting of the Student Union Council will be held on Tuesday, September 24, at 1.30 in the Old Mill Chapel. It is very important that the house presidents attend this meeting.

Friday evening, September 27, is the date set for the first Women's Mass Meeting. There will be a short business meeting, followed by an informal party, at which dancing will be enjoyed and refreshments served. Every University woman is urged to attend, because it offers an unrivalled opportunity for upperclassmen and freshmen to meet. Short talks will be given by the leaders of the various campus organizations, in order that the freshmen may learn about those in which they are interested.

Urges Students to Create Opportunities of Their Own

"Capitalization of Opportunities Depends Upon Proper Preparation and Resourcefulness in Taking Advantage of Them," Declares President Bailey

TUPPER, BUEHLER AND OTHERS RETURN FROM SABBATICAL VACATION

Sheldon Succeeds Jenks and Yates, Robinson—Changes Announced in Many Faculties

Several changes in the faculty of the University, including the addition of a number of new instructors, were noted when college opened last week.

In the College of Agriculture, there are two new instructors in addition to Professor Kenneth J. Sheldon, who is to succeed the late Professor F. B. Jenks. The new instructors are Miss Lydia Parrant, who will teach home economics, and Harold C. Bold, a graduate of Columbia, who will be instructor in botany and a member of the experiment station staff.

V. R. Yates, who has been assistant professor of mechanical engineering for a number of years, will be the acting head of that department this year, owing to the recent death of Professor Edward Robinson. R. S. Gates, a graduate of the University in the class of 1926, will be a new instructor in mechanical engineering.

Miss Charlotte de Voit comes to the University as teacher of violin and public school music.

In the College of Arts and Sciences, Professor Frederick Tupper is back from his sabbatical year to continue his work as head of the Department of English.

L. A. Woodward is returning to continue his work as instructor in physics after a year's absence doing graduate work.

U. V. M. Grad to Teach

E. C. Slack of Randolph, a graduate of the University in 1928 who has been teaching elsewhere during the past year, is returning here to join the faculty in the Department of Romance Languages.

A. E. Gordon will be the new instructor in Classical History. He is a Dartmouth graduate who received his Ph.D. at Johns Hopkins and studied in Rome for two years. He has taught in both Dartmouth and Johns Hopkins.

Four research fellows who will do part-time teaching will be additions to the Arts and Science faculty this year. They are: Dana Doten, research in English; Esperance I. Lansher, research in plant pathology; W. W. Parker, research in history; and Elizabeth Wiss, research in Greek. Miss Wiss is a graduate of Smith College.

A. G. Buehler, assistant professor of economics, is returning to take up his work after a year's absence doing graduate work.

E. E. Lineken, instructor in Chemistry, is returning to take up that work this year, after being away for a year doing special work at the University of Iowa. He takes the place of Professor C. W. Stillwell who goes to the University of Illinois for research work.

In the absence of Professor W. J. Wilkinson, who has resigned as head of the history department to return to Colby College, L. S. Hartwell, research instructor in history, and Mr. Gordon, will direct the history department jointly. The headship of the department will not be filled until next year.

Captain Kearie L. Berry will succeed Lieutenant J. D. Frederick as instructor in the R. O. T. C. unit this fall. Captain Berry recently completed an advanced course in military science at Fort Benning, Ga. He has been in the service since 1917. In that year, because of the World War, he left the University of Texas where he was a student and figured prominently as a

EXERCISES MARK 139 YEARS OF UNIVERSITY

Declaring that "Opportunity is most surely grasped by him who is prepared" and that "He who aims at doing worthwhile things should do his mental daily dozen—keep up with his college work," President Guy W. Bailey at the opening exercises of the 139th year of the University last Wednesday, urged students to create their own opportunities and to lessen playtime activities in favor of more serious consideration of the importance of the necessity of preparation for life.

Speaks but Twenty Minutes

The opening exercises were comparatively brief, lasting less than three-quarters of an hour. President Bailey spoke little more than 20 minutes.

Following the processional of faculty members and undergraduates, with Dr. David Marvin as marshal, the program opened with the singing of "America, the Beautiful," led by Professor Howard G. Bennett, head of the music department at the University, followed by the lesson and prayer by the chaplain, Professor Emeritus Evan Thomas; singing of a hymn, "Come, Thou Almighty King"; address by President Bailey on "Preparation for Opportunity"; announcements; singing of "Champlain"; benediction and recessional.

On the platform with President Bailey during the exercises were the deans of the four colleges of the University, George H. Perkins, dean of Arts and Sciences, J. L. Hills, dean of Agriculture, J. W. Votey, dean of Engineering, and Dr. J. N. Jenne, dean of Medicine; also Miss Marian Patterson, dean of women, Professor Thomas and Professor Bennett.

Said President Bailey in part:

"The older one becomes, the more one appreciates that there are many worthwhile things to do and apparently little time within which to do them. Worthwhile things are best and most quickly done by trained men. Opportunity is most surely grasped by him who is prepared. One of the many functions of collegiate training is adequate preparation for seizure of opportunity, and to that end he who aims at doing worthwhile things should do his mental daily dozen,—keep up with his college work. The student who regularly, consistently, earnestly, studies best prepares for opportunity when opportunity knocks.

"Opportunities should not be looked upon as mere happenings, as due to chance. Some one has said that a wise man makes more opportunities than he finds. Ought we not to make rather than to wait for them? And, in order to make opportunities we must know how to go about it, must be prepared, effectively, to create, prepared often by prolonged intensive training.

Must Learn Fundamentals

"The engineer, of course, must learn the fundamentals that constitute the foundation of his calling. The surgeon's technique must be perfect if he is to operate successfully. The banker must understand foreign as well as

OLD GRAD CALLS FIRST WEEK FAR TOO QUIET

"The city is unusually quiet for the first college week of the year," said an old grad of Vermont last week. He said that when he was in college the first week of the year was one continual fight. And classes were held only if there were any survivors from fights of the night before. There were no lights on the campus then and no one hesitated to paste his antagonist one if the occasion offered itself. The present-day sophomore, he surmised, is evidently far from pugnacious and looks with perhaps too kindly an eye towards the frosh.

CAMP CABIN EIGHT HAS AN ENVIABLE TIME OF IT AT FRESHMAN CAMP

Those who attended the Freshman Camp at Abnaki slept over-night in small cabins. Each cabin accommodated eight persons of whom at least one or more were upperclassmen. Ten cabins were in use during the entire conference and of these Cabin Eight was the most notorious.

Why?

Because—now it claims it was the noisiest cabin of the lot and not a single one of the other cabins even thinks of sharing the honor with it. Through the efforts of Cabin Eight, Cabin Seven was kept awake Friday and Saturday nights to a sufficiently late hour. On Friday night too, Cabin Eight thought of the idea of sending messages to other cabins. One cabin would call out a message to the next with instructions to pass it along to the next cabin. All the messages originated with Cabin Eight. Consequently, Cabin Eight managed to make everyone in camp feel pretty sleepy the next morning. Messages were passed along to a fairly late hour. Also —

That Sunday!

Because—of what happened Sunday: Sunday afternoon Cabin Eight took a couple boats and rowed across the bay to make some purchases at a roadside stand located a half-mile or so from the beach. At the stand Cabin Eight purchased Romantic Puffs, five dozen cookies, and a bottle of olives. These articles they carried back to camp with them. At supper table that night Cabin Eight was by fair means able to secure an extra pitcher of milk, some bread and butter. These articles were also carted off to the cabin. Then at ten o'clock, after taps had sounded, all the food they had secured from the roadside stand and the supper table, they carried very quietly to a spot on the beach, located out of hearing distance from the other cabins. Together with these things was some corn picked from the camp garden. A fire was made on the beach and a corn roast with extras was enjoyed. At one o'clock in the morning Cabin Eight returned to its cabin and retired. The evening's escapade was accomplished without disturbing or notifying the rest of the camp and not till this day does Cabin Seven or any other cabin in camp know that Cabin Eight enjoyed a corn roast Sunday night.

Whoopee! Cabin Eight!

The following were the honorable members of Cabin Eight: Upperclassmen Robert Lee Stewart, George Smead, Joseph Carter and Edmour Germain; freshmen William Perry, Robert Towne, Oswald Sunderland, Burritt Smith, Perry Towers, Stanley Carter, of Cabin Four, was an especially invited guest to the corn roast.

Cabin Eight did not suffer in the least from its notoriety. In fact, one night the cabin was filled to overflowing and the floor had to be used for sleeping purposes.

University Gets Horticulture Books

Gift of F. P. Lord

The University of Vermont has received a gift from Frank P. Lord, of Burlington, a set of Horticulture books.

The titles of these books are as follows:

"The American Apple Orchard" by Prof. Frank A. Waugh, formerly of the University of Vermont, and now head of the Department of Horticulture at the Massachusetts Agricultural College at Amherst.

"The Pruning Book" by Prof. L. H. Bailey, at one time Professor of Horticulture at Michigan Agricultural College, later Professor of Horticulture at Cornell, and subsequent Dean of the Cornell Agricultural College and Director of Experiment Station, of that institution.

"Popular Fruit Growing" by the late Prof. Samuel B. Green, for many years Professor of Horticulture at the University of Minnesota.

"Small Fruit Culture" by Andrew S. Fuller, author of many books on horticultural subjects.

"Plums and Plum Culture" by Prof. F. A. Waugh, of the Massachusetts Agricultural College.

These books are all standard and written by good authorities in the several lines. They therefore make a valuable addition to the Horticultural Library of the University. In making the gift of the books, Mr. Lord said that he was now retiring on account of age, and thought the books would be much more useful if placed at the University Library, where they would be cataloged and accessible to all interested parties.

domestic commerce. The railway magnate must know the intricacies of transportation as well as of finance, although the tendency is now to divide the responsibility. The insurance executive must not only have actuarial knowledge but also financial acumen. Preparation for participation in each of these activities, if self contained, is definitely prescribed and well recognized.

"However, while the engineer, the surgeon, banker, railway head, and insurance president must be experts in their several fields, the most successful of such men today are broadly trained and well informed as to what is going on in the world outside of their respective specialties. If we were permitted to know what are their avocational activities, we would find them browsing in other fields, would note how keen was their concern in matters pertaining to civilization or philosophy, education, science, politics, literature, the fine arts, fiction.

"Of course, their interests lie in diverse channels, but it is not uncommon to find a captain of industry, a great engineer, a world-famous surgeon, evincing a real interest in a specific field utterly foreign to his daily work, that surpasses that shown by many so-called scholars.

Extra Vocational Interest

"A short time ago a list of men who had amassed vast fortunes was published. They were especially interested in art. The suprising statement was made that this group comprised over eleven hundred individuals. And so it is in other fields. Among such people the extra vocational interest is apt to be unusual.

"We should bear these facts in mind when deciding the question whether preparation for opportunity should be narrowly vocational, aiming to fit one for success in the calling of his choice, or be so broad and general that, whatever his line of work may be, he will be enabled with greater certainty to meet and cope with every opportunity in life.

"The study of human life is a fascinating task. The life of one who has grasped the opportunity, and as a result, rendered a distinctive service to his fellowmen, is always worth reading if well presented. Its careful perusal should reveal clearly the sure and logical steps that lead to the goal. In general it may be said that the lives of most such men have been characterized by their relation to life's activities, the keeping pace with the advance in human knowledge, cultivation of the faculty to discriminate surely and clearly, alertly and promptly to reach decisions, together with the exercise of courtesy and fairness in all human relations. May your course in college develop your activities along similar lines and thus aid you in your preparation to grasp opportunity.

Success Based on Preparation

"The man who has not found himself by middle life suffers keenly when he sees younger men in positions that he feels he ought to have occupied, but which he can not fill because of deferred or inadequate preparation. No matter in what field, success in life is based upon timely preparation, and the earlier it is secured the sooner can that training in meeting opportunities be capitalized.

"Youth is commonly referred to as the playtime of life. Yet maturity seems to be increasingly devoting more of its time to those diversions that savor of recreation. Youth is entitled to its wholesome playtime activities, but, after all, is there not a happy medium, a proper distribution of recreation throughout one's entire life?

"Should not youth devote an adequate part of its time to the laying of the foundation for a better discrimination or choice of the worthwhile things of life? The process of preparation can not be materially shortened. The longer its inception is deferred, the longer is postponed the playtime period of middle or post middle life.

"Lessen Playtime Activities"

"And so this morning, without in any way taking the position that youth is not entitled to its recreations, I urge that the activities of the playtime of youth be lessened somewhat in order that a little more serious consideration can be given to the importance of the necessity of preparation for life and the opportunities of life.

"The roster of this institution contains the names of many men who evidently were prepared to take advantage of opportunities. From Ira Allen, our Founder, through the long list of graduates, as we study their biographical sketches, we are impressed by the diversification of their interests and their resourcefulness, in taking advantage of opportunities. To list but a handful from the early pages of that roster:

"Ira Allen, Founder of the State and the University, who richly deserves the meagre recognition that has been accorded him. Few men have been possessed of the rare power, that was his, to divine the motives and to shape the actions of other men.

"Jacob Collamer, who in his time was not excelled for accuracy of learning, terseness of statement, and clearness and comprehensiveness of style.

"Henry Hitchcock, who shaped the constitution of the new State of Alabama.

"Jehudi Ashmun, Governor of the colony of Liberia.

"Zaddock Thompson, early historian of Vermont.

"Erastus Culver, minister of Venezuela.

"Asa C. Aldis, nine years president of the Southern Claims Commission.

"William H. A. Bissell, Bishop of Vermont.

"John Gregory Smith, railroad builder and Governor of the State.

"William A. Wheeler, vice-president of the United States.

"Frdeerick Billings, master spirit and chief architect in the enterprise of constructing the Northern Pacific Railroad.

"Jedediah H. Baxter, surgeon general of the United States Army.

Vermonters Served

"For one hundred and twenty-five years the roll of these who have contributed in every field of service has been increasing. Every type of service, every field of duty has drawn to it men of Vermont. Our time is too brief to attempt to enumerate the list. We commend to you who are newcomers the careful consideration of the careers of Vermont's sons and daughters. Adversities were overcome by them; their final successes were attained after qualifying in many trying situations. They were not only seekers after, but were makers of opportunity.

"The gratifying feature of the complete record is the apparent desire of those whose names appear thereon to be of service to their fellowmen. The hope of financial reward has not been the actuating impulse, but rather those moral motives which induce one to regard the interests of others. Preparation for opportunity in a broad sense includes the entire field of training for every situation in life.

"The capitalization of opportunities depends not only upon proper preparation but also upon resourcefulness in taking advantage of them. We are living in a rapidly progressive age. While I was at lunch recently with a successful business man, he told me that that morning he had disposed of seven important business matters in New York by as many telephone conversations.

"A few years ago I was visiting with one of the younger executives of a large city bank. We talked of the importance of adequate preparation and the necessity of prompt application, of the results of training to the solution of every day problems. By way of information he told me that an important matter was being discussed by his board of directors. The question turned upon what would be the attitude of a certain banker in a neighboring city. While the different phases of the problem were being debated, the younger executive retired from the board room, telephoned the banker, and within five minutes had obtained a definite answer. His resourcefulness and quick action were due to the right type of preliminary training, such training as other executives appreciate.

The Table of Life

"The whole question should be of especial interest to the members of the class of 1933. Many of you have already determined the major activities of your several lives, but in life as in a curriculum, the major courses need the minors to round out one's education. The University exists not only to enable a student to perfect himself in his preparation for vocational opportunity, but also for all extra vocational activities.

"Someone in preparing the chronological table of a certain man's life, referred to him in four periods as the wanderer, the striver, the builder and the ruler. It may not be allotted to each one of you to play all four parts. Some of you may play the parts of wanderers and strivers; others may take on the additional rôle of builders; and some of you may become rulers, but with each gradation the surety of success will be dependent upon your preparation to seize opportunity.

"In the collegiate world you come to us a wanderer, then you become a striver. Many of you are fired with ambition to become builders and possibly rulers. May your strivings lead to full fruition.

"Four years from the youth time period is a short and quick turn of the cycle. You enter this period with the avowed purpose of preparing for opportunity, but do not forget that an opportunity, possibly the most important that will ever greet you, awaits your disposition this morning. Will you begin your preparation for the problems and exigencies of life by the full acceptance of the facilities here at your disposal or will you disregard them wholly or in part?

"The satisfaction of those connected with the administrative and teaching staffs is not measured by numbers of students, by buildings or by endowments. These elements are contributory. We measure our success, our results by the amount of assistance we are enabled to render those who are honestly and sincerely endeavoring to improve themselves.

"Keep Faith"

"A former member of the faculty of the College of Medicine once said: 'If ye break faith with us who die, we shall not sleep.' Will you not assume this morning, members of the class of 1933, that the faculties and undergraduates of our institution from that far off opening day in 1800 to the present moment look to you to keep faith with U. V. M. traditions? Will you not at once begin to prepare for opportunity and thus demonstrate at the very outset of your career among us your loyalty to the University, and all it has stood for in its more than a century and a third of existence?

"And so, as 'the long train of ages glides away and the sons of men one by one are gathered to Nature's side,' may we all so live that 'when the summons come to join the innumerable caravan, we may be sustained and soothed by an unfaltering trust' because we too have kept the faith."

FRATERNITIES SUBJECT OF INTERESTING TALKS

Robert Lee Stewart, '30, president of Grey Friars, and of the International Club, spoke several times to the freshmen assembled at the Freshman Camp at Camp Abnaki last week-end, taking, among other topics, "Fraternities."

Before entering college, said Stewart, one is apt to hear much both good and bad about fraternities, so that every freshman is wise to look into the pros and cons of fraternity life as soon as he can. There are four social groups, he claimed, in college. First, the fraternity and then the non-fraternity group. In the fraternity group, there are two camps. One of them is one hundred percent loyal to the fraternity and place the fraternity before themselves. Then there is the other camp, the group in the fraternity who are a bit independent and place themselves often-times before the fraternity. In the Independents group, it is the same as with the fraternity. There is the Independents organization to which those belong who wish to be loyal to the organization. The fourth group is made up of men who are absolutely independent. About one-half of the men in college belong to fraternities, so that the fraternity and non-fraternity groups are about equal in size.

Speaking of the arguments for and against fraternities, Stewart then explained that in the fraternity it is the greatest good for the greatest number that is always considered. In the fraternity, too, one learns to work with others, and one also gets the chance to study human nature. Fraternity spirit, loyalty to ideals, is the greatest thing to be secured from the fraternity. And also all the social life in college is found in fraternities, he declared.

However, there is a tendency to lose one's independence in the fraternity. There is also a tendency to lose time. The man who is working his way through college has no time to go frat, said Stewart. A personal investigation into whether fraternity or non-fraternity men had the highest scholastic record showed no significant difference between the records of either group. The fraternity man, however, did have a slightly better record than his non-fraternity classmate, he said.

Touching on the matter of fraternities and extra-curriculum activities, the speaker declared that for one who desires to secure high student honors, the fraternity is indispensable, inasmuch as the fraternity has the organization to back him and to push him to the front.

football player. He entered a training camp and was soon commissioned a second lieutenant. He was promoted to the rank of captain, July 1, 1920. He is a member of the Infantry Rifle Team. For a long time he has had the reputation of being one of the best rifle shots in the whole infantry.

Announce Medical Appointments

A number of changes have also been made in the faculty of the medical college this year, many of them merely shifts from one position to another within the school. They are as follows:

Dr. B. D. Adams, who has been an instructor, becomes assistant professor of surgery.

Dr. Eugene F. Traub of New York City will be a new member of the faculty, coming as assistant professor of dermatology.

Dr. Clarence A. Bonner of Hawthorne, Mass., becomes an instructor in psychiatry, merely shifting from one department to another.

Dr. Chester A. Newhall is added to the faculty as an instructor in anatomy.

Dr. Alliston L. Fogg, Dr. E. F. Foster and Dr. Sam Sparhawk, all of this city, are added to the faculty as clinical instructors at the dispensary.

FRESHMAN CAMP NOTES

Herrick Macomber, speaking on "Extra-Curriculum Activities" at the Freshman Camp, declared that when one enters college he should first decide whether he wants to be a C. R. or Phi Beta Kappa man. He should then set out to reach and keep his goal. If he is able to satisfy himself in his scholastic requirements and at the same time have time to spare for extra-curriculum activities, then he should choose that activity which interests him most. Every man should go out for at least one sport.

The Burlington Rendering Plant is the place where freshman's souls are manufactured into fertilizer, Donald Frazier, sophomore, claimed in a talk on "What Burlington Has To Offer" which he gave at the Freshman Camp.

All the freshmen who attended the Freshman Camp at Camp Abnaki received some hot dope there on "How to Haze Sophomores," and from all evidence they learned their lessons well.

"I envy you," said the Rev. John H. Hopkins, to the freshmen assembled at the Camp. Many problems will be settled by the generation of which the students assembled formed part. Either war will be abolished by this generation or it never will. Poverty too will be abolished or not abolished forever, he declared. There would also be either more or less manliness in the world, and by manliness he meant the courage to live as Christ lived.

Louis Lisman, speaking on the CYNIC and on debating, said that if one goes out for any of these activities and puts all he has into his work, he is certain to make out well and to win distinction for himself.

ollege Professors Hold Record in Survey By Carnegie Foundation

ollege professors, and particularly se who pass their lives in small quiet communities, have a better nce of long life than the average n, according to the twenty-third an- l report of the Carnegie Founda- for the Advancement of Teaching, de public recently.

study of the lives of 358 teachers received retiring allowances from Foundation demonstrated that the cidity of their existence contributed their longevity. It also was found t half of the teachers who became fessors at an early age enjoyed ger retirement and longer lives.

iting previous studies of intellec- l groups by Sir Francis Galton, velock Ellis and Prof. Lewis M. rman, the report states that the ne principle was found to hold, mely, that "in a majority of cases intellectual superiority of the ted was evidenced at an early age d associated with physical supe- rity."

Earnings of Professors Compared

At the same time, the report states at a study of professorial salaries ninety universities and colleges ows that "none of those institutions ving more than 1,000 students has minimum professor's salary of less an $2,000 a year, but that no 'small' llege of the group pays any profes- r more than $6,000."

In thirty-two institutions having an rollment of less than 1,000 the me- an salary was found to be $3,700 d the average $3,840. The report ntinues:

"Assuming these factors to repre- nt actual conditions, it is undoubt- lly difficult out of a salary of $3,700 r a professor with a family to pro- de himself and them with more than e necessities of life, give his chil- en the education that he himself s received and purchase protection r his own old age and for his family case of his death."

During the twenty-three years of its tivity, the Carnegie Foundation has aid out more than $17,371,900 in pen- ons and retiring allowances to pro- ssors.

Show Growth of Foundations

The development of philanthropic undations in the United States dur- ng the last forty years is traced and he two chief factors are listed as the extraordinary development of a new ontinent unmatched in resources" and the "character of American democracy."

"Perhaps in no other country has the accumulation of wealth been considered so generally as conferring, not only an opportunity for enjoyment but an obligation to society," the report states. "However they may work out in the future, the foundations of the last generation have been created by Americans who sincerely sought to devote the means they had accumulated to the cause of human advancement.

"Men like George Peabody, Andrew Carnegie, John D. Rockefeller, father and son, Julius Rosenwald, and countless others have sought sincerely to devote their wealth to the cause of their country and of their fellow men. It is an encouraging characteristic of American citizenship."

Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, president of the Foundation, points out that it is probable the charitable trusts of the United States will come under a sharper public scrutiny and perhaps be made subject to control by the national or state governments as time goes on.

"Whether the endowed universities, as charitable trusts, will be likewise made subject to such scrutiny and control or whether they will be exempt as is the case in the English universities and public schools, is likewise a question that only the future can answer," Dr. Pritchett says.

Legal Education Criticized

The present system of legal education is attacked on the score that "its formal organization has ceased to correspond with the facts of professional life."

"The inherent conservatism of the profession," the report continues, "has perpetuated a theoretical unity that cannot be realized under the conditions of a highly specialized commercial age. The tradition of a unitary American 'bar' is little more than a legalistic fiction."

The relations of medical and dental practice are discussed in the report, and the conclusion is reached that only in exceptional cases should the two types of health service be combined.

The Foundation reports the results of the first American attempt to find out precisely what a college education gives the young, in the form of an achievement test taken by 4,400 seniors in fifty Pennsylvania colleges. The highest undergraduate score was 1,583, made by a student at Lehigh University. The highest institutional score was made by Haverford College, with a general average of 886 and an average of 1,228 among the upper fourth of its students. Among the 200 college teachers who took the test the highest score was 2,350, made by a professor of psychology at Lehigh University.—New York Herald-Tribune.

This practical experience is substituted for a part of the clinical work required of the medical student in his senior year. Dean Jenne feels the change is very worthwhile because it gives the student a greater variety of training. Under the old system, a student might be present at clinics and witness the same type of operation many times during his senior year, and get no experience in some other type of operation. Under the new plan, the class work here in Burlington will be made more selective and not so extensive for the seniors. And it is expected that their practical training will be a very beneficial supplement to the work in classroom and hospital.

Interest in Country Practice

As an indication of the results of the preceptor plan already achieved during the first year of operation, Dr. Jenne states that several of the graduates from the medical college last June, who had not been anxious to practice in the rural sections of Vermont because they were unfamiliar with those sections, came back to college after their month of practical experience enthusiastic over a country practice and decided upon taking up such practice after graduation.

Furthermore, Dr. Jenne reports that several of the preceptors gave enthusiastic reports of the work of the students and declared the benefit had not been all one-sided from the arrangement. Older doctors, though they had learned much from experience, found that the students often had more recent facts on certain points and new angles to some problems which stimulated them into new lines of thought and so were of real assistance. This was found to be particularly true of doctors who were working alone in a locality where there was no other physician for many miles with whom consultation might be had.

Learned to Meet Emergencies

Several reports have come to Dean Jenne from the first year's trial of this plan which told of medical students being faced with emergencies during these days of practical experience and giving a good account of themselves in meeting those emergencies. In every case, the student has returned to the University displaying a new confidence and more eager in the search after medical knowledge.

Altogether, Dean Jenne is well pleased with the results of the first year's trial of this plan, and he expects even greater results from this coming year. The preceptors who have been selected for this college year, and the selection is made on the basis of character and general high standing in the profession, are:

Dr. Leon B. Allen, Post Mills; Dr. Roscoe B. Avery, Barre; Dr. John Blodgett, Bellows Falls; Dr. Edward M. Crane, Hardwick; Dr. Franklin P. Dwinell, Bradford; Dr. Harry L. Frost, Pittsford; Dr. Erwin M. Gardinier, Bennington; Dr. John P. Gifford, Randolph; Dr. Edwin A. Hyatt, St. Albans; Dr. Albert C. Kinney, Hardwick; Dr. Frank J. Lawless, Richford; Dr. Arthur L. Patch, Windsor; Dr. Frank C. Phelps, Vergennes; Dr. Eugene A. Stanley, Waterbury; Dr. J. A. Stevenson, Chester; Dr. Harold L. Williamson, Bristol; and Charles W. Wilson, superintendent of the Industrial School at Vergennes.

Although Mr. Wilson holds no medical degree, he has acquired a reputation as a psychiatrist from his rich experience with boys which enables him to be of considerable service to any young doctor starting out in the profession.

BLUESTOCKINGS WILL MEET ON WEDNESDAY

Bluestockings, the women's honorary literary society, will hold its first meeting of the season Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock at 3 North College. At this meeting plans for the coming year will be discussed and a tentative program arranged. The members are enthusiastically planning to enlarge upon last year's program and also to have a few speakers from the faculty.

Try-outs for new members will come very soon and all freshmen who are interested in literary work are urged to take part. Announcement of these try-outs and an explanation of their nature will be printed in a later issue of the CYNIC.

MORTAR BOARD PLANS PICNIC AT NORTH SHORE

Mortar Board held its first meeting September 20 at the Kappa Alpha Theta house when plans were made for the annual picnic to be held at North Shore September 26 at 4.30 p.m. There will be the usual bonfire and supper, and swimming for the brave. Upperclassmen are urged to come and bring their Little Sisters.

At this meeting plans for the continuation of the redecoration of the Y room were discussed.

WELCOME

Registration and enrollment are now over. Everybody is fairly well acquainted with everybody else. Vermont has begun another year of instruction and social activities. The Cynic now makes its initial bow of the year.

The Cynic is a Vermont institution. Like everyone else and everything else at Vermont it bids one and all a big and cheery welcome. It particularly welcomes the freshman class.

We know you'll like Vermont; most everyone does. You'll like its pretty, healthful surroundings. You'll like its vivid, fast-moving life, its sports, its dances, its numerous extra-curricular activities and, of course, its studies. You'll notice that professors and students alike take an interest in what you're doing and how well you're doing it—an interest usually sadly lacking in larger institutions. You'll observe and admire the democratic spirit about hall and campus. In short, you'll be glad that you've chosen U. V. M. as your place of higher learning.

But merely liking Vermont isn't all we want you to do. There's more than that to it. You must give something to Vermont—something that will make it just a little bit better than when you entered. You see, it's a give and take proposition. You give the school all that you can. You take from it all that it has to offer. By following this course you acquire the true Vermont spirit, loyal and unselfish to the core.

Go out for the things in which you excel. There must be something that you can do a trifle better than the next fellow. Do it. Not with the primary motive of some day becoming an office holder, but rather with the purpose of aiding the University in some small way. Study hard. Not with the primary motive of obtaining good marks, but rather with the purpose of getting the most out of your opportunities.

Vermont wants you to be happy. As far as we know there is only one way to be happy. Do your best!

THE BIG HELLO

One of the oldest traditions at Vermont is The Big Hello to everybody. Whether you know a fellow or see him for the first time, say Hello. And say it as if you really meant it. It's the best way of getting acquainted and of encouraging that homey, cheerful feeling. Our only regret is that it's not customary for strange co-eds to say Hello to the men.

THE OFFER OF THE COLLEGE: To be at home in all lands and ages; to count nature a familiar acquaintance and art an intimate friend; to gain a standard for the appreciation of other men's work and the criticism of your own; to carry in your pockets the keys of the world's library and feel its resources behind you in whatever task you undertake; to make hosts of friends among the men of your own age who are to be leaders in all walks of life; to lose yourself in generous enthusiasms and cooperate with others for common ends; to learn manners from students who are gentlemen and form character under professors who are Christians—this is the offer of the college for the four best years of your life.—WILLIAM DEWITT HYDE, Bowdoin College.

The old statement "Knowledge is power if—you know how to use it" has been changed to "Knowledge is power—if you know how to find it." With some twenty-five million books already in existence and more pouring from the presses every day, professors must advise their students in the words of Dana: "The most valuable knowledge is knowledge that leads to knowledge. You can't learn everything, so be wise and learn what you need to learn. All knowledge is in print, or will be tomorrow. To know how to find in books and journals just the information you need—that is to hold the eel of wisdom by the tail."—Bulletin of the American Association of University Professors.

(Concocted on the beach this past and glorious summer)

A La Bord De Mer

The sand is warm,
The air is, too;
A gentle breeze
Sweeps ocean blue,
And brings to me
Mem'ries of you—
Helen.

There's seaweed on
The rock-strewn shore,
And colored shells
Around, galore—
And there's a scrub
That grew of yore—
Helen.

A fisherman
Who baits and casts
In tiny boat
With tiny masts—
The mem'ry of
You ever lasts—
Helen.

Gone are the days
We used to know,
Swimming, boating,
Paddling slow,
I hope you like
Your damn new beau,
Helen!

To Pete, the Lifeguard

(Who got wet one day—it rained y'know)

I know a guy
Whose name is Pete.
He has brown eyes
And great big feet.

And sex appeal?
Sure he has lots—
You oughta see Him make the pots.

To Muriel

(Who brought this upon her own lovely curls)

The vainest girl I ever knew?
Unusual question this.
Vain girls? There are quite a few;
There's one I cannot miss.

She has a neat and shapely build,
That drives the whole beach mad;
She has most all the lifeguards thrilled—
A Fisher Body ad!

Her hair is soft and very long,
A pretty mass of curls;
Her voice a very siren's song,
Most beautiful of girls.

There yet remains her deep blue eyes,
Most glorious of her charms.
Castoria! Each boy friend cries
To hold her in his arms.

But I've a secret to disclose
About this charming belle—
A secret that nobody knows,
Draw closer while I tell.

Beneath her wealth of beauty sweet,
Beneath her outward glow,
There lies a smouldering conceit,
Belying outward show.

Her eyes that can expression change,
Her voice that swells with song,
Her gestures through their entire range
Are born of practice long.

Before her mirror hour by hour
She grimaces and smiles
So that her many men may shower
Their praises on her wiles.

She rolls her eyes, then baby stare
Shines at her in the glass
In order that men everywhere
Will feel they cannot pass.

Beware of curls that glisten bright,
I say to every man.
Beware of blue eyes. Some dark night
She'll get you if she can.

V. C. A. COMMITTEE MAP OUT PLANS FOR YEAR

The Executive Committee of the Vermont Christian Association met together at Camp Abnaki during the Freshman Camp, which was held there last week-end, to make plans for the coming year. Assembled at the meeting were M. D. Powers, secretary of the V. C. A., Harvey Butterfield, president, Joseph Carter, Freshman Camp Manager, Cal Walker and Edmour Germain. Mr. W. J. Kitchen, of the New England Y. M. C. A., and who is also affiliated with the World Student Christian Association, was also present.

It was decided that the V. C. A. should cooperate with the International Club to make the International Week-end Conference in October a success. A campaign similar to the Smalley Campaign of last year will be repeated this year. An International Institute will probably be held during the next semester. Efforts will be made to form discussion groups to meet at various times during the year to discuss religious problems.

BOOKS OF THE WEAK

By P. Villius V., Ex-N.

As Written for the Paper Covers

I.—The case of Detective-Sergeant Horhound.

Detective-Sergeant Horhound was an eccentric old fellow. Even his best friends—of which he had none—admitted it. But even they expressed mild surprise when old Horhound was found dead, pinned to the wall of his room with a cavalry saber through his neck, and dangling four feet from the floor. And when a complete set of fingerprints neatly layed out on Horhound's desk were found to be those of Ann Berlinteugh (pronounced Brunsh), the fair, fond daughter of Abraham Berlinteugh, the Turkish Ambassador to Scotland, wild surmise became rampant.

What connection had Ann Berlinteugh with the Bingbong negroes of Central Africa? How was she implicated on the worship of the great god Bunko? Was she the mysterious "green woman" who had secretly stolen so many secrets from both sides during the war, delivering them to the little-known Whangdoodlum government, which, being neutral, was thus able to extort millions of pounds of blood money from both sides?

Read "The Case of Detective-Sergeant Horhound and find out. Remember, Case Club readers never read the ending first!

II—Pencils Grow Dull.

The pencil is mightier than the pistol, perhaps, but remember, pencils grow dull. Our old friend Blökenheddh, fresh from success with "The Sweet Pickle Murders" comes to Paris. Who should he find there, reeling drunkenly along the street but old Haugh-Halmeagh (pronounced Ha-Ha) once the greatest criminal of all time, now apparently sunken in debauchery and poverty.

Read how Haugh-Halmeagh at the head of the "Lemony Crescent" occult society, baffles the police and Blökenheddh till the bitter end, when, overcome he—

But read the book and find out what he does. And remember, Case Club readers never read the ending first.

PARADE AND WRESTLING MARK INTERCLASS TILT

Tuesday night was the night for egg shampoos, individual fountain baths, stump speeches and the usual run of opening day activities which sophomeric superiorities impose upon unsuspecting little yearlings who are about to enter the portals of the institution on the hill.

It is usual for sophs to lie in wait and snare a dozen or so of unfortunate frosh for the activities. Crowds gather on the street to hear the oratorical efforts and even musical attempts of the frosh to please their big brothers. Peanut races and sudden bathing also feature the activities.

But alas! None of this, or at least very little, delighted the heart of the spectators Tuesday evening. The sheep were not led to the slaughter. The freshmen, proudly wearing their brand new pea caps of Green and Gold, and evidently swayed by some youthful Mussolini, banded together and paraded the streets of the city en masse. They dared the sophs to do their worst and fairly breathed defiance.

In the early evening, they organized and prepared to do battle with the sophs on sight. The frosh schedule called for a meeting at the gymnasium and thither they went together and heard talks by Professor L. W. Dean and Professor H. F. Perkins.

While the meeting was in progress, determined looking sophomores in clothes of every description gathered outside the gymnasium and apparently had a well-defined intention of capturing some frosh as they left.

But again the frosh were prepared. When the doors opened at the close of the meeting, forth came the lady frosh, but no male yearlings appeared until the fairer contingent were clear of the gymnasium. Then appeared the masculine members, more than a hundred of them, five abreast, their little green caps perched saucily on their heads and their arms locked with one another.

They neither hesitated nor charged when they saw the array of sophs. They simply marched straight ahead across the campus and down College street, singing as they came: "Hail, hail, the gang's all here."

They sang and shouted most of the way down College street, up Church street, back down Church street in a snake dance, and finally up around onto Main street and into City Hall Park. To all appearances they were "cock of the walk."

But about that time the sophomores had heard enough freshman music. The attack came swift and sudden. Across City Hall Park from the north swept a determined band of sophs, smaller than that of the frosh, but having the advantage of knowing one another.

Into the freshman ranks they tore with a rush which carried a number of sturdy first year men off their feet. For nearly half an hour there was snappy, though friendly wrestling all over the park.

It appeared that some freshmen were being spirited away by stealth and trickery, however, when any of them could be detached from the main body.

The main bodies of the contestants soon decided to "call it a night" so far as mass activities were concerned and faded away to the showers, since nobody seemed inclined to put anybody else into the fountain.

Campus Comment

U. V. M. Has a Football Team???

The question is asked each year, "What is the worst thing at Vermont?" Many and varied answers are offered but perhaps no one has ever said, "Our football team." If that question were asked now there could be no other answer. Without a doubt the prospects for a successful season on the gridiron are nil. Some will say this is pessimism. If this be born of pessimism then let someone show cause for optimism. What, then, is wrong? Is it the coaching? Head Coach Captain Rattan is capable at present for a much bigger assignment than he has here at Vermont. Everyone is familiar with his record as a college player and later player and coach of winning teams. His success as freshman coach for three years will long be something to shout at. Line Coach Jack Tully climaxed his success as a student of football by making the all-American team at Dartmouth. His work last year showed that he is just as good a teacher as he was a student. He took men who had little or no experience and developed them into good, reliable linemen. Dr. Clark, regular center for Vermont for four years, is giving his valuable time to assist in putting a team on the field. Captain Berry, new freshman coach, is spending his time with the varsity until his freshman team reports. Then, too, "Red" Maloney of Dartmouth and "Josh" Davis, all-American center, also of Dartmouth, spent several days here assisting. With such a coaching staff it can hardly be said that there is lack of coaching ability.

Is it the men who are out there now practicing every day, are they to blame because Vermont cannot put a formidable team on the field? Certainly not. It is not the material out there at present, but the lack of enough material to work with. It has often been said that a team is no stronger than its reserves. This is perhaps more true in football than any other sport. A fair team can be picked from the present material but what is there left to back up this team? It is a fact that there are only eleven positions on a football team but in present-day football eleven men do not make a football team. Nor do eleven men play a football game. The idea of a regular first team or starting team has changed now, and while one team may start one game, an entirely different line-up may start the next game, that is, if the coach has the men, and Captain Rattan has not the men. The truth is, just 18 men were out for football Saturday—not even enough for two teams to scrimmage. A lamentable showing for a University with over 600 men enrolled.

Thirty men were called back for early practice; about half that number responded. A few more reported later, but since the number has dropped again. As the squad stands at present there are not enough men to make the first trip to New York if the whole squad were taken. What is the reason for such a poor turn-out for football this fall? There are at least five or six men in college eligible for football who could make the team. There are ten or twelve more who could make a letter, and twenty-five or thirty who could come out and do a lot for themselves and their college with the view of making the grade next year.

This is an earnest appeal to all able-bodied men who like football to come out. Of course, some good men are ineligible, but the same situation exists in every college. Then there are some who are taking their studies seriously, but the man who can play a sport and still get his stuff is really doing something. Captain Rattan deserves a break—he has served here for four years and he has served well. He is here now on a one-year extension of service permitted by the War Department. He is working hard to make his last year his best and he deserves a break from the student body.

Attitude of Vermont Fans Hopeful as Grid Card Opens

Most Difficult Schedule in Years Faces Squad—Ineligibilities Are Greatest Drawbacks—Few Berths Filled to Date

FINAL WORKOUTS TO INCLUDE SCRIMMAGES

With the season opening less than a week away, Coach Rattan has been working hard on the football candidates in preparation for the game with N. Y. U. Saturday. The first varsity game at home does not come until October 19, but previous to that there are three consecutive tough games with New York University, Yale and Boston University. Union, Rensselaer and Middlebury are the only visiting teams this year and will appear in the order named.

A pre-season view of the teams may often be incorrect and perhaps unjust, but at least a sane conjecture can be made. After taking count of stock the Vermont fan finds himself hopeful rather than optimistic. One of the most discouraging aspects of the whole situation is the apparent lack of the proper spirit among several of last year's varsity men who let themselves get under warning in the finals last June. From last season's varsity squad ten were lost through graduation and six are now ineligible. It should be considered a privilege to be a member of the team and it seems a pity that the college and the student body should lose through the failure of an athlete to work for this privilege. One task that Coach Rattan has is that of making linemen out of backfield men. Mace, DeRose and Gardner have all been working on the line and this makes the team backward until it gets accustomed to the change. The team will also be very light if these men make the grade in the forward wall.

Last year's freshman team provided only three or four candidates for the varsity. "Tony" Scutakes is at present the only veteran player out because of an injury. There are now about 25 men out for the team which will be left weak for reserves.

Captain Levine will, of course, be ready to hold down the center position. For ends, Coach Rattan has Segal, DeRose, Allerton and Gardner. Huey, Burstein and Tilley are among the tackles, while Donaldson, Collins and Davis are likely candidates for the guard positions. Sirois and Winant will probably get the call as quarterbacks. The candidates for the other backfield positions include Halligan, Carrigan, Berry, Heaton, Jay and Thorne.

This week is the third of the preseason training schedule and several scrimmages will be held to give the coaches a line on what their charges can do in actual battle.

Following is the roster of men out for the varsity:

Name and position	Wt.	Ht.
H. B. Levine, c.	210	5' 7"
E. C. Thorne, h.b.	176	5' 8"

Winant looks like the best bet at quarter so far. His clever generalship was tested last year on the yearling eleven. He is the only man on the squad who can heave a decent pass. With Halligan on the receiving end the fans should be treated to some fancy aerial demonstrations.

"Tony" Gardner will be seen hitting the line periodically. His work on the Medic team which played a game against the varsity last year was outstanding. He is a line-bucker par excellence.

BRAGG IS PRESIDENT OF VERMONT OUTING CLUB

Maynes Elected to Vice-Presidency of Sports Organization —Germain Is Secretary and Buxton, Treasurer

R. M. Bragg '30 was elected president of the Vermont Outing Club at a special meeting last Wednesday. R. J. Maynes '31 was chosen vice-president, and Edmour Germain '31 secretary. C. S. Buxton '31 is team manager. These men have all been active in Outing Club work and will hold office throughout the coming year. The new men who were elected to the council are W. F. Burns '32, D. K. Parker '32, and J. H. Thoms '32. Election to the council means membership until graduation.

Committees were appointed as follows: Publicity, E. Germain; Mountain Day, E. Germain; Interfraternity Meet, R. J. Maynes, chairman; W. F. Burns, skating events; D. K. Parker, snowshoe events; and J. H. Thoms, ski events; hikes, R. M. Bragg; training of winter sports teams, R. M. Bragg, chairman.

The Club will enter a winter sports team in five or six meets next year. It is hoped that skating races may be made one of the major events in the next Interfraternity Meet and it is expected that next year's winter sports team will be furnished with the proper equipment for the various events.

Mountain Day

It is planned to hold a Mountain Day next year. Some day next fall classes will be suspended and the whole college will hike up Mount Mansfield. The summit of that mountain is owned by the University of Vermont and this strip of land has come to be known as the Back Campus. With cooperation on the part of everyone, Mountain Day can be made a success next year. Mountain Day has not been held for the past two or three years because of lack of cooperation. Formerly, however, Mountain Day was a regular event in the list of University activities.

It may be necessary to switch two or three backfield men to the line. This is a good temporary move but in the long run will weaken the backfield reserve strength. However, all the tacklers seem to be in the backfield now.

CAT'S MEOW

—SPORTING EDITOR—

As we begin the 1929-1930 athletic year we welcome our new Graduate Manager, Sabin Abell '28, whom many of us remember as a fellow student, back to the campus of U. V. M. May his career in his present capacity be as successful as his college days. Lots of luck, Sabe!

Another among those who will guide the various athletic teams this year is Capt. K. L. Berry, newly elected coach of the frosh football team. Captain Berry reported to the Military Department of the University this fall, coming from the training school at Fort Benning, Georgia. To him, too, we extend our best wishes for continued success.

New York University, Vermont's first grid opponent, is far ahead of every other college football team in the East, and perhaps in the country. Scrimmages have been held quite frequently for the past two weeks under Coach "Chick" Meehan on the campus of the New York State Institute of Applied Agriculture, the scene of the N. Y. U. pre-season training camp at Farmingdale, Long Island.

Saturday the Violet broke camp and will do its practicing on Ohio Field from now on.

N. Y. U. is one of the few colleges to number players front and back this year for the benefit of spectators. It seems the game is suddenly becoming crowd-conscious what with prospects of signals by officials and other enlightening moves.

Many of the larger schools plan to adopt the proposed system of signals by officials to indicate the cause of penalties for the benefit of spectators and press men.

"Chick" Meehan always has used two centers at N. Y. U., one for a left and one for a right formation, but this year he plans to use three. The regular center passes the ball back on right formations, and on left formations that task falls to one of the guards. This year Meehan has devised a few plays in which the passing will be done by one of the tackles. Leave it to "Chick" to devise.

One of the greatest ideas devised by that notorious mentor is the one whereby he uses a certain promising halfback as an interferer one year and causes him to blossom forth the following year as one of the leading ball-carriers in the East—usually an all-American man. This was the case with Briante and Strong and this year we are sure to hear from Beryl Follet.

Abell is Graduate Manager of Athletics at U. V. M.

New Graduate Manager of Athletics Elected This Summer—Graduated in Class of 1928

SABIN ABELL

The Designee of the Athletic Council to Succeed H. A. Mayforth as Graduate Manager.

Football equipment has been given out to the Vermont freshman candidates who will start practice this week in preparation for their début and the first game of the season at Centennial Field on October 5 against Montpelier Seminary.

Capt. "Bump" Levine is bigger than ever this year, tipping the scales around 215 pounds. Glancing over the schedule we say he'll need every ounce of that, but we all know that "Bump's" ability is right up with the cream of the crop.

POPULAR IN CLASS AND ACTIVE ON THE CAMPUS

Sabin Abell '28 has been selected from a group of applicants by the Athletic Council of the University to succeed Harold A. Mayforth as Graduate Manager of Athletics.

Mr. Abell, during his undergraduate years, was an outstanding member of his class. He was a member of Key and Serpent, Boulder, Wig and Baskin and Kappa Sigma Fraternity. He is a wearer of the "V" by virtue of his having managed the crack 1928 varsity baseball team. During his senior year at college he was president of his class. He also served on various campus committees.

After graduation he was employed in the engineering department of the Fellows Gear Shaper Company, where he served until his affiliation with the athletic department.

Mr. Mayforth has been assisting Mr. Abell in carrying out the duties of the office for the past few weeks and will remain until October 1.

Ed Thorn, who made his football letter as a halfback in 1926, is out for the team again and should give the other candidates stiff competition.

Try-outs for the University Choir will be held in the music building, 85 S. Prospect Street, next Wednesday and Thursday, September 25 and 26. Try-outs for men will be held Wednesday, 7 to 7.30 p.m., and Thursday, 4 to 4.30 p.m.; try-outs for women, Wednesday, 4 to 4.30, and Thursday, 7 to 7.30. For the convenience of candidates for the Men's and Women's Glee Clubs try-outs for the choir will count as try-outs for the glee clubs if candidates so desire, but women who intend to try out for glee club but not choir should not apply till next week. The University Choir is limited to 30 voices, and sings at services each week on Wednesday morning and once a month on Sunday afternoon, and rehearses Tuesday and Friday evenings, 7 to 8, and before the monthly Sunday afternoon services; the choir also presents a Christmas and a Lenten-Easter concert. Members are paid an honorarium of thirty-five cents for each service and rehearsal attended.

Try-outs for the Men's Glee Club will be held in the music building, 85 S. Prospect Street, next ... day, September 25, from 7 to 7.30 p.m., and Thursday, September 26, from 4 to 4.30 p.m. The Glee Club will compete in the New England College Glee Club contest to be held in Springfield, Mass., this winter. Try-outs for the University orchestra (men and women) will be held next week, also try-outs for candidates for the Women's Glee Club who are not also candidates for the choir.

The local Atwater Kent vocal contest will be held at the Athena Club, 328 Pearl St., next Friday, September 27, at 7.30 p.m. All University students not over the age of 25 are eligible, whether or not their homes are in Vermont. The two winners (one man and one woman) will compete in the State contest to be broadcasted from the University in October. The two winners of State contest will have their expenses paid to New York for the district contest. Thousands of dollars and a number of free scholarships are being offered to the ten national winners. Candidates should apply immediately to Mrs. E. G. Wilson, 54 Clarke Street.

W. A. A. ISSUES CALL FOR FROSH MEMBERS

The Women's Athletic Association is eager to see new freshman members in the near future. Only fifty points are required for membership and they may be earned quickly and easily by the keeping of health cards, by hiking and tennis, and by making hockey and volleyball teams. Start working for points today and get your class numerals in the spring.

Detailed information in regard to W. A. A. may be obtained from Estabel Perelman, president of W. A. A., or from the physical education office in the gym.

to answer his own question. Student discussions followed his address.

The next morning, Sunday, everyone was granted an extra hour of rest; that is, reveille was at eight o'clock. Inasmuch as it was the common opinion that it was much too cold for a morning dip in the lake, very few did take the dip. Because of taking so much time for dressing or getting up, many were absent from flag raising, but everybody reported for breakfast. After breakfast, Mr. Laatsch, instructor in the Political Science Department led the devotional service, speaking on Prayer. Robert Stewart then spoke on the John Dewey Club and on Grey Friars. The former is the psychology-philosophy club while Grey Friars of which Stewart is the president, is the men's honorary literary society. Fred Householder, '32, spoke on "Scholarship," and Ernest Codding, '31, president of the Independents, spoke on his organization. Donald Frazier, '32, then gave an interesting talk on "What Burlington Has To Offer." At 11.30 a religious service was held in the Open Air Chapel. The Rev. John H. Hopkins, D.D., formerly of Chicago, speaking. Sunday afternoon was spent in doing whatever one pleased to do. In the evening, Harvey Butterfield, '31, president of the Vermont Christian Association, spoke. Edmour Germain played a few more piano selections; Mr. M. D. Powers, secretary of the Vermont Christian Association, spoke a few words; Joseph Carter and Ernest Wilder each gave talks on the Northfield Conference and once more Mr. W. J. Kitchen was heard from. Theoretically, every one went to sleep at 10 o'clock.

Then Monday arrived, the last day of the conference. After breakfast, everyone assembled around the big Stone Seat to hear a few more words from Bill Kitchen and a little advice from Robert Stewart on hazing.

Plan Camp for Next Year

The Freshman Camp this year was a great success if what the students who attended the camp say, is true. Undoubtedly, a similar camp will be held for next year's freshmen for it is important that freshmen get set on the right track at the very opening of their college career.

Parker Duofold Pens $5 to $10

Christened "Parker Duofold" by Amelia Earhart, the first trans-Atlantic woman flyer, this 5-Passenger Fairchild Monoplane has, in the past 9 months, given flights to 6,200 Parker dealers and college students. This fall it will continue its tour among the colleges of America.

High altitudes and high marks are both old friends to W. Howard Ehmann, honor student at New York University. Between classes he pilots his own Curtiss plane—and in class pilots a Parker Duofold Pen.

There's very little about airplanes that Kober Cameron, Engineering Student at Stanford University, doesn't know. He's a good judge of pens, too—uses a Parker Duofold.

Here are Bill Banker, Tulane's All-American "Blond Blizzard," and Ike Sewell, former captain of University of Texas' football team—all set for a hop in a Command-aire plane. When it comes to speedy writing, both are Parker Duofellows.

Now numbers of colleges have their flying clubs and landing fields—but the thing that students like best to pilot through their studies is the light-flying Parker Duofold Pen that leaps to its work like a dart and writes with Pressureless Touch.

Pressureless Touch is Geo. S. Parker's 47th Improvement, combining capillary attraction with gravity feed.

A census of pens in 13 technical schools disclosed that Parker leads in popularity 2 to 1. It was voted the favorite by students in 55 colleges. And a nation-wide poll conducted by the Library Bureau proved Parker the preference by 25% above the second pen, and 48% above the third.

Non-breakable barrels of jewel-like, colorful Permanite, smartly black-tipped—28% lighter than rubber—holding 24% more ink than average, size for size.

Step to any good pen counter and select your point. Imitations can't deceive you if you look for the imprint, "Geo. S. Parker—DUOFOLD."

REMBLING FROSH ATTEND JUDGMENT

phomore Women Mete Out Punishment to All Offending Co-eds of Freshman Class—Speeches and Songs Fall to Lot of Luckless Ones

O-EDS PREPARE NEW SET OF FROSH RULES

Judgment was meted out to the eshman women Tuesday night on dstone Grounds, as a preliminary the annual Judgment Day to be ld in November. The usual trem- ng, frightened group of Frosh thered in Robinson after dinner d were ordered to remove all hair ns and similar adornments from eir hair and to let their crowning ories fall gracefully about their feet. Having been blindfolded by stern d wrathy sophomores, the class of 33, by far the freshest in years, were en led by devious ways to the ounds in back of Redstone, and, rrounded by a delighted throng of perclasswomen, were herded to- ther to await their fate. The roll as called by the leader, a sopho- ore both awe-inspiring and witty her commands and gestures.

The Worms Speak

Following the roll call, a fine little eech entitled "Why I Am Like a orm in Comparison With a Sopho- ore" was presented by an insig- ficant Frosh. With the help of the owd, many reasons were brought rth, and many a lesson learned hich may help to make the present reshmen of as fine a calibre as is he class of '32.

Next on the program was another natty discussion by one of Redstone's rominent insignificants entitled "Who s the Most Popular Girl at Vermont nd Why Am I?" Having groveled n the dirt for the ladies, she pre- ented the subject as well as possible onsidering the satire involved.

"Why I Like Pepper and Is It Hot" as the next topic under discussion y an infant lately graduated from ermont Academy. She also sang rettily for the crowd and was dis- issed, only to be followed by a class- nate who scrambled like an egg in really remarkable manner and who new the words and the tune of ach Vermont song which she was sked to sing, a fact which is very leserving of commendation.

ELECT PRESIDENTS AND COMMITTEES AT DORMS

Election of House Presidents and house committees were held last Fri- day night. At Campus House the fol- lowing were elected: House president, Dorothy Colton, '30; senior members, Anne McLaughlin and Cornelia Mould; junior members, Jean Belden and Ruth Field. As there are no sophomores or freshmen in Campus House two were chosen from each of the upper classes.

At Slade the house president is Joyce Richardson, '30; the senior member is Doris Kibby; the junior member Helen Taylor, the sopho- more member, Barbara Lowd; the freshman member, Charlotte Odell.

Florence McKenzie is house presi- dent at Grassmount.

BLUESTOCKINGS DISCUSS YEAR'S SOCIAL PROGRAM

At the first meeting of Bluestock- ings last Wednesday afternoon a so- cial program for the year was out- lined and discussed, to be voted upon later. Meetings are to be held regu- larly every two weeks, business al- ternating with social. Speakers from off campus will be guests of honor at some of the social meetings and an unusually successful year is antici- pated. In the future two cuts a semester will be allowed to each mem- ber and any other absence must be excused by the president in advance. A member disregarding this new rule will be dropped from the club at once.

Try-outs for membership are to start immediately and are to con- tinue until Thanksgiving. No papers will be accepted after that date. Any form of creative writing will be ac- ceptable. Any woman in college is eligible to try out for this signal honor. Detailed information in re- gard to any phase of Bluestockings activities may be obtained from Joyce Richardson, '30.

MEET TO DISCUSS PLAN FOR ORGANIZATION OF A VERMONT LIBERAL CLUB

Organization Gets Under Way Sunday When Students Assemble to Outline Purposes and Methods

A number of students interested in forming a Liberal Club assembled last Sunday morning, after the regular Sunday morning service at the First Congregational Church, in Dr. C. C. Adams' study to discuss the possibility of organizing such a club. About fif- teen students were present and all were enthusiastic in doing all they could to make the club a reality and a success. The Rev. C. C. Adams was present at the meeting to discuss plans with the students. It was decided to hold a meeting of the new club next Sunday morning at 11.45 in Dr. C. C. Adams' study in the rear part of the First Congregational Church. All students at the University interested in the possibilities of the Liberal Club are invited to be present at this next meeting. The subject that will be discussed is: "The Liberal Mind." Co-eds are also invited to participate in the club.

Announce Purpose

The organizers believe that the spirit of the Liberal Club is clearly contained in the following words by Huber F. Klemme of Johns Hopkins University:

"The hardest thing a freshman will have to do is, not to become desirable in the eyes of a fraternity; not to become adjusted to a new social life or a new set of professors. It is, rather, to become adjusted to a new choice of ideas, psychologies, and at- titudes. And the first difficulty in this [illegible] is to overcome prejudices that have become axiomatic and habitual.

"We acquire certain fixed ideas— dislikes for people, fears for words. These ideas often do not coincide with the wider views to which we are ex- posed in college; nevertheless, we hate to give them up. Yet failure to shake them off makes and marks a failure to grow. An interesting example is the general fear of "radicals," a fear which even college students may have. It's just prejudice, that's all. There is no reason for it. It arises, on the one hand, from a blind hatred of ideas that differ from those we hold (and especially from those we have held for a long time) and on the other hand, from a naïve tendency to think of words, rather than of the ideas they represent. It is important to overcome these dangers and not to be angry at a difference or scared to death of a mere word. A genuine radical, after all (and this does not by any means include all men labelled such), is quite essential to progress. It is the radical who goes to the roots of things, who (presumably) sees how they may be improved, and goes ahead to do it. The greatest men in

FROSH MIXER MARKS YEAR'S FIRST DANCE

Contrary to Reports, Dance Will be Held in University Gym Tonight—Everybody is Invited

DANCE FOLLOWS SEND-OFF TO TEAM AT 8 P.M.

In the hope that the members of the freshman class may come to know one another better and enable them to form valuable friendships, the much-talked-about Frosh Mixer will be held in the University gymnasium tonight, Friday, September 27, con- trary to all previous reports.

A send-off to the football team leav- ing for their first contest with New York University will precede the so- cial function. It is expected that the entire college will turn out and give the team a rousing and sincere send- off that will fire the players with an enthusiasm to do their best for U. V. M. The preliminary activities will include pep speakers, songs and cheers, speeches by Manager Ma- comber, Captain Levine, and Coach Rattan. This part of the program commences about eight o'clock giving the team ample time to catch its train.

Lechnyr's Vermonters, better than ever, will furnish music for the danc- ing which will probably start about nine o'clock and last to twelve. Ad- mission is free. Everyone is promised a good time.

Boulder, the honorary senior so- ciety, is sponsoring the function this year. Last year, this honor fell jointly to Boulder and Scabbard and Blade, the senior honorary military society. Formerly, before the inauguration of the freshman banquet, the Vermont Christian Association had charge of the affair.

Not only are all members of the freshman class, both men and women, present at this annual affair, but many of the upperclassmen make good use of the opportunity to make closer acquaintance with members of the new class.

HUNGRY FROSH ATTEND EN MASSE AT ANNUAL V. C. A. CLASS BANQUET

Vermont Christian Association Provides Food and Speakers —Dykhuizen Toastmaster at Yearly Affair

The banquet held at the Van Ness Hotel for the freshmen on Monday evening was probably the most suc- cessful ever held. The freshman class responded in great numbers, only a very few being absent.

Professor Dykhuizen, a member of the executive committee of the Ver- mont Christian Association, acted as toastmaster and introduced the speak- ers with very witty remarks.

The main speaker of the evening was Professor Leon W. Dean. After getting the people in good humor by telling them a few jokes from his seemingly unlimited fund, he gave ex- cellent advice to the freshmen, de- claring that character was the great- est asset to a person entering college. He gave a few examples of men now famous, showing that character was their greatest asset through life.

The V. C. A. was represented by Harvey Butterfield, its president, by Calvin Walker and by Alfred Morin, chairmen of the social committee and of the advertising committee respec- tively.

The Y. W. C. A. was represented by Miss Marion Tifft. Herrick Macomber, representing Boulder Society, gave advice to the freshmen concerning the Frosh rules. Mr. M. D. Powers, execu- tive secretary of the "Y," was also one of the speakers.

Another feature was the program of Vermont songs and cheers led by Phil Perry. The program was con- cluded with the singing of "Cham- plain."

DEBATING STARTS OFF AS PLANS GET UNDER WAY FOR CLASS MEET

Frosh Receive Call to Form Class Team—Varsity Sees Prospects For Successful Season

Debating gets away to a quick start this season when candidates for the freshman team assemble in the Old Mill Chapel on Monday in response to the call of Manager Franklin A. Sears. At least a dozen men are expected to report at the meeting, consideration of the frosh-soph debate being the chief business in hand.

A cup is annually awarded to the winning team in this contest, and the class of 1932 has yet to win this trophy, the gift of Senator H. A. Bailey of the class of 1915. The class of 1931 set a precedent last year by winning the cup for the second time in a row and, should the frosh this time defeat the sophs, '32 will have the doubtful distinction of never hav- ing possessed the cup.

Both Classes Strong

Both teams, however, will this year possess unusual strength. The sophomores still have last year's team: Peary Berger, Paul LaCrosse and Fred Householder. In addition, they have plenty of reserve material out of which to make a more than satisfactory team. Among the fresh- men are graduates of Vermont high schools who holding debating scholar- ships from the University and others who have been active for years in the State Debating League, several who hold oratorical scholarships, and many from out of the state who have proved their prowess in high school or acad- emy. Each year, however, one or more "finds" emerge, men who have had no previous training or experi- ence in debate, but who frequently become varsity material, and this year will probably be no exception to the rule.

Both the question and time of the debate are to be selected at meetings of the class debaters. Meanwhile, try- outs are expected in little more than a week, with the debate itself sched- uled for the middle of October.

Powers Again to Coach

With the class debate out of the way, the varsity will immediately begin preparing for the fall season. Coach Merrill D. Powers, who had tendered his resignation early this month on account of previous engage- ments, has been prevailed on to re- consider it and will again have the

WILBUR WILL LEFT VERMONT HUGE SUM

Late Trustee and Benefactor of University Provided For Numerous Trust Funds For College of Adopted State

LIMITS ENROLLMENT TO A THOUSAND STUDENTS

By the will of the late James B. Wilbur, who died last winter in New York, the principal of $500,000 of which his son James B. Wilbur, Jr., will receive the income reverts to the University of Vermont at his death.

In addition, by a trust fund created in 1919, the University receives out- right a sum of $150,000 for the main- tenance of the Wilbur room at the Billings Library, which will house the donor's collection of Vermont books or papers, the income to pay for a spe- cial librarian and for upkeep.

Other Endowments For U. V. M.

Further, from the trust fund, yet another beneficiary receives an income of $2,400 a year, and four others $1,200 a year each, Mr. Wilbur stipu- lating that the Bankers Trust Com- pany, administrators of the fund, must set aside a sum sufficient to pay them. The principal from all these incomes will go to the University at the deaths of the beneficiaries. Another sum of $30,000 is set aside in the trust, the income to go to a Mr. Keyes, followed by the principal when he reaches the age of thirty. But in the event of his death before that time, this sum too goes to the University.

The total amount which will even- tually go to the University, consist- ing of stocks, cannot be accurately stated. If they continue to go up in value for the next few years, $5,000,000 will be a conservative estimate. At present, however, their value is in the vicinity of $3,000,000.

The conditions which the Univer- sity must fulfill—and is fulfilling—in order to receive the funds are:

Limits Enrollment

First, that the number of students in the College of Arts and Sciences shall at no time exceed 1,000; and second, that no student from outside the state shall be admitted so long as there be any Vermonters, properly qualified, ready to enter.

Failing the continued operation of these restrictions, the sum shall pass to the Library of Congress.

MEMBERS OF R. O. T. C. BAND RECEIVE INSIGNIA

Joseph F. Lechnyr announces that the following men of the crack R. O. T. C. band have received their in- signia: Adams, Barter, Beyor, Bis- son, Cowles, Derby, Elliot, Goldfarb, Hanson, Hendrick, Jenks, King, Kin- ney, Merola, Moore, Perrotta, Pavia, Judd, Colby, Reynolds, Rich, Strauss, Baker, Backus, Brasor, Rowe, Clapp, Clark, Davis, Maynard, Kendrick, Har- wood, Curtiss, Romm, Sears, Mattí- son, Marvin, Householder, Harris, Hurlburt, King, Kinney, Persons, Petraglio, Cowles, Jenks, Kibby, Reed, and Park.

These men received their insignia at a banquet which was given last May to all the members of R. O. T. C. band at the Hotel Vermont roof gar- den.

Prospects for this year's band look good. There are twenty-six freshman candidates. There is exceptional talent among the new freshman candidates, said Mr. Lechnyr. The first rehearsal was held last Tuesday at four in the afternoon at Converse Hall. The band will go on several trips this year.

Mr. Lechnyr, who the conductor of the R. O. T. C. band, is also conductor of the Burlington Symphony Orches- tra, the Burlington Band, the Middle- bury College Band, the Burlington Post, American Legion Bugle and Drum Corps, the Vergennes Industrial School band, the Cathedral High School Orchestra, the Cathedral Choir, and the Vermonters Orchestra.

ONE EVERY MINUTE

Have you ever been to Bridgeport, Conn.? It is often referred to as the Park City for obvious reasons. Seaside Park, a beautiful stretch right on Long Island Sound, has always appealed to me. It was presented to the city many long years ago by one P. T. Barnum of circus fame. His statue stands directly in the center of the park. He sits and looks out across the water, a half-amused expression plays about his lips. No, not a cynical, superior smirk; rather it is the self-satisfied look of a man who has understood human nature and has profited by that understanding. He is thinking—"There is one born every minute."

Every year professors preface their class work with sage advice about the necessity of study, and hard study, to pass their particular courses. So often have students listened, with ill-concealed boredom, to their remarks that the word Study seems to have lost its vitally important meaning. And every year mid-years and finals take their heavy tolls of perfectly capable students.

Most people come to college to learn something. As far as we know, there is only one way of learning anything. That is by studying the problem confronting us. Some of the students probably can fool all of their professors all of the time; all of the students probably can fool some of their professors some of the time; but not all of the students can fool all of the professors all of the time.

It doesn't pay to bluff. Bluffing is a bad habit to get into. You can't bluff your way all through life, even if you may be so unfortunate as to do so successfully in Economics 216 or History 79.

We don't ask you to become an inveterate grind. Grinding and studying are two entirely different things. A student is one who studies to learn. A grind is one who does little else but study to learn. Obviously, it isn't at all necessary to grind in order to become a good student.

College work is serious. Take it seriously, do it ample justice and your marks will take care of themselves. You'll still be here when others have packed and left these classic shades.

Barnum was right, but there's no reason why he should be universally right. Let's fool him at Vermont.

If thou wouldst get a friend, try him before thou takest him, and do not credit him easily. For there is a friend for his own occasion, and he will not abide in the day of thy trouble. And there is a friend that turneth to enmity; and there is a friend that will disclose hatred and strife and reproaches. And there is a friend, a companion at the table, and he will not abide in the day of distress. A friend if he continues steadfast shall be to thee as himself, and shall act with confidence with thee of thy household. If he humble himself before thee, and hide himself from thy face thou shalt have unanimous friendship for good. Separate thyself from thy enemies, and take heed of thy friends. A faithful friend is a strong defense and he that hath found him, hath found a treasure.—ECCLESIASTICUS VI, 7-14.

American society is casting its shadow over American education. John R. Public is willing to pay the university ticket-seller $5,000 a year and a professor who has been in the French department ten years $3,500. He wants eight columns a day about collegiate sports and is satisfied with half a column one day out of 365 about honor students. And John R. Public models his children after his own likeness.

Because Wisconsin is a state university, it is impossible—and perhaps in the long run undesirable—to throw all the "lovely children" out and reinvoke the old-time cloister of knowledge.

Our argument casts no doubt on the utilitarian value of extra-curricular activities. It does say that they help to suck the vitality out of education. People interested in nothing but such activities have very little place in a true college, and in proportion to the ascendency they have over it, they weaken, debase, and shame it....

Men will always tamper with and change their society; the undergraduates of today will mold the undergraduates of tomorrow, and consequently their opinions which are forming now are infinitely important to the future. —The Daily Cardinal, Wisconsin.

THE BOARDING HOUSE REACH

By Ex-Converse Hall

To Ye Frosh

You've left your home and all it means
To come away to school.
When apron strings are first untied
Man sometimes plays the fool.

Far be it from me, kid, to preach
To tell you what to do;
But two short years have taught me things
I tell you 'bout a few.

First, hit the books and hit 'em hard;
Don't stop with just a task.
But learn what courses really teach;
Life's much too short to waste.

Next, know your profs, and talk with them.
No, not so you may pass;
But rather get their inner stuff
That they can't give in class.

Then choose some sport or outside work,
Something where you excel,
Just buckle down and hit it hard;
You're bound to do it well.

Be careful in your choice of girls.
This is no funny crack.
Each city has its set of them—
And men who can't come back.

Lay off the liquor, too, my friend;
Good stuff is hard to find.
The town of Waterbury's filled
With halt and lame and blind.

You've got your mothers and your dads;
They've done their best for you.
It's up to you to do your bit
And play the old game true.

Your college life's the moulding time.
Don't leave it up to fate,
Just set out now to mould yourself;
You'll come out clean and straight.

HARDY HIKERS EXPLORE TRAILS OF MANSFIELD

George Smead, '31, and Joseph C. Carter, '32, hiked from Burlington to Mount Mansfield over the week-end of September 21. They took the Sunset Trail over the Chin, where they witnessed a gorgeous sunset and spent the night at Taft Lodge. Sunday morning they were then joined by Charles Allbee, Roy Kirby, and Walter Cimon of Burlington, the five hiked across the summit ridge and descended into the Cave of the Winds. The interior chambers and passages were coated with great walls of ice, which made the footing very uncertain, and caused some slides to be taken over the icy chutes. However, with the help of ropes and some trees which had been lowered into the cave, they finally reached the point where the last party had left their names in a bottle. These five men are the fourth official party to successfully complete this mine-like passage. It was ascertained that the cave could probably be explored still further beyond its present known depth of about one hundred feet.

The party returned to the hotel near the Nose, by way of the Wall Street Trail, and climbed this height of land before returning to Burlington on the Toll Road to Stowe. Many magnificent views may be had from the important points on Mansfield and some fine photographs were obtained.

Scholars Live Long

Honor students live longer than athletes, results of a comprehensive survey engineered by a prominent insurance company indicate. Eleven thousand outstanding graduates of sixteen colleges during a period of thirty-five years were studied to make the analysis as nearly infallible as possible.

"Schools," says George Bernard Shaw, "act as prisons in which the immature are kept from worrying the mature." A contribution to the Daily Californian takes exception to this ism. "Schools act as prisons in which selected members of the mature are kept to worry the immature," he declares.

Literary Talents Have Chance For Expression and Growth at Vermont

Professor Dean's summer school class in short story writing was one of the most promising he has ever had according to one report. Although most of his students are not in college, there were a few in his class who are still at Vermont, so that the literary prospects of the University seem better than ever.

During the past year one of the most popular courses in English was that of Advanced Composition under Professor Lindsay. In this course the members write whatever they please, be it short stories, essays or poetry. Professor Carleton has a course in Scandinavian Literature which is finding many adherents.

Although few in numbers, Professor Dean's class in Dramatic Composition is very ambitious and diligent. It is their high hope that they will soon have a studio where they can produce the dramas that they write. If this proves possible the class would learn about the production of plays as well as the writing of them. The class is not large enough yet for the University to undergo the necessary expense, but it is hoped that soon there will be enough students interested to make it profitable.

Class in Journalism

Mr. Crockett's class in journalism is also another ambitious group of students. Mr. Crockett's experience as a writer and journalist makes his advice useful and to the point. Last year this class edited the Burlington Daily News for a day and put out an excellent issue.

There are many ways, at the University of Vermont, in which a person interested in literary work can follow his or her hobby. In the spring there is a contest in which three New England colleges take part. There are three prizes each for essays, short stories and poetry. In 1926, Vermont was given second place; in 1927 and 1928 first place and in 1929 third place. The third prize in short story went to Mary Turner, '29, the third in essay to Margaret Rice, '31, and third in poetry to Janice Goodrich, '30. This contest is under the supervision of the English Department and there is always much competition to get manuscripts to the finals.

The Grey Friars

The Grey Friars, the men's honorary literary society, has for its purpose to encourage and develop creative writing and good literature on the campus. The number of members is very limited and it is considered a great honor to be one of the few. All men, especially freshmen, are urged to try for it.

Bluestockings, the women's honorary literary society, has also for its purpose to promote creative writing. It being under new leadership this fall there will be a few changes in its policies and program. Freshman women are asked to be on the lookout for notices about Bluestockings Society.

The Press Club, also a women's organization, has been called the best Press Club in colleges east of the Mississippi River. It does much work in reporting to the hometown papers news about students at the University of Vermont who have had honors bestowed upon them.

University Publications

The CYNIC, the Ariel, and the Literary Magazine are the outlets through which the literary efforts of Vermont students are made public. Everyone interested in writing should have something printed in some of these publications.

Manager Sears has not yet released his schedule but N. Y. U., Bates, M. A. C. and Middlebury should be heard here this year in home debates.

Coach Powers has enough material to work with to promise an even more successful season than last year's. Louis Lisman, George Nelson and Franklin Sears, last year's varsity, will form a strong nucleus around which to build up a winning team. Philip Andrews, Peary Berger and Hugh Mattison are three others in line for varsity honors and Coach Powers expects to draw more material yet from the freshman and sophomore teams.

The women's varsity expects to draw a good number of debaters from the freshman class. Janice Goodrich and Roberta Powers alone remain from last year's team which, planning the most ambitious schedule in the history of co-ed debating at Vermont, emerged with victories over its strongest opponents and with a state championship. The call for women debaters will be issued late this fall by Coach Powers.

T. K. A. Admits Two

Tau Kappa Alpha, national honorary debate fraternity, to which all varsity debaters are eligible, is to meet shortly to transact the business of the fall term with the recent admission of P. G. Andrews, '30, and of Roberta Powers, '32, the membership now stands as follows: P. G. Andrews, '30; Lena Cochran, '31; Mabel Freemann '30; Janice Goodrich, '30; Louis Lisman, '31; H. M. Macomber, '30; G. R. Nelson, '31; Roberta Powers, '32; F. A. Sears, '30, and Edith Thomas, '31.

Meet to Discuss Plan for Organization of a Vermont Liberal Club history — Buddha, Socrates, Copernicus, Lincoln, Jesus — were such pioneers.

Education Kills Prejudice

"If our college education is a success—if it broadens, deepens, and raises our experience and adjusts us more adequately to the best in life, we will grow out of our prejudices. Further, we ourselves will in a true sense become radical enough to be critical of things as they are and as men have thought they should be. We will fearlessly go to the heart of vital problems and seek their solution."

The Liberal Club intends to discuss many matters of interest in a frank and open matter and so try to come to a solution.

It is the absence of the co-ed, claims Knute Rockne, that brings success to his football teams, more than any other single factor.

Records of the probate court at Manchester have disclosed another trust somewhat similar in nature to that created by the late James B. Wilbur and for the benefit of the same institution. Through the will of the late Mrs. Miriam B. Blake of Manchester and New York the University of Vermont, provided it complies with the conditions, will eventually possess a fund of nearly $60,000.

The will of Mrs. Blake, who was Mr. Wilbur's cousin, provides that her entire estate be converted into a life trust fund with the income to be paid to a half sister, Florence Blake of St. Louis. Upon the death of the original beneficiary the income shall thereafter be used for the maintenance of a professionally trained organist at the Ira Allen Chapel, built and given to the institution by her recently deceased cousin.

In case the University fails to provide the required organist for a period of one year or shall divert any of the income of the fund to any other purposes, the fund shall be transferred to the New York Historical Society and the income shall be used to defray the salary of its librarian.

UNIVERSITY PICTURES AT SPRINGFIELD EXPOSITION

Some unusually fine photographs of buildings and campus scenes of the University of Vermont were exhibited in the University of Vermont booth in the new Vermont building at the Eastern States Exposition last week.

An oil painting of Ira Allen which has hung in the Billings Library for some time past, was taken to Springfield to form the centerpiece of the U. V. M. exhibit.

In addition to the views of the University buildings and the immediate campus, the series of photographs included views of Camel's Hump, Mansfield and other nearby scenes. These pictures are the ones used on the Vermont Special trip.

The summer school too was featured in the exhibit. Posters prepared by the art department of the University set forth the facts about various phases of University life. Several of them were prepared by Miss Lois Burbank of the art department, who had charge of the exhibit. Miss Burbank has done also a series of pictures in colors for the Vermont State Publicity booth depicting the glories of Vermont in autumn.

At the University booth, booklets telling about the summer school were given out.

Mace was chairman of the Junior ...rom last year, was class president ...is first year, was a member of Gold Key and Key and Serpent. He has earned football letters for two years and starred on his yearling team. He ... a member of Sigma Phi. Besides serving on the Student Senate he has held membership on many campus committees. On the track team Mace throws the shot and hammer and broad jumps.

The Athletic Council has offered Archie Post '27 the track coaching position for this year. Post was a prominent member of his class. He is a middle-distance runner and holds a Green Mountain Conference record. He captained the 1926 basketball team while at college. He has not yet signed a contract but is expected to do so in a few days.

Post will be assisted in his work by Milt Aldrich, last year's mentor, whose work as an instructor in the College of Engineering prevents him from coaching full time. However, Aldrich will have charge of cross-country.

Track letters have been awarded to Captain Lyman, Manager Birchard, Captain elect Mace, L. Berry, D. Child, H. Kropper, A. Mackay, N. Wood and A. Woodard.

Jones, Aiken and Mattison all of the class of '31, were elected assistant managers of track.

CAPTAIN K. L. BERRY TO COACH VARSITY QUINT

Frosh Grid Mentor, All Around Athlete, Will Take Over the Reins of the Basketball Team

Capt. K. L. Berry who is now tutoring the yearlings on the gridiron at Centennial Field was elected Monday afternoon by the Athletic Council to coach the 1929-1930 varsity basketball team.

Capt. Berry has already been introduced to readers of the CYNIC and little need be said concerning his qualifications. He is a grad of the University of Texas where he participated in basketball, football, and track. He coached last year in the Infantry School at Fort Benning, Georgia.

BASEBALL AND TENNIS ELECTIONS AND AWARDS

Eleven Letters Awarded in Baseball—Six Varsity Tennis Awards, Three Frosh—Borkland Captain of Tennis, Reed Manager, Roller and McAllister Assistants

Baseball letters were awarded by the Athletic Council to the following men for the season of 1929: Captain Cal Macomber, Manager Rogers, Captain elect Wis Howard, Orson Jay, Burt Morse, Pie Traynor, Ed Winant, Jim Kendrick, Chet Rutkowski, Wally Sargent, Mac McKay.

On account of the ruling that sweaters are awarded letter men in alternate years, all except Capt.-elect Howard received baseball sweaters. Howard played his second year of baseball last year.

Ed Young was awarded an aVa in signia for his work with the squad.

H. K. Borkland '30 was elected captain of varsity tennis at the close of the 1929 season. F. J. Reed '31 is manager. A. H. Roller '31 and O. E. McAllister '32 are the assistants. The following letter awards were made by the Athletic Council: Captain Shedd, Manager Price, Captain-elect Borkland, Goddard, Macomber and Pouch.

Freshman numerals for tennis went to Holbrook, Torrey and Albert.

Leo Segal, last year's find at end, is looking as good as ever. His tackling is his forte.

Carrigan has played for two years with Squad B and played a little with the first squad last year. He seems to have the goods now to make him a leading backfield candidate.

At Duke University, two deputies padlocked fourteen fraternity rooms which were located on the campus. The officers did not represent the vice squad, but merely evicted the frats because of overdue payments of the rent.

CAT'S MEOW

—SPORTING EDITOR—

Much improvement was noticed in the way the football squad carried out its assignments this week.

If Orson Jay gets into the N. Y. U fray there is apt to be something doing. Jay is fast, can pivot, and picks his holes. Lack of weight is his drawback.

The coaches are concentrating on getting down under punts and defensive line play. These phases of the game are the most valuable ones to master before facing such an outfit as N. Y. U.

Although "Chick" Meehan has given no definite information concerning his starting line-up against Vermont tomorrow it will be very similar to this: Ends—Chalmers, Nemecek; tackles—Capt. Grant, Concannon; guards—Myers, Murphy; center—Schneider; backs—Follet, LaMark, Gaudet, O'Herin. But there will undoubtedly be plenty of subs.

Cross-country practice will start for both frosh and varsity Monday afternoon. Candidates should report on that date at 4:00 P.M. to Coach Aldrich in the gym.

Coach "Larry" Gardner is in town to take a peek at what he'll have to work with next spring on the diamond. Those ball players who are not engaged in football now have been tossing and hitting the horsehide in limbering-up fashion since Tuesday on Centennial Field.

There's a promising frosh named Pires who reported to Coach Gardner. He's an infielder with a task ahead of him to supplant one of last year's infielders.

Squad in Pink of Condition—Rapid Development Noticed During Past Few Days

TWENTY-SEVEN FROSH REPORT FOR FOOTBALL

Captain Berry's Squad Looks Promising Although Men are Small in Stature

Freshman football got off to a flying start this week when twenty-seven yearlings turned out to practice on Centennial Field. This is a fair-sized squad for the first few practices, and the number will probably be swelled by a few late comers by next week.

The Kittens are in the hands of Coach Berry, and he has all too short a time to whip the freshmen into shape for their first clash of the season on October 5, when they meet Montpelier Seminary. Without a doubt this will be a tough nut to crack, but if the coach can produce a team that will compare favorably with the aggregations of the past few years the Kittens should come out on the top of the heap.

Probably the greatest handicap that Berry will have to face is the question of size. The freshmen are all rather small and in all probability the mentor will have to concentrate on speed and a good aerial attack. Several of the men have showed themselves to be adept at hurling the sphere and that seems to be the best bet. It is much too early in the season as yet to pick out any individual stars, but several of the men look promising.

SIX LETTERMEN START GAME IN METROPOLIS

Tomorrow afternoon the Vermont football team will be in New York to open the season in a game with New York University on Ohio Field. The opposition is expected to be tremendous but the boys are ready to show the old "Vermont fight" which never fails.

Even if the game tomorrow does not mean a victory for the Green and Gold, it will at least give Coaches Rattan and Tully a valuable opportunity to get a line on their men in action. Lack of reserves will be one weak point in the Vermont squad and this may prove to be a handicap during the whole season.

For the past few weeks the team has been drilling with some of the men in unaccustomed positions. De Rose, for instance, played in the backfield last year but tomorrow will probably hold down one of the ends. Segal, a valuable veteran, will be the other endman as usual. Captain Levine with his 215 pounds of steam will be at center. He is bound to cause trouble for the opponents. Burstein and Davis will probably start the game as tackles while Coach Rattan may send in Donaldson and Collins as guards to complete the line.

THE YOUNG MAY MOON

By Martha Ostenso

A sexual quarrel, misunderstanding, early impulse and Marcia Graham's brief marriage is shattered forever. This is the story of her life with her son in an obscure country town where village gossip threatens to bring her reputation and happiness to ruin. But her youth and some of the beautiful gave her and offer to her again the fullness of life.

NOTICES

The Cynic Board issues a last call for men who intend to scrub the news side of the paper. Freshmen and upperclassmen who wish to make the board by the December elections and have not yet reported, must do so Saturday at 2 p.m. or Monday at 4.00.

All freshmen interested in debating report Monday at 4 p.m. in the Old Mill Chapel in preparation for the annual Frosh-Soph debate.

Students interested in scrubbing the business managership of the Vermont Literary Magazine report at once to O. A. Martinetti at the Phi Mu Delta House or to Mabel Freemann at the Kappa Alpha Theta House.

If you can write poetry will you please submit some for the Literary Magazine. Address contributions to Elizabeth Hollis, 3 University Terrace.

Anyone interested in taking horseback riding or golf please see Miss Cummings in regard to it, as classes are now being arranged.

The Dean of Women will hold a series of lectures for the freshman women at four o'clock in the Old Chapel, beginning the first Thursday of October. Attendance at these talks is compulsory and a great deal of benefit should be derived from them by the women of the class of '33.

Professor Leon W. Dean's drama course will meet Tuesday and Thursday morning at 9.30 instead of in the afternoon at three. Those interested may see Mr. Dean at the English office.

Presidents Only

After thorough investigation ... University of Minnesota Student Council found that nearly all ... officials failed to fulfill any particular duties. As a result the Council urged that the offices of vice-president, secretary and treasurer in ... classes of the university be abolished.

R. O. T. C. men are notified that all who have not already done so should call at Hayes and Carney's for their shoes.

Boys who wish to work by the hour should make out applications in the "Y" office and leave their hour plans with Mr. Powers.

There is a large amount of mail to be called for. Watch bulletin board for advertised mail that is in the Vermont Christian Association office.

All sophomores wishing to scrub the editorial side of the Ariel are asked to report to G. R. Brush, at the Owl House, Thursday evening, September 26, at 7.30.

MORTAR BOARD HAS SUCCESSFUL PICNIC

Entertains Over Three Hundred Women in Annual Event Held at North Shore — Bountiful Eats Rapidly Disappear

INTERCLASS STUNT WON BY SENIORS

One of the most successful Mortar Board parties in years was held late Wednesday afternoon at North Shore when over three hundred women present at these picnics are sponsored every fall by Mortar Board in order to help the freshmen get acquainted with the upperclassmen.

A picnic supper was served at five o'clock. Potato salad, hot dogs, cake, cider, apples and coffee disappeared very rapidly. Miss Helen Nichols, president, who had charge of the supper was presented with a box of chocolates by Mortar Board in appreciation of her service.

Stunts Come Next

Next in order were the interclass stunts given by the seniors. The judges, Mrs. S. A. Griffin, Miss Eleanor Sabin, and Miss Alice Blanchard, declared that all the other stunts deserved honorable mention.

The winning stunt, presented by the seniors was entitled "The Coquette." Miss Campbell was in charge of the event. The characters were: Georgia Bostwick, Iva Harris, Doris Carissa Peters, Joyce Richardson and Eunice Wilder.

Margaret Stanley directed the junior stunt, which was "The Singing Contest at Breakfast." Those who took part were: Ruth Field, Eleanor Ware, Emily Murray, Margaret Stanley and Helen Taylor.

"There's Strength in Numbers" was the sophomore stunt. Kathryn Rauh was the director. Carolyn Beggs, Priscilla Hadden, Roberta Powers and Helen Ransiow were the performers.

And Plenty of Singing

Following the stunts, everyone gathered around the bonfire and sang Vermont songs under the peppy guidance of Estabel Perelman, '30. The climax of the picnic was the singing of "Champlain" in the misty twilight with the famous lake of song and story shimmering in the distance.

ALPHA CHI OMEGA WINS NATIONAL HONORARY CUP

Alpha Iota Chapter of Vermont Awarded Annual Trophy For Second Time Since 1926— Excels Fifty-two Other Chapters

Alpha Iota has again come to the forefront among the Hellenics. The girls of Alpha Iota Chapter of Alpha Chi Omega are rejoicing in the possession of the cup awarded annually by their national officers to that chapter of the sorority which is considered from various points the best in the United States. This award is based on the following activities, alumnae relations, college spirit, scholarship, and relations with other fraternities on the campus of each individual chapter. There are fifty-two chapters scattered throughout the United States. Vermont was considered most worthy of this honor.

Not the First Time

This is not the first time Alpha Iota has won this cup among her trophies. It was only three years ago, during 1926, that the award was in the possession of the Vermont chapter, and the victory in so short a time is unparalleled.

PAUL WESTIN ELECTED PRESIDENT OF GOLD KEY

At a meeting of the Gold Key Society last Tuesday evening the following officers were elected: President, Paul Westin; vice-president, Edward Meehan; secretary, Edward Tracy; treasurer, Everett Wilder.

The new members are Raymond Philbin, Allen Eaton, Joseph Carter, and Chester Rutkowski. Initiation of the new members will be at the Kappa Sigma House this evening.

The society has begun its enforcement of the freshman rules. An examination of all freshmen was conducted after military drill last Friday and several delinquents were found. The Boulder Society is determined to see that the rules laid down in the Freshman Handbook are obeyed and it will take immediate steps to do so.

TRY-OUTS NAME MANY TO MUSIC ORGANIZATIONS

Prof H G. Bennett, of the music department of the University, is now progressing rapidly with the season's quota of try-outs for the numerous music organizations of the college.

The Choir and the Men's Glee Club have just completed their first round of try-outs, while the University Orchestra and the Women's Glee Club expect to round into form in a week or two.

Successful candidates for the Choir are:

Sopranos: Marjorie Eisenwinter, Dorothy Fowler, Alice Gay, Eleanor Isaacs, Eleanor Koenig, Hazel Ladd, Charlotte Odell, Mailla Putnam, Dorothy Sweeney; altos, Barbara Douglass, Cynthia Lynch, M Elisabeth Mandigo, Priscilla Perry, Elsie Roosa, Katherine Skinner; tenors, R. H. Cowles, D. D. C. Hazen, M B. Jenks, R. S. Jenks, H. R. Mattison, A. J. Morin, M. H. Press; basses, J. D. Carson, A. O. Eaton, H. E. Goddard, E. G. Hurlburt, J. O. Percival, A A. Scharbius, Jr., W. A. Walker.

There is still a vacancy for a tenor or bass in the Choir. Candidates should apply to Professor Bennett. On account of the great number of women applicants, many excellent voices, especially sopranos, could not be included.

The first rehearsal will be held in the Ira Allen Chapel at 7 p.m. sharp tonight.

Glee Club Announces Members

The following candidates for the Men's Glee Club have passed their first try-outs: F. Bachl, B. D. Brink, Jr., J. D. Carson, R. H. Cowles, H. C. Dalrymple, A. O. Eaton, H. E Goddard, D. D. C. Hazen, R. W. Hendrick, M. B. Jenks, R. S. Jenks, H R Mattison, A. J. Morin, J. O. Percival, N. H Press, A. A. Scharbius, Jr., H. J Shoor, J. Shoor, F. A. Smith, C. A Taylor, T. Taylor, W. A. Walker.

The first rehearsal will be held in the Music Building tomorrow evening at 7 p.m.

There will be additional try-outs in the Music Building, 85 S. Prospect Street, tomorrow from 4 to 4.30 p.m.

Try-outs for the University Orchestra will be held in the Music Building, 85 S. Prospect Street, Thursday afternoon, October 3, from 4 to 4.30 Candidates should bring some familiar piece to play, if possible. The orchestra will be directed by Professor Bennett, and string players will have the advantage of being coached by Miss Charlotte de Volt, the new violin instructor. Among other pieces it is planned to play part of Handel's "Messiah" in combination with the Choir at the Christmas concert, and join with the glee clubs in the annual opera production in the spring.

More Try-outs For Women

There will be additional try-outs for candidates for the Women's Glee Club who did not try out for the Choir in the Music Building tomorrow afternoon, from 4.30 to 5. Candidates for first accompanist and second accompanist will be tried out from 5 to 5.30 on the same afternoon. The first rehearsal of the Women's Glee Club will be held in the Music Building Thursday evening, October 3, at 7 o'clock. The results of the try-outs for last week and this will not be announced till that day.

GREY FRIARS SOCIETY, HONOR LITERARY GROUP MEETING ON THURSDAY

Men's Honorary Literary Group Will Plan Work, Study and Entertainment For Year — All Interested in Literature Urged to Submit Manuscripts

Grey Friars, the men's honorary literary society of the University of Vermont, will meet Thursday evening, October 3, at seven o'clock, place to be announced, to hold a regular business meeting, at which plans for the coming year will be discussed and programs of work, study and entertainment will be formulated.

This organization was established in the spring of 1928, for the promotion of fellowship, and interest in literature and writing, and to advance our University in literary merit. The members of the group must present evidence of their desire and ability to write and to know and appreciate good literature, writing, and intellectual movements of this sort.

Rigid Requirements

The requirements of membership are somewhat rigid because of the fact that the number of active men is limited to sixteen out of the whole student body. Any man who is interested in the activities of Grey Friars is requested to submit two manuscripts in different fields of literature, to be read at the first meeting following the presentation of the manuscript, and criticized by those present. The subjects may be anything in the field of poetry, essays, short stories, or sketches. A combination of two of these gives the most desirable basis for judging the literary ability of a man who is interested in Grey Friars. Because of the somewhat exclusive nature of the organization, only those men who show interest enough to be of some value to the rest of the group are accepted. However, this should not deter any who might consider their experience too limited, because Grey Friars is also a training school for those who are interested in news reporting for the Cynic, in writing as a life work, or who plan to follow the curricula in journalism, literature, both English and foreign, classics, or modern style and authors.

Manuscripts may be a combination of such types as: a poem and an essay, a short story and a sketch, a poem and a novel, etc.

Grey Friars has in the past given much attention to the Vermont Literary Magazine, the Cynic, and to the annual Intercollegiate Literary Contests, where the University has won many laurels. Two of those among the student body who have gained this recognition are: Janice Goodrich, '30, in the field of poetry, and Wilmond W. Parker, '29, member of Grey Friars, now doing research with the history department of U. V. M., also in the field of poetry.

Twice a year a large banquet is held, at one of the local hotels, at which men and women from the faculty, and authors and prominent speakers from this and other states, give addresses on literary and various intellectual movements of the present time. Once each month a supper is served at some one of the city restaurants at which the members are treated not only to an excellent meal, but also enjoy a speaker from one of the various departments of the University.

Freshmen Urged to Submit

Freshmen are urged to submit manuscripts because each year some of the members are lost by graduation, and there is need, moreover, for new ideas and talents in the literary line. Some may discover that they have some real ability which will be of great value to them, and, incidentally, to their fellow members in Grey Friars. At any rate, the group and its interests will furnish all an abundance of practice, and stimulation to really accomplish something, which will always be a great practical as well as a cultural value.

MIXER STIRRING SEND-OFF FOR N. Y. U. GAME

Drawn by the first social event of the college year, the undergraduate body, filling the gymnasium, gave the football team a fine sendoff for the N. Y. U. game last Friday night. From eight o'clock to nine cheers and songs could be heard for several blocks away, a good measure of the enthusiasm which was rampant at the Freshman Mixer. Jimmy Puffer introduced the speakers in between the songs, the music for which was furnished by the University band. Manager Herrick Macomber, Captain "Bump" Levine, and Coach Rattan delivered short speeches about the performance of the team on Saturday. Following the speeches each member of the squad appeared on the platform where he was royally cheered by the students.

This year the Mixer was sponsored by Boulder, assisted by Key and Serpent in the preparation of the first part of the program.

Shortly after nine the chairs were cleared away and Lechnyr's Vermonters furnished music for dancing which lasted until twelve.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF JOHN DEWEY CLUB PLANS YEAR'S PROGRAM

The executive committee of the John Dewey Club met last Thursday afternoon to make plans for this semester's activities. The members of the executive committee present were Professor Ewert of the psychology department, who is the club's faculty adviser, Harrison Goddard, president, Annette Rosenberg, vice-president, Edmour Germain, secretary-treasurer, and Robert Lee Stewart, chairman of the program committee.

Elaborate plans are being made for this year. Last year's policy will be continued and efforts will be made at improvement. The first meeting of the year will be held within the next two weeks. Meetings will be held every two weeks thereafter.

There will be speakers from other colleges to address the members of the club. Some of the professors of the Vermont faculty will also speak on matters of interest and local men will be asked to relate something of interest to the students. There will be at least two student discussion meetings, for the one student discussion meeting that was held last semester was a huge success. There will also be debates.

Anyone interested in psychology, philosophy or social problems is invited to join the club. The first meeting of the organization will be held soon. Watch the Cynic for further announcements.

Harrison Goddard, president of the John Dewey Club, announces the following committee appointments:

Executive committee: Officers of the club, Georgia Bostwick, Robert Lee Stewart, and Professor Ewert. Program committee: Robert Lee Stewart, chairman, Georgia Bostwick, Joseph Carter. Publicity: Edmour Germain, chairman, and Louis Lieman. Refreshment: Geraldine Grenier, chairman, Pauline Partridge, and Mary Woolson. Chairman of finance committee: Richard Cowles.

BOTH MEN AND WOMEN IN TENNIS TOURNAMENT

For the first time in Vermont's tennis history women will enter against men in an intramural tournament. Women will play women for the first round but thereafter women will be paired against men. The tournament is scheduled to start tomorrow, final applications to enter coming in today.

All applicants who have not yet signified their intention of playing must hand in their names today either to Coach F. D. Carpenter, to Miss Cummings, physical education instructor, to Estabel Perelman, president of W. A. A., to Manager Reed at the Phi Delta Theta House, or to Assistant Managers Roller at the Phi Sigma Delta House, or McAllister at the Phi Delta Theta House.

NOTED SPEAKERS TO APPEAR HERE SOON

Internationally Famous Speakers To Address Week-end Conference of International Relations Club Friday and Saturday

SMITH, WARD, LORD ARE AMONG SPEAKERS HERE

Three internationally known men will be here at Vermont to address the students a week from this coming week-end, when the International Week-end Conference will be held here. The International Week-end Conference will be held here under the auspices of the International Club of which Robert Lee Stewart, '30, is president. The conference will take place on Friday evening, Saturday afternoon and evening, October 11 and 12. The three internationally known men whom Vermont students will be privileged to hear are Tucker P. Smith, Harry F. Ward, and Everett William Lord.

Tucker P. Smith

Tucker P. Smith is a native of the State of Missouri, having been born and brought up on a farm there. He holds an A.B. and an M.A. degree from the University of Missouri where he specialized in the social sciences. In college he made Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic fraternity, Delta Sigma Rho, national honorary debating fraternity, and Alpha Zeta Pi, honorary Social Science fraternity.

After receiving his M.A. degree in 1922, he became secretary of the Student Y. M. C. A. at New York University, going from there to the International Y. M. C. A. College in Springfield, Mass., where he was general secretary of the Student Association and taught courses in the social sciences and in Christian ethics.

Since the World War, Mr. Smith has been very active in peace work, especially in the colleges and churches. He specializes in the psychological approach to the war-peace problem. He has had very wide experience in speaking, in debating and in leading discussions, forums, and conferences on many phases of the prevention of war and work for peace.

Harry F. Ward

There are very few men living who are possessed of keener minds than Dr. Harry F. Ward. There are also very few men available who have as great a fund of information on social issues.

He holds degrees from the University of California, Northwestern University and Harvard University. He is at present a professor of Christian Ethics at Union Theological Seminary. He spent a good many years in social work and in the ministry before he became a college professor. He is now also the executive secretary of the Methodist Federation for Social Service and the editor of the Social Service Bulletin of the Methodist

—SPORTING EDITOR—

If Vermont can get through the contest with the Bulldogs in the Yale Bowl Saturday without injuries, the team will be all set to buckle down for a couple of victories.

Capt. "Bump" Levine is in for his biggest year on the gridiron.

Winant will make an excellent quarterback before the end of the season. His passes with Halligan on the receiving end should be productive.

Bob Dunbar last Friday in the Boston Herald said: "Vermont, which tackles N. Y. U. tomorrow and Yale a week from tomorrow, has the toughest assignment among the New England small college teams. Little is known about the Vermont strength, but the team is unlikely to get away to an auspicious start."

Middlebury lost to Columbia 38 to 6 and Dartmouth beat Norwich 67 to 0.

FROSH FOOTBALL TEAM TO BE LIGHT BUT FAST

Approximately Thirty Men Reporting Daily to Coach Berry —First Scrimmage Last Saturday

Coach Berry has a likely looking bunch of frosh reporting to him daily at Centennial Field and is fast rounding a team into form. The first scrimmage was held Saturday afternoon and several of the men showed a great deal of talent. Berry is especially encouraged over the backfield for there are four or five good ball carriers developing steadily. The only serious setback that the coach has received is the matter of weight. There are only two or three men of any great weight and these few are handicapped by inexperience. The line, from tackle to tackle does not average more than 165 or 170 pounds, an extremely low average for a college freshman team However, it is hoped that they can make up in speed what they lack in weight.

The squad is coming along in fine shape and should be in good form for the coming clash with Montpelier Seminary.

Following is a list of the men reporting to Coach Berry: Bigelow, Calcagni, Cohen, Coburn, Farmer, Feinberg, Follet, Douglas, Collins, Gardner, Taft, Kennedy, Wood, Wood, Sokolov, Wadsworth, Parsons, Thompson, Neil, Spiller, Rappiano, Adams, Sullivan, Eastman, McGowan, Massucco, Miner, Negri, Perry, Stone.

WHILE Yale and Princeton were battling to a tie at Hoboken, New Jersey, a small group of scientists, directed by Thomas A. Edison, was busy at Menlo Park, only a few miles away. On October 21, their work resulted in the first practical incandescent lamp.

Few realized what fifty years would mean to both electric lighting and football. The handful who watched Yale and Princeton then has grown to tens of thousands to-day. And the lamp that glowed for forty hours in Edison's little laboratory made possible to-day's billions of candle power of electric light. In honor of the pioneer achievement, and of lighting progress, the nation this year observes Light's Golden Jubilee.

Much of this progress in lighting has been the achievement of college-trained men employed by General Electric.

VERMONT LIBERAL CLUB HEARS DR. ADAMS TALK ON "THE LIBERAL MIND"

U. V. M. Students Organize For Discussion of Modern Problems From Liberal Viewpoint

A group of University men and women met last Sunday to form the Vermont Liberal Club for the discussion of present-day problems from the liberal point of view. Membership in the club is open to every University man and woman.

The topic under discussion last Sunday was "The Making of the Liberal Mind." The meeting was carried through almost wholly by Dr. C. C. Adams of the First Congregational Church with comments and questions put by the members of the club.

Adams On "Liberal Mind"

Doctor Adams opened the meeting with a definition of a liberal mind. He explained that a liberal mind is an open mind which views a problem from economic, political and religious sides and then acts in the light perceived. "A liberal mind," he said, "is made by a wide range of intellectual interests coupled with an understanding of other things and people, by association with the lives of the liberal spirits of all ages, and by action after thought." He gave a list of the liberal spirits of the ages which ranged from Socrates to Roosevelt and discussed them for the benefit of the club.

The remainder of the meeting was given up to the selection of topics to be discussed at future times. Some of them are the Gastonia Problem, Feminism and Wage Problems, Internationalism and Peace, Militarism in Education, Racial Problems, Birth Control and the New Morality.

As the "Moral Issue" enters into everywhere and everything, it will be the topic of the meeting next Sunday, October 6. The place and time of meeting is posted on the bulletin board.

Doctor Adams will work out and relate the topic for next Sunday but hereafter a leader will be appointed for each meeting

MISS ARMSTRONG TALKS ON LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Miss Irene Armstrong, assistant director of the New England Group of the League of Nations Association, spoke to a small gathering regarding the formation of a branch organization in Burlington, in the Old Chapel last Tuesday evening. She reviewed briefly the purposes and activities of the League of Nations Association, which are mainly educational, and then asked for a committee to be formed.

With Prof. Edmund C. Mower as chairman, nominations were made for membership on a commiteee and the following were elected: Mrs. Shaw, Mrs. Tupper, Miss Vose, Professor Mower, Professor Carroll, Judge Cowles, and Doctor Adams

It is possible that Mr. Nash, executive director of the National League, will be here in Burlington to speak about the last of October.

SEVEN FROSH TRY FOR ANNUAL DEBATE

Bigelow, Carter, Donoghy, Elkins, Reed, Spiller, Taylor to Vie For Honor of Battling Sophomores for Bailey Cup

DEBATE MANAGER SEARS OPTIMISTIC THIS YEAR

At a meeting held last Monday in the Old Mill Chapel, seven freshmen signified their intentions of trying out for the freshman team that will debate the sophomores in the annual clash for the Bailey cup. All of them have debated either in interscholastic or in class debates in their respective schools. Manager of debate, Franklin A. Sears, stated that the freshmen have excellent material for a first-class debating team.

Prominent among those who reported was Theodore Taylor of West Hartford, Conn. Taylor has been in interscholastic debating for two years, and was president of the Wm. H. Hall Agara Debating Club of the Wm. H. Hall High School.

James Edward Bigelow, captain of Fair Haven High School's debating team for the last three years, is yet another who has indicated his intention of taking honors in debating.

Lionel E. Reed, who captained People's Academy's debating team last year, is a third promising candidate for forensic honors.

S. Nathan Spiller, a member of the Junior Debating Club of Miami, Fla., and also of the debating club of Spaulding High of Barre, is also in the race for debating honors.

Edwin R. Carter of Groton High School, who has participated in intramural debates there, will also report at the class try-outs.

R. Reardon Donoghy, former captain of the interclass teams of the Northfield High School, also appeared at the meeting, as did Stuart P. Elkins of the Commissioner's High School of Quebec, who won a High School Debating Shield there. All seven debaters met last Monday in preparation for the try-outs to be held on Wednesday or Thursday.

Manager Sears Optimistic

Debate Manager Franklin A. Sears is very optimistic about the debating season this year. Pertinent to this optimistic attitude Sears declared, at the meeting: "Debating at Vermont is undergoing a revival. What is the cause? Chiefly a matter of interest—making the debate interesting, witty, entertaining, and the majority of students last year attended en masse. That is what we want this year, and the success which attended us last year was very gratifying. This year we will try it on an even greater scale, and we hope that a large percentage of students will attend each and every debate."

Death Deprives University During Summer of Popular Professors in Agriculture and Engineering Departments

Floyd B. Jenks, for sixteen years professor of agricultural education at the University, died at the Mary Fletcher Hospital Friday, June 28. He had been in poor health for some time, but still kept up his teaching. Special treatment at Boston being of no avail, he returned to Burlington in his physician's care, the end evidently being near.

Professor Jenks was born in Toronto, Vermilion County, Indiana, July 7, 1876, the son of Stephen and Mary E. Jenks. He was a farm boy, and his interest has always been with the farmer.

UNIVERSITY STORE IS SELF-SUPPORTING UNIT MAKING SMALL PROFIT

Has Expanded Greatly Under Capable Management of Miss Barney—Aids Honorary Societies With Its Profits

"The primary function of the University Store is to facilitate the transactions involved in the distribution of student supplies," said F W Kehoe Registrar of the University of Vermont, "Under the capable management of Miss Barney, the University Store has expanded from the $18,000 a year business of a decade ago to the 1928 one of almost $59,000."

The store is run by the store manager on a strictly business basis, paying rent to the College, and otherwise conducting itself as an independent unit. The overhead amounts to about 20 per cent of the gross sales, and the profits average about 5 per cent. One half of the profit is turned back into the business for improvement and the other half is given to student activities such as the honorary senior societies, Boulder and Akria Chapter of Mortar Board.

The original University Store was located in Room 4 in the Medical College. For years it distributed student supplies, incurring a deficit for a number of years. Under the efficient management of Miss Barney, the University Store located in the Old Mill for the last dozen years had so improved over the old system that a reasonable profit has been made each year

Pertinent to the University Store, the Registrar has issued the following statement

The University Store is an institutional department, established by the Trustees as the sole agency on the Campus for the distribution of student supplies. This service is conducted as a business enterprise paying its costs of management and operation out of gross income. To provide against losses and to ensure the improvement of the service a profit is added to the overhead. Net profits, beyond the demands of the business, are used as occasion arises to finance projects of particular interest and benefit to the students generally.

For the protection of the Stores, students are not permitted to offer goods for sale on the Campus except by authorization of the Comptroller

Faculty members are expected to cooperate fully by making arrangements with the Store Manager for

E. E. DEPARTMENT HAS NEW COURSE THIS YEAR

This year, for the first time, the Department of Electrical Engineering will offer an elective for senior, junior and sophomore students. The new course is to be called "Electrical Engineering Conference," and will meet once each week. The work will consist in the presentation by members of the class, of papers of interest to electrical engineers. Usually these papers will take the form of a review of some article appearing in the current engineering periodicals.

It is hoped that the course will stimulate interest in the professional work of the electrical engineer, and that the practice afforded in the preparation and presentation of papers will prove to be of value. It is planned to coordinate the work of the course with that of the local branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers

A Mathematical Genius

The Honorable Bertrand [illegible], heir presumptive to the Second Earl Russell, was born at Trelluk, Monmouth, in England, May 18, 1872. That he had a bent for mathematical precision was well illustrated in his early days. At the age of eleven, he was known to be sorely disappointed on discovering that Euclid started with axioms. And from that time until the age of thirty-eight, he was almost totally devoted to the study of mathematics. This dealing with abstractions over such a lengthy period of time bears a direct relation to some of his later beliefs, as we shall note later.

Russell attended Trinity College, Cambridge, at which he later became a fellow and lecturer. About 1915 he came to the States on a lecture tour, and at this time was awarded the Butler Gold Medal from Columbia University for the most distinguished work in philosophy and education during the preceding five years

At the beginning of the World War he was teaching at Cambridge. In cooperation with Doctor Whitehead, he had just finished a momentous volume entitled "Principia Mathematicia." Since his early youth, impelled by the desire to acquire solid knowledge, he

EVAN THOMAS SPEAKS ON THE COLLEGE SNOB

Professor Evan Thomas was the speaker at Wednesday morning chapel He based his talk on the famous lecture on snobs delivered by Professor Rogers of Massachusetts Institute of Technology to his seniors last June

Prof. Thomas defines a snob as a "superior person in his own mind or in reality." He thinks we should all be snobs in that sense. Snobbery is not a matter of choice but of obligation. The object of a college education is production of superiority in language, thought, appreciation, tastes and in all conduct of life. If the college graduate's superiority does not exceed that of the non-college person he cannot enter into the paradise of the true snob.

It is admirable to be conscious of one's own superiority over one's past self because one has enjoyed superior advantages; what is unforgivable is to be conscious of one's superiority over other people. One's ambitions should be adjusted to the superiorities of academic life

A haughty snob is ridiculous and offensive and should never appear on a college campus. "The Lord hated a proud look," and "the one thing a college education can do for a man is to make it possible for him to be thoughtful and lofty."

Professor Rogers gave the late Lord Curzon of Oxford as an example of the academic snob. Almost on his deathbed he confessed that his great ambition to become Prime Minister of England had been defeated by his snobbishness

"Real, genuine, frankly recognized superiority always wins" were the speaker's concluding words

Filthy Weed at W. Va. Univ.

Several years ago the agitation in favor of smoking for college women was confined to the eastern tier of states as a second glancing through the files of this magazine for that period will discover. But now the new standards for women are being hotly disputed in all parts of the country—from the Rocky Mountain region to the hills of West Virginia.

Reverberations of the new attitude toward smoking are to be heard in the fulmination against feminine use of the "filthy weed" at West Virginia University, by the Fairmount branch of the W. C. T. U. Undaunted by this the women of the University are reasserting their right to obtain smoking rooms where, in the words of the student newspaper, "they can indulge in the practice without resorting to the present undesirable method of smoking in downtown restaurants"—New Student

These are our real turning points. The significant, the essential moments in the life of anyone worth consideration, are surely those moments when for the first time he faces towards certain broad ideas and certain broad facts—H. G. Wells.

Conference of Vermont Authors is Occasion For Pleasing Impressions

For the first time in the modern history of Vermont, a group of writers assembled and spent a pleasant social evening together. The setting was the community house in Springfield; the time was last Wednesday evening, and the atmosphere was delightfully informal. I think I met and talked with more real personalities in the course of this evening than ever before in my life.

Dorothy Canfield Fisher was there, of course. She is a little woman, very vivacious, very attractive, and charged with so much vitality that you wonder how so small a being can contain so much life. Her voice is like her manner, enthusiastic, sweet. When we were talking about forming a writers' guild in Vermont, every now and then she would break in with a suggestion or approval of someone else's idea with so much verve that the rest of us just fell back convinced. Her part in the entertainment program was the reading of one of her sketches hitherto unpublished. I think the most charming thing about her is her graciousness. No matter how important you aren't, she makes you feel as if you count more than any person there.

Anne Bosworth Greene, whom you will remember as the author of "Lone Winter" and "Dipper Hill," is tall and stately. She has a quiet beauty and a rich voice particularly suited to the tone of the poems of her daughter, Lorna, which she read. You may recall that Lorna Greene was killed in an automobile accident about a year ago. I certainly marveled at the composure with which Mrs. Greene read the poems that must have meant so much to her. I talked with her afterward, and it was easy to see that her whole life has become tragic through the loss of this girl in whom she found so much companionship.

Bertha Oppenheim Present

When Bertha Oppenheim wrote "Winged Seeds," she did not think that in a few years she would be explaining the philosophy of that book to an audience of Vermont writers, but she did explain it—and beautifully. Mrs. Oppenheim is very large. Her hair is snow white, her complexion pink and white. She has a sincere, thoughtful manner, and it is plain that she is keenly interested in Vermont rural life. I remember one thing she said which impressed me as being very true. In speaking of hill men and women she said, "When all classes of people are striking all around them, the men and women of the soil do not strike." Every gesture that she made betrayed an almost Arcadian love for rural beauty. When she finished it was not hard to guess what motivated "Winged Seeds."

There are few writers of dialect whom we can truthfully say we enjoy, but I believe Mary Elkins Gardyne deserves a place in our thoughts and hearts. If you could only have seen her give her own interpretation of some of her Canadian poems, the Canadian would at once have become endeared to you. Her best known volume is called "Op in Ol' Vermont." It is just as clever and witty as it can be and it has more genuine racial sympathy than I have seen in a long while. Mrs. Gardyne is also a large woman, full of mirth. She has a mote in her eye as if she were always looking for something funny.

The two men on the program were Daniel Cady and John Farrar. Daniel Cady is the only real authority on the Vermont traditions with which he kills all his verse. I won't describe him to you for two reasons; first you should know what he looks like—he has lived in Burlington many years, and he is a graduate of the University. Secondly, because he lives in Burlington and may see this, I won't describe him, anyway. I will say, however, that he is very witty, very impressive. He gave by far the best part of the program, or the most inspirational part. His talk was a plea for a greater literary atmosphere in Vermont such as existed in the beginnings of Vermont history. Mr. Cady's interest is not passive. He has already done much to help this movement along, and he is willing to do much more if he has cooperation.

Disappointed In Farrar

I was disappointed in John Farrar. Perhaps I shouldn't have been for he was talking under a severe strain. Professor Davidson of Middlebury, who has just died, was one of Mr. Farrar's most intimate friends. So was Byron Clark who died last summer. It was doubtless with difficulty that Mr. Farrar spoke at all. He seemed to be struggling to find himself, but when he did he finally read a fine sonnet of his own composition, inspired by Byron Clark. He disappeared soon after the program and I did not have a chance to meet him personally so I retained a few impressions he made upon me. He is fairly tall, red haired and heavily built. He appeared very nervous and spontaneous. It would be nice, I think, to talk with him for he has a very pleasing voice.

I have named all the writers who spoke, but there were many others there. Zephine Humphreys Fahnestock is much like Anne Bosworth Greene in appearance. She sat by Mrs. Greene all through the entertainment.

Alice Mary Kimball, who wrote "The Devil is a Woman," wears her hair in a straight banged bob. She is dark and her features are rather sharp. Her most dominant quality is a broad sense of humor. If you read her book you have read a great deal about her personality.

Frances M. Frost was the youngest writer there. She has just won the Yale University prize for the best collection of poetry submitted to them. She is married, has two small children and lives here in Burlington. She told me that she writes poetry every day of her life because she doesn't dare stop for fear of losing the habit of expression. Her first book, "Hemlock Wall," which is now being published by the Yale Press, comes out in October or November. You must secure a copy, for she is undoubtedly one of the coming poets of the generation.

Helen Hartness Flanders lives in Springfield, and gave a luncheon in honor of the visitors Wednesday. She is a very charming hostess. Her daughter, Elizabeth, who is only seventeen was there. She, too, writes poetry and is musical.

Sylvia Bliss, who has written many poems on Vermont, is a tiny little old lady with an exceptional mind. She is interested in so many things related to art, one wonders that her energy finds any direction. Besides being a poetess, she is a musician, an authority on flowers and an active community worker in the town of Plainfield.

Norwich Professor Chairman

Professor Arthur Wallace Peach, head of the English department at Norwich University, was the chairman of the program. He is most friendly and especially interested in young writers. He helped to find Leonard Nason whom you see featured in the current magazines.

I think I have mentioned most of the writers there. Those who knew Merta Munroe, '28, might be interested to know that she came into the meeting for a brief while, but was leaving for St. Louis on business and could not stay. She says she has not written a thing since she was married but she seriously intends to go back to it when she no longer has so many community interests to take her time.

world today. This is largely due to the fact that we have been utterly dominated by the policies of early statesmen regarding the aloofness and isolation of America in international affairs. However, it is time for America to wake up and begin to think internationally. America is bound to assume the lead, and she must be internationally minded.

Professor Mower said that there are two good reasons why students should be interested in international relations. First, they should be interested as a matter of general culture and education, in order to appreciate the age in which they are living, and in order to gain a larger, broader, more rational and above all, more tolerant viewpoint.

Second, they should be interested because they are the citizens of tomorrow. It is up to the younger generations to help educate the world in international-mindedness. We have the intelligence, means and opportunity to make the American people leaders in international thought and action.

In closing, Professor Mower mentioned some of the outstanding international problems confronting us. Among them are: The adherence of the United States to the World Court, the Limitation of Armaments, and the Sino-Russian affairs.

The attendance at this first meeting of the International Relations Club was excellent, about twenty students being present.

MASSACHUSETTS DIVINE REMEMBERS VISIT HERE

Worcester Paper Carries Sermon Praising the University of Vermont in Highest Terms

Having visited most of the universities of the New World and many of the universities of the Old World, the memory of my visit to the University of Vermont stands out vividly in my mind.

The reason for this deep impression is not the superb setting of the university. Nature, to be sure, has dealt munificently with this noble seat of learning. On a ridge overlooking the lovely little city of Burlington, with Lake Champlain and the Adirondack Mountains in the near and distant foreground, and the Green Mountains in the background, the location as regards natural beauty is unsurpassed.

Also, the vividness of the impression is not due to having seen the wonderful chapel. This is an architectural masterpiece in red and white. It dominates the group of buildings on the campus, as the chapel in every university should do. At the death of William E. Gladstone, his political rival Lord Salisbury, said of him: "He kept the soul of England alive." The university, no less than the church, exists to keep the soul of the nation alive.

Rather, the memory of my visit to the University of Vermont remains vivid because of a unique detail in the construction of the chapel by which the marvelous natural setting is utilized. Far above the pulpit in the wall at the eastern end of the building is a circular window. The architect has resisted the temptation that most architects yield to, of securing a dim religious light effect by the use of stained windows with pictures of saints and apostles. Instead, with real spiritual genius, the architect has done the daring thing and used transparent glass. The result is a picture of the Green Mountains seen through the glass and framed by the circular window.

Whenever I think of this university, I find myself living over again the moments that I spent gazing upon that sublime picture of the everlasting hills.

A Yale Graduate Discourses on the Topic, "If I Were a Freshman Again

If I were to go through Yale again this is what I should do" ..Thus we talked under the elms in the spring of senior year. I should definitely coordinate my activities toward four main goals: physical, intellectual, social, religious.

First, I should choose a combination of athletics suitable to my build: major and minor outdoor and indoor, or fall and spring sports to insure balance and variety, one of which I could continue in later life. I should aim to make my college letter. Billy Quest once told me, "Any fellow with a fair body can make his Y if he trains consistently." I should tie in with my team-mates.

Second, I should aim to make Phi Beta Kappa annually voted the highest honor. The thirty-eight simple rules in Starch's Educational Psychology make this goal possible for any serious, persistent student. Such a motive transforms a class from a bore to a stimulating game. "The most exciting adventures are intellectual ones." Whatever my later career, I should not fail to take philosophy—the art of thinking; psychology—the science of human nature; literature and history—the way of appreciation; science—the technique of observation; religion—the art of living. But in picking courses I should steer for the personality of the teacher rather than the mere title of the subject. I should soak myself in the virile poetry of Browning and the profound, fascinating writing of Plato. Indeed, my life is insured against the commonplace when I possess intimate friends such as Shakespeare, Boswell's Johnson, Browning, Plato and the Bible. The purpose of college is to acquire the contagion of intellectual enthusiasm and spiritual hunger from teachers, books, classmates. Inner craving, not repletion, is the goal of education.

Hard college days are a matchless opportunity to know and love men of every sort. I should make it my aim to know well every man in my class, and make him my friend if possible. These associations will bring immeasurable happiness all through life. I should seek the comradeship of the rich and poor, the bums and the saints. Above all, I should try to be my real self regardless of cliques or undergraduate autocracies. No man ever loses out by quietly challenging a social regime nc does not respect. College is a real world, not stage-play. Cowards and heroes play their part there. Enduring friendships with one's most admired professors is a rich part of college social life. Talk with them. Visit at their homes. Absorb their personality and ideas. DUNCAN L. PHELPS, Yale, '17, in The Intercollegian.

How, in a mood of transcendant wonder which is worship, I repeated the words of the Psalmist, "I will lift up mine eyes unto the mountains." How I asked the Psalmist's question, "From whence cometh my help?" only to answer as the Psalmist answered, "My help cometh from the Lord who made heaven and earth."

Is it any wonder that I retain a lasting impression of my visit to this university? As I write these words I am thinking of the young people who will gather thoughtfully and reverently in such a place. And before the actual service begins with tones of the organ, voices of the choir and words of the preacher, they will receive a sermon through glass as God speaks to them from the page of one of His bibles—Nature.—REV. DR. ROBERT W. MCELVEEN, in the Worcester Gazette, September 28.

BRUSH NAMES DAY FOR FIRST ARIEL MEETING

George R. Brush, editor of the 1931 Ariel, announces a meeting of the editorial Board for Wednesday evening at seven o'clock, at the Owl House. The members of the editorial board will then be informed as to what their future work will be. Work on the Ariel will thereafter be pushed forward as rapidly as possible. There was a meeting of the scrubs last night, at which their duties were assigned and their instructions given.

Campus Comment

To the Editor of the CYNIC:

In the early decades of the sixteenth century we have been taught by school there were men and women in England who earnestly believed that the Established Church could not satisfy them spiritually. Their conscience drove them from England, to found the new Commonwealth of Massachusetts. The new colony grew, and in a measure prospered. It became one of the centers of the resistance to King George III, and it furnished the nation with wise, far-seeing and patriotic statesmen.

Nevertheless, at a point early in its career, there were those whose consciences could not abide what they felt to be the bigotry of the Puritan theocracy. Among these was Thomas Hooker who led his people to the new colony of Connecticut. It was the people of Massachusetts that peopled Connecticut. There resulted a colony of unrivalled vigor and liberality of mind. It furnished the men who made famous Charter Oak. It peopled the Wyoming Valley, famous in American history. It reproduced itself on the shores of Lake Erie, in old Western Reserve. It, too, furnished brave men to our nation's history.

But there were those who found even this colony too narrow for them—men of broad minds and wanting elbow room to carve themselves and their fortunes by. They went, some west. Of these people was much of Vermont born. If a single town [illegible] can be mother of Vermont, [illegible] Conn., has the honor. Southward through the wilds of the Connecticut and Connecticut valleys they made their way, conquering the wilderness.

These intrepid frontiersmen encountered more than the forest, the [illegible] and the resentful savages. [illegible] of our state is replete with tales of the struggle with New York, when these hardy sons of Connecticut dared defy the decrees of the British Government, in defense of their rights and homes. Close after the Revolutionary War and the part played by our state, and by Ira Allen, son of Connecticut, has been many times told on Founder's Day at our University. Vermont, too, has had its share of the nation's leaders.

Of this stock, transferred from England to America, wandering to the frontiers in search of its right of property and conscience, came a lad, in our own day. He was a lad of serious mind and he sought to make of his life a success. He chose as means to secure this end, the University of Vermont. He sought to find there training which would enable him to be a power in the world. In his plans, he [illegible] military training. To his mind it led to war and bloodshed, the very things which the true citizen of the world should seek to avoid.

At [illegible] enrolled, and made his first [illegible] he came, at that time, to the [illegible] were gathered the freshmen to be instructed in military [illegible] he was handed a slip to sign, stating that he desired to become a member of the R. O. T. C. But he had not come [illegible] He did not sign. A few days later he was called to the office of the military department, and [illegible] to sign the slip, he was informed that in order to maintain good and comfortable conditions which made possible a college career of ease and successful cooperation with the faculty. He signed, reluctantly. He put his name to the statement that he, son of Vermont, and of the pioneers before Vermont, desired to become a member of the R. O. T. C. which he did not.

Such is the story. May I ask you, readers of the CYNIC, is this the stuff Vermont, and the United States are made of? Must a serious-minded youth perjure himself with a signed statement of falsehood? IS THIS RIGHT? I leave it to you.

A SON OF VERMONT.

Dear Editor

I decided one Wednesday morning this fall, after due meditation and consideration, to attend chapel. Imagine how surprised and pleased, but mostly surprised, I was to find, when I reached the doors of that building, that the only seat available was one directly in front of the pulpit. It was so much for me that I gasped, and stood and gazed for as much as two minutes, at the brave sons and daughters of our illustrious alma mater attending to their religious education.

Surely something was wrong, or rather something was surprisingly right.

And then it came to me, the reason for the crowd, I mean. First I saw a few freshman armbands and then a few freshman caps, and then more armbands and more caps.

Well, the situation is obvious, and will continue to be the same situation until somebody does something about it. Freshmen will attend chapel as long as they have to, and then, following the example of their wiser [illegible] brothers and sisters, just as they have been told, will hold their conferences in the Coffee Corner Wednesday morning, and Ira Allen will be deserted once more.

Of course that is providing that this freshman class is the same as any other. Its members may have the desire to just pretend that they rather like the idea of going to chapel once a week, and, having gone a few times they may even go once in a [illegible] after they go in the elevated title of "Sophomores." Well, they may, and again they may not.

(Signed) [illegible]

COACH GARDNER WORKING WITH DIAMOND MATERIAL

Half-dozen Newcomers Bear Watching — Practice Will Continue as Long as Weather Permits

With a wealth of material in some positions and a notable absence in others, Coach Larry Gardner has been putting his baseball aspirants through a conditioning program which is to continue until adverse weather brings it to a close.

The graduation of Jimmy Kendrick, star southpaw twirler, has left a big gap in the hurling staff but the return of Charley Cummings, husky portsider and slugger, brightens that dark spot. Lefty is in perfect form and is whacking the ball to all corners of the lot. Chief Rutkowski, who has gained considerable varsity experience should be able to place a number of games on the credit side of the ledger.

Frank Pires, Hughie Hart, and Walter Coucannon are good looking infield prospects but the return of the State Championship infield should provide tough opposition for all newcomers. "Pie" Traynor, diminutive pepper-box, still pulls them out of the dirt with regularity and no doubt should enjoy one of his best years on the diamond.

Coach Gardner's big question mark is at home plate with Kendall and Stroh of the Junior Varsity. Marty Tomasetti is a new addition to the catching staff and looks pretty good at bat but is sadly lacking of any experience. This position is still wide open. Byron Benway, lanky outfielder, may yet win a place in the outer garden but is still in the raw stage.

There is a lot of baseball material on the varsity and freshman football squads. Jay and Winant are wearing football togs now. Captain Howard, Sargent, Dinniman and McKay have also donned the short pants and glove for a while.

Coach Gardner's value to the squad cannot be overestimated and it is hoped that all men will avail themselves of the opportunity which Vermont's mentor offers. He has seen all kinds of baseball in college and the leagues and knows how to put it across.

The major reason given by Ohio State students when asked why they had determined to attend the institution was that "it is said a lot of pretty girls come to Ohio State University, and Ohio State men are nice to co-eds."

CAT'S MEOW

—SPORTING EDITOR—

It's no less than lucky that the Cats pulled through at N. Y. U. with no serious injuries. Last year there were several serious bang-ups in the first two games with Columbia and Princeton.

Every time a Vermont man was tackled by a New Yorker and every time a Vermont man was buried at the bottom of a pile of New Yorkers last Saturday the Green and Gold rooters and coaches held their breath for fear of injury. It'll be the same story tomorrow.

It's a sad state of affairs that such a situation has to prevail. Sooner or later it'll have to be either a powerful football team or a lighter schedule.

Ed Gourson reported for practice the day the team went to New York and started the game. He gave a clever exhibition of the way he played in 1927. His ability is needed on the squad and he was heartily welcomed.

The following Saturday scores are of local interest:
Springfield 7—Brown 6
Amherst 7—Connecticut Aggies 0.
Army 26—Boston University 0.

Columnists in the New York and Boston papers have had a merry time at the expense of the Vermonters all this week. They stressed the size of the Green and Gold eleven. One writer saying that if Vermont had big George Chalmers, N. Y. U. end, he would be cut up into a couple of guards.

The same man inferred that N. Y. U. was wrapped up in the selfish but ambitious business of turning out winning football teams. It certainly has become a business, especially at N. Y. U., but it seems to be the only way out of it.

All the big city newspapermen have taken notice of the fact that Vermont has N. Y. U. and Yale on its schedule on successive Saturdays. And those fellows are nobody's fools. They are truly amazed—and why not? There's no question about its being absolutely too strenuous for the men who are playing football for Vermont. Vermont is getting publicity, but not the right kind.

However, such has been the case for several years here and we suppose it will continue to the regret and possibly personal injury of those concerned. Let's hope not, for many years, at least.

Albie Booth, the sophomore sensation, who will play halfback for Yale is perhaps the East's greatest dropkicker. Last year it was possible for the Yale frosh to win games with his toe alone. This year the varsity should win more games on account of this valuable asset.

Booth has beaten out Snead, an ex-varsity man, for his position. The youngster is an all around gridder.

Frosh Open Vermont Season With Montpelier Seminary

Centennial Field Scene of First Football Game of Green and Gold Season Tomorrow—Close Contest Predicted

POST ACCEPTS POSITION AS COACH OF TRACK

Archie Post, U. V. M. '26, has accepted the position of coach of varsity and freshman track during the 1930 season. Archie was a middle distance man while he was at college, and holds the state record for the half mile. He also played a stellar game at forward on the basketball team during his four years here. He captained the team in his senior year and was one of the best players Vermont has seen on the basketball court. Archie was strong in athletics at Saranac Lake where he attended high school. He was a very prominent man in his class.

ARCHIE POST
Vermont Grad Who is to Coach Varsity Track

Archie will be ably assisted by Milt Aldrich who did a good job on last year's team. Aldrich's activities at the Engineering College have become such that he will not be able to give whole time to track. However his experience with the team last year will be a valuable asset and he will be of great assistance in shaping the team. With this Post-Aldrich combination on the coaching staff Vermont should have a great track aggregation this spring.

Besides coaching track Post will assist Howard A. Prentice in the Department of Physical Education, taking the place of Jack Robinson.

Trade and commerce, as a whole, do not profit, but lose, by war and, in a general way, they are aware of that —G. L. D

BOTH TEAMS LACK A GOOD OFFENSIVE PUNCH

Montpelier Seminary opens up the frosh football schedule tomorrow afternoon at 3.15 p.m. in a game to be held on Centennial Field. Montpelier has a strong aggregation and from all indications looks forward to chalking up her third victory of the season. In Shackett she has a triple threat. Her aerial attack this season has been featured by Shackett's passing and the spectular play of Jurras on the receiving end. Williams as field general has been backing the line and provides the spark on the offense. St. Albans defeated Seminary 6 to 0 in a game marked by ragged offense in the first period.

The Kittens have been practicing diligently all week in an effort to start the schedule with a victory. Some new plays have been given by Coach Berry and scrimmages with frosh subs and the varsity have tended toward smoothing out the offense which has seemed to lack the alertness and speed of past frosh teams. Coach Berry has done some revamping in an effort to arouse the fighting blood of the team, and is confident that his charges will acquit themselves in auspicious fashion.

ETA SIGMA PHI ADMITS TWO NEW MEMBERS

E. Henry Powell, '30, presided at the business meeting of Eta Sigma Phi at 31 South College, Thursday, October 2. Two new members, Doris Brannon, '32, and Grace Cusson, '32, were elected to the club by merit of high grades in Greek. Georgia Bostwick, '30, was elected the new vice-president. Plans were discussed for the year's program, and it was decided to hold meetings once a month, the time and place to be posted. The next meeting will be held at the home of Professor Bassett on South Prospect Street.

SUNDER JOSHI, HINDU STUDENT, TO SPEAK AT WEEK-END CONFERENCE

Son of Dr. Joshi, Who Spoke Here Last Year, Speaker, Appears at International Conference Sunday

Sunder Joshi, one of the most brilliant and eloquent representatives of the Hindu race in this country, is to speak at the International Week-end Conference the week-end of October 12 and 13. The subject of his address will be: "India—Yesterday and Tomorrow."

Sunder Joshi traces his ancestry back to a long line of high caste Brahmin ministers of the Hindu faith. He received his primary education in a school patronized by an enlightened maharajah. He was graduated from high school in an atmosphere of strict Brahmin orthodoxy and culture in the city of Poona. The great cosmopolitan city of Bombay and the portal of the West, was the place where he received his college education. He received the degree of bachelor of arts with distinction from the University of Bombay and then proceeded to England for graduate work. Having matriculated at the University of Oxford in order to attend lectures under noted authorities and finishing some specializing work at the University of London, he crossed the Channel to make a study of the French language and literature at the Université de Besancon, on the Franco-Swiss frontier.

Holds Harvard Honors

He hold the degree of master of arts in economics and sociology from the Graduate School of Arts and Science at Harvard University and intends to study for the degree of doctor of philosophy in the same fields. He has traveled extensively on three continents and has had the privilege of being a former president of the Massachusetts Chapter of the Hindustan Association of America, Inc., a chairman of the Mackichon Hall Athletic Club and an organizer of the Cosmopolitan Club of Boston. He is also a member of the American Oriental Society.

His sister is a graduate of Vassar, his father, who spoke here last year at the International Institute, is professor of Comparative Religion and Hindu philosophy at Dartmouth College, and his uncle a doctor of medicine from Cornell, while two of his brothers enlisted in the American Expeditionary Forces during the World War.

Mr. Joshi has given talks in colleges, churches, clubs, schools and other institutions. He has a splendid command of the English language and when listening to him one can feel the majestic and awe inspiring beauty of the East, created for us by his own vivid personality. His keen intellect, genial humor and depth of understanding of international problems are evidenced by the endorsements given to his lectures by well-known groups and institutions throughout the country.

Speaks On Many Subjects

Some of his lecture topics have included: "India Yesterday and Tomorrow," "Asia in Transition," "The Charm of Indian Music," "Classical Hindu Drama," "Indian Art," "Hindu View of Life," "Ghandi the Economist, Philosopher and Politician," "The Shackles of Caste," "The Problems of Education," and "Signal Achievements of Buddhist Civilization."

R. O. T. C. CORPS RATED EXCELLENT

Success of Last Year's Federal Inspection Draws Commendation From Headquarters

COLONEL BLACK TO TRY NEW IDEAS THIS YEAR

The general rating of the University of Vermont Reserve Officers' Training Corps is "excellent," according to a letter received late last summer by President Guy W. Bailey from the headquarters of the First Corps Area. This announcement followed the annual Federal Inspection made last spring by Lieutenant-Colonel Walter Goodwin and Major Robert H. Barrett.

The inspection last year marked a new event, for the Reserve Officers of Burlington presented Delta Psi with a handsome cup in recognition of the fact that the members of that fraternity had the best-drilled squad of freshmen and sophomores commanded by an upperclassman. Besides this cup two other cups, donated each year by Scabbard and Blade, honorary senior military organization, were awarded: one to the sophomore and one to the freshman who was judged most proficient in the execution of the manual of arms. Last year the two cups were awarded to J. O. Percival, '31, and to T. R. Irish, '32.

Final Drive For Two Weeks

Each spring about two weeks before the time that Federal inspection is due, the military department starts its final drive by having platoon and battalion drill every day in preparation for the two day inspection which comes about the middle of May. Last year inspection was held on Monday and Tuesday, May 13 and 14, on which days the members of the R. O. T. C. battalion were excused from other classes.

The program for last year began at eight o'clock Monday morning with theoretical tests for the second year men, both advanced and basic. Those enrolled in the advanced course were examined in military law, drill and command, combat principles and like subjects. Those enrolled in the basic course, sophomores, were examined on drill and command, musketry, and scouting and patrolling. These were all subjects that had been taken up in detail earlier in the year.

From nine until ten the battalion

WOMEN SELECTED FOR MUSICAL ORGANIZATION

Professor Bennett has accepted the following candidates for the Women's Glee Club: First sopranos, Helen Allbee, '30, Elizabeth Cory, '31, Doris Duprat, '30, Eleanor Eggleston, '33, Helen Goddard, '33, Sylvia Holden, '33, Elizabeth Howe, '32, Hazel Ladd, '30, Frances McKean, '31, Esther Pitts, '33, Mailla Putnam, '31, Margaret Rice, '31, Janet Sinkinson, '33, Dorothy Sweeney, '32, Helen Taylor, '31, Evelyn Trask, '30; second sopranos, Esther Beardsley, '33, Helen Burns, '31, Nellie Chase, '33, Faire Divoll, '31, Ruth Field, '31, Irene Hall, '32, Cleone Lloyd, '33, Esther Mandigo, '31, Irene Marcotte, '31, Freda Page, '33, Betty Wallace, '33, Muriel Wheatley, '33, Hildur Wilde, '32; first altos, Jean Belden, '31, Esther Burnap, '33, Alice Dodge, '31, Barbara Douglass, '31, Alice Fairchild, '32, Georgina Hubert, '31, Cynthia Lynch, '31, Dorothy Nash, '31, Priscilla Perry, '33, Helen Spalding, '30; second altos, Norma Cordner, '33, Maiden Jennings, '33, Elizabeth Mandigo, '32, Gene Petze, '33, Harriet Platt, '32, Elsie Roosa, '33, Winona Spencer, '31.

For the sake of balance of parts, many good voices, especially sopranos, could not be included. It is hoped that these will try again in the future. The lack of reading ability was a determining factor in a number of cases.

The first rehearsal was held Thursday evening at seven o'clock in the Music Building. Work on Debussy's cantata "The Blessed Damozel" was begun.

FRESHMEN WILL ELECT CLASS OFFICERS WED.

Class officers will be elected and such other business as it may seem fit will be transacted at the first meeting of the freshman class, Wednesday, October 9 at 4 o'clock in the large lecture room on the second floor of the Williams Science Hall.

Members of Boulder Society will have charge of the meeting until the new officers are elected, and then the remaining business will be turned over to officers-elect. It is expected that very member of the class of 1933 will be present.

Offices to be filled are president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer. Election of Faculty-Student Council members will probably take place at a later date. Plans for the constitution of the new class will be discussed at this time.

DEATH OF JAMES M. DOYLE IS THIRD RECENT LOSS AMONG U. V. M. FACULTY

Popular Instructor in French and Spanish Passes Away on Thursday, October 3—Was Recently Married

Mr James M. Doyle, one of the best liked instructors at the University of Vermont, passed away Thursday evening, October 3, at his home, after an illness of a few days.

Mr. Doyle was born in Roslindale, Mass. His early boyhood was that of the average boy, but early in his life he began to show great talent and he made up his mind that he would go to college and become a teacher.

While a newsboy in Roslindale, Mr. Doyle won two Harvard awards, the Longfellow scholarship and the Newsboys' scholarship. He was injured while delivering papers on his bicycle in 1923 and his entrance to Harvard was delayed, but the University gave him an extension of time.

He was graduated from the Longfellow School when very young, and entered the English High School at the age of 12. He won a captaincy in the school regiment and won the Amos Lawrence prize for proficiency in French and German and also the prize for excellence in fidelity and deportment. When the Longfellow School Association sought a student of all-round ability on whom to bestow a Harvard first-year scholarship it voted there was no more worthy graduate than James Doyle. After his graduation from Harvard he became an instructor in French and Spanish at the University of Vermont and remained in this position until his death.

On August 19, 1929, Mr. Doyle was married to Miss Mary Agnes McPhillips, also of Roslindale. Mrs. Doyle attended Emerson School of Oratory, from which she graduated two years ago with high distinction. She taught debating, public speaking and dramatics at Burlington High School last year and at the Waltham, Mass., Summer School this past summer.

The death of Mr. James M. Doyle makes the third loss of this nature that the University of Vermont has suffered during the past year.

DRAMATIC CLUB MEETS AND PLANS FOR YEAR

A more active program for Dramatic Club than that given in previous seasons is to be sponsored by the club this year, comprising more frequent meetings, more dramatic presentations in public, and more participation in the club's activities by all the members. All members are requested to sign the roll call in the Y room or the one on the bulletin board in the hall.

Irene Marcotte, '30, was elected chairman of the Play Committee, at a meeting Friday afternoon and Margaret Martin '32, chairman of Try outs and Judges. More detailed information about the plays will be published in a later issue of the Cynic. The plays will be given on November 22 in the Gymnasium.

Members are urged to attend the next meeting on October 22, as it will be very important.

CONFERENCE COMES SATURDAY, SUNDAY

International Week-end Conference Opens Saturday Afternoon at Two, Closes With Chinese and Hindu Speakers Sunday Afternoon

JOSHI AND KIANG SPEAK ON THEIR NATIVE LANDS

Harry F. Ward, Professor of Christian Ethics at Union Theological Seminary, will be the first speaker on the program of the International Week-end Conference, which begins next Sunday afternoon at half past two, and lasts through the afternoon of the following day. The entire program will be carried through in the University Gymnasium.

Following Dr. Ward, in the afternoon, Tucker P. Smith, Executive Secretary of the National Committee on Militarism in Education, will take up some of the psychological aspects of war in general.

Saturday evening, at 8.00 o'clock, Everett W. Lord, Dean of the College of Business Administration of Boston University, will debate Tucker P. Smith on the question: Resolved, that the study of military training in the universities of the United States should be voluntary, and not compulsory.

Joshi and Kiang Speak Sunday

On Sunday afternoon, Sunder Joshi, a Hindu student at Harvard Law School, and Peter B. Kiang, a Chinese student, attending school in Boston, Mass., will discuss their respective countries.

Harry F. Ward is widely known throughout the United States as one of the most outstanding thinkers of our generation. Previous to his becoming a professor at Union Theological Seminary, he spent several years in the ministry, and several more in active social work. From these two professions, which brought him into intimate contact with our social system, he was able to acquire a broad and sympathetic understanding of the many social problems facing us today. Realizing that what the world needed most was an application of the ethical principles of Christ, Dr. Ward decided that teaching was the profession in which he could do the most good, for the college student of today determines the social system of tomorrow.

Needless to say, a man of such keen insight as Professor Ward possesses a decidedly liberal viewpoint. Some of the organizations with which he is connected are: American Civil Liberties Union, the Fellowship of Reconciliation, and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. Among the books he has written are

PRESS CLUB DISCUSSES NEW PLANS AT MEETING

At a business meeting of Press Club held in 3 North College on October 3, Eleanor Koenig, '31, secretary, presided in the absence of the president, Florence McKenzie, '30. Plans were discussed for the year's work. Acting upon a suggestion from Mr. Dean that special feature writers be appointed to take care of news notes instead of having it done by the publicity committees, six people were elected: Dorothy Dailey, '30, Helen Lalmron, '32; Margaret Stanley, '31, Margaret Rice, '31; Hope Ranslow, '32, and Margaret Martin, '32. These women will write any special stories or news of importance and send them to the various high school and town papers. Two girls will go to Mr. Dean's office daily to work upon assignments previously posted upon the bulletin board in the "Y" room. Plans were made to have a social meeting every two months, and a business meeting every two weeks.

A great deal of interest has been manifested in the Press Club, and the year's outlook promises increased efficiency and accomplishment tion in Porto Rico Dean Lord returned to Boston and undertook the organization of a college of business administration as a department of Boston University. When, three years later, the College was organized he, as Dean, prepared the courses of study and fixed the degree requirements. From the first military training was required of all students in the freshman and sophomore classes and this requirement was continued until three years ago, when membership in the R. O. T. C. was made elective.

It was President Marsh of Boston University that caused military training to become voluntary rather than compulsory for the students attending that University and it is interesting to note in this connection that at the time President Marsh made the change he made the following statement: "I am perfectly willing to have all of our students take military drill if they choose to do so. My opposition is to the compulsory feature of it. I wish to record my appreciation of the attitude that has been shown by all concerned, especially by Dean Lord of the College of Business Administration, and by the army officers in charge of this unit. I have nothing but praise for the way they have assisted in changing the course from compulsory to optional."

CAT'S MEOW

—Sporting Editor—

They came, they saw, and they were conquered—those men of Vermont who had the nerve—the guts, to use the word of the gridiron—to face those Bulldogs of Yale.

It is no small wonder that Yale was able to pile up 89 points—the largest total of points an Eli team has scored since 1888—when the Green and Gold traveled to New Haven with visions of the stinging defeat the week before at New York and knew they were playing another losing game even before the contest was begun.

And the inevitable happened. The Catamounts are in a seriously crippled condition, unprepared to meet teams of their own caliber the rest of the season.

The purpose of athletics has been deliberately defeated in sending Vermont against such powerful, scientific football machines. The intent to build strong, healthy bodies has not been realized by a long shot, and the morale—well there just isn't any morale to talk about.

Now the question arises—Why play football at Vermont? For publicity? Not the kind we're getting. To develop clean minds and bodies? Those questions have already been answered. To make money? Of course not. We play the big boys to just scrape by.

One hundred fifty pounds football teams on an intercollegiate basis are to be started this fall at Harvard. As a trial it will be used in connection with Crimson dormitory teams.

"Swede" Johnson, former Vermont halfback, has signed with the Boston Bulldogs, and "Rusty" Yarnall is with the Fitton A. C. of East Boston.

PHYS. ED. DEPARTMENT TO TEACH EQUITATION, BOXING AND WRESTLING

A course in equitation will be given by the physical education department this year under the instruction of Mr Prentice, who will give two lessons each week. The charge is ten dollars and this covers both instruction and rental of horses.

A special course in boxing is also offered this year by the department of physical education. This course will start about the first of November and will continue to the Easter recess. Wrestling will be taught as a part of the regular course. A good competent wrestling coach has been secured and it is possible that Vermont may compete with other colleges on the mat.

W. A. A. NOTES

Several leisure time recreational sports have been planned by Miss Cummings and Miss Blanchard for any girls interested. These are roller skating, quoits, tether ball, and clock golf. All equipment is at Redstone.

W. A. A., under the leadership of Estabel Perelman, '30, is planning a hike to Red Rocks Sunday afternoon, for all University women, weather permitting. All those planning to go will meet at the gymnasium at 2.30 p.m.

KITTENS' LINE HOLDS AS MONTPELIER THREATENS

Coach Berry's freshmen got off to a flying start Saturday afternoon when they defeated the Montpelier Seminary eleven to the tune of 12-0. The contest was between two evenly matched teams, and neither team had won until the yearlings shoved their second touchdown across the last stripe with only a few minutes left to play. At the start the Green and Gold line did not look as though it would hold up under the ceaseless pounding that it received from the prep school boys, but before the end of the first half they had bolstered up and offered real opposition to their opponents.

There were several times during the contest when the invading team pushed their way dangerously near the Kittens' goal line but they were always held long enough to lose the ball to their opponents on downs. Vermont's safety man, in the second half, missed a punt that was finally recovered on the Montpelier ten-yard line. A spectacular pass to Casiani was completed and he raced sixty yards to the freshman twenty-yard line. Another pass and a few line plunges brought the sphere to the Kitten's five-yard line.

had spent so much time and care in perfecting squad movements and the manual of arms it was hard to choose the winning squad. Squad movements and the manual present a pleasing exhibition when they are done snappily and correctly.

After the competition by squads the companies lined up in two parallel lines facing each other and went through the manual of arms as commanded by Lieutenant Fredericks. The judges from Fort Ethan Allen who had judged the squad drill eliminated men who made mistakes until only one winner was left. After the sophomores had competed the freshmen followed them.

Students under 18 years of age at the University of Omaha will be arrested if they are found on the streets of the city after 8 p.m., in accordance with the resolution of the W. C. T. U. of that city.

Nature to be commanded must be obeyed.

NOTICES

All freshmen interested in debating will meet in the Old Mill Chapel, Thursday at 4 p.m. Men must be prepared to give a five minute speech on either side of any question of their own choice. The freshman team will be selected from those trying out.

All baseball equipment must be turned in at once.

Try-outs for the University Orchestra will be held at the Music Building on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons of this week from 4.00 to 4.30. All trying out are requested to bring familiar music if possible. Orchestra rehearsals are to be held one afternoon each week throughout the year. It will be possible for string players to obtain a limited amount of coaching from Miss de Volt.

A meeting of the scrubs for the business side of the Ariel will be held at the S. A. E. House this week Thursday at 7.00 p.m. All sophomores interested are asked to be present.

The Women's Student Union Council is going to enforce the rule which states that there shall be no attendance of co-eds at public dances. This applies to Bayside in particular. Delegates from the council are to be sent to the pavilion to report the names of all those who are violating this rule. The penalty for the first offense will be very severe.

Women wishing to scrub Cynic will meet in 3 North College, Wednesday, October 9, at four o'clock sharp. Information will not be repeated for latecomers. Women members of the three lower classes are eligible. All who have gym classes at that hour may make them up at another time, as Miss Cummings will excuse them.

A W. A. A. roller skating party will be held at Ethan Allen Park Saturday, October 5.

Turn the light on the Truth!

It's just naturally good tobacco—not "artificial treatment" that makes OLD GOLD gentle to the throat and better to the taste

No one cigarette-maker has any monopoly on the heat-treatment of cigarette tobaccos.

For heat-treating is neither new nor exclusive. It has been used for years by practically all cigarette-makers to "set" and sterilize their tobacco.

But OLD GOLD'S goodness does not depend on artificial treatment. It is the product of naturally good tobaccos . . . carefully selected for mildness, smoothness and flavor. Tobaccos made free of "throat scratch" by Mother Nature herself.

Try a package. You'll immediately get the thrill of this smoother and better cigarette. And you'll know then why OLD GOLD'S sales are ALREADY THREE TIMES GREATER than the combined growth of three leading cigarette brands during a like period of their existence.

UNIVERSITY TO ERECT FLEMING MUSEUM SOON FROM NEW ENDOWMENTS

Robert Hull Fleming Building to Cost $450,000—Katherine Wolcott and James Wilbur Leave $250,000 For Construction

The University of Vermont will soon have a new museum. The total cost of the new building will be $450,000. This amount was received from several different sources. James B. Wilbur, who died last spring, donated $100,000, with the provision that the University raise an additional $200,000. This required amount has been raised through gifts from four donors, $150,000 of it being given by Miss Katherine Wolcott of Chicago, niece of the late Robert Hull Fleming, U. V. M. '62. Because of this gift the new building will be known as the Robert Hull Fleming Museum. The remaining $30,000 was given by three persons who have requested that their names be not used in this connection.

Wilbur Room in Museum

This provisional gift of Mr. Wilbur to the University of Vermont, made before his death, affects in no way the trust fun which he created in behalf of the University, as announced last June. It is a separate gift entirely and was made with the understanding that there should be in this museum a Wilbur room to house the valuable collection of books and papers and other articles belonging to Mr. Wilbur. This collection has been valued all the way from $75,000 to $250,000.

In addition to the provisional gift of $100,000, Mr. Wilbur made provision in his trust fund for the University that $150,000 be set aside for endowment of the Wilbur room in the museum, when the building should be built. So a minimum of $450,000 is provided for this project.

To Build Museum Early Next Spring

Pres. Guy W. Bailey stated lately that the preliminary plans for the new building already have been prepared by McKim, Mead & White of New York, architects for the Ira Allen Chapel. It is hoped to break ground for the building early next spring.

The building will be located facing on Colchester Avenue. Although the exact location has not been definitely decided upon, the present site of Commons Hall has been talked of as a possible location for the new museum. The matter will be decided by the trustees.

SCABBARD AND BLADE PLANS MILITARY BALL

Scabbard and Blade will hold a formal military ball in the gymnasium of the Burlington High School on November 11. The event is one of the high-lights of the social life at Vermont.

Scabbard and Blade is the senior military honor society at Vermont. It is a national organization having chapters in practically every college or university in the United States which has military training. Scabbard and Blade originated at the University of Indiana. It was started at Vermont December 10, 1921. Each year the society elects juniors to become members the following year on the basis of their efficiency in military work, character and personality. Each year members of the society speak to the lowerclassmen on military training, and present cups to competitive squads and to student soldiers for excellence in military.

R. O. T. C. BAND TO PLAY FOR MILITARY DEBATE

The R. O. T. C. Band will play tomorrow night in the University gymnasium for the International Week-end Conference being conducted by the International Relations Club. There will be a debate on military that evening and the band will play musical selections before and after the debate and during the intermission. The whole R. O. T. C. Band will report, including the new freshman members. This is the first public concert to be played by the Vermont R. O. T. C. Band this year.

DISCUSS "THE NEW MORALITY" SUNDAY

Liberal Club, However, Decides That There Is No New Morality But That There Are Countless New Moralities From Individual to Relativistic

EINSTEIN THEORY BASIS OF LATEST MORALITY

Nineteen students were present at the third meeting of the Vermont Liberal Club which was held in Dr C. C. Adams' study last Sunday morning to discuss "The New Morality."

The meeting was opened with Lippmann's "Preface to Morals." Lippmann had had religion knocked out of him, but after a period of unsettlement he started to look for a religion for he had come to the conclusion that there could be no morality without religion. He says, "Religion is the spring and standard of morals." This statement was dismissed by the club because of the fact that one can be moral without religion and vice versa.

Many New Moralities

Discussion brought up the question: What is meant by morality?" and "Is there any 'The New Morality?'" The answer of the club to the former is that morality means "the good life" and to the latter that there is no "The New Morality" but many new moralities.

The first of the new moralities discussed was "Aesthetic Morality." Aesthetic morality is based on beauty. If a thing is beautiful, it is good; if it is ugly, it is bad. This morality was discarded because of a difference of opinion on what constitutes beauty.

The next new morality brought up was "Group Morality." Group moral-

REVEREND CUNNINGHAM GRAHAM DECLARES ONE THING IS NEEDFUL NOW

"One thing is needful," said the Rev. Cunningham Graham of Manchester in chapel Wednesday morning. Last year when he was here Mr. Graham took the text "No Room," and this year, in the same stirring manner, he told of the importance of building Christlike characters.

He drew in a few graphic words the scene at the home of Martha and Mary when the former busied about her manifold household duties necessary for entertaining a guest, while Mary knelt at the feet of her Lord, enraptured with the magic of His words. Martha spoke to her sister, chiding her for not aiding in the work; but Jesus gently rebuked her saying, "There is one thing needful; Mary hath chosen the better part."

Today in our rush and turmoil, where "life is too much with us," when everything is divided, cataloged and pigeon-holed to too great a degree, we fall short of the desirable attitude towards life. We forget that, with all our specializing, which however must be done, that there is only "one thing needful."

Listen to the words of Christ, words so profound that no philosopher can explain them away, and build a Christlike character out of your busy life.

LEVINE AND MACOMBER GAIN MEDALS FOR HIGH RANK AT CAMP DEVENS

Twenty-five U. V. M. Juniors Attend Military Camp During the Summer—Daily Routine Heavy and Exacting

Twenty-five men from the University attended the R. O. T. C. camp last summer at Camp Devens, Mass., from June 22 to July 26. H. B. Levine received a medal for the best all round military efficiency in the second platoon, while H. M. Macomber, also of the second platoon received a second place medal. C. C. Lyman, '29, received a certificate of excellent rating along with Levine and Macomber.

Camp Routine

The first few days of camp life were consumed in being fitted to uniforms, and taking a physical examination. After this fitting period was over the camp settled down into its regular routine. This routine consisted of reveille at five-thirty, breakfast at six, inspection at seven-fifteen, and drill and instruction from then until dinner, which was at twelve-fifteen. After dinner more drill was on the program until three-thirty. From then until five-forty, when retreat came, the men could do as they pleased. Supper came at six o'clock, with nothing more on the program until ten o'clock, which was the time for taps.

At the beginning of camp a general review of the fundamental principles studied in college was held for the first few days. Then followed periods of study of the theory of marksmanship, and the shooting of the 45-caliber pistol.

After this the whole camp marched to the rifle range to take up the actual shooting. This period of five days spent at the rifle range was terminated with the shooting for records. The names of the men who received awards for this shooting will not be made public by the Military Department until its first inspection. E. C. Ball, however, was sent by the R. O. T. C. to fire in the national matches at Camp Peary, Ohio, from August 25 until September 15. Two other men from the University attended this camp, being sent by the State National Guard. They were A. L. Wardwell, '30, and G. M. Donaldson, '31.

The men in Camp Devens returned to camp about the third of July. The regular routine was resumed except that the drilling in the morning was of a shorter duration. Advanced military theory was studied. In this period one overnight hike was included and one night problem. This latter was an attack at dawn, which necessitated the marching to positions at one o'clock in the morning.

All but three of the men who attended the camp are seniors this year. The other three had not been to camp the year before and so were required to attend during the summer of their senior year. Colonel Black also attended the camp. He was on the staff of the camp itself and so did no commanding. His work was the supervision of the publicity department.

H. A. Hazen, R. H. Lockwood, and G. R. Van Name were the men from the class of 1929 who attended. The others were P. G. Andrews, A. C. Aronson, E. C. Ball, F. E. Beckley, R. B. Buckley, A. O. Bundy, C. W. Capron, J. A. Eliot, A. Gloria, N. B. Gray, R. A. Lawrence, H. B. Levine, H. M. Macomber, O. A. Martinetti, P. M. Perry, E. H. Powell, M. E. Powell, F. J. Reed, P. S. Robins, P. T. Scutakes, W. J. Slavin, and T. J. Vignone.

TO CONTINUE THROUGH SATURDAY AND SUNDAY

The International Week-end Conference opens tomorrow afternoon and will continue through tomorrow night and the afternoon of the next day, Sunday. The Conference consists of a series of free lectures upon international subjects, which all the students of the University of Vermont are invited to attend. The speakers are men of international reputation and wide experience and are consequently well qualified to talk upon the topics they will discuss. The International Week-end Conference is being sponsored by the Vermont International Relations Club, assisted by the University of Vermont and the Vermont Christian Association which play such a big part in student affairs. All the lectures of the International Week-end Conference will be given in the University gymnasium. Saturday night the lecture will begin at eight o'clock. The lecture on Saturday afternoon will begin at two o'clock and Sunday afternoon the lecture begins at two-thirty o'clock.

The program for the Conference follows. Students are advised to cut it out of the Cynic for ready use.

Saturday afternoon, two o'clock: Harry F. Ward will speak on "The Economic Basis of World Peace." Tucker P. Smith will speak on, "The Psychological Causes and Cures of War."

Saturday night, eight o'clock: Feature event of the Conference; debate: Resolved, That the Study of Military Training in the Universities of the United States Should Be Voluntary and Not Compulsory. Major A. B. Simmons, R. O. A., will uphold the negative. Tucker P. Smith will uphold the affirmative. The R. O. T. C. Band will play.

Sunday afternoon, two-thirty o'clock: Sunder Joshi, Hindu, will speak on "India—Yesterday and Tomorrow." Peter P. Kiang, Chinese student, will

ECONOMICS PROFESSOR SPENDS HIS SABBATICAL YEAR IN DEGREE STUDY

Yale Scene of Graduate Work—Engages in Research Work With Ohio Department Store

Two summers saw A. G. Buehler, popular Assistant Professor of Economics, hard at work on applied economics. During the school year Professor Buehler was engaged in graduate study at Yale, working with famous economists, studying for his Doctor's degree for which he has completed all the work except the thesis.

Leaving Burlington in June, 1928, he immediately went to the city of Toledo, Ohio, there to engage in research in merchandizing methods. This work he undertook in the house furnishing department of Lasalle and Koch, a member of a great central chain of department stores. This study he continued throughout the summer, leaving for New Haven about the first of October.

Studied With Noted Economists

At Yale University he worked with such economists as Irving Fisher, T. S. Adams and others as high in this field. There he worked during the school year, studying for his Ph.D. Professor Buehler is now working on his Doctor's thesis, which he hopes to finish before next June.

Along towards the end of last June he left once more for Toledo, there to spend the summer working in the credit department as assistant to the credit manager. He returned to Burlington late last August.

PRENTICE SUPERVISING EQUITATION; BOXING AND WRESTLING ALSO GIVEN

Director of Physical Education Howard Prentice is pleased to announce the following courses which are to be given by his department

Classes in equitation are to be held Monday and Wednesday afternoons at four o'clock. This year a deposit of $10 must be made before entering in order to assure the reporting of all members. This sport gained much popularity last year and from all indications the class is expected to exceed the hopes of its admirers. Mr. Prentice will personally conduct the group and anyone interested should report to him.

Boxing and wrestling are to be introduced on a larger scale and classes will be held on Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons beginning November 4 at four o'clock. Coaches all over the country are advocating those sports as great factors in conditioning athletes. Promising material exists and the season will end up in intramural bouts where we ought to see some pretty contests.

Wrestling will be under the supervision of "Bump" Levine, who is gradually becoming an exponent of Gus Sonnenberg, and welcomes a large class.

"Red" Negri of the Frosh team looked as if he'll be the outstanding man on the line this fall. He's a powerful boy and follows the play well. When Montpelier Seminary was on Vermont's five yard line at the beginning of the second half in Saturday's game the prep school quarterback sent three line bucks through Negri's tackle and couldn't put the pigskin over. On the last down the play went through center with a foot to go, but without success—partly due to Negri's backing up the center of the line. It was a consistent piece of good work.

H. A. PRENTICE MENTOR OF FROSH BASKETBALL

Former Vermont Captain and Three-sport Star Re-elected as Coach—Good Season Assured

Howard A. Prentice, present physical director and former Vermont trisport star, was again chosen as freshman hoop coach by the University Athletic Council.

Last year Prentice led his charges who played some of the state's best amateur teams through five victories in seven starts. Wins were garnered over the Knights of Columbus, Checkerboys, DeMolay and the Goddard Seminary five the latter by one point in a close overtime struggle.

The appointment of Mr. Prentice assures the freshmen of a season as successful as those of the past years on account of the known ability of Mr. Prentice to produce winning teams. He is known as a hoop star throughout the East and captained the Green and Gold quintet of 1927-28.

BASEBALL PRACTICE IS DISCONTINUED DUE TO WEATHER AND FOOTBALL

Baseball practice was discontinued last week by Coach Gardner due to his inability to get the men out and to cooling weather. Quite a few of the varsity nine are out for football where they are sorely needed. Practice sessions will start again about a month before the opening of the season.

Several promising freshmen reported during the past couple of weeks and with the veteran material prospects are bright for next spring.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT PROGRESSING SLOWLY WITH ONE MATCH DONE

The fall tennis tournament has not been receiving the action that it deserves this year. The schedule of matches has been posted for over a week and as yet only one match has been completed. Manager Reed would like to see as many of the matches as possible played off within the next two weeks. The courts were all marked off Wednesday and are all ready for the games.

There is one great disadvantage in that many of the matches are between freshmen and upperclassmen who do not know each other. In cases of this sort, it is up to the freshmen to look up the upperclassmen and arrange for a date. Reed would like to have all contestants put their telephone numbers after their names on the schedule posted on the bulletin board in the South section of the Old Mill.

Cool weather may be delaying the matches but there is not much time left before snow will cover the courts.

Sign at Once

Women are requested to sign up at once for the tennis tournament, in order that it may be played off as soon as possible. W. A. A. credit is given to the winners.

VERMONT WILL FACE ALMOST VETERAN TEAM

It will be a crippled Vermont team that meets the Boston University eleven men tomorrow afternoon at Boston. The game with Yale brought many casualties and left the team weak. There are at least seven players that probably cannot be used tomorrow because of injuries. Before the Yale contest Vermont lacked a sufficient number of reserves but now Coach Rattan is doubly handicapped.

The line-up is at present a little uncertain but it is probable that a backfield of Winant, Heaton, Gourson and Mace will start. In the line Coach Rattan will have to do some shifting.

Last Saturday B. U. was defeated by New Hampshire to the tune of 24 to 6, and so no such opposition as was found in the first two encounters is expected for Vermont to-morrow. At the present time there is a big injury list at Boston University but all except three or four men are expected to be available for the game. Nearly all of the first string men are veterans from last year's team and with the exception of Carnie, end, and J. Kahn, guard, and possibly Hootstein, back, will see action.

War Must Cease

NOTICES

The Liberal Club will meet at 11.45 Sunday morning in Doctor Adams' study in the rear part of the Congregational Church. Tucker P. Smith, who is an International Week-end Conference speaker, will address the members.

It is the custom for Boulder to make announcements in Chapel each week. Notices for this purpose may be handed to any Boulder man or may be left in the "Y" office.

Class Teams May Swell Squad

Both the class teams this year will probably add considerable strength to team. On the sophomore team are Leary Berger, Donald Frazier and Paul LaCrosse, all potentially strong material. Freshmen will probably swell the ranks of Vermont's forensic artists at the try-outs immediately after mid-years. At least half a dozen men in the lower classes, and probably as many in the upper classes, who have never yet debated at Vermont or who failed to make the class teams, will probably appear at one or more of the try-outs and more than one should make good.

The outlook for women's debating is the brightest in years. There are no less than five veterans this year at Vermont, all members of Tau Kappa Alpha. A. S. M. E. PLANS FRIDAY FORTNIGHTLY MEETINGS

Regular Friday fortnightly meetings are on the program for the rest of the year of the University of Vermont branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. A meeting Friday morning named a series of standing committees and put the time and place for future meetings at 2.00 o'clock Friday afternoons in the Engineering Building.

The purpose of the A. S. M. E. is to develop the ability to speak and to express ideas and to study the advancement of engineering thought. It is expected that several motion pictures will be shown during the year and that speakers will be procured to lecture on engineering problems.

The officers of the U. V. M. A. S. M. E. this year are: Honorary chairman, Prof. V. R. Yates; chairman, E. C. Ball, '30; vice-chairman, M. E. Mills, '30; secretary-treasurer, Robert Buckley, '30.

YEARLINGS NAME CLASS OFFICERS AT FRESHMAN ELECTIONS WEDNESDAY

Brink, Odell, Taft and Taylor Honored by Election to Principal Offices by Class of '33

Deane Brink of Huntington, N. Y., is president of the freshman class; Charlotte Odell of New York City, is vice-president; Caroline Taft of Wallingford, is secretary; and Theodore Taylor of West Hartford, Conn., is treasurer, by virtue of the freshman class elections Wednesday afternoon. Most of the class turned out for the elections and provided a close race in the contests for president and treasurer.

All of the yearling officers were prominent in activities at their respective high schools. Brink is a tennis and track man, participated in those activities at Huntington High School, and also made the Glee Club and the staff of the school paper.

Charlotte Odell, a graduate of the Evander Childs High School of New York City, was a member of the Junior Arista Honorary Society of the girls' athletic club and of the Glee Club. She was also captain of the cheering squad at Evander.

Caroline Taft, who is a graduate of Wallingford High School, was president of her class during both her junior and senior years. She holds a debating scholarship at the University and last year was captain of the state championship debating team.

Theodore Taylor, class treasurer, graduated from the William Hall High School of West Hartford. Taylor was president of the Agara Debating Club and was managing editor of the school paper.

BIG GOLD KEY PADDLES PANTIES OF BAD FROSH

The powerful, long-reaching arm of Gold Key at last exerted its influence over negligent frosh at the Phi Mu Delta house last Wednesday night.

During the course of the day, notices were posted on both bulletin boards summoning to judgment eighteen unfortunate frosh who had broken The Rules. The frosh, almost to a man, attended the meeting with fluttering hearts and ill-concealed anxiety.

However, Gold Key, considering the fact that this was their first offence, punished them lightly, with the stern reminder that if they were caught disobeying their rules again, their punishment would be doubled and even trebled.

Some of the frosh were paddled while others who had committed more serious offenses were not only paddled, but even compelled to wear placards on their backs, exposing themselves to the public as typical examples of the power of Gold Key.

Gold Key wishes this first gathering of guests to stand as a warning to those frosh who contemplate any wrong-doings, or who have sinned thus far without being caught in the act.

COMING WEEK-END FILLED WITH EVENTS

Boulder Society is in Complete Charge of the Many Activities—Smoker, Cane Rush and Dance

DANCE SATURDAY NIGHT TO CONCLUDE ACTIVITIES

Boulder Society is to have charge of the coming busy week-end including the smoker, Friday night, the annual cane rush between the two lower classes, and the dance Saturday evening.

A real peppy smoker, the kind that some of the old alumni talk about is planned for Friday night. The Union contest is the first home game of the season for the varsity and Boulder is putting its best efforts into the affair of Friday eve preceding the gridiron battle. A program full of novelty numbers, interesting speakers, cheering and singing with the R. O. T. C. Band present, is promised. Smokes will be passed out during the program. Refreshments of cider and doughnuts will be served in the cage immediately afterwards. The program will commence at 7.30 p.m.

The traditional cane rush between the freshmen and sophomores will take place right after the game. The freshmen are asked by Boulder to gather in front of the University gymnasium at 1.30 o'clock, Saturday afternoon, march down to Hayes and Carney on Bank Street next to the

V. C. ASSOCIATION PLANS ACTION DURING SEASON IN EXTENDING PROGRAM

Membership Drive and Discussion Groups On Program for Year —R. L. Stewart Elected Vice-President

Robert Lee Stewart, '30, was elected to the vice-presidency of the University of Vermont Christian Association, at a meeting of the executive cabinet last Thursday evening at the Association office.

The officers met for the purpose of electing a vice-president and to discuss some important work which is to begin immediately. It was decided that, since many have shown interest in the Christian Association work and desire to take some active part, that a membership drive should start very soon. All upperclassmen and freshmen will be given an opportunity to pledge. As a part of this campaign attractive folders will be distributed which will tell definitely that the University of Vermont Christian Association is going to do something very much worth while and of great interest to the student body. It is able to do this through the leadership and ability of an unusually competent cabinet.

The literature committee has established a library containing all the late books on campus movements, religious work, student problems, social life on the campus, sex relations, war and peace activities, orientation of undergraduates—in short, the collection will consist of modern thought in the intercollegiate world. In conjunction with this permanent free-loan library, there will also be a second-hand text book service for students.

Throughout the year various discussion groups will meet and interest will be centered, upon such topics as concern each student in his campus relations. There will be student leaders and a speaker who is an Association worker or representative from the various Eastern colleges. Incidentally, many enjoyable hikes are in view and negotiations are under way for a retreat at one of the local camps. Here week-ends will be spent with small groups from time to time and it is hoped some much needed and beneficial contacts and companionships will be formed.

I. R. CLUB TO HEAR OF THE HIGHER PATRIOTISM

The International Relations Club will meet Wednesday afternoon at 4.00 P.M. in 37 North College. Dr. Adams, the leader, will talk on "The Higher Patriotism."

Discussions will be on the idea of patriotism under nationalism and also what happens to it under internationalism.

This is the second meeting this month to be devoted to a general summary of international relations. Beginning next month the group will concentrate its interest on the study of particular countries and international problems. The leader at the meeting following the one on patriotism will be a student who will talk on what the college man can do to further friendly relations between his own and other countries. All students are invited to come to the meeting. A period of stimulating thought and lively discussions awaits them.

VERMONT STUDENTS GO TO OHIO CAMP TO FIRE IN NATIONAL MATCHES

Wardwell, Donaldson and Ball Leave Camp Peary With Medals and Prizes—Berry Heads Winning Team

Three students of the University of Vermont attended the national rifle matches at Camp Peary, Ohio, from August 25 to September 15. A. L. Wardwell and G. M. Donaldson were sent by the State National Guard, and E. C. Ball was sent by the R. O. T. C. on the basis of his firing on the Vermont rifle team and his firing while at Camp Devens this summer. Although this is the first year that any Vermont student has been to these matches, the results were exceptional. Wardwell placed twenty-second in the national individual rifle match with a score which was only six points lower than the winners. A total of sixteen hundred and thirty-eight men fired in this contest, including men in all branches of the government service, many of whom use the rifle regularly.

This same score enabled Wardwell to place fourth in the citizens' military contest from which all regular service men were excluded. This period included several firing contests, in which money prizes were awarded the winners. Wardwell received four prize checks, Donaldson three, and Ball two. Besides the firing contests, the officers in charge conducted a school to instruct the students present in the teaching of others. This instruction was the primary purpose of the camp which seeks to make instructors.

Berry Captains Winning Team

Besides individual matches, team matches were fired. Captain Berry, now attached to the regular R. O. T. C. battalion of the University, was in charge of the team that won this contest in which one hundred and seventeen teams were entered. The Vermont State National Guard team was forty-ninth, twenty-five places higher than last year. Under Captain Berry's tutelage and the impetus given the rifle team by this showing it should develop even faster than it has heretofore. Captain Lauer started the Vermont rifle team and has been mainly responsible for its improved showing each year.

The matches were fired over the same courses for both team and individual contests. The firing line during the individual contests was over half a mile long. Each man fired ten shots in each of the four positions, prone, sitting, kneeling and standing, at four ranges, two hundred, three hundred, six hundred and one thousand yards. The highest score made in the individual matches was two hundred and eighty-one out of a possible three hundred. One hundred and forty medals were given to men placing in this event. The lowest medal winner had a score of two hundred and sixty-five, only sixteen points below that of the winner.

TO CELEBRATE JOHN DEWEY'S BIRTHDAY

Philosophy-psychology Club to Celebrate Work of Famous Vermont Graduate on the Occasion of His Seventieth Birthday With Fitting Exercises

CLUB MEETS TUESDAY TO EXECUTE PROGRAM

The John Dewey Club will meet for the first time this year next Tuesday evening at eight o'clock in the Vermonters' Club house on Summit street. The meeting is being held in celebration of the seventieth birthday of John Dewey for whom the club has been named. It will be remembered that John Dewey received his A.B. from the University of Vermont in 1879. Since 1904 he has been professor of philosophy at Columbia University and holds the position of philosophy department head there at the present time. He is recognized as one of the greatest American philosophers of today. Celebrations in honor of his seventieth birthday are being held over the whole country. All students interested in philosophy, psychology, and in modern social problems are invited to be present and to join the club if they have not already done so.

Professors Gifford, Metcalf, and Douglas will address the members of the John Dewey Club Tuesday night. Professor Gifford will speak on "John Dewey and Liberal Thought." Professor Metcalf will talk on "John Dewey and Psychology." Professor Douglas will speak on "John Dewey's Influence on Education in Foreign Lands."

Dewey Here in November

Students are reminded that John Dewey will speak here at the University in November as one of the special University lecturers. Tuesday night's meeting will afford all students interested in John Dewey an opportunity to become acquainted beforehand with this greatest of all contemporary American philosophers.

John Dewey was born in Burlington, was educated at the University of Vermont, and received his Ph.D. from Johns Hopkins University and his first honorary degree from the University of Wisconsin. He is one of only three Americans to be appointed Gifford lecturer at the Univer-

ETA SIGMA PHI HOLDS HAPPY SOCIAL MEETING

At a social meeting of Eta Sigma Phi held at the home of Professor and Mrs. Bassett, Tuesday evening, October 8, two honorary members, Prof. A. E. Gordon and Miss Wiss, '29, of Smith College, were initiated into Iota Chapter. Miss Wiss gave a very interesting discussion of the Smith College Greek Society of which she was president during the past year. Professor Gordon graduated from Dartmouth College in the class of '23, later receiving a Ph.D. from Johns Hopkins College. He has also attended the American Academy in Rome, Italy, and has been instructor in Latin and history at Dartmouth, at Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio, and at Johns Hopkins, besides having held fellowships at Dartmouth and Johns Hopkins.

Miss Wiss is a graduate of the class of '29 at Smith College. She received special honors in Greek at that college and is now working for a master's degree in this University.

Initiation also took place at this meeting, the initiates being Doris Brennan, '32, and Grace Cusson, '32.

Georgia I. Bostwick, '30, was installed as vice-president for the following year.

Refreshments were served and a very informal discussion held. A novel form of entertainment was also enjoyed in the form of Greek songs which were played on the victrola.

A HELPING HAND

This message is directed to all members of the University who have been at Vermont more than one year. Moreover it is necessary to what may be termed a "preaching" style. For warning! Last night I heard gun the freshmen!

A large freshman class enrolled this fall. Many of them have come long distances to be here and that sometimes makes a big difference particularly in your first year at college. All of them have entered a new environment with new conditions to face, new subjects to adapt, new methods of greeting them. New problems are their problems.

There is a big jump from high school to college. Most educational authorities agree that it is the big jump. Big camps are fraught with "casualties." That is one of the reasons why many hard-working, open-hearted students are no longer with us after mid-terms. They do their best as what they believe to be their best but they just can't seem to master the grade.

Some of a long and tiresome loaded train couldn't make a steep grade it would start to slide back. Practical no check was placed upon that train and sliding tonnage, disaster would as a rule, result. Precisely. But railroad authorities realize that by coupling another engine to the rear the grade may be conquered with safety and with little wear and tear on either machine. We must assist that the assistant at the second locomotive is not to do all the work; its purpose is to help, to equalize the burden. When the train reaches level ground the second engine will no longer be necessary. The original power plant will then be able to continue its journey alone and unaided. Thus, it appears that the first engine possessed adequate power for all normal conditions; it was not that it would have been retired from heavy service long before. It was only over the unusual places, the "rough spots" that aid was required.

Let's take our sailboats as I. V. M. and see how they apply. In each ship, the first engine is the freshman, the second is the upperclassmen. In a high school graduate the grade at Vermont is comparatively steep. The freshman encounters this steep rise and begins to slip backwards. He must put down good but continues to slip. Eventually, unaided, he would have to turn back. But the upperclassman, already moving long and in the race, lays the proper hand on the boy, the opportunity to continue himself and is more fully developed to other emergencies, he has chosen to help him. Together they progress to the level upon the high ground. It isn't that the freshman isn't fit for the college work but the fact remains that more decidedly so it is difficult. That a helping hand goes a long way in difficult situations. Upperclassmen, already grounded in the fundamentals, may withdraw only assisting them on their way to new heights of accomplishment.

Now, however, that a great many have begun their work, a thousand additional and just as vital. The upperclassman may learn it and only necessary to glance at the new material of last showing him in the art of college freshmen. You will recall that the purpose of the second engine was to help the leading, it was merely to aid in certain emergencies. Don't say "I'll never ever change my subject now. Say "I'll check over how to handle a course of this kind, how to work for it, I mean, how to study." Don't say "I'll check up on my work after that climax." Don't say "I'll check up on my work after that climax." Don't say "I'll check up on my work after that climax

ALDRICH WORKING WITH SQUAD OF TWELVE MEN FOR MIDDLEBURY MEET

Wilder and Hadley Tie for First in Try-outs—Ten Others Place in Recent Work-outs

Coach Milt Aldrich's harriers have been having extensive workouts lately and the showing augers well for a successful season with an even chance of spilling the Middlebury team in the culmination of the season's schedule

In the recent tryouts for both varsity and frosh, Hadley and Wilder tied for first. Both are veterans in this sport. Wilder last fall led the freshman pack to victory at Middlebury, winning on a wide margin.

These men were followed in order by Leach, Varney, Barker, Bachl, Proctor, Brooks, Cota and Parks, in deadlock for ninth place; and Dunsmoor.

Leach took a place in the 880 in the Green Mountain Conference meet last year. Some of the other men were also out for varsity track last spring. Cross-country was started earlier than usual this year because the meets come earlier. As yet little has been done but to get started as rain has frequently interfered with practice. However, there will be some strenuous work from now on to get the team in shape for the first meet.

The freshmen have not had as good a turn out so far and will amount to little unless more members of '33 show a little class spirit and report soon. Some of the promising frosh harriers are Hadley, who has shown up among the best here, and Coburn, who was the best bet on the Burlington High School track team last year. Dunsmoor and Brooks are also doing well. With a small squad the coaches can hardly be expected to turn out much of a team and appeal to freshmen who are at all interested in cross-country to make an effort to practice daily.

CAT'S MEOW

—Sporting Editor—

Those fumbles proved costly to Vermont Saturday. At least two Terrier touchdowns resulted, once when Vermont fumbled on the six-yard line. Were it not for the breaks the score would have been a good deal lower.

No reason why Vermont should not start a winning streak now. If the line plays as it did in the second quarter, when it held B. U. consistently, and if the backfield is as successful with its aerial offense as it was Saturday, few teams should succeed in gaining the edge over Vermont hereafter.

Winant to Halligan—and what a combination it was! Gardner, Carrigan and Heaton, all played a good game in the backfield to reenforce the passing combination.

Levine and Segal in the line proved a bulwark of strength. Time and again, both center and end would be found around the other side of the line completing a tackle.

It was a great disappointment to have Clark tie the Kittens. Perhaps what helped as much as anything was Wadsworth's freakishness in the backfield. Once, with two minutes to play, with the ball on the four yard line and the Frosh with three downs to go, instead of calling for a line plunge, he signalled a drop kick, which just missed.

Coburn, Collins and Rapuano are natural ballcarriers. Yet, in two games, Wadsworth has given the ball to Rapuano just five times. What the Frosh need is a quarterback.

The college catalogues for (this) school year, 1929-30, reveal that, in many universities, the chairs of honor once held by the Muses are now glistening with the trappings of Mars, and the halo once encircling the pursuit of Truth now gleams on the helmet of Military Science.—The New Republic.

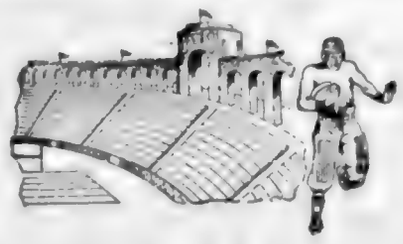
Hanover Prep Boys Score In Last Two Minutes of Play Through Brilliant Pass System—Coburn's Run Gives Vermont Only Touchdown

LARRY PALMER, FROSH COURT WIZARD, BEATS PROFESSOR CARPENTER

"Dark Horse" in Tennis Tournament Takes Measure of Number One Seeded Player

Some of the best tennis ever seen on the University courts was witnessed by admirers of the game in the annual fall tournament now in progress. Over 30 entrants have been received and quite a few matches have been played. However it took a young freshman, a "dark horse" in the tournament to provide the unexpected. When Larry Palmer of Winchester, Mass., took the courts on Thursday afternoon to battle with Professor Carpenter, who would have ever prophesied that this youngster would defeat the winner of the Middlebury tournament, and No. 1 seeded player on the hill by the score of 7-5, 7-6? The score is not indicative of the marked superiority of this freshman phenomenon who was the complete master of the varsity coach in all departments of the game. Larry Palmer is a graduate of Dummer Academy where he played for two years on the tennis team and captained it his last. The past fall he won the singles tournament at the Massachusetts Institution and partnered with Henry Hill, also a frosh, he captured the doubles cup. To prove his versatility, Larry can also play football and hockey and should earn his letter on the puck team. Without doubt this stolid youth is the best tennis prospect ever to enter the portals of the University. Another upset of minor importance occurred when Tupper beat Phil Goddard, 3rd seeded player, in a thrilling three set match 7-5, 2-6, 6-3.

RAPUANO, COBURN AND COLLINS FROSH STARS



Saturday's battle between the frosh and Clark School provided all that could be desired in the way of thrills, but it lacked much in the way of weather. With the exception of a few minutes at the end of the contest, the small crowd present was drenched by a steady drizzle and the players fought the game throughout on a muddy field.

Both teams seemed evenly matched with the advantage of the weight on the side of the boys from Hanover. The yearlings, however, seemed to have overcome this disadvantage of light weight as the line, backed up by Rapuano and Coburn in the backfield, held like veterans. The long gains through the Kittens line in the game with Montpelier Seminary was entirely lacking and the Clark eleven was forced to resort to long passes and long end runs for their big advances. The frosh were going good in every department throughout the game. In the line, the prep school boys met a stone wall every time. They directed the attack at Negri or Cohen and when they did slip through the line they were promptly pounced upon by the backfield and downed. On the offensive, the linesmen ripped open great holes for the backfield to slip through and Collins and Coburn were like a streak of light when they got away with the ball.

Clark had a beautiful passing system and twice ripped off big gains for twenty or thirty yards to a time. The aerial attack, Knox to McGee, was especially dangerous and it was one of these long heaves that put them in position for a touchdown. The yearlings scored first, early in the second half, when Coburn got away for a beautiful end run of about fourty yards, and a few line plunges through the struggling Clark School line sufficed to send the ball across the line.

for a debate between the frosh women and one of the men's class teams within about two weeks after the Bates debate. The try-outs for the freshman women's team will be held before October 20 and will be conducted in the same manner as the men's class and varsity try-outs. Each candidate will speak five minutes on a subject of her choice.

The following women have signed up so far: Helen E. Goddard of Cohoes High School, Cohoes, N. Y., and Sylvia Boyd of Wilmington High School, Wilmington, Vt., neither of whom has had previous experience; Caroline Taft and Laura Johnson, both of Wallingford High School, Wallingford, Vt., who have had two years of high school debating, were members of last year's state championship team and hold debating scholarships at the University; and Margaret Tower of Burlington, who entered the semi-finals in the state debating league last year with the Burlington High School team.

NOTICES

Because of former conflicts with freshman required meetings, there will be an additional try-out for the University orchestra next Wednesday, October 16, from 4.00 to 4.30 in the Music Building. Candidates should bring some familiar music if possible.

All women students, upperclassmen as well as freshmen, who wish to try out for membership in Press Club will meet in 3 South College, Friday, October 18 at 4.00 p.m. Those having physical education at that hour may make arrangements with Miss Cummings.

Masque and Sandal will hold a meeting Tuesday afternoon, October 15, at four o'clock at the Kappa Alpha Theta house. There will be an initiation of those who gained membership to Masque and Sandal by their participation in the Junior Week play last spring.

The Women's Student Union Council calls attention to a mistake in the Women's Handbook. On page forty-two it is stated that Sunday nights until 9.45 are not social evenings. It should read that Sunday nights until 10.00 p.m. are not social evenings.

Those in charge of meetings of interest to the student body are requested to report the dates of such events to the Dean's Office, so that they may be posted on the Social Calendar. The dean will list all these at as early a time as possible to aid in avoiding conflicts when setting the time for other events.

FOUR INITIATED INTO HONOR DRAMATIC CLUB

At a meeting of Masque and Sandal, women's honorary dramatic society, at the Kappa Alpha Theta house last Wednesday, four new members were initiated: Phoebe Flint, '30, Elizabeth Cory, '31, Katherine Raugh, '32, and Hope Ranslow, '32.

Chairmanship elections gave Annette Rosenberg, '30, the chairmanship of the committee for the selection of the fall play and Hope Ranslow chairmanship of the entertainment committee.

It was decided that after October 31 meetings will take place every two weeks at the Kappa Alpha Theta house. Programs will include the presentation of skits and talks on subjects relating to dramatics by members of the faculty.

CONFERENCE DEBATE ON COMPULSORY MILITARY BRINGS SHARP CLASHES

Tucker P. Smith and Simmons of National Security League Argue on Voluntary Versus Compulsory R. O. T. C.

Arguments for and against military training as part of the curriculum of universities were advanced Saturday evening at the University gymnasium in the debate which was staged as part of the International Week-End conference.

Tucker P. Smith, executive secretary of the committee on militarism in education, of which Professor John Dewey is chairman, upheld the affirmative of the question: "Resolved, that the study of military training in the universities of the United States should be voluntary and not compulsory." The negative was supported by Major A. B. Simmons, of the National Security League.

Professor Leon W. Dean of the University English Department, presided at the debate. Each speaker was allowed half an hour for the main argument and 15 minutes in rebuttal. The R. O. T. C. band furnished music before and after the debate.

Affirmative Arguments

Mr. Smith maintained that in order to justify military training in universities as a required course, it must be shown that there is a real need for it, that it serves some very useful purpose in the program of education.

Advocates of military training in the universities claim, said Mr. Smith, that it is important physical training, that it provides the discipline which is needed by college men, that it is an ideal training for citizenship.

Mr. Smith denied all of these claims. He said it has been shown conclusively that military drill is an inferior type of physical exercise. He quoted a physical director of West Point cadets as saying that military drill requires other physical exercise to supplement it, and even to offset some of the effects of it. Students of military training courses can secure better physical exercise in other ways Mr. Smith maintained.

As to providing skill or discipline, Mr. Smith maintained that, while military training undoubtedly does provide such for becoming a soldier, it is of little use for any other walk of life.

Answering the argument that military training is the sort of training which college men need for citizenship, Mr. Smith declared that it is a narrow sort of training which attempts to imbue the college man with a military spirit and not with the broad outlook on life which is the sort of citizenship training young Americans need today. There is nothing about military training which gives a man education for anything except the army, he maintained.

Mr. Smith argued that military training would be more successful if it were voluntary, for then only those interested in it would take it. But he argued against it as a general proposition because he said war is a social habit and there is more danger of bringing about war through the psychological effect of having men trained for war than there is by being unprepared for it. He discounted the

FRATERNITY COUNCIL DISCUSSES RUSHING

All Fraternities Requested to Adhere to Rushing Rules—F. Stanley Smith, '31, Named Secretary of Council

TUESDAY EVENING DATE OF NEXT COUNCIL MEET

A meeting of the Inter-Fraternity Council was called by the president, Warren H. Burr, '30, at the Sigma Phi Place Tuesday evening. As this was the first meeting of the year no special business was transacted. F. Stanley Smith, '31, was automatically made secretary of the Council by right of succession.

Another meeting is to be held at the Phi Mu Delta House next Tuesday evening at 7.00 p.m. The president of the Council requests that those fraternities that did not send representatives to the last meeting do so at the next one.

The Council decided that each fraternity should discuss the Rushing Rules in meeting Monday night and instruct its representatives as to how to act upon them. If there are any suggested changes, they will be welcomed.

Below is a copy of the Rushing Rules for this year. It is very important that all fraternity men and all freshmen clearly understand them.

Rushing Rules

The following are the rules adopted by the Conference for the season of 1928-29.

1. Beginning with the first day of football camp, no fraternity or fraternity man shall entertain, discuss fraternity matters with, or extend invitation to membership to any freshman or new student, until the end of the neutral period after regular bidding time, except at open house nights or rushing parties as explained below. (The word entertain is interpreted as meaning, accompanying at movies, dinner engagements, out-of-town athletic contests, etc.)

GIFFORD, DOUGLASS AND METCALF LECTURE ON DEWEY'S PHILOSOPHIES

John Dewey Club Celebrates Seventieth Birthday of Its Patron Saint — Robert Roberts Reminisces

Vermont's John Dewey Club of philosophy and psychology met last Tuesday night to commemorate the seventieth anniversary of its distinguished namesake, John Dewey, a name known throughout the width and breadth of the world—and an alumnus of the University of Vermont in the class of 1879.

Professors Gifford, Douglass and Metcalf addressed the members on various phases of John Dewey's work. Professor Gifford's topic was "John Dewey and Liberal Thought." Professor Douglass spoke on "John Dewey's Influence on Education in Foreign Lands," and Professor Metcalf talked on "John Dewey and Psychology."

John Dewey in Liberal Thought

"John Dewey is Vermont's most distinguished alumnus," declared Professor Gifford. "Born here in 1859, some twenty years laters later, he received his degree of A.B. from Vermont, and in 1910, was awarded the honorary degree of doctor of laws by President Buckham.

"He is truly called 'Citizen of the world.' Devoted to the welfare of humanity—regardless of creed or color in the interest of liberal thinking he has visited Japan, Turkey and Russia.

"Another instance of his versatile career in the interest of liberal thought was his appointment to the

PERENNIAL CANE RUSH, VERMONT TRADITION, IS SET FOR TOMORROW

Historic Scrap Between Lower Classes Takes Place Tomorrow Afternoon Under Boulder Auspices at Centennial Field

Freshmen and sophomores will uphold the honor of their respective classes in the perennial cane rush tomorrow afternoon at Centennial Field.

Freshmen will convene at the gymnasium at 1.30 to march in a body to Hayes and Carney's where canes will be distributed without charge.

The canes secured, the freshmen will return in a body to the gymnasium, thence to the field of battle. The class will sit in a body at the game, retaining possession of the canes.

Canes Midway Between Classes

All freshmen possessing canes will deposit them on the 50-yard lines which will be the point midway between the position assigned to the respective classes by Boulder. Both classes will immediately march to their positions, each line holding an equal number of men. At the signal from Boulder both classes will rush towards the center of the field to begin the traditional scrap for the canes. During the fighting, striking with the canes and similar tactics are forbidden and all men are warned to wear soft-soled shoes only. Only men not participating must remain in the bleachers. Ambling aimlessly about the field has in previous years caused considerable hindrance to the scrap and must be avoided. Boulder will award the decision immediately after the representatives of the two classes have collected the canes. One point will be given for the crook of a cane with a foot or more of the whole cane attached. A whole cane will count two points. Until this year six minutes has been the duration of the fight but this time an additional minute has been added.

The cane rush is custom nearly as old as the University. Just when the cane rush began no one is really certain. However, as early as 1897 a decree of the Faculty was passed to make the cane rush a thing of the past. Only the reading of the University Riot Act finally stopped the fight. The freshmen not being so easily thwarted, marched downtown, three days after the scheduled fight, secured canes and then began a free for all fight with the second year men which was finally brought to a close by police intervention.

Opposition to the cane rush steadily increased until the class of 1901, in its sophomore year finally refused to participate.

In 1903 twelve heavyweights from each class were chosen to fight over sticks. The freshmen won by 15 hands to 12. The next year lightweights were chosen for the contest but the lack of interest in these innovations brought about a restoration of the old cane rush.

SOCIAL HYGIENE TALKS OF SWAN COMPULSORY

Freshmen in R. O. T. C. will have no drill next week, October 21 to 24. Dr. Eugene L. Swan, who lectured to the R. O. T. C. last year will again be here this year and will lecture on social hygiene. Freshmen and sophomores are required to attend these lectures. Failure to attend will constitute a cut.

ROPE OFF ALL STUDENT SECTIONS DURING GAME

Another Boulder week now brings with it a round of activities which, beginning with the pep smoker tonight, reaches its climax tomorrow afternoon at the cane rush, coming to its close tomorrow evening when the Boulder dance concludes the series of perennial activities.

A Smoker of Smokers

Few smokers are as vivacious, and only the rallies before the Middlebury and Norwich games as well attended as the annual Boulder smoker. Cheers, songs, smokes, talks and refreshments alternate to vary the evening's activities. Rollin G. Hawley, Boulder man and master of ceremonies for the evening, has engaged the services of one "Micky" McMahon, one of the most popular cheer leaders ever turned out at Vermont. The former cheer leader will be on hand to lead the student body in one of the pep rallies which, in his time, figuratively raised the roof of the gymnasium, and will also have a part on the program of speakers. "Bump" Levine, popular captain and varsity football star, is expected to tell the smoker of the hopes and expectations of a team which, after its showing at B. U. Saturday, is ready to start a winning streak in the Union game tomorrow afternoon. Herrick Macomber, Boulder man and football manager, is on the program for another of the evening's orations. Captain Ruttan, varsity coach, is on the sick list, Acting Coach Tully taking his place on the program. The faculty and Boulder will furnish the rest of the speakers for the program at the smoker. To add more pep to the evening's events, Joe Lechnyr will have his R. O. T. C. band on hand, with every man present and every college song on tap. Cheer leaders, both the regulars and those especially drafted for the occasion, will be present to lead off the organized pep work. L. P. Wood, as he has been wont to do in the past, has provided smokes for general distribution, and the committee in charge promises cider and doughnuts to be served to the hungry in the cage after the hour allotted to the smoker has elapsed. Freshman attendance at the smoker is compulsory. Boulder will take attendance.

Men and Women Together

At the game tomorrow afternoon both men and women will lead the cheers. Since the old bleachers at either end of the field have been torn down because of their rotted condition, a new seating plan has been devised for the occasion. In order to

DEVILS, DEMONS INSPIRE WARS AMONG PEOPLES

So Says Tucker P. Smith Before College Audience, Discussing "Devils, Demons and Peace"

Tucker P. Smith, here for the Week-End Conference, spoke on "Devils, Demons, and Peace," before a group of 75 students and townspeople last Sunday evening.

Just as the early aborigines used the simple terms of "spirits," "demons" and "gods" to explain unusual occurrences in nature, so militarism, explained Mr. Smith, may be defined as a "liking and a desire for war." This demon war is the personification of various vices and virtues. We have been using the old technique in explaining the causes of war. It is the demon in man which is supposed to make war inevitable. In strained international relations the "other fellow"

The Major declared that he would to have military training in versities discontinued when as- ance could be given that there be no more war. But until was such assurance, he believed only thing to do was to give young military training for their own tection and for that of the country.

The best way to give such training in the colleges, Major Simmons said He believed that to make the training voluntary instead of com- pulsory would be to destroy its ef- fectiveness, because so few would take it

Beyond the military side of the training, which is good physical ex- ercise, teaches the boys proper pos- ture and the conduct of an officer and a gentleman, this military training is an excellent training for citizenship and tends to send forth all those who have it as better citizens of the State and the Nation.

In refutation of the claim of Mr. Smith, that men who take military training do not get anything which helps them in civil life, Major Sim- mons declared that West Point has furnished more leaders in civil life than any other college in the country

Following the debate a student dis- cussion took place. One student de- clared that when he took military he found that the R. O. T. C. train- ing was for success in battle. This statement was made in refutation of Major Simmons' statement by Major Sim- mons that the R. O. T. C. existed to foster citizenship to the men in our service. The student declared that he heard the statement relative to the purpose of the R. O. T. C. train- ing in the textbook which is used in the R. O. T. C. course. Major Sim- mons declared that the textbook was wrong.

After the debate a vote was taken in which seventy individuals in the audience expressed their mind either in favor of or opposed to compulsory military training. The result indi- cated that forty-two were opposed to compulsory military and twenty-eight were in favor of it. Sixteen, as a re- sult of the debate, changed their atti- tude from favorable to unfavorable to- wards the R. O. T. C. while five op- posed to military favored it after the debate.

is blamed by the uninformed and the patriotic societies Teaching children in schools that people are devils and demons is dangerous; the World War came because all nations followed this practice.

The men who led the nation into the war were, personally the best men of their day and land. But there was not one atrocity committed in the war that was not committed by these same men All of its evils are to be charged to good men and not to bad men. So the causes of war must be redefined in terms of realities and not of de mons and devils The real causes are non apparent and unconscious

Militarism is a force which makes good men do bad things and they don't know why. Military men are all good fellows but they are sadly mis taken.

The military system can be ex plained by the "Tripod" as he called it:

First: The belief in a sentiment for the use of violence (not force) in meeting international situations

Second: The tendency to overem phasize the importance of the military machine and throw an emotional halo of glorification around the military man, by placing him at the head of parades, and in the foreground in all ceremonies where he becomes a hero to the boys of the country

Third: Tendency toward uncritical obedience to officers of government who are bosses instead of servants There are not enough kickers among affirmed the speaker.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

HOW TO DIE BEFORE YOUR TIME

Simple Instructions, Easily Followed, for Those Who Really Don't Care

1. Do not worry. Live in a constant state of nervous irritation.

2. Eat your food as fast as possible. Stuff yourself, eating several pounds of meat and greasy foods. Take no exercise.

3. Avoid fresh air. Stay indoors and in rooms that have the windows closed and are overheated.

4. Burn your candle at both its ends, especially when tired. Never take a vacation. (Tuberculosis flourishes in fatigue.)

5. Become constipated. Defecate irregularly. Never at regular periods. Neglect your bowels. Never move them at least once a day. Never let your intestinal tract be clean both inwardly and outwardly be as filthy as possible.

6. Keep constipated. Defecate irregularly or not at all.

7. If you have intestinal trouble or pain, pass it off as nothing. Ignore symptoms of such diseases as rheumatism, heart trouble and Bright's disease. Do nothing about it.

8. After the age of 40 pay no attention to the sudden appearance of persistent lumps or other possible early signs of cancer (which, if taken in time, can generally be checked or cured).

9. If you get out of breath easily, sleep poorly, feel run down, or experience pain, just cling to these rules. Try earnestly to die from some disease that is preventable.

10. When people say that every one, whether ailing or well, should have a health examination by one's physician every year, and also visit one's dentist regularly tell them you don't believe in such stuff. Tell them you want to be uncomfortable, inefficient and short lived.

Dear Doctor Converse:

Recently I came home to my wife and happy fireside with the news that I had just insured my life for ten thousand dollars. Whereupon she exclaimed:

"Good. Now you won't have to see that doctor about your cough."

What would you advise?

Sincerely yours,

Tussi Quilosis.

Dear Mr. Quilosis:

Your case reminds me of a patient who was suffering about three thousand per year and was insured for only one thousand. He was once reported dead, but it was a false alarm. He decided to live instead.

I suggested Try And Breathe It gently to the wife.

But don't worry, my man, just follow the rules listed above and don't take them seriously. The only one person who takes love seriously nowadays is the tennis player.

Medically yours,

Ex-Converse M. D.

2. No freshman or new student shall be allowed in any fraternity house between aforesaid dates, excepting open house nights and rushing parties.

3. The Interfraternity Council will designate six evenings in October when fraternities may welcome freshmen at their houses or rooms from seven to ten in the evening. Entertainment shall be limited to "smokers" and to friendly matters shall be discussed at these meetings. Personal invitations to open house nights may supplement the general invitation to all students.

4. On the Friday following the last of the open house nights, Freshmen shall assemble at 4 p.m. in the chapel in the Old Mill to receive date cards from representatives of different fraternities filling out same as has been customary. A member of the faculty who is a disinterested party and yet competent shall be designated by the Conference to meet the freshmen as a body and to make such explanations to them as are necessary before they go through the line.

5. During the same week, rushing dates four in number, will be held on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings. Evening dates shall run from 6 to 12 p.m. No fraternity shall make more than one date with any one freshman.

6. From 12 p.m. Saturday, after the last rushing date until 6 p.m. Sunday shall be a strictly neutral period, during which time no active or associate member of an organization belonging to the Conference shall hold any communication whatsoever, with new students.

7. At 2 p.m. on Friday, November 22 following the last rushing date the members of the Conference shall meet and bring all their invitations in sealed and addressed envelopes, said meeting to be held in the room in the Old Mill designated by the President of the Conference. Within each envelope shall be only the printed form of the invitations properly filled out and an unsealed envelope with the address of the inviting fraternity upon it. The invitations shall then be delivered by the respective representatives of the different fraternities in conference assembled to the freshmen presenting themselves before said Conference. In a room, adjoining the Conference room each freshman shall fill out the blanks, "I accept," or "I do not accept your invitation to membership", and shall then put each invitation in the envelope addressed to the inviting fraternity and return same to the Conference room.

On the day of pledging, when the invitations are being given out, fraternity men will remain in their houses.

Every invitation shall be in writing, and upon printed forms furnished by the secretary of the Conference; invitations not accepted shall be returned. This does not apply after pledging day.

8. Every pledge shall be valid for a period of seven months unless rescinded by the pledging fraternity.

Any fraternity directly concerned with a person who is pledged at another college, but before being initiated transfers to Vermont, must waive or disclaim such pledge within 10 days after the arrival of said pledge. The fraternity may ratify or disaffirm such pledge by reporting same to the President of the Conference.

9. All pledges shall wear buttons unless pledging shall be declared irregular by the Faculty Council. It shall be strictly honored by all fraternities. It is herewith expressly ruled that the Faculty Council also shall have power to declare a pledging irregular or unlawful.

10. Penalties for the infraction of the Rushing Rules will be administered by a Faculty Council, composed of five members of the faculty who are not members of fraternities which do not have chapters here.

In dealing with a violation, the Faculty Council shall sit as a court with the offending fraternity as the defendant and the President of the Council (Faculty) as a judge. All the evidence shall be presented to the court by both defending and prosecuting fraternities, and then a decision will be made by the court alone in secret session. A majority vote of the court will convict. The names of persons bringing charges will be withheld.

11. The punishment for infraction of these Rushing Rules shall be a denial of the right to pledge men during the remainder of the scholastic year and prohibition from all interfraternity contests. These shall include interfraternity athletics and campus walks. In cases of minor infractions the length of the sentence will be determined by the Faculty Council. Subsequent infraction of these rules or evasion of the penalty during the period in which the fraternity is being penalized for infraction of the rules shall be subject to punishment by the University Council. If a fraternity is found guilty by the Faculty Council of infraction of these rules the college, he found unsuitable or distasteful to himself. This is just as unfair to the pre-medical student and the medical fraternity.

Realizing this, with the desires of the National Fraternity the same, and with the approval of the Medical Faculty who were directly concerned, Nu Sigma Nu attempted last year, with the other medical fraternities, to establish a system whereby no pre-medical student could be pledged until he had actually entered medicine. Failure to cooperate left the matter right where it has been for years—freshman pre-medics are to be pledged to a fraternity about which they know little or nothing, and with no knowledge as to who will be in that fraternity when they finally get into medicine. (?) The ridiculousness of the whole thing is apparent and would not be tolerated by any interfraternity council at any other University.

Nu Sigma Nu is determined that it will not pledge nor rush pre-medical students and it is up to these students to determine the outcome. If they refuse to continue the present inane practice of pledging themselves two or three years before they reach medical college, Nu Sigma Nu, for self-preservation will have to revert to the old plan, but a fair trial will be given the non-pledging of pre-medical students. The writer does not contend that this will entirely prevent the unfortunate pledging of men who do not fit, but it will help.

A further point concerning this matter is brought forth by the fact that at the last meeting of the National Council of Medical Fraternities it was voted that the Council go on record as disapproving the pledging of premedics and National officers of fraternities represented here at Vermont likewise voted to discourage the practice in their chapters. Any medical fraternity that does not at least make an attempt along this line is breaking faith with its National officers and that, as "Time" would say, is nothing at which to point with pride. All that is asked is that this attempt at progress be treated with fairness and with an open mind.

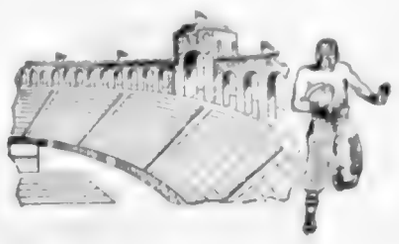
NINE TENNIS TOURNEY MATCHES PLAYED OFF

Entrants Urged to Hasten Completion of First Round—Two of Four Seeded Men Out of Competition

Fall Tennis Tournament progresses. The annual fall tennis tournament has been for the most part neglected by the entrants. Only a few of the first round matches have been played to date but those that were completed uncovered the best tennis seen this year. The chief surprise of the tournament has been the stellar, well-stroked game of Palmer, freshman ace. His defeat of Professor Carpenter, Vermont coach and seeded no. 1 player, was certainly unprecedented.

Another freshman, Woodward, also shows promise. In his first encounter he defeated Powell 6-0, 9-7.

Pouch and Borkland, both seeded players and varsity men, the latter captain for the coming year, had little opposition and breezed easily through their initial tests.



Sargent, varsity baseball and basketball product, has been devoting his energy to tennis this fall to keep in trim, and his game, noticeably marked by a beautiful forehand drive, has improved rapidly.

Phil Goddard, seeded three, was defeated in a fast three set match by Tupper, star member of last year's freshman quartet.

The results to date follow: Palmer defeated Carpenter 7-5, 7-5; Tupper defeated Goddard 6-3, 3-6, 6-1; Woodward defeated Powell 6-0, 9-7; Albert defeated Schwartz 6-2, 6-8, 6-4; Price defeated Hudintz 6-1, 6-2; Pouch defeated Puffer 6-1, 6-1; Borkland defeated Lawrence 6-4, 6-3; Jackson defeated Kilburn 6-3, 6-1; Sargent defeated Doten 7-5, 6-0.

The tournament players have the privilege of the courts every day after 4 o'clock. The competitors who have not yet played their first matches are urged to do so immediately. In case of difficulty Manager Reed or Asst. Manager McAllister, at the Phi Delta Theta House, or Asst. Mgr. Roller at the Phi Sigma Delta House can be reached by telephone.

...Halligan tosses away a lateral ... from Ed Winant and off he goes!

Watch that combination tomorrow!

Union here in the first home game of the varsity season on Centennial Field!

In the game with Boston University the Catamounts had a chance to show some of the offensive power it has been striving for in practice.

The first two games of the year kept the offense under cover entirely.

Now the varsity will be able to open up its beautiful aerial attack and should display scoring power with the aid of the passes.

Reserve backfield strength is excellent. Gardner and Carrigan both are fast and hard running. Only a shade of difference is keeping them from starting games. However, they'll see service tomorrow without doubt.

Heaton played a fine defensive game at B. U. for the short while he was in.

There was no fault to find with Winant's field generalship and only once out of the many times Vermont was forced to kick, did Ed fail to get off a pretty spiral.

One of the prettiest things to watch tomorrow will be Leo Segal's submarine play. It's a treat to watch the brilliant end sneak between the legs of two interfering backs and bring down the man with the ball. It's one of George Tully's All-American repertoire.

"I have never worn a pair of football stockings in a game since my high school days," says Al Marsters, Dartmouth's star halfback. "This atmosphere of superstition stayed with me through prep school and my freshman years at Dartmouth, and in my sophomore year I developed a new one. I was surprised when the coach read my name off in the starting lineup of the first game and having a slight feeling of inferiority as we went from the locker building, I was the last man of the first team to leave the building. From then on, throughout the rest of the season, I was the eleventh man to go upon the field. Naturally, when the 1928 season came around, I was still the last man to go upon the field. Everything went well for the first three games and I was leading the scorers of the country at that time, when I cracked one of my bones in my ankle and I believed that my luck had left me."

Coach Berry Leads Charges To Fort For Second Victory

Regular Starting Team Available for Annual Contest with Soldiers —First Game for Post Aggregation

LT. MERRILL APPOINTED COACH OF FENCING TEAM

Many Veterans and Two Lettermen Among Large Squad Reporting for Instruction

Prospects for a successful fencing team this year are very bright. A large squad has already reported and in view of the fact that Lieutenant Merrill of Fort Ethan Allen has been secured to coach, the outlook is extremely promising.

Lieutenant Merrill is a graduate of West Point, class of 1929, and in addition to coaching with the sword he will also teach sabre and epée methods.

Competition this year will be very keen, due to the fact that the team this year, in conforming to intercollegiate rules, will consist of but three men.

Although the schedule has not been completed, matches have been secured the Montreal A. A. A. at Montreal and with Norwich.

Following is list of men who have already reported: Basilicato, capt. and mgr., Perelman, Kaufman, Aiken, Buglino, Berger, Schuman, Stein, Riani and Bigwood.

TOMORROW'S FRAY MAY BE PLAYED IN MORNING

With the 6 to 6 tie against Clark's School last Saturday a thing of the past, Coach Berry is now whipping his undefeated Kittens into shape for the coming annual battle with East [illegible] scheduled for tomorrow afternoon at the Post. An attempt is being made to have this game played in the morning so as not to interfere with the varsity contest with Union in the afternoon.

Little information can be gathered concerning the strength of the soldiers as they have not yet played a game. They are coached this year by Lieutenant Svenson, and an interesting contest is assured due to the fact that the Post teams are always made up of big, scrappy men.

The Kittens emerged from last Saturday's fray unhurt, and, barring injuries during practice, all the regulars will be in their positions at the opening whistle. If the line functions as it did against Clark School, it should have little trouble with the military outfit. The chief fault with the backfield seems to be in the inability to form an effective interference for the carrier.

ROLLIN C. HAWLEY

Director of the 1930 Kake Walk activities

We must develop common economic interests. High tariffs, unfortunately, won't do for a creditor nation. That is why Great Britain has free trade, and why, though our protective tariffs have been satisfactory in the past, when we were a debtor nation, they are not suited to our present condition.

Seasonal interest does not pay. What seems individual wisdom, turns out to be group folly. And the United States needs this warning most.

Business Opposes War

Many trade wars have been recently averted. Business men realize that such things no longer pay. Sooner or later we must cross class and geographical barriers, and think of the world as man's common possession, and of real wealth, our capacity, as a common pool of resources to develop the life of man. Cooperation is what is needed, and we are gradually approaching to it in many lines.

The address was followed by a series of interesting questions and arguments from the audience, especially from Major Simmons, who was present through most of the afternoon session.

The following girls are at the Practice House this week: Alma Farr, '30, hostess; Dorothy Guerney, '30, assistant hostess; Harriet Johnstone, '31, house manager; Katherine Skinner, '32, waitress; and Hazel Daniels, '33, freshman member.

Joyce Richardson '30 has been elected delegate from the Women's Student Union Council to attend the convention of the Women's Intercollegiate Association for Student Government which is to be held at Bucknell University in Lewisburg, Pa., November 14, 15 and 16.

Miss Alice Blundell, of the Home Economics faculty, addressed the Teachers' Convention at the Memorial Auditorium Friday morning, October 11. Her topic was "The Recent Advances in Nutrition."

Through an error in a recent issue of the CYNIC, Irene Marcotte '31 was listed as chairman of the committee for the selection of class pins. Winona Spencer, '31, is the chairman.

WORK ON YEAR BOOK IS NOW WELL UNDER WAY

Ariel work is now in full swing, with almost every department well started on the 1931 year book. At a meeting recently George Brush, Ariel editor, outlined the year's work, assigning their tasks to several departments and announcing the preliminary plans for certain novel features.

As an indication of how rapidly the work is proceeding it is noticeable that the questionnaires are already about to be distributed to the junior class and that the first call for the individual honor lists will be issued immediately.

Most of the work now devolves on the grind editors and on those who are assisting them in the preparation of their material. The photographic editor has been working steadily on the special feature sections, and the scrubs on the usual routine. The work for the year is expected to reach its climax soon when a photographer arrives in Burlington to prepare for the Ariel pictures of the students in the junior class and of the various college organizations.

HIGHER PATRIOTISM IS OPPOSED TO SPIRIT OF NATIONALISM–DR. ADAMS

International Relations Club Hears Local Minister Appeal For Sentiment of Internationalism

"If we cannot learn cooperation, I see no end but war," declared Dr. C. C. Adams, pastor of the First Congregational Church, in an address before the International Relations Club last Wednesday afternoon.

"The Higher Patriotism" was the subject discussed, and Dr. Adams began his talk by stating that a higher patriotism intimated a lower one. It was with this lower one that he was first concerned. One can tell the characteristics of a civilization by the tone of its patriotic feeling. There are two main ideas back of our civilization. They are liberty and law, two conflicting ends which we have somehow attempted to weld together.

There are three eras of our western civilization, the speaker explained. First, the Mediterranean era flourished under the Greeks, where liberty went to an excess, and under the Romans, where law was carried too far. Then came the Holy Roman Empire, with the state in reality the church. Lastly, the era of nationalism, and, beginning with England, Spain, Portugal, Holland, Sweden, Russia, Germany, Italy and the United States all developed into distinct nationalities.

Nationalism the Lower Patriotism

Nationalism, stated Dr. Adams, is

SCIENTIST—ARTIST TO LECTURE HERE

Charles R. Knight of Chicago Field Museum to Speak as Second University Lecturer on "Life Through the Ages"

IS FAMOUS AS EXPERT IN FIELD OF EVOLUTION

Charles R. Knight, internationally famous artist, will be the speaker at the second University lecture, the evening of October 24 in the University gymnasium. Mr. Knight will show reproductions of some of his famous pictures in conjunction with an illustrated lecture "Life Through the Ages."

Charles R. Knight, because of his outstanding work in the field of prehistoric animal painting, has been commissioned by the Field Museum of Chicago to execute a number of murals. With the help of several assistants, this order will require at least seven years for its completion. The murals will show the origin of life to the advent of man. There will be twenty-eight in all, which will constitute the most ambitious attempt yet conceived to dramatize in portraiture the evolution of life on the earth. Each picture will represent the life and surroundings of a geological period. Starting with subjects depicting the earth before life of any kind was manifested, the sequence will follow through the earliest forms of flora and fauna, sea life, reptilian and mammalian forms down through the ages to man's beginnings on earth.

An Expert on Prehistoric Man

Mr. Knight is primarily an artist but his long study of prehistoric life

FRESHMEN TRIUMPH IN ANNUAL CANE RUSH BY TWENTY-POINT VICTORY

Boulder Awards Final Decision to Class of 1933 by 30 Canes to 10 in Saturday's Scrap

Revenge for the soaking in the fountain fight came to the freshman class last Saturday when, by a score of 30 to 10, they overwhelmed the class of 1932 in the annual cane rush. The rush for the canes as the pistol started disposed of all but a very few and interest immediately settled down on the numerous knots of from five to twenty fighters each who struggled all over the field for possession of the dozen canes that the initial onrush had failed to remove from the fifty-yard line.

Boulder distributed canes out at the Old Mill before game time and from there the freshmen marched to the field in mass, yelling and making noisy attempts at singing. On their arrival at the field they were assigned to a section in the center of the Vermont stands where they added a novel effect to the cheering by joining canes and swinging them in tune with the cheers and singing.

When It All Began

As soon as the final whistle of the game was blown, the frosh swarmed on to the field with their canes and when the field was partially cleared of rooters, small boys and marauding upperclassmen, the canes were dropped on the fifty-yard line. Immediately, there was a rush for the coveted trophies.

Everybody that wanted to, took part in the scrap but when the results were counted only canes in the possession of freshmen and sophomores were allowed. So the final result was 30 to 10 in favor of the freshmen.

The cane rush is the oldest traditional contest between the lower classes at Vermont. Two years ago the score was 100 to 50 for the sophomores and last year it was 41 to 37 for the sophomores.

GREY FRIARS TO HOLD SUPPER AND MEETING

Grey Friars, men's honorary literary organization, will hold a supper meeting at Sally's restaurant tonight at 7.00 o'clock.

Professor Frederick Tupper, who was in England during his sabbatical leave last year, will tell the members about his trip abroad. Mr. Leon Dean, the "little red caboose," will also say something to the group.

ENROLLMENT CURTAILED TO COMPLY WITH WILL OF LATE JAMES WILBUR

Students in College of Arts and Sciences Number Well Within 1,000 Mark—Total Attendance Slightly Under 1,200

Enrollment figures at the University of Vermont show a curtailment of attendance this year to about 1,176 in keeping with the terms of the trust established by the late Hon. James H. Wilbur. Last year there was a total of 1,310 students in the University. The curtailment keeps the enrollment well within the 1,000 limitation clause for the College of Arts and Sciences as stipulated in the trust.

The total enrollment of the four colleges of the University of Vermont and State Agricultural College is now 1,176. This figure includes not only the enrollment in the College of Arts and Sciences, but also the enrollment in the Colleges of Agriculture, Engineering and Medicine as well as the two year teacher training group. Of the total number, 873 are enrolled in the academic colleges, eight are special students, 140 teacher training students and 155 are medical students.

Fewer Freshmen This Year

The number of academic freshmen consists of 198 men and ninety-seven women and the number of freshman medical students is 54, making a total freshman enrollment of 349 to date as against 402 last year.

The total number of men in the freshman classes is 248 as compared with 247 last year and the number of women 111 as compared with 155 last year.

From the foregoing, it is apparent that a part of the reduction in the freshman group has fallen in the women's side of the institution. All of the women's dormitories are filled. During the year additional accommodations will have to be provided if the women's group is to be increased.

The figures covering the enrollment in each of the academic colleges have not been assembled separately, but on the basis of the foregoing, it is apparent that the limitation restriction has been complied with, President Bailey points out.

VICTORY REWARDS GRIDSTERS AT LAST

Catamounts Triumph Over Union Aggregation in First Home Game of Season, 13-7

GAME IS FIRST TRIUMPH IN ALMOST TWO YEARS

Showing the old spirit of which Vermont is so proud, the Catamounts won their first regularly scheduled intercollegiate football game since November 12, 1927, when they defeated Union on Centennial Field by the score of 13 to 7. This was the first home game of the season for the varsity and the fans certainly had a good treat. Vermont took the lead over Union by scoring a touchdown in the second quarter and the half ended with the count 6 to 0. The last quarter was the most thrilling part of the whole game. Early in this frame Vermont added seven more points and then Union did likewise. Thereafter for the remaining minutes there was a mighty struggle between the two teams.

The first quarter failed to show that either team had the advantage and left each side scoreless. Early in the second frame Union drove down to Vermont's 20-yard line but lost the ball on downs. Then the Catamounts showed their power by making three first downs in succession. Halligan did most of the carrying for Vermont but the ball was lost in trying a pass that failed. The Green and Gold made her first tally when Union fumbled on her own 15-yard line and Gardner wiggled off left tackle for six points. The kick fell short and thus failed to produce the extra point. As the half ended, Union had the ball on Vermont's 20 yard line due to two successful passes. The New Yorkers' aerial attack was much more effective than Vermont's and Lippitt to Captain Finegan was the combination that did the business.

The third quartor was relatively listless. Winant kicked the ball out of danger several times with his long punts which easily outdistanced anything that Union could show. In this frame the way was paved for Vermont's touchdown in the next quarter. The period ended after Halligan had made a twisting and turning run from the 45 yard line to the 1-yard marker after catching a low punt.

At the beginning of the fourth quarter Union held for three downs but on the next play Gardner again carried the ball over for the touchdown. The extra point was made on a pass to Allerton. On the kick-off Union then began a desperate rally and on a fourth down pushed across the line for a touchdown. The kick on the next play was good and made the score 13 to 7. The game then became very ex

The first full course of lectures was given in the autumn of 1822, and in 1829, a separate building was erected on the campus for the medical department. The enterprise was "thrown up" in 1836 owing to the deaths of "some of the leading spirits and a lack of students."

In 1840 the medical department was revived again, chiefly due to the efforts of Dr. S. H Thayer. This department had to contend with two other so-called medical colleges in the state, one at Woodstock and the other at Castleton. These colleges had a comparatively short existence, but while they were in session the medical college at the University of Vermont found it hard to keep going. The "Clinical School of Medicine" at Woodstock was discontinued about 1856 and the one at Castleton was abandoned soon after.

THE TEAM COMES THROUGH

[illegible] Saturday [illegible] Supplied by two of the best teams in the country, the Crimsonites went down to Boston and played some mighty good ball. But better ball than the score indicated. Last Saturday a big rooting [illegible] aggregation [illegible] up from Lions way Lions on the short end of a 13-7 game.

Upon [illegible] expected to win that game at least 20-0. They [illegible] to find a glowing array of workings, supplied in body, broken in spirit. Like [illegible] Lions was crowded cornet having odds by [illegible] first quarter.

[illegible] a hard-fought, keenly contested game the Green and Gold emerged victorious. There's a reason behind that victory, and it's a big reason. Ever since you came to college you've heard about "That Old Vermont Spirit." Perhaps you thought it was a myth, conceived in the brain of an enthusiast and dedicated to the proposition that the student body be chosen stuffed with some measure of school spirit. If such were your thoughts you probably changed them radically since last Saturday. We doubt very much if you could have sat up in Centennial Grands and watched a fighting Catamount eleven tear its way through to victory without having a warm glow of pride in the team. Doubtful talent at the beginning of the season, weakened both physically and mentally, the team came through.

There's a lot behind a comeback like that. There's invincible courage, [illegible] determination and the Old Vermont Spirit behind it all.

The following incident goes to show just how the team feels about [illegible]. It happened Captain Levine had to [illegible] all the other fellows sentiment. Levine "as you [illegible]" was carried from the field with a badly [illegible] ankle. We purposely said "carried from the field" because when "Dutch" is carried out it's not only an event but a [illegible] as well. That evening we saw him hobbling about with the aid of a [illegible] and a stout cane. His ankle looked swollen and hurt [illegible] in an unaccustomed position. We talked about the game for quite some time before asking him the big question.

"How long will it be before you'll be able to start in again?"

"Start in again! Why I'll be out there practicing on Monday."

And that goes for the whole team. They're all game fighters with the best part of the schedule facing them. Turn out and give them a big hand and let Norwich and Middlebury do the worrying.

PLENTY OF NOISE

[illegible] at Vermont football games was inducted in Saturday when two [illegible] cards lugged two capable ads wring a few [illegible] from the enthusiastic stands. Every set [illegible]. They [illegible] and [illegible] it and they do fight a lot harder when they know that a thousand fellow classmates are with [illegible] good will. Let's have plenty of noise at all the games.

MIDDLEBURY NETMEN IN 5-2 WIN OVER VERMONT

The varsity tennis team journeyed to Middlebury last Tuesday to play the Blue and White netmen and returned with a 5 to 2 defeat.

The Cats were hampered in a great measure because of bad courts and lack of practice and coordination in double matches.

Two of the double matches were called off because of darkness.

Captain Borkland was hardly a match for Woodbury, whose queer game of cleverly-placed chapstrokes and well-executed trapshots was rewarded in a 6-2, 6-2 win. Woodbury has long been the mainstay of Middlebury's club.

In the No. 2 match "Doc" Raaer and Tupper played perhaps the hardest-fought match of the day. Both used the net game to good advantage but Raaer's hard ground strokes were the deciding factor. He won 6-3, 2-6, 9-7.

Pouch was defeated by Loomis 6-2, 6-4 in the third match. The score does not indicate how evenly fought the match was; practically every game being deuced at least once.

Humeston, baseball and basketball star, beat Macomber 6-3, 6-3.

CAT'S MEOW

SPORTING EDITOR—

We believe that one of the big factors in this victory the first one of the year is the spirit which is now prevalent among the squad. Now that the boys know they are playing a team which they are able to give a good battle, and not one like N. Y. U., Yale, or B. U. they have that invaluable will to win which has been equalled in Vermont athletics recently only by the morale of Coach "Larry" Gardner's baseball team last spring.

As soon as Ed Winant found that Union had an effective defense for an aerial attack he used his toe as an offensive weapon until the Green and Gold was within striking distance. Then Halligan and Gardner came through with the punch.

Levine made as many tackles in the Union game as any other three men together.

It took an All-Medic combination to put the game on ice. Coach Tully sent Harry Schechtman in at left end and after two unsuccessful attempts to penetrate a Union wall Schechtman did a neat job in opening a large cavity for "Tony" Gardner to wiggle through for fifteen yards and Vermont's first score of the game. It was perfect team work.

Collins, a sophomore, should be a star in the future. He showed some good stuff. He and Huey were the only line men to play the full game. Winant stayed through in the backfield.

Win Is First Since November 12, 1927 With Exception of Medic Game Last Year—Levine, Gardner, Halligan, Winant, Collins Star

FRESHMAN TENNIS TEAM GOOD IN FIRST VICTORY

In its opening game of the fall schedule the frosh tennis team decisively trimmed Burlington High School 4-1 on the University courts Monday afternoon. The match was featured by the play of the frosh No. 1 man Palmer. Cronin and Woodward also won their singles matches handily but encountered stiff opposition in the doubles. The teamwork of the Burlington High doubles team proved superior to the individual brilliancy of Palmer and Woodward and thus averted a shutout. "Jerry" Price, who would have played No. 2 man, was unable to participate in this match and his services, especially in this doubles match, were missed. He will be ready to show some of his clever shots in the next frosh match which will be very soon, probably against the varsity.

Singles: Palmer (V) defeated Perry (B) 6-2, 6-1; Woodward (V) defeated Handbridge (B) 6-2, 6-2; Cronin (V) defeated Carlson (B) 6-0, 6-2.

Doubles: Handbridge and Perry (B) beat Palmer and Woodward (V) 2-6, 6-2, 7-5; Carson and Cronin (V) defeated Carlson and Myers (B) 2-6, 7-5, 6-4.

Finegan, in the first and last quarters, looked like the best line plunger on the field. He was captain of the Union aggregation and scored a touchdown by coming down almost the whole length of the field practically single-handed. He's a big fellow for a quarterback

Just Naturally Good

Good tobaccos . . . made good by Nature, not by "artificial treatment." That's the secret of OLD GOLD'S goodness

A chef may be able to make a doubtful steak taste good by artificial flavoring and sauces . . . But it's still dangerous to your stomach.

So it is with cigarette tobaccos. "Heat-treating" is useful to "set" and "sterilize" the tobaccos . . . and all cigarette makers have used it for years. But "heat-treating" cannot take the place of good tobacco in making a honey-smooth cigarette.

OLD GOLD tobaccos are naturally good. Carefully selected from Nature's best for smoothness, flavor and freedom from throat-scratch.

You have only to try a package to get the thrill of this smoother and better cigarette. That will tell you why OLD GOLD'S sales are ALREADY THREE TIMES GREATER than the combined sales of three leading brands during a like period of their existence.

Tobacco's at its best . . . in a pipe

MEN'S preference for a man's smoke—the pipe—is plenty positive. But do you know why? We'll tell you.

First, pipe tobacco's different—for instance, Edgeworth. Second, tobacco smolders as it should in a pipe. And third, these mean you get more satisfaction—greater relish of the good old savory burley, soothing fullness of rich smoke.

There's even a fourth reason: you like good company. The pipe-smoking brotherhood is that.

Tobacco's at its best in a pipe. It gets a chance to be itself there—to loosen up as it comes to life, to expand and take in air and glow. Only the choicest leaves get that chance, moreover, for pipes tell the truth about tobacco. Choice leaves, choice blends, and mighty careful handling. Edgeworth comes up through eleven distinct processes before we're willing to pass it on to you.

If you keep on missing all this, that's your fault—for we're waiting to send you your first pipefuls of Edgeworth. See the coupon? Fill it out, get a good pipe and the postman will bring you a neat little glad-to-meet-you packet of good old Edgeworth.

Edgeworth is a careful blend of good tobaccos—selected especially for pipe-smoking. Its quality and flavor never change. Buy it anywhere—"Ready Rubbed" and "Plug Slice"—15¢ pocket package to pound humidor tin.

Middlebury Netmen in 5-2 Win Over Vermont

In the last singles match of the day, Walter Sargent, baseball twirler and hoop setter, vanquished E. Doland 11-9, 3-7, 6-3. Sargent's fast forehand was the offensive weapon which turned the tide.

In the doubles Borkland and Tupper paired together for the first time, lost the first set to Woodbury and Sloper but fighting an uphill battle came back to win the second 10-8. Darkness called a halt on the finishing set.

Loomis and Raaer raced through to a 6-2, 6-3 victory over Macomber and Pouch.

The two Doland brothers, experienced partners started fast by taking the first set from Sargent and Holbrook. They took the next 6-4 and had a huge lead of 4-0 in the last only to be thwarted by growing darkness which made a finish impossible.

Manager Reed is trying to arrange a return match to be played here next week.

NOTICES

On account of conflict with Dr Swan's address Wednesday, October 23, the Prize Entrance Examination in mathematics will be postponed to Wednesday, October 30, at 4 p.m. The examination will be held in Room 3, South College.

Bluestockings will meet Tuesday evening, October 22, at eight o'clock. This will be a social meeting and will be held at Slade Hall. All members must be present for the new cut system goes into effect with this meeting. Each member is allowed two unexcused cuts only a semester, on penalty of enforced resignation from the club.

The first rehearsal of the University Orchestra will be held in the Music Building Wednesday, October 23, at eight o'clock p.m. The usual time for rehearsals will probably be Thursdays at four o'clock p.m. Please bring stands to rehearsal. Members of last year's opera orchestra are invited to join.

Except for Friday morning the regularly scheduled classes of the freshmen in Military Training are not being held. Dr. Swan will deliver a hygiene lecture tomorrow.

The telephone grows air-minded

THE BELL SYSTEM has made many successful experiments in two-way plane to ground telephone communication. This new development illustrates how it marches a pace ahead of the new civilization. It is now growing faster than ever before.

New telephone buildings are going up this year in 200 cities. Many central offices are changing from manual to dial telephones. A vast program of cable construction is going on.

This is the period of growth, improvement and adventure in the telephone industry. Expenditures this year for new plant and service improvements will total more than five hundred and fifty million dollars—one and one half times the entire cost of the Panama Canal.

REY FRIARS HEAR TUPPER AND DEAN

norary Members Speak at First Social Meeting of Season—Tupper Relates Experiences of Sabbatical Year

GEL AND LACROSSE FORMALLY ADMITTED

Frederick Tupper and honorary associates of the society, addressed the organization last Tues at a social meeting held with the initiation of and Paul LaCrosse. The ceremonies were held in the Room of Billings Library. A lowing the initiations, was at Sally's Restaurant.

upper Tells of European Experience

Professor Tupper spoke of his travels Europe during the sabbatical year completed. He told how brought his car across the sea with to England, and how it took him an hour and a half by car to the entire route that had formerly taken by the Canterbury Pilgrims. On one of his previous trips Professor Tupper explained, it him a whole day to cover this route by bicycle.

While one finds much of the ancient England, he also finds very much the modern. London, said Professor Tupper, is fast losing its old landmarks and is quickly becoming transformed into a thoroughly modern city. He did not find northern France as interesting as England but he was very much delighted with the county of the Loire region. From France, Professor Tupper went to Italy. En route he met considerable snow in the mountain passes and so engaged a special train to conduct his car through the more difficult parts. He sent the rest of his party ahead by rail, but he himself accompanied the driver on a ride of exciting experiences. At times through the pass, precipices of several hundred feet fell sharply away to one side of the road. The road itself was narrow and went downhill, and there were many sharp and frequent curves. In Italy Professor Tupper stopped in Florence and afterwards he visited the Benedictine Monastery near Naples to explore and in the wonderful library there which contains a large number of incunabula.

Professor Tupper also went to Sicily and to Greece. Returning to England, he visited Scotland and then returned to the United States.

"The Little Red Caboose"

Professor Dean, the "Little Red Caboose" then delivered another of his delightful talks. He suggested that the members of the society attempt to narrate some of their stories or articles this year and recommended a volume of particular value in this connection.

It was voted at Professor Dean's suggestion that all the Grey Friars subscribe to the "Winnowings of the Past," the former Vermont Literature. The society had previ-

OPPOSES MATERIALISTIC VIEWPOINT OF CREATION

"It is said that religion is betting your life that there is a God," was the opening remark of the Rev. J. Crayton Brown of St. Albans, who spoke at chapel Wednesday morning. Dr. Brown appealed to the students to consider the wonder and miracle of life, to follow with him the evolution of the world. First there was chaos, then the beginnings of animal life and finally the first demonstration of intelligence until man finally enters the scene. Man has that indefinable something which can only be accounted for by some spiritual factor. The Rev. Brown asked his listeners if it did not seem difficult to believe that this wonder, which we call the world, came about accidentally, to believe that something came out of nothing. If life came out of it, life must have been in it. If intelligence came out of it, then intelligence and personality must have been there originally. The likeliest explanation, asserted Dr. Brown, was that a living, intelligent God, a creative artist, is responsible and that that same God is still working in and through the universe.

HONOR DRAMATIC CLUBS AGAIN TO COLLABORATE IN SELECTION OF PLAY

Wig and Buskin to Meet With Masque and Sandal This Afternoon to Decide on Fall Production

Wig and Buskin, men's honorary dramatic society, and Masque and Sandal, the corresponding organization among the coeds, are again collaborating on the selection of a play to be given in the late fall. Copies of plays under discussion are in the hands of the members of the two societies to be read and brought up for further discussion at the meeting to be held in the Old Mill Chapel at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

"Summertime" was the title of the play that was presented so successfully at the Strong Theatre last spring as one of the numerous events of the annual Junior Week. Thor Krogh, who was graduated last June, took the leading rôle for the men and Beverley Householder, '30, that of the women. Krogh, who had been prominent in the dramatic productions on the hill, will be sadly missed. However, such veterans as Fred Householder, '32, Robert Aiken, '31, Harvey Butterfield, '31, and Phil Perry, '30, are again available for the men's rôles. For the women there is Beverley Householder, '30, Annette Rosenberg, '30, Mable Freeman, '30, Katherine Raugh, '32, Hope Ranslow, '32, Phoebe Flint, '30, and Elizabeth Cory, '32.

Expect to Pick Play Today

It is expected that the fall play will be chosen at this afternoon's meeting of the two societies. Then it will be only a matter of a few days before the try-outs for the new play will be held. Notices will be posted on the bulletin boards for the benefit of all including freshmen who wish to try out for rôles in the play.

CLASS DEBATE SET FOR COMING WEEK

Freshmen and Sophomores to Argue Rights and Obligations of College Men and Women In Annual Tilt

TO AWARD BAILEY CUP TO SUCCESSFUL TEAM

The annual freshman-sophomore debate will be held next week in the Old Mill Chapel, according to announcement by Coach Powers. The topic of the debate is: Resolved, that the men and women of the University of Vermont should have equal rights and obligations. Members of the faculty and prominent townspeople will judge the speakers and award the Bailey Cup to the winning team.

On the sophomore team this year there are three experienced debaters, Peary Berger, Donald Frazier and Paul LaCrosse. Berger and LaCrosse were on the freshman team last year which lost out to the sophomores in a similar debate for the Bailey Cup. The present holders of the Bailey Cup, who were sophomores last year, are Louis Lisman, Hugh Mattison and George Nelson.

The freshmen this year give promise of making a serious attempt to wrest the cup from the confident sophomores. The following freshmen were chosen in the try-outs lately held, to represent their class: Jane E. Bigelow, R. Reardon Donaghy and Russell Colburn.

This year the American plan of debate will be in force for the freshman sophomore tilt. As it is a very popular plan, it is felt that the students will attend in as large numbers as the Old Mill Chapel will hold.

BLUESTOCKINGS DEBATE MEMBERSHIP SITUATION FOR THE COMING YEAR

Cynic Editors No Longer to Gain Automatic Membership in Honor Literary Society

At the first social meeting of Bluestockings, women's honorary literary society, last Tuesday evening, the question of limited memberships, always a much-debated issue, was again brought up and was again laid on the table after an animated discussion. The membership of Bluestockings is now twenty-two, and although the club took no definite steps, it is considered unlikely that more than six or eight of the contributions submitted in the contest, which closes at Thanksgiving will be accepted by the society. It was also voted to annul that section of the constitution which states that women on the Cynic board may automatically become members of the society.

Discuss Marketing of Manuscripts

A round table discussion followed, in regard to the type of literary study which the club should pursue in order to be of most help to its members. As it is one of the purposes of the organization to aid its members in marketing their literary work, it was decided to devote the next social meeting to the discussion of material written with this purpose in mind, by the sophomore members. At this time everyone will be expected to report on the market in those magazines which accept the work of college students.

The business meeting was followed by impromptu creative work with a set time limit. These papers were read aloud and proved both amusing and instructive.

The next meeting will be held in approximately two weeks, the time and place to be announced later. Members are requested to bear in mind the regulations of the new cut system which went into effect at this time.

CLASSES ADVANCED HALF HOUR SATURDAY MORNING

The University Council has decreed that all classes will be advanced a full half hour Saturday morning, October 26, to allow the students sufficient time to reach Northfield for the Norwich-Vermont football game. The fourth period will be omitted entirely. The class recitation hour will be of the usual 50 minute length.

The schedule as of Saturday, October 26, is as follows: The first period will extend from 8 to 8.50, the second, from 9 to 9.50; the third, from 10 to 10.50. The usual Saturday morning fourth period classes will not be held.

LIBERAL RELIGION TOPIC OF DR. ADAMS' ADDRESS AT WEEKLY DISCUSSION

Pastor Tells Liberal Club That "Religion Is A Life, Not A Creed," at Meeting Last Sunday

"Religion is a life, not a creed," declared Dr. C. C. Adams at the Liberal Club meeting at the First Congregational Church last Sunday.

The topic of the meeting was "What is Liberal Religion?" Religion, it was decided, came about as the result of an attempt of the individual to adjust himself to natural forces. Comparative religionists believe it came out of fear since Nature was against primitive man. But it was a life first and last of all. We do not live in a static, but in a changing universe. If so, religion must also be changing, else it becomes conservative and loses its full significance and vitality.

The changing of theology with the advance of knowledge about the universe is liberal religion and a progressive revelation of God. The Bible, Dr. Adams explained, is a history of a progressive religious change, that is, a change of life. There is, he declared, truth in all religions and man is ever seeking God.

The question arose: "What is the life which religion is?" It is "faith in a fatherly God and love for man," because a religion of love, which is the greatest thing in the world, binds together man and God. A pantheistic God (a God who is revealed in everything), can fill the need if we consider the various components of nature as the body of God.

Religion Must Be Liberal

Religion must be liberal, but, warned the speaker, "its real danger is that it lacks a great deal of conviction today." However, convictions must change as religion and time change and the change must be of sufficient force to change convictions.

As a final word Dr. Adams said: "When truth by common consent, points the way—then turn towards the way of truth and be consistent with changing convictions. Have strong convictions and keep them in harmony with the age in which you live."

Next Sunday the Club to which all students are invited, will meet at the regular time, 11:45 a.m., and the subject for discussion will be "Some Miscarriages of Justice."

FRATERNITY COUNCIL INTERPRETS RULE 1

Notifies Fraternities That No Freshman May Ride in a Car With an Upperclassman Until Close of Neutral Period

ALL HOUSES AGREE TO OBSERVE RUSHING RULES

Henceforth, no freshman may, until the end of the neutral period after regular bidding time, ride in a car with an upperclass member of a fraternity enrolled in the Interfraternity Council, according to an interpretation of troublesome rule number one of the rushing rules at a Council meeting last Tuesday. The action was taken after suggestion for changes in the rules had been made at a previous meeting of the Council last week and was in line with instructions issued by the various fraternities to their representatives at the meetings. Every fraternity present at Tuesday's meeting formally agreed to abide by all of the rushing rules.

Fraternities May Not Entertain Frosh

Rule 1 reads: "Beginning with the first day of football camp, no fraternity or fraternity man shall entertain, discuss fraternity matters with, or extend invitations to membership to any freshman or new student until the end of the neutral period after regular bidding time except at open house nights or rushing parties as are explained in later rules." The Council defined entertainment as "accompanying freshmen at movies, dinner engagements, out-of-town athletic contests etc." No agreement, however, was ever reached as to the interpretation of the "etc." The Council now defines it as including accompanying a freshman in a car, regardless of whether it be the freshman or the upperclassman that invites the other to ride with him.

Only one other rule governs the conduct of fraternities before rushing time. Rule 2 declares that "No freshman or new student shall be allowed in any fraternity house (until the end of the neutral period) excepting on open house night and at rushing time." Punishment for the violation of these rules is prescribed by Rule 11. The punishment for infraction of these Rushing Rules shall be the denial of the right to pledge men during the remainder of the school year and prohibition from all interfraternity contests. These shall include all interfraternity athletics and kake walks. In cases of minor infractions the length of the sentence will be determined by the Faculty Council. Subsequent infraction of these rules are evasion of the penalty during the period in which the fraternity is being penalized for infraction of the rules shall be subject to punishment by the University Council. If a fraternity is found guilty by the Faculty Council of infraction of these rules the knowledge of such and the reasons shall be distributed to the freshmen of the next year through the Freshman Handbook and it shall be published in the

Bailey, Perkins, Bradlee On Executive Committee of Vermont Rural Survey

The researches of the Vermont Commission on Country Life has assumed a great interest for many professors at Vermont. The connection of the University with this unique experiment is further enhanced by the appointment of Pres. Guy W. Bailey as treasurer, of Professor Perkins as secretary, and of Thomas Bradlee of the Extension Service, as executive member of the commission.

The Vermont Commission on Country Life is an unofficial body interested in the rural affairs of the state. It is essentially a rural planning commission with the survey as a technical aid to scientific planning. The purpose of the Vermont Commission on Country Life is to study the various problems of rural life whether they relate to farm incomes, home and community life, health, education, religion or citizenship. The objective in studying these problems is to formulate plans for the future looking toward maintaining or improving the life in rural Vermont. The following are the members of the Executive Committee of the Commission: John E. Weeks, governor of Vermont, chairman; William H. Dyer, commissioner of public welfare, vice-chairman; Guy W. Bailey, president, University of Vermont, treasurer; J. L. Perkins, professor, University of Vermont, secretary; Clarence H. Keyser, commissioner of education; F. Plan of Survey

We next consider in detail the plan of this survey as originally drawn up in July, 1928, and substantially followed since

Vermonters have been for some time concerned over the declining population of the rural areas of the state. This seems to be a problem of widespread significance throughout the country. It is reported that over 100 counties in the various states fell off in population during the last ten-year census period. It may not be impossible to discover just what are the causes of this decline but a joint investigation by groups of experts ought to narrow down the number of reasons

There is probably enough similarity between the rural sections of different parts of the country to make the findings in one part applicable to others Then why choose Vermont Vermont is a highly rural There are no cities of more 25,000 population Three-quarters of the inhabitants of Vermont dwell in the villages and open country Rural problems are the state problems to a greater degree than elsewhere Vermont is small enough to make it possible to study the state as a whole by choosing sample areas within the influence of every square mile of Vermont One nationally known authority in rural economics says "Vermont is just the state for such a study because it is compassable"

Vermont is in a critical period in its history Modern improvements are

DRAMATIC CLUB NAMES ONE-ACT PLAYS TO BE PRESENTED BY CLASSES

At a business meeting of the Dramatic Club last Tuesday, announcement was made of the plays to be presented by the sophomore and junior classes.

LILIAN COHEN

Who is president of Dramatic Club

"Overtones" is the play which will be presented by the junior class and "America Passes By" is to be the sophomore play. The freshman play has not been definitely decided upon but will be announced later.

The following coaches were chosen: For the junior play, Lilian Cohen, '30, and Irene Marcotte, '30; sophomore play, Janice Davis, '31, Winona Spencer, '31, and Jean Wappler, '31; freshman play, Clarissa Peters, '30, and Pauline Willis, '31.

Frances McKean, '31, was placed in charge of the try-outs for costume, make-up, and property managers. Try-outs for the casts of the class plays will be held this afternoon from 3.00 p.m. to 5.00 p.m. in 3 North College.

Two burly campus cops had to be called to eject a sleeping Yale senior from an English class when his snoring drowned out the lecture.

V. C. A. OFFICERS PREACH IN VERMONT CHURCHES

Harmon Butterfield and Robert Lee Stewart preached in Vermont churches last Sunday morning, Butterfield at Moretown and Stewart at South Duxbury. Both men are very active on the campus and are members of the "Y" cabinet. Butterfield is president of the Vermont Christian Association and Stewart is vice-president. The Christian Association plans to send more students out to preach on different Sundays.

BAILEY GIVES BANQUET TO BOULDER MEMBERS

President Guy W. Bailey tendered a banquet to the members of Boulder Society at the Hotel Vermont last Tuesday evening. Besides the six members of the society, there were also present Dean J. Lawrence Hills of the Agricultural College and Dean Elijah Swift of the Arts and Sciences College. Problems of general student interest were taken up and freely discussed.

President Bailey suggested that the Founder's Day speakers of the junior and the senior class be elected at an earlier date than has been customary in the past. [illegible] to prepare an address, he said. The [illegible] Norwich and Vermont football fans which so nearly reached serious proportions at Centennial Field last year was taken up and discussed. The president hoped that the student body of Vermont would conduct itself properly at the game at Northfield Saturday. Several other problems of a minor nature were also brought up.

It is a customary procedure for President Bailey to meet with the members of Boulder Society at regular intervals throughout the year in order to keep in touch with student problems and interests and also to discuss University matters.

Ten Enthusiastic Co-eds

The hike to Rock Point Sunday, October 20, was enjoyed by ten enthusiastic co-eds. Bertha Safford, '31, led the hike.

Sunday, October 27, there will be a trip to Mt. Philo. Anyone willing to bring her car please notify Miss Cummings or Estabel Perelman, '30.

COLLEGE NIGHTS MAKE GREAT HIT AT MAJESTIC

Jammed to the S. R. O. limit and crammed from stage to rear was the Majestic Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday nights as enthusiastic crowds enjoyed College Nights. A fifteen piece Medicine Men band opened the main bill and was followed by two snappy songs, the words for which were written by Ex-Converse, proprietor of the Cynic Boarding House Reach. An excellent comedy next appeared and then "Art" Brown scored heavily with selections on the organ. An excellent college picture closed the show.

So great was the success of the event—the second of its type since last year—that the Majestic management plans to hold several such shows during the college year. The next one on the program is to be a Fraternity Night with fraternity songs, acts and the unbeatable "Art" Brown outdoing himself. The date of this will be announced later.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB HEARS OF NATIONAL MEET

A meeting of the Home Economics Club was called by the president, Alma [illegible] last Friday evening, at the Practice House. Helen R. Wilson, [illegible] was elected chairman of a rummage sale committee. An outside speaker was decided on for the next meeting.

Narcissa E. Goodsell, '30, delegate to the American Home Economics Convention, spoke of the meetings held by the National Club in Boston at the Hotel Statler from July 1 to July 5. Plans were suggested to raise money by the delegates who reported on the activities of their local clubs. Miss Justin, president of the National Club, opened the meetings. The dean of education at New York University spoke the following night on "Education," and Faith Williams of Wellesley gave a talk on "Problems of the Homemaker Buyers."

At the banquet held the final night of the convention at the Statler Hotel, Miss May Barrows showed some slides of Home Economic leaders in connection with her speech on "Pioneers in Home Economics."

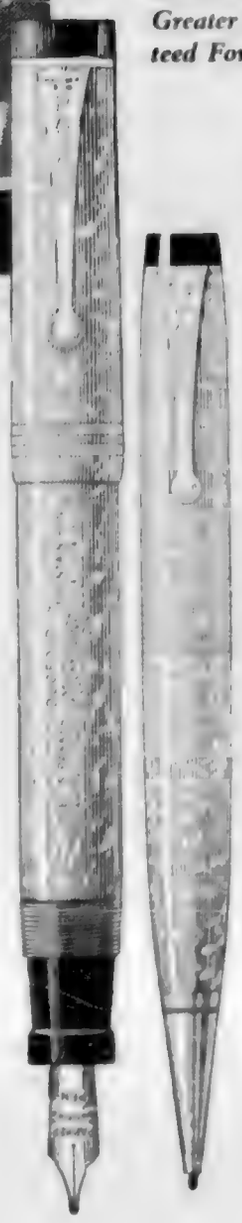
Hitch your writing to the star of all pens if you want to be in the same class with the Big Fellows who star in every line of endeavor.

There's never been another so handsome to carry as black-tipped Parker Duofold—never another so shapely to hold—and none with our 47th Improvement—Pressureless Touch.

It adjusts its flow to the speed of your hand by easing your stroke. It sweeps pen worries out of your mind, so your brain has a clear track for thinking.

Do you know that by actual count Parker's Pressureless Writing now rules throughout America?



A census of pens in 13 technical schools disclosed that Parker leads in popularity 2 to 1. It was voted the favorite by students in 55 colleges. And a nation-wide poll conducted by the Library Bureau proved Parker the preference by 25% above the second pen, and 48% above the third.

Step to any good pen counter and select your point. Imitations can't deceive you if you look for the imprint, "Geo. S. Parker—DUOFOLD."

A large number of college people danced to the music of Freddie Lynch's orchestra at the Young People's Fellowship reception of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, last Friday evening. Many freshmen and new students as well as the older members of the organization took advantage of this occasion to become better acquainted with each other. Initiate Segel and Lacrosse

Of the initiates, Solam Segel had been accepted at a previous meeting on the merits of two manuscripts submitted to the society.

At the Grey Friars' meeting Sunday evening, two manuscripts by Paul LaCrosse were read by Louis Lisman. The first was a philosophical expository narrative of quite a deep nature but very well done in Socratic dialogue form, two men discussing the motives and reasons for a suicide. The other manuscript was a little poem entitled "Nocturne," which also won high approval. It was through the merits of these two manuscripts that LaCrosse was admitted into the society for initiation at the exercises Tuesday evening.

LaCrosse is a graduate of Cathedral High School where he distinguished himself by winning several prizes in essay contests. He is a member of the sophomore debating team and is an assistant editor of the Cynic.

The plan for a Comprehensive Survey of rural areas in Vermont emanates from the Eugenics Survey of Vermont. The object and motive of the Comprehensive Survey is both scientific and social. First, to acquire scientific information concerning the conditions that prevail in deteriorating rural communities, these conditions pertaining to every variety of environmental factor. Second, to discover and apply appropriate remedies for unfavorable conditions.

Closely Connected with University

This plans does not necessitate the formation of an entirely new organization. There are already well-established agencies which will serve as a solid foundation for the new structure. The Eugenics Survey of Vermont which has been going on for two and a half years is under the auspices of the University of Vermont although privately financed. A report upon this survey has been made to the Social Science Research Council by Prof. Dwight Sanderson of Cornell University. In addition to its close relationship with an established institution like the University of Vermont, attention is called to the personnel of the Advisory Committee. It will be seen that the state administration is well represented in its membership.

This study will be primarily for purposes of gathering information as to the needs of Vermont communities. Programs that are now in use and all social agencies now operating will be given as full consideration as the absence of such in other communities. It will be the function of this study amongst others to determine what agencies now operating in Vermont rural districts have demonstrated their usefulness and should be increased and extended.

During the conduct of the survey it is likely that investigators will see numerous opportunities for putting into immediate action the certain improvement programs. It will not be wise to divert the energies or divide the interest of the field investigators in order to set in action such remedial measures. They will be expected, however, to report immediately to the general director and it will be his duty to get into communication with suitable organizations looking toward a constructive program. Numerous groups are now operating on a program of demonstrations or in other ways encouraging the setting-up of local improvement programs. The director will discover such groups and enlist their assistance.

The study will be made with regard to the following phases: (1) Geographical, (2) Ethnic or Racial, (3) Political, (4) Educational, (5) Religious, (6) Recreational, (7) Medical and Hygienic, (8) Mental—Psychological and Psychiatric, (9) Eugenic. Report of Committee Meeting

To give an idea of the work the commission is doing, here is a report of their meeting on Oct. 1929.

That church attendance is on the decline in rural Vermont; that the abandoning of hillside farms is being counteracted to a large extent by the buying up of such land for summer homes; that about 6,200 tourists can be accommodated at one time in the 500 tourist homes of the state; that an extensive study of land utilization is now being made to determine what land should be more intensively tilled and what should be reforested; that the conservation of Vermont forests and the preservation of Vermont characteristics are important above all else—such were some of the high points brought out at the conference of the Vermont Commission on Country Life and members of the committees working on the Vermont Rural Survey.

The object of this survey is to devise ways and means to making living in Vermont more worth while for all the people of Vermont through improvement of the living conditions in rural Vermont.

The meeting was called by Dr. H. C. Taylor, director of the rural survey, which has been in progress in Vermont since July 1, 1928, and which is to be completed in May, 1931.

Dr. H. C. Taylor, who came to Vermont from Northwestern University to direct the rural survey under the control of the Vermont Commission on Country Life, stated at the close of the conference that he felt it had served its purpose well. He pointed out that the survey being conducted in Vermont is unique. The Vermont Commission is stressing people first of all and considers land problems only in relation to improvement in the lives of the people.

Basic Geographical Features

Professor Jacobs gave information regarding the preparation of a relief map of Vermont showing all the topographic features such as mountains, rivers, uplands and lowlands. He said it was hoped, when this map is completed, the colleges of Vermont will each want one, and several will be desired in Montpelier for various phases of the state's activities. He said it should prove of great value to the highway, school and publicity departments.

Prof. H. F. Perkins of the University of Vermont reported on the eugenics survey, population studies and care of the handicapped, which are the chief work of the committee on the human factor. Certain key families have been studied in a number of towns in Vermont to see what influence they have exerted on the community.

Congressman Elbert H. Brigham of St. Albans, chairman of the committee on farm production and marketing, called on Thomas Bradlee, director of the Extension Service at the University of Vermont, to report for that committee.

Mortimer Proctor of Proctor reported for the committee on forestry and woodworking. He said this committee is studying the problem as presented in Vermont, with the hope of recommending at the end of the survey a comprehensive and progressive forestry policy for the state. He said there are 3,000,000 acres of productive timberland in Vermont, comprising about three-fifths of the area of the state.

Frank E. Langley of Barre, chairman of the committee on summer residence and tourists, read extracts from the report of Mrs. Pearl M. Brown of Newport, who spent July and August visiting tourist homes in Vermont and gathering information about them. She visited over [illegible] such homes and found that approximately 6,200 tourists can be accommodated in these homes at one time.

Horton D. Walker of Brattleboro, chairman of the committee on fish, game and preservation of wild life, reported that there are now about 34,000 acres of state forests in Vermont available for protection of fish and game.

Land Utilization

H. P. Young, agricultural economist for the Vermont Experiment Station, reported for the land utilization committee, the purpose of which is to find the use of land which will in turn the largest yield and best economic results. He said there are [illegible] classes of land, the hillsides and [illegible]

Who was hurt in the Union game but who has reported for tomorrow's fray

However, the Cats cannot plan on an easy time in the fray. While they themselves have strengthened, the Cadets are no weaklings, they have lost Gray Coane from the line-up due to a broken leg, they still have some good men to fall back on. Waining has always been a threat and will continue to be in the coming contest. He is probably the best ground gainer on the Cadet team and the Green and Gold men will have to pay a good deal of attention to him.

Capt. "Bump" Levine and "Tim" Halligan will both be able to start the game, contrary to current reports stating otherwise.

"Bump" still has a weak ankle but with a little favoring it will be in shape tomorrow. Both of these men would seriously weaken the Cats if forced to watch the game from the sidelines.

Eddie Winant has turned out to be a beautiful punter, and he is almost as good at carrying the ball. He has a good head on him, and runs the team in a manner that would do credit to a veteran. "Tony" Gardner is never stopped until he is on the ground with half a team on top of him. He managed to garner both of the Green and Gold touchdowns last week, and the fans are looking to him to repeat.

All in all the Cadets will have a tough row to hoe in order to defeat this year's eleven. Following is an all time record of Norwich-Vermont games. The records show that Vermont has won sixteen of the twenty-four games played. Norwich won seven and last year's contest was a scoreless tie

FRESHMEN AND VARSITY PREPARING FOR MEETS

Cross-Country Practice Now Well Under Way—Frosh to Meet Saranac Soon

Under the tutorship of Coach Archie Post, both varsity and freshman cross-country teams have been training for several weeks. There are twelve men on the varsity squad working out daily in preparation for the first meet on November 9. The varsity has been strengthened somewhat by the addition of Bloomenthal who will be a help after more training to get in shape.

Interest, at present, is centered more on the frosh team which will meet Saranac Lake High School here on Saturday, November 2. This race is scheduled to begin at 11.00 a.m. There are now eight men out for the team. These eight freshmen are Cota, Hadley, Sanborn, Dunham, Colburn, Brooks, Young and White. Prospects for a good team are fairly bright with Hadley and Brooks making the others step. It is hoped that with training all will be in condition next week.

The races in the meet will be run over what is known as the short course. This starts in front of the gym and proceeds out South Prospect Street, and across the old golf course to Spear Street. From Spear Street the course runs to Williston road and finishes in front of the gym again by coming in back of Morrill Hall.

CAT'S MEOW

— SPORTING EDITOR —

This is the first game for the State Championship and should bring out a large crowd of Vermont rooters. There'll be plenty of transportation. Let's go!

With Gray Coane out of the line-up Waining will have no sure-fire receiver to receive his well known passes to. We won't be surprised to see the Cats use that notorious Norwich aerial attack as a means to their own successful end.

Matches in the tennis tourney are being run off very slowly. Weather has been rather unfavorable recently but all advantage should be taken of the few fair days remaining in the fall. Mgr. Reed states that all first round matches must be played off in two or three days so that the tourney can be brought to an end. The most recent matches resulted as follows: Wilson beat Sugden Minot beat Macomber Proudy beat Torrey Leach beat Puffer and Borkland beat Lawrence

Praise on all sides for the way our Catamounts handled themselves in the Union game was heard over the week-end. And that praise is well deserved. From Capt. "Bump" Levine to the last substitute every man gave his last ounce of Vermont fight.

In the absence of Captain Rattan, who has not been at practice for two weeks on account of illness, George Tully brought his charges only in fine fashion. Captain Rattan has returned this week and his able direction should make a victory over Norwich certain. Captain Rattan was at the B. U. and Union games but in the latter contest Tully had full charge of the team.

On the whole the squad is in fairly good physical condition although all of the men lack the resistance to injury which they should have and probably would have built up if they had kept away from under the early season "steamrollers."

Beryl Follett, New York University star halfback has been demoted to team B of the Violet squad and his place has been taken by Ed Bella, star sophomore back who has been shining in the scrimmages of late.

A good conscience is eight parts of courage.

St. Lawrence Frosh as Opponents Will Try to Avenge Defeat of Last Year—Kittens Have Won, Tied, and Lost a Game

FENCING PRELIMINARY TRYOUTS HELD TUESDAY

Preliminary tryouts for varsity and frosh fencing teams were held Tuesday evening in the gymnasium. Outlook for the best season ever is entertained by members of the fencing team. Two veterans have graduated—Chamberlain and Musgrove, but the gap left by them will be capably filled by Captain Basilicato and Perelman lettermen of last year's team. Chet Kaufman and Bob Aiken who received considerable experience as members of the varsity squad will also be available and should round out a well balanced club. Jack Stein and Hy Shuman prominent members of the frosh team ill be eligible for the squad and before the season is over should provide the regulars with some tough opposition. Meets have been scheduled with Montreal and Norwich. These matches should bring about added incentive to the foilsmen. B. U. may again be on the schedule but this may be regarded as entirely tentative. Freshmen are urged to come out and if enough material can be obtained a frosh team will be formed.

Tomorrow afternoon the Vermont yearlings will take on as their fourth opponents the St. Lawrence freshman football team at Canton, N. Y.

Thus, tomorrow will be a dull day for home football fans with both the Vermont varsity and the Frosh team fighting on foreign soil.

The record of Coach Berry's charges for the three games played does not show anything decidedly in favor of Vermont. The freshmen have made 18 points and the opponents 19, which came from a victory, a tie and a defeat for the Green and Gold standard bearers. Tomorrow the St. Lawrence freshmen will give them another tough battle. Last year the yearlings defeated the New Yorkers 6 to 0.

The freshman team this season is, as a whole, lighter than usual and for that reason may be slightly under the par of previous frosh teams. However what the Kittens lack in weight is made up in speed. In the backfield

OANE, CADET STAR END OUT FOR REST OF YEAR

Field, at Norwich, will be the ground Saturday afternoon Green and Gold eleven will Cadets in their annual clash. shows signs of being one of the fought battles of the Green Conference this year, and student body of both colleges are pepped up for the struggle. In of their efforts in the Union Saturday afternoon, the Cata- have more than an even break crush through for their second vic- of this season, and if they play same fighting game that they showed the invaders in the last con- they should rip the Horsemen to

"TIM" HALLIGAN

Who was hurt in the Union game but who has reported for tomorrow's fray.

However, the Cats cannot plan on an easy time in the fray. While they themselves have strengthened, the Cadets are no weaklings, they have lost Gray Coane from the line-up due to a broken leg, they still have some good men to fall back on. Waining has always been a threat and will continue to be in the coming contest. He is probably the best ground gainer on the Cadet team and the Green and Gold men will have to pay a good deal of attention to him.

Capt. "Bump" Levine and "Tim" Halligan will both be able to start the game, contrary to current reports stating otherwise.

"Bump" still has a weak ankle but with a little favoring it will be in shape tomorrow. Both of these men would seriously weaken the Cats if forced to watch the game from the sidelines.

Eddie Winant has turned out to be a beautiful punter, and he is almost as good at carrying the ball. He has a good head on him, and runs the team in a manner that would do credit to a veteran. "Tony" Gardner is never stopped until he is on the ground with half a team on top of him. He managed to garner both of the Green and Gold touchdowns last week, and the boys are looking to him to repeat.

All in all the Cadets will have a tough row to hoe in order to defeat this year's eleven. Following is an all time record of Norwich-Vermont games. The records show that Vermont has won sixteen of the twenty-seven games played. Norwich won seven and last year's contest was a scoreless tie.

FRESHMEN AND VARSITY PREPARING FOR MEETS

Cross-Country Practice Now Well Under Way—Frosh to Meet Saranac Soon

Under the tutorship of Coach Archie Post, both varsity and freshman cross-country teams have been training for several weeks. There are twelve men on the varsity squad working out daily in preparation for the first meet on November 9. The varsity has been strengthened somewhat by the addition of Bloomenthal who will be a help after more training to get in shape.

Interest, at present, is centered more on the frosh team which will meet Saranac Lake High School here on Saturday, November 2. This race is scheduled to begin at 11.00 a.m. There are now eight men out for the team. These eight freshmen are Cota, Hadley, Sanborn, Dunham, Colburn, Brooks, Young and White. Prospects for a good team are fairly bright with Hadley and Brooks making the others step. It is hoped that with training all will be in condition next week.

The races in the meet will be run over what is known as the short course. This starts in front of the gym and proceeds out South Prospect Street, and across the old golf course to Spear Street. From Spear Street the course runs to Williston road and finishes in front of the gym again by coming in back of Morrill Hall.

For as the saying is, the lame man who keeps the right road outstrips the runner who takes a wrong one—FRANCIS BACON.

CAT'S MEOW

SPORTING EDITOR

This is the first game for the State Championship and should bring out a large crowd of Vermont rooters. There'll be plenty of transportation. Let's go!

With Gray Coane out of the line-up Waining will have no substitute received to leave his well known passes to We won't be surprised to see the Cats use that notorious Norwich aerial attack as a means to their own successful end.

Matches in the tennis tourney are being run off very slowly. Weather has been rather unfavorable recently but all advantage should be taken of the few fair days remaining in the fall. Mgr. Reed states that all first round matches must be played off in two or three days so that the tourney can be brought to an end. The most recent matches resulted as follows: Wilson beat Sugden Minott beat Macomber Broudy beat Torrey, Pouch beat Puffer, and Berkland beat Lawrence.

Praise on all sides for the way our Catamounts handled themselves in the Union game was heard over the week-end. And that praise is well deserved. From Capt. "Bump" Levine to the last substitute every man gave his last ounce of Vermont fight.

In the absence of Captain Rattan, who has not been at practice for two weeks on account of illness, George Tully brought his charges only in fine fashion. Captain Rattan has returned this week and his able direction should make a victory over Norwich certain. Captain Rattan was at the B. U. and Union games but in the latter contest Tully had full charge of the team.

On the whole the squad is in fairly good physical condition although all of the men lack the resistance to injury which they should have and probably would have built up if they had kept away from under the early season "steamrollers."

Beryl Follett, New York University star halfback has been demoted to team B of the Violet squad and his place has been taken by Ed Bella, star sophomore back who has been shining in the scrimmages of late.

A good conscience is eight parts of courage.

Yearlings Attempt To Break Into Win Column Again

St. Lawrence Frosh as Opponents Will Try to Avenge Defeat of Last Year—Kittens Have Won, Tied, and Lost a Game

FENCING PRELIMINARY TRYOUTS HELD TUESDAY

Preliminary tryouts for varsity and frosh fencing teams were held Tuesday evening in the gymnasium. Outlook for the best season ever is entertained by members of the fencing team. Two veterans have graduated—Chamberlain and Musgrove, but the gap left by them will be capably filled by Captain Basilicato and Perelman, lettermen of last year's team. Chet Kaufman and Bob Aiken who received considerable experience as members of the varsity squad will also be available and should round out a well balanced club. Jack Stein and Hy Sherman prominent members of the frosh team will be eligible for the squad and before the season is over should provide the regulars with some tough opposition. Meets have been scheduled with Montreal and Norwich. These matches should bring about added incentive to the foilsmen. B. U. may again be on the schedule but this may be regarded as entirely tentative. Freshmen are urged to come out and if enough material can be obtained a frosh team will be formed.

SAME LINE-UP AS USED FORMERLY WILL START

Tomorrow afternoon the Vermont yearlings will take on as their fourth opponents the St. Lawrence freshman football team at Canton, N. Y.

Thus, tomorrow will be a dull day for home football fans with both the Vermont varsity and the Frosh team fighting on foreign soil.

The record of Coach Berry's charges for the three games played does not show anything decidedly in favor of Vermont. The freshmen have made 18 points and the opponents 19, which came from a victory, a tie and a defeat for the Green and Gold standard bearers. Tomorrow the St. Lawrence freshmen will give them another tough battle. Last year the yearlings defeated the New Yorkers 6 to 0.

The freshman team this season is, as a whole, lighter than usual and for that reason may be slightly under the par of previous frosh teams. However what the Kittens lack in weight is made up in speed. In the backfield

PLANS UNDER WAY FOR RIFLE, BERRY TO COACH

Coach Captain Berry assisted by Sergeant Lindsay look forward to a good season on the range this year. The team captained by Wardwell will begin shooting matches after mid years. Many veterans will return, supplemented by a few frosh marksmen. These men ought to place Vermont among the leaders in the sport.

The team lacks a manager this year. As soon as one is chosen the schedule will be completed. Teams from all sections of the country will compete against Vermont, according to the tentative schedule. Vermont was among the leaders in the First Corps Area rating last year.

When the frosh men start on the indoor range, a selected list will be drawn up and these men will be allowed to compete for places on the team. This will give some lucky yearlings a chance to make their letters.

TWO CHAIRMEN CHOSEN AT PRESS CLUB MEET

Six committee appointments were made at a business meeting of Press Club last Friday afternoon. Frances French, '31, was elected chairman of try-outs and Helen LeBarron, '32, chairman of the photography committee, while four more members were elected to the feature articles committee. They are Cora Humphreys, '32, Beatrice Parkhill, '32, Olive Fields, '32, and Caroline Beggs, '32. Members were reminded that all who fail to pay their dues before November 1 will be dropped from the organization.

The next social meeting will be held on November 8, with Cora Humphreys, '32, and Agnes Shaw, '31, as hostesses. The place of meeting will be announced later.

POSPONE MEETING OF RESEARCH CLUB

Illness of Professor Lindsay, President of Faculty Organization, Forces Postponement of First Scheduled Meeting

MEMBERSHIP OF CLUB INCLUDES 80 SCHOLARS

Due to the illness of its president, Professor J. I. Lindsay, the Research Club was forced to postpone the opening meeting of the year which was to have been held last Tuesday evening. The Club, which is made up principally of faculty members of the University engaged in original research, ordinarily meets once a month. The officers of the Club are: President, J. I. Lindsay, associate professor of English; vice-president, F. K. Jackson, professor of physiology; secretary, E W. Jenkins, assistant horticulturist in the College of Agriculture; and assistant secretary, W. R. Adams, instructor in surgery in the College of Medicine.

Formed Twenty Years Ago

The Research Club was formed at the University of Vermont about 20 years ago to furnish its members a forum to present to their colleagues the results of their own original research and also of the work being done elsewhere in their field. At each meeting, the feature is a paper by some member of the Club telling of his own work. Only members of the Research Club speak at the meetings. Last year among the papers presented were:

Natural Reproduction in Vermont Forests," Prof. Burns; "Developments in Organic Chemistry," Prof. Braun, "New Developments Concerning Atoms and Electrons," Prof. Dickinson; "Developments in Physics," Prof. Slocum; "Economics Enters Politics," Prof. Groat.

Although the Research Club is primarily a college organization, there are a few members not on the faculty of the University. The club has grown very rapidly in size and extent until today among its 80 members are some of the most famous scholars in New England.

Suggested Research Fellowships

In 1920 the Research Club was enabled, through the courtesy of President Bailey, to suggest what was a decided advance in the educational policy of the University. This was the creation by the president and Board of Trustees of six University Fellowships, two to be awarded annually to each of the Colleges of Arts and Sciences, Engineering, and Agriculture, similar in purpose and in scope to the fellowships that had already been established in the College of Medicine. Since then, the number of fellowships has been raised to nine. The holders of these fellowships, which are of the value of $700 and $800, are expected to devote their time to the study of some special problem requiring research, and may be called upon to assist in the work of the department to which they are assigned. They must study for an advanced degree, either that of Master of Arts or Master of Science.

SWAN SPEAKS ON SEX PROBLEMS IN LECTURES

Dr. Eugene L. Swan, representative of the American Social Hygiene Association, was at the University of Vermont for four days last week, delivering a series of lectures before the freshman and sophomore classes. On Monday and Wednesday he spoke to the men and on Tuesday and Thursday to the women, discussing sex and its relations to the problems of life. The doctor offered personal advise to any students so desiring, and many took advantage of the opportunity.

Dr. Swan stated that in the four years that he has given lectures at the University of Vermont, the class of 1932 was the most attentive and pleasing audience. He has traveled extensively throughout the country, lecturing in various colleges and universities to over 150,000 students.

U. V. M. STUDENTS SPEAK AT CONVENTION BANQUET

Three Vermont students spoke at the Young People's Banquet held in connection with the convention of the Vermont Council of Religious Education at the First Congregational Church here last Wednesday evening.

The theme of the banquet was "Jesus' Way of Living." Alice Wallace, of Waterbury High School, spoke on "Jesus' Way of Living Through Play"; Christie McLeod, '31, took as her topic, "Jesus' Way of Living Through the Word"; Sam Barker '32 spoke on "Jesus' Way of Living in the Church"; and Donald Frazier '32 on "Jesus' Way of Living in the World."

FIELD MUSEUM ARTIST SHOWS LARGE AUDIENCE PREHISTORIC MONSTERS

Traces Prehistoric Life and Evolution of Man Through the Ages With Interesting Talk and Slides

An amazing and interesting lecture was presented last Thursday night in the University gymnasium. Mr. Charles R. Knight, of the Chicago Field Museum, spoke on "Life Through the Ages" and illustrated his lecture with slides. This was the second in a series of University lectures that is being presented under the direction of Professor Gifford during the college year.

Feature Prehistoric Life

As the succession of pictures of strange lizards, mammals, sea monsters, bat like creatures and ferocious beasts, painted and prepared for the screen by Mr. Knight, who is an artist of some note, passed upon the screen, they were explained and correlated by the voice of the speaker, traveling through the darkness. Starting with the earliest periods that can be reconstructed with any pretense of accuracy, Mr Knight presented to the eye and ear pictures of life on earth as it existed and developed through the ages. He indicated how he believed reptiles developed into mammals and birds, how the dinosaur grew from a tiny animal in its early stages to a great giant of an animal which finally found life too complicated for it on earth and passed out of the picture.

Upon the screen were thrown pictures of the mammoth, the woolly rhinoceros, the saber-toothed tiger, the ancestors of the modern elephant, the early forbears of the horse, whose development he traced, and many earlier creatures, interesting and awe inspiring, with astounding Greek-derived names. Keeping the order of his pictures as nearly chronological as possible, Mr. Knight brought his audience through the ages with the evolution of animal life including man and his relatives up to and through the period of the Neanderthal man, whose pictures he showed.

Explains Animal Development

His talk, very interesting and carefully worded, about prehistoric times made these ages seem real, and gave the audience a clearer comprehension of how these forms of life developed, and why they became extinct.

Mr Knight so obtained his data for drawing from existent skeletons of ancient birds and beasts, and from scientific observation, he has been able to prepare pictures which scientists declare are as nearly correct as is possible in view of what is yet known of them. Many of these pictures are in natural colors, truly life-like reproductions, and memorable.

Mr Knight was capably prepared for such a lecture by his work with the American Museum of Natural History in New York and the Field Museum of Chicago, so that he is indeed an authority on these subjects. By the latter institution he has been commissioned to execute twenty-eight murals depicting the origin and evolution of life up to the advent of man.

This lecture will be followed on November 24 by the third of the series, that of John Dewey, philosopher and educator.

TO DEBATE STATUS OF CO-ED TONIGHT

Freshmen and Sophomores Meet in Old Mill Chapel at Eight O'Clock in Annual Interclass Affair

BATTLE OF BRAINS IS LAST INTERCLASS TILT

Last of the interclass tilts is the Freshman-Sophomore debate tonight at 8 o'clock in the Old Mill Chapel. Succeeding the battles of brawn, comes this battle of brains, the reward of which is victory for the best debaters and possession of the coveted Bailey Cup. "The status of the co-ed" will be the subject of discussion or, as the question has been worded, "Shall men and women at the University of Vermont have equal rights and obligations?" "Yes!" say the sophomores. "No!" say the freshmen.

To Use American Style

The sophomores will use three experienced debaters, Berger, Frazier and La Crosse, two of them veterans of last year's class debate. The freshmen, with no college debating experience as yet, will use three former scholastic stars, Bigelow, Colburn and Donaghy, the pick of a field of nine candidates. Superseding the traditional Oregon style, the American style will furnish the debaters the medium for discussion, each man being strictly limited in time, both in presentation and rebuttal. At the close of the debate, a committee of three judges will award the H. A. Bailey Cup to the winning team.

STUDENTS TO GET FREE TICKETS TO CONCERTS

The University, in association with Arthur Dow, is presenting a series of three concerts by world famous artists at the Gymnasium this season, the first concert to be given by Harold Bauer, celebrated pianist, next Monday evening.

Five hundred seats for the students free of charge are offered by the University, and the tickets for the first concert are now available at the University store in the old mill. The 500 tickets are given to the student body in the order the individuals apply for them and all any student has to do is to go to the University store and ask for a ticket.

This practice of presenting tickets to students was inaugurated last January by President Bailey when seats for the English Singers concert were used by several hundred students.

Bauer, who is to give the first concert, is one of the world's great pianists. Born in England of a family of which every member was musical, his gifts as a youth attracted wide attention, particularly his violin playing. A violinist's career was uppermost in his mind until Paderewski persuaded him that his greater talent was for the piano. After a period of study in Paris, for many years his home, Mr. Bauer's début was made under most propitious circumstances. Tours of every section of Europe were made and the pianist's fame soon was firmly established. So much so that returning to Europe last summer after an absence of nine years, he was greeted with acclaim in England, France, Germany, Holland, Belgium, Spain, Switzerland, Norway, Sweden and Denmark.

The late critic of the New York Evening Post, Mr Henry T. Finck, summed up Mr Bauer's attributes in this striking way: "One does not need to be a musician to listen to him. He makes the meaning of the composer so clear that a person without the least conception of harmony could hear and enjoy. Bauer is heart and soul in the piece he is rendering, and his masterly intellect recognizes every value of tone, phrase or climax, to the exclusion of all mannerism. His playing is the absolute perfection of interpretation."

During the first half of the game the Catamounts played a fairly decent brand of ball, and the single touchdown that Norwich made was on an extraordinarily long pass of forty yards or more. Evidently that was enough to shatter the morale of the Vermonters, and after they came out for the second half they were all shot. The condition was furthered by the loss of Captain Levine. Bump was unable to carry on because of the injury received in the Union game, and his loss was more than felt by the line. In the backfield the Catamounts were a lot better off. Winant did a beautiful job of running the team. He was on his toes every minute and he gave a beautiful exhibition of headwork. Halligan did as well as he could without any interference. Without interference a runner can't do a thing. On a line plunge "Timmy" would get off to a perfect start and by the time he reached the line the Cadets would have his teammates piled up so that he met an impregnable wall. Gardner was by far the shining light for the Catamounts. He was fighting every minute on the defensive and offensive. When he hit a man, the fellow stayed hit. He showed pep all of the game and that's more than the majority of the team did.

Waining was the big noise for Norwich. He was great. He was like a streak when he got going with the ball and his passes were long and accurate. The line was Norwich's bright spot, though, and Waining took advantage of it. With a little opposition there might have been a different tale.

All we can do is sit and pray the Catamounts will get sore in the next few games. If they only get mad enough they can win games, and if anyone can dig up a way of getting them sore enough we may have a football team that would make us open our eyes.

KITTENS TASTE SECOND SUCCESSIVE DEFEAT OF SEASON BY 6-0 SCORE

Heavy St. Lawrence Team Fails to Make Single Touchdown After First Quarter—Capt. Coburn Stars for Vermont

Again the Vermont Freshman gridsters fasted defeat when the heavy St Lawrence yearling eleven downed them last Saturday afternoon at Canton, N. Y., by the score of 6 to 0. The game was more one-sided than the score would indicate, but the Vermonters put up such a fight that the New Yorkers could not add to their single touchdown that was made in the first quarter. In this frame De Girinimo, St. Lawrence half-back, carried the ball across Vermont's goal line, but the pass for the extra point was incomplete.

In the second quarter it appeared that St. Lawrence had the ball most of the time, but no advantage was gained.

The first quarter of the second half was the best from a Vermont point of view. The Green and Gold team made some very nice gains with Captain Coburn doing most of the carrying, but there was not enough force to push the ball through for a touchdown. In the last quarter the play was in Vermont's territory most of the time, but the line held well and no counters were made.

Each team had to kick frequently and there were some nice punts with much depending on the wind.

The line-up:

CAT'S MEOW

Sporting Editor—

Norwich 20 Vermont 0'

Most disappointing result of the season.

Vermont was favorite -over-confident. Captain Levine was on the bench while the scoring was done But those are only alibis. Norwich has the better team and anyone who saw the game should say so. It's the truth'

Winant outpunted Waining and forced Norwich back to wall. Vermont blocked a punt and should have had the game sewed up then and there. Lack of scoring power was never more obvious

Norwich had a good defense. The line was tight and the secondary covered pass receivers in great shape

Now let's forget that and go after the rest. Conn. Aggies and Springfield are tough, but Rensselaer and Middlebury ought to surrender. It'll take hard work.

One victory for the Vermont Frosh so far isn't very promising. Next Saturday brings Norwich here and they're good—believe us.

Holmes, Norwich frosh back, starred in the scrimmage between the plebes and the varsity held on Sabine Field The cadets found him hard to stop and after the workout, Coach Graham declared Holmes to be the best back at Norwich in a decade.

Coaches Rattan and Tully would appreciate it if all those attending football practice sessions will kindly remain in the stands. Grouping around the men on the gridiron hampers progress considerably.

Interfraternity football will surely be popular. A large crowd is expected on the back campus tomorrow at 4.15 p.m. to watch the first game of the tournament. The novelty will command considerable comment and interest.

The winning touch football team must play four games unless it is a frat which drew a bye, in which case three is the limit.

Williams beat Middlebury in cross-country on Saturday 30 to 35. Dalton took second for Middlebury. The blue appears here November 16 both frosh and varsity.

For years and years the two sexes have raced for supremacy, but at last they seem to have settled down to neck and neck!—Kay Features.

Schedule, Eligibility Rules, and Rules of Game by Physical Education Department Which Is to Take Charge of All Intraumural Athletics

KAPPA SIGMA-SIGMA NU TO INAUGURATE GAME

With the stage set for the beginning of touchball as an interfraternity sport on the hill, fraternities are now practicing that game and learning some of the rules which differ from those of he-man football

At a meeting of the representatives of all of the fraternities and honor societies, held two weeks ago, a plan was presented and discussed by the Department of Physical Education and the representatives whereby this Department will handle all intramural sports. The consensus of opinion of those present was that these sports could well be handled by this department, because of the fact that the instructors in the department could give more time to the organization and running off of these intramural sports It was also the opinion of those present that both interfraternity and interclass schedules should be run off in most of the sports which will be carried through in the department this year

Officials, and playing supplies such as balls, bats, etc., would be furnished by the department. The intention of the department is to help bring out better class and college spirit

QUADRANGULAR SPORT MEET HERE SATURDAY

W. A. A. Schedules St. Lawrence, McGill, Middlebury and Vermont for Non-Competitive Contests November 2

On Saturday, November 2, the University of Vermont will be the scene of a quadrangular meet in which co-eds from St. Lawrence University, McGill University, Middlebury and Vermont will participate. The meet is sponsored by W A A, with Isabelle Warhurst, '31, in charge. Following the plan used at St. Lawrence last May, the meet will be non-competitive, the women being divided into four groups of twelve each, regardless of which college they represent. Competition among these groups will take place in such sports as field-hockey, tennis, basketball and volleyball; in case of rain, indoor baseball will be played instead of hockey. The sports program will last most of the afternoon ending with a rally in the gym, where the favorite college songs and cheers will be given.

AGAIN WARN FRESHMEN AGAINST BREAKING RULES

Gold Key has once more issued a warning to the freshman class to live up to the Frosh Rules. Violations of the rules have been frequent since the last paddling party and the sophomore society fully expects to hold another session of recalcitrant freshmen soon unless such common infractions of the rules as failure to wear the traditional cap cease immediately.

Both are lines of national defense

THE Mississippi was a menacing flood. The telephone was the first line of defense, for over its wires the work against the flood was directed. Maintenance crews performed the same service as did telephone men in the signal corps in the war.

In the daily life of the nation, just as surely as in emergency, the telephone meets an ever-growing stream of demands.

To do this successfully the Bell System's expansion program embraces trans-oceanic telephony through the ether and under the sea, to ships at sea and planes in the air—and above all, wire facilities that will carry the voice, the typewritten word, the picture to every corner of the land.

MORTAR BOARD GIVES PRIZE TO BEST DORM

Mortar Board is offering a prize of $20 to the women's dormitory having the best living conditions throughout the year. Beginning this year, the prize will be awarded to the qualifying dormitory each spring. Judgment will be based on the general appearance of the various rooms, on the observation of study hours, quietness, efficiency of house committee, and obedience to rules. A general inspection will be made by representatives from Mortar Board each week and definite credits assigned to each dormitory. The dormitories included in this contest are as follows: Allen House, Rand House, Campus House, Kappa Alpha Theta House, Robinson Hall, Redstone, Slade Hall and Grassmount.

MIDDLEBURY COLLEGE AND ST. LAWRENCE TO PARTICIPATE IN MEET

Accept Invitation of W. A. A. to Sport Meet "Play Day" Tomorrow Afternoon and Evening

St. Lawrence and Middlebury have already accepted the invitation of the Women's Athletic Association, extended by Estabel Perelman, president of the organization, to participate at Vermont tomorrow. Such a play day is being introduced at all colleges to foster friendly competition and to play with rather than against each other. The activity is sponsored by the Athletic Conference of American College Women of which Middlebury and Vermont are members. The most important characteristic is that play day affords play for the whole group instead of for a few selected representatives, more skilled than the others.

St. Lawrence Sends Twelve

St. Lawrence University is sending twelve girls and their physical directors, who will arrive tonight. During their stay they will be housed at the Kappa Alpha Theta House and at Redstone.

Middlebury will send a delegation that may number over sixty and will arrive Saturday noon.

The fun begins at 2.00 p.m. when the colleges register at the gym where, from the three colleges represented four teams will be chosen. Each team will be assigned a color that will be designated by arm bands and will be captained by "Bud" Kibbe, '30, "Ted" Taylor, "Ellie" Koenig and Jean Wappler, all '31. Each team will be given time to devise its own cheer and song while the physical directors and the committee will divide the girls for the different games. Games will include hockey, tennis, volleyball, basketball and relays. Choice for the games will not be based on individual skill but will give everyone chance at something. Every Vermont woman is urged to come out to make a record attendance. Participants must wear heavy jackets, dark gym suits and berets.

At 5.30 everyone will gather at Robinson for supper, stunts, cheers, songs and speeches. The town girls are asked to bring thirty-five cents.

The program for the day is in the hands of Isabel Warhurst, '31, under the guidance of Miss Cummings and Miss Blanchard. General announcer and master of ceremonies is Estabel Perelman, '30, general scorekeeper, Narcissa Goodsell, '30. Ladies of the faculty are invited to witness the activities of the afternoon.

The St. Lawrence girls will remain over as guests of honor at the Mortar Board dance tomorrow evening.

More Cuts

The administration of Princeton University recently included high-ranking sophomores among those eligible for the unlimited-cut privilege. At the same time steps were taken giving greater freedom in class cutting to the whole college body, regardless of scholastic standing.

TO PRESENT "DEAR BRUTUS" THIS FALL

University Players to Give Barrie's Satiric Comedy Here in Fall Production

METCALF HOLDS FIRST REHEARSALS THIS WEEK

"Dear Brutus," a comedy by J. M Barrie, is the play decided upon last Monday, at a joint meeting of Wig and Buskin, men's honorary dramatic society, and Masque and Sandal, women's honorary dramatic society, as the fall dramatic production at the University.

On Wednesday and Thursday afternoons of this week students have been busily engaged in trying out for the play. As participation in a college play is a decided honor, the judges of the try-outs have made it their policy to select casts of an unusually high character, a policy which has been made possible by the great competition for parts in the play.

Last year two highly successful plays were presented by the students. "The Devil's Disciple" by George Bernard Shaw was presented last fall, and "Summertime" by Louis N. Parker, last spring.

"Dear Brutus," the play chosen for this fall, is a satirical comedy abounding with scintillating witticisms and genuine humor of the highest type.

The majority of students who participated in the plays presented last year have reported for the try-outs to Professors Metcalf and Myrick. Rehearsals will begin next week.

LEARN TO THINK SAYS REVEREND C. C. ADAMS AT CHAPEL EXERCISES

"To reckon all life is to think, and to think is to reckon," declared the Rev. C. C. Adams of Burlington, who spoke at the Wednesday morning chapel service.

The chief end of all education is the ability to think, he said. The college professor should require the student to think and not merely to return the lecture in the same language in which it was given. What is thinking? Thinking is not knowing, for we know through experience. Thinking, simply expressed, is putting two things together and finding something else.

He advised all the students to read The Art of Thinking by André Dimnet, which is one of the most worthwhile books in existence. If we do learn to think then there arises the problem, what to think about. First, we should think about our work for it is upon this that our livelihood depends; second, about the material world in which we live. This is to think scientifically. Third, we all need to think a lot about the social world and about the great social problems. Fourth, the great spiritual realities need a lot of thought. The fifth and greatest need is to think about ourselves.

"What a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." There are at least three different selves in each of us, he pointed out. There is the man as he appears to himself. This is of little use because we do not know ourselves. There is also the man as he appears to others. We can not judge ourselves by the way others see us because so many do not know us. He said the best rule to follow is to discount by ninety-five percent all that our friends and acquaintances say about us.

It rests within ourselves, Dr. Adams said, whether we reckon ourselves dead unto sin or alive unto God. Let no student think too highly of himself. The danger is that we think ourselves too lowly. We forget whose son or whose daughter we are. We need this in our creed: "I believe in man." And to believe in man we must first think rightly of ourselves.

Alma Farr, '30, president of the Home Economics Club, announces a meeting at the Practice House, Friday, November 1, at seven-thirty. Miss Kendall will give an illustrated talk.

Y. W. C. A. MEMBERSHIP INCREASES BY NINETY

Ninety girls have joined Y. W. C. A. according to reports from the recently conducted drive. In former years "Y" members conducted a canvass of the dormitories for the purpose of getting recruits, but this year the matter of joining was left to each individual's choice.

The membership table in the "Y" room last week was in charge of the following women: Frances Laythe, '30, Pearl Brown, '32, Margaret Stanley, '31, Georgina Hubert, '31, Isabel Warhurst, '31, and Carlotta Grimm, '31.

AWARD BAILEY CUP TO VICTORIOUS FRESHMAN CLASS DEBATING TEAM

Sophomores Lose by 2-1 Decision In Annual Forensic Tilt Tuesday Night

The much forecast freshman-sophomore debate took place amid tumultuous cheers and laughter last Tuesday night. The subject was "Resolved: That men and women of the University of Vermont should have equal rights and obligations." The sophomores, LaCrosse, Berger and Frazier upheld the affirmative; the freshmen, Donohey, Colburn and Bigelow, the negative. The judges were Mrs. S. R Moulton, Prof. Evan Thomas and Prof. Melvin Laatsch. The Old Mill chapel, which has so often resounded to the sound of student oratory, present and old time, was the scene of the fray. The score was two to one for the class of '33.

Prof. Leon W. Dean, popular last-minute speaker and presiding officer, acted as chairman.

Dean as Chairman

Arising to usher in the debate, he mentioned the nearly-silver loving cup presented by Senator H. Albon Bailey, his classmate: then, casting levity aside, presented the first speaker, Paul LaCrosse.

LaCrosse rose to the situation, confidence, he laughingly remarked, is distinctly that quality possessed when seated at home in a comfortable arm chair, and absent when one rises to speak before a cultivated audience.

To show the difference between the rights and obligations of men and women in the University, he quoted from the freshman handbooks for men and women. LaCrosse contended that both men and women have the same moral outlook, and therefore should be treated alike.

Donohey, following for the negative, denied the necessity for the proposed change. Nobody, he asserted, is dissatisfied. He then produced a list of CYNIC articles, none indicating dissatisfaction.

Elizabeth Bathed

Berger immediately countered for the affirmative. Queen Elizabeth, he cited, took a bath every two months whether she needed it or not. Cleanliness is next to godliness. But Vermont's women cannot take a bath before 6.00 a.m. or after 10.00 p.m. Women are physically as well fitted for the ordinary tasks of life, he contended, as men.

Colburn, the negative's second speaker, cited two reasons why this change is undesirable. It is, he said, unpopular and, moreover, dangerous to make such a drastic move. The women know what is best for them. The rules are not experiments, but proved successes. To this end he quoted Dean Patterson and Professor Swift.

The alumni, he asserted, do not want this change; they realize the truth, that it would hurt the college's reputation and would bring a cheaper class of women to college.

Donald Frazier, speaking last in construction again cited the rules. It is not that we want all our women to smoke and do everything they might have a right to. It is rather, that we want to help cut down hypocrisy. The women do want these rights, say what you will.

FRATERNITIES HOLD FIRST OPEN HOUSE

Is First Event of Rushing Season —Fraternities Plan Four More Open House Dates

EXTEND INVITATION TO ALL FRESHMEN TONIGHT

With the first open house night set for this evening, the fraternity rushing season is formally under way. At a meeting last spring of Dean Swift, of the College of Arts and Sciences, with a representative group of Boulder men, the social calendar for this year appointed five open house nights. The dates for these occasions fall on the evenings of Friday, November 1, Wednesday, November 6, Saturday, November 9, Tuesday, November 12, and Thursday, November 14. On these nights all freshmen are invited to visit the men's fraternity houses and to get acquainted with the members of the Greek letter societies.

A Glimpse Into Fraternities

On these nights the lowerclassmen are given some idea of what fraternity life is. Various forms of entertainments are presented during the evening and everyone goes in for a general good time.

For freshmen not yet well acquainted with the University or the city, the fraternity houses are in some instances difficult to find. The CYNIC publishes the following guide for the convenience of these men. The fraternity houses fall into geographical groups and their location may best be described in that manner.

Two houses are to be found on Pearl Street. On the west corner of North Prospect and Pearl, just opposite the Medical Building, is the Lambda Iota House. Continuing down Pearl Street, on the other corner of the block facing Williams Street, is the Kappa Sigma House.

The Sigma Nu lodge is located on the west side of Williams Street between Pearl and College Streets at number 57.

Four Houses on College Street

On College Street there are four houses. Going down from the campus on the right hand side, is the Sigma Phi place, at the corner of College and Williams Streets. On the other side of the street nearly opposite, is the Phi Delta Theta house. Further down, on the right hand side, at the corner of South Willard Street, is the Phi Mu Delta house. On the opposite corner on the other side of the street, is the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

Crossing south to Main Street, a short distance down the hill, at number 316, is the Sigma Delta house.

Ascending Main Street to Summit, one will have little difficulty in finding the houses of Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Delta Psi, facing each other, but a short distance up the street.

At the junction of North Prospect with Loomis Street is the Zeta Chi house.

Tau Epsilon Phi, Jewish fraternity, is on Wilson Street, which runs at right angles to North Prospect Street.

Phi Sigma Delta, the other Jewish fraternity, is located at 55 South Union Street, on the southwest corner of Union and Buell.

DRAMATIC CLUB NAMES WOMEN'S CLASS PLAYS

"Overtones" will be the junior women's class play, "America Passes By" the sophomore play, and "The Wedding Present" the freshman play, according to a recent decision of Dramatic Club. The following women have been chosen for the cast of the sophomore play: Gertrude Levin, Winona Spencer, Janice Davis and Dorothy Nash. The following women have been cast for the sophomore play: Katherine Woodward, Lois Harrington, Leonora Weld and Margaret Ann Martin. "The Wedding Present" will present the following players: Margaret Wheaton, Marion Kiel, and Alice Fairchild.

WASHINGTON'S 54 RULES

[illegible] of the rules laid down by our [illegible] have been pointed worthless in this [illegible] all applicable to present day behavior.

[illegible] George Washington had drawn a set of 54 [illegible] with the others a guarantee. Check them over carefully and [illegible] all of them are just as true and just as applicable today as they were back in Revolutionary times.

1. Every action done in company ought to be done with some sign of respect to those present.

2. In the presence of others sing not to yourself with a humming noise, nor drum with your fingers or feet.

3. Put not your hands to any part of the body not usually discovered.

4. Turn not your back to others, especially in speaking; spit not about the fire, nor upon the floor (if it be upon a carpet or cloth); blow not the nose, or rub the face or hands with your handkerchief or hat, but as little as may be.

5. Shake not the head, feet or body; lean not upon any one.

6. Keep your eyes from wandering as those of one that mistrusts not what he says, neither look him full in the face as if you stared at him.

7. Put off your hat or cap with your left hand, but in passing through a crowd or room you may use your right hand as occasion may require.

8. Scratch not your head or beard in presence of others, nor pick your teeth with pen, knife, or finger, but if necessity force you to do any of these things, do them as much out of sight of others as possible, and then excuse yourself.

9. Bite not your nails, neither play with your knife, stones, straws, glass windows, shoes, clothes, or any part of your body or dress, but keep your hands clean and still, or employ them gracefully about your business or recreation.

10. Kill no vermin, as fleas, lice, ticks, etc., in the sight of others; if any fall from you, put them out with your foot, but pursue them not after they are fallen.

11. Turn not your back to others, especially in speaking; spit not in the fire, nor stoop low before it; neither put your hands into the flames to warm them, nor set your feet upon the fire, especially if you have shoes on.

12. When you sit down, keep your feet firm and even, neither too near nor too far from another, lean not upon anyone, nor thrust them upon the fire; let your hands always be kept above the knees, not between your arms or legs.

13. Shift not yourself in the sight of others, nor gnaw your nails.

14. Shake not the head, feet or legs; roll not the eyes; lift not one eyebrow higher than the other; wry not the mouth, and bedew no man's face with your spittle, by approaching too near him when you speak; jog not the elbow or touch the hat or clothes of any man but with a design to take them away.

15. Kill no vermin, as fleas, lice, ticks, etc., in the sight of others; if any fall from you, put them out with your foot, but pursue them not after they are fallen.

16. Do not puff up the cheeks, loll not out the tongue, rub the hands, or beard, thrust out the lips, or bite them, or keep the nose in wrinkles, neither shrug up the shoulders, sigh, or yawn, but as much as may be, avoid both, and if you cannot, cover your mouth with your hand or handkerchief before your face, and turn aside.

17. If you cough, sneeze, sigh or yawn, do it not loud but privately; and speak something presently by way of excuse.

18. Make no shew of taking great delight in your victuals, feed not with greediness; cut your bread with a knife; lean not on the table, neither spread both your arms, both your elbows, or one of them, but remain erect and free from all uneasiness. And keep your fingers clean and from greasy.

19. Be no flatterer, neither play with any that delights not to be played with.

20. Read no letters, books or papers in company, but when there is a necessity for the doing of it you must ask leave. Come not near the books or writings of any one so as to read them unasked, also look not nigh when another is writing a letter.

21. Let your countenance be pleasant, but in serious matters somewhat grave.

22. Show not yourself glad at the misfortune of another, though he were your enemy.

23. When you see any of your betters in place or command, you ought not to walk before them, but place yourself on their left hand, though they have no power to command you.

24. Let your conversation be without malice or envy, for it is a sign of a tractable and commendable nature, and in cases of passion admit reason to govern.

25. Be not immodest in urging your friend to discover a secret.

26. Utter not base and frivolous things amongst grown and learned men, nor very difficult question or subjects amongst the ignorant, nor things hard to be believed.

27. Speak not of doleful things in time of mirth, nor at the table; speak not of melancholy things, as death and wounds, and if others mention them, change, if you can, the discourse. Tell not your dreams but to your intimate friends.

28. Break not a jest where none take pleasure in mirth. Laugh not aloud, nor at all without occasion. Deride no man's misfortune, though there seem to be some cause.

29. Speak not injurious words, neither in jest nor earnest. Scoff at none although they give occasion.

30. Be not forward, but friendly and courteous, the first to salute, hear and answer, and be not pensive when it is a time to converse.

31. Detract not from others but neither be excessive in commending.

32. Go not thither where you know not whether you shall be welcome or not. Give not advice without being asked, and when desired, do it briefly.

33. If two contend together, take not the part of either unconstrained, and be not obstinate in your opinion; in things indifferent be of the major side.

34. Reprehend not the imperfections of others, for that belongs to parents, masters, and superiors.

35. Gaze not on the marks or blemishes of others, and ask not how they came. What you may speak in secret to your friend, deliver not before others.

36. Speak not in an unknown tongue in company, but in your own language, and that as those of quality do, and not as the vulgar. Sublime matters treat seriously.

37. Think before you speak; pronounce not imperfectly, nor bring out your words too hastily, but orderly and distinctly.

38. When another speaks, be attentive yourself, and disturb not the audience. If any hesitate in his words help him not, nor prompt him without being desired; interrupt him not nor answer him till his speech be ended.

39. Treat with men at fit times about business, and whisper not in the company of others.

40. Make no comparisons, and if any of the company be commended for any brave act of virtue, commend not another for the same.

41. Be not apt to relate news, if you know not the truth thereof. In discoursing of things you have heard name not your author always. A secret discover not.

42. Be not curious to know the affairs of others, neither approach to those that speak in private.

43. Undertake not what you cannot perform; but be careful to keep your promise.

44. When you deliver a matter, do it without passion or indiscretion however mean the person may be you do it to.

45. When your superiors talk to anybody, hear them; neither speak nor laugh.

46. In disputes, be not so desirous to overcome as not to give liberty to each one to deliver his opinion, and submit to the judgment of the major part, especially if they are judges of the dispute.

47. Be not tedious in discourse, make not many digressions, nor repeat often the same matter of discourse.

48. Speak no evil of the absent, for it is unjust.

49. Be not angry at table whatever happens and if you have reason to be so, show it not, put on a cheerful countenance, especially if there be strangers, for good humor makes one dish a feast.

50. Set not yourself at the upper end of the table, but if it be your due, or the master of the house will have it so, contend not lest you should trouble the company.

51. When you speak of God or His attributes, let it be seriously in reverence and honor, and obey your natural parents.

52. Let your recreations be manful, not sinful.

53. Labor to keep alive in your breast that little spark of celestial fire called conscience.

54. Associate yourself with men of good quality, if you esteem your own reputation, for it is better to be alone than in bad company.

ZETA CHI FRATERNITY PURCHASES NEW HOME

Another fraternity has acquired a house in Vermont. Zeta Chi, most of one of the finest and smartest homes that the town of [illegible] Lawyer [illegible] Allen Jones was purchased by the fraternity from Thomas Magner. P. [illegible] brothers of Keene N. H. E. H. Lane of Burlington, F. M. Tenney of Rutland and R. A. Packard of Rockford, also represented the fraternity in the transaction.

The late Dr. Willard built the house about 1900. It is a 24 room structure and will comfortably accommodate [illegible] men. There is a frontage of [illegible] feet on North Prospect Street and 114 feet on Loomis Street.

On the first floor are a large kitchen, a lecturer's pantry, two dining rooms, a reading room and library, a chapter room, a music room, and a beautiful reception hall.

On the second floor are six well lighted study rooms each of which will accommodate three men. Each study contains a large fireplace and is well furnished. On the third floor are five more study rooms similar to those on the second floor.

Zeta Chi Fraternity was organized at the University of Vermont in 1920 and has 130 active members 26 being in college at the present time. Royce Fenton, superintendent of schools in Wallingford was the first president of the organization.

Professional Societies at Vermont To Prepare For Coming Season Soon

Both the agricultural society, Alpha Zeta, and the three engineering societies are now mapping out their programs for the year. The engineering societies have already held their first meetings while Alpha Zeta, honorary agricultural fraternity will not get fully under way until after the mid year elections.

Agriculture Society Founded in 1897

Alpha Zeta was founded in the fall of 1897 at Ohio State University by five instructors who were graduates of its College of Agriculture. The founders, who were members of large chaptered social organizations, decreed the newly formed society to be an honorary rather than a social organization. However it has not always steered a consistent course during its more than thirty years of existence since two or three of its chapters, located at very large institutions, have evidenced hybridity in that they have functioned as social organizations although membership has been predicated upon the basis of scholastic merit.

Chapters are located only at the state colleges of agriculture, a restriction which obviously limits the chapter roll to forty-eight. This goal is now three-fourths attained. Chapters exist in the three state universities of northern New England but, paradoxically, do not exist at the two agricultural colleges of southern New England, nor is there one at Rhode Island State.

To be eligible to election to Alpha Zeta a student must be enrolled in course of agriculture of [illegible] grade, must have satisfactorily completed three semesters of work, must rank within the first [illegible] of the class, male students only being computed. He should, furthermore, be of good repute and exhibit qualities of leadership.

Membership an Incentive, Not Reward

Alpha Zeta differs from most honorary organizations located at [illegible] collegiate institutions such as, for example, as Phi Beta Kappa, Sigma Xi, Phi Kappa Phi, in that membership is attained when the student is about half way along in his collegiate course rather than at a point towards the end. Membership is held to act as an incentive to good work rather than as a reward for good work.

The Green Mountain Chapter was established in May, 1905, its charter members, nine in number, being members of classes of 1905 and 1906. Five of these were members of social fraternities. The organization for a while occupied rooms on the upper floor of the building on Church Street where the Luncheonette is now located, these rooms previously having been occupied by Sigma Nu and Sigma Phi. It functioned as a hybrid social fraternity society for several years, occupying a rented chapter house, the building now standing on the southwest corner of Main and South Prospect Streets. However for twelve or more years it has existed as a purely honorary society.

Three Engineering Societies

The Vermont engineering societies are three in number—the Institute of Electrical Engineers, the Society of Mechanical Engineers, and Kappa Mu Epsilon.

The University of Vermont branch of the A. I. E. E. was founded in the spring of 1928, after the decease of the old Radio Club, under the guidance of Professor Dickinson. This section, which is one of the seventy-nine branches located in American universities, is affiliated with the national A. I. E. E., the foremost society in its field in this country. The officers who have been elected for the coming year are: F. E. Beckley, chairman, and A. E. Merrill, secretary and treasurer.

The society, at its meetings, devotes electrical engineering, student members delivering papers on current discoveries and important experiments.

CADET FRESHMEN HERE FOR STATE SERIES GAME

Kittens Must Stop Holmes, Crack Back, to Beat Norwich—Vermont Has Inferior Record

Tomorrow afternoon the Vermont freshman football team will play one of its most important games of the season on Centennial Field. The Kittens' opponents will be the Norwich yearlings and this contest will be the first of the state frosh series. If the Vermonters can win tomorrow, they have a good chance to defeat the Middlebury plebes the following Friday for the state championship.

Only one victory this year is not an impressive showing and the two remaining games on the schedule will be tough battle. The Norwich first year men will try to do to the Green and Gold what the varsity did, and odds are in favor of the visitors. A look at the Maroon record shows no defeats, but a scoreless tie with the Middlebury yearlings. As St. Michael's freshmen have been beaten, tomorrow's game will be the last chance for the Cadets to get the Green Mountain Conference yearling title. Whereas, a victory for Vermont will go a long way toward the championship. Clark School of Hanover, N. H., which tied Vermont 6 to 6, was beaten by Norwich 12 to 6. In Holmes, star back, the Horsemen have a real threat. He has been called by Head Coach Graham the best back Norwich has had for years

The Vermont freshmen hve failed to produce a victory since the first game of the season with Montpelier Seminary. They tied Clark School and were defeated by Fort Ethan Allen and St. Lawrence frosh 13 to 0 and 6 to 0 respectively. Coach Berry has been shifting the line-up and has been training his men hard in preparation for the game tomorrow.

ment will take place, with the Phi Mu Delta and the Tau Epsilon Phi fraternities as contestants. This game promises to show some real thrills and signs of football intelligence, as both fraternities have been working the kinks out of their rusty limbs and have been tossing the pigskin about quite a bit. The winner of this match will play Kappa Sigma on November 7.

Monday, November 4 will witness another game of the tournament. This time the Phi Delta Theta and the Delta Psi fraternities will be the participants. They also have been practicing quite diligently and show indications of giving a fine specimen of touch football. The winner of this battle will play the victor of the Zeta Chi-Lambda Iota match on November 8.

Both of these games will take place at the specified time—4.15 p.m., on the back campus gridiron

CAT'S MEOW

—SPORTING EDITOR—

Norwich freshmen at Centennial tomorrow afternoon

The cadet plebes have a snappy ball club and will cause Coach Berry's men some trouble, judging by past performances.

Connecticut Aggies lost Fisher at mid-years last winter. That helps some, but the Nutmeg Staters have Flydal and Ryan to take his place. Fisher is playing pro ball now. Ryan is the same fellow who played baseball and basketball as well as football for the Aggies for the past two years.

Gardiner and Thorne have looked so good lately that they will probably start at halfback and end, respectively Otherwise the team is intact

Jay has one more week on the bench. He'll start the rough stuff again against Rensselaer

It seems to us that Winant is the only man who has played every minute of every game this year. Only a sophomore at that. Lots of promise there

Blocking is strictly forbidden in touch football. The burden of blocking is placed on the offensive player

Connecticut Aggies Entertain Determined Cats At Storrs

Captain Levine and Halligan Fully Recovered from Leg Injuries—Thorne at End and Gardner in Backfield Win Starting Berths

FROSH-SARANAC RUNNERS TO USE 3-MILE COURSE

Hadley, Vermont Yearling, Making Excellent Time—Pressed Hard by Colburn

The Vermont frosh cross country team will try to down Saranac Lake (N. Y.) High School this Saturday on the former's home course. The meet will be run at 11.00 a.m. over the short route. This course takes the following route—gym to South Prospect Street to Country Club to Spear Street to Williston Road and back to the gym

This is the first time that the frosh have had two full meets, Middlebury usually being the only opponent

Saranac is an unknown quantity to Vermont, and may have a few dark horses. They have never been seen in action on this side of the lake before. The health resort should breed husky men and Vermont will have to put out its best to win, although the team looks very promising under the able tutelage of Coach Post

The teams will be composed of seven men each. The first seven places count one point each and the team with the most men placing among the first seven thus wins the meet. The two shining lights for the frosh are Hadley and Colburn.

NUTMEGERS HAVE WON THREE GAMES TO DATE

Coach Rattan has another difficult assignment tomorrow when he takes his Catamounts to Storrs, Conn., for their tussle with the Aggies. The Catamounts have got to show pep, and lots of it, in order to get an even break with the farmer boys. In fact, unless they show a great deal of improvement over their exhibition of last week, they are going to take a licking, and a bad one. They will have one advantage in that the line will be bolstered quite a bit by the appearance of Captain Levine in the center position, but "Bump" can't be everywhere at once so it is up to the rest of the line to do its bit

The Cats are after blood in the Aggie game. They can remember the walloping they took at the hands of Fisher, the diminutive back of last year's fray and if possible they want to even things up. The Green and Gold will go into the game with the full team this time, or at least most of it. Halligan's game leg should be healed up so that he will be his usual threat around end or off tackle. Gardner is all set for the game. You can always depend on "Tony" to offer a few thrills in any football game, either through a few long runs or by his defensive work. It's a joy to watch him. He's as fast as a streak and about as elusive as a greased pig

The elections are held as early as is practicable in each college year.

YEARLING NETMEN BEAT B. H. S. 4-0 ON COURTS

Last Monday afternoon on the campus courts the undefeated yearling tennis team added another victim to their rapidly mounting record.

Led by their captain, Palmer, they trounced the weakened Burlington High School aggregation 4 to 0. The unfortunate ruling as regards playing tournament and interscholastic matches on the Vermont courts prevented the doubles from being finished. A Vermont victory was impending in both of these, however.

Larry" Palmer, playing his usual sound back court game, livened in spots by brilliant smashes at the net, had little difficulty in defeating Perry, No. 1 for the High School. The score of this match was 6-3, 6-4.

Jerry" Price who was absent in the last two matches returned to give the freshmen another win 6-3, 6-2. The victory was even easier than the score indicates and Price will team up well with Palmer on next year's varsity.

In the third match of the afternoon Myers of Burlington put up a stubborn battle but was finally overcome by Woodward 6-3, 3-6, 6-4.

Cronin, recent Cathedral High captain and baseball luminary, defeated Carson easily, 6-2, 6-1.

The lateness of the year and the scarcity of opponents will no doubt close the yearlings schedule for the fall.

One-fourth of the girls in American colleges are paying their own way in whole or in part.

NOTICES

Contributions for Bluestockings, women's honorary literary society, must be in by Thanksgiving.

Junior girls are asked to watch the bulletin board in the "Y" Room for notices relative to the 1931 Aric. The list is posted for grinds and each girl must look up the name of the girl whose grind she is to write.

Eta Sigma Phi will meet on November 5 at 8 p.m. in 34 South College.

The Home Economics Club will hold a rummage sale at the Star Hose House on North Winooski Avenue on November 5.

The annual Mortar Board dance will be held Saturday, November 2, in the Burlington High School Gymnasium. Tickets may be obtained from Mable Freeman, Beverly Householder, Joyce Richardson, Florence McKenzie, Narcissa Goodsell, and Dorothy Dailey, all of the class of '30.

Indoor gym for girls begins Wednesday, November 6. Members of all classes should come dressed in regular gymnasium uniforms.

SHE'S FUNNY THAT WAY!

LEE MORSE has a tricky way of stepping right off the face of a record and being perfectly charming to you—it's something more than singing.

You'll find all the familiar Morse magnetism charging both the song hits on her newest Columbia record. One is a lively number in dance tempo—the other a crooning intimate ballad crammed with lots of "come-along."

Before your dealer wraps this one up for you, have him play these steppers, too . . .

istory Instructor Points Out Mexico's Greatest Problems in Interesting Talk Before International Relations Club

HREE DRAWBACKS TO ORDERLY GOVERNMENT

A[illegible]derstanding of the relations [illegible] Mexico and the United [illegible]ted Professor L. S. Hartwell of the history department of the [illegible] speaking at a meeting of the International Relations Club last [illegible] depends upon an understanding of the life of the Mexican [illegible]. There are three major problems mentioned Mr. Hartwell, in connection with this subject. First, [illegible] the problem of organized government, secondly, the land question, which is of great importance; [illegible]ly, the preservation of Mexican national resources.

equisites of an Orderly Government

[illegible]ing of organized government, Mr. Hartwell stated that an orderly government depends largely on racial [illegible] and that there is none of that [illegible] Mexico. The population consists [illegible] major classes: Creoles, Mestizos and pure Indians. The Creole is of Spanish stock, born in Mexico. The Mestizo is a mixture, with the [illegible] predominating. The Indian population predominates with six million Mexican Indians constituting 90 [illegible] of the nation. No less than [illegible] dialects are spoken by these Indians.

A second requisite of an orderly government is a satisfactory educational system. Mexico is sadly lacking in this respect. Probably more than 90 percent of Mexico can neither read nor write.

A third factor lacking in the government of Mexico is that of tradition. [illegible]istory has been largely a series of revolutions. Between 1822, the date of independence, and 1876, there were 39 rulers in Mexico, of whom only two served out their full terms. The army is a severe handicap, having a superabundance of generals and commissioned officers. There generals [illegible] only their own interests and [illegible] nothing about the central government. It is said that one can start a successful military revolution in Mexico with $10,000.

Struggle of Groups

The trouble centers around the fact that there is a struggle of groups, [illegible] plural, for power, which is [illegible]. As an instance of Mexican [illegible]'s efficiency, Mr. Hartwell told [illegible] officer who, having lost consciousness in a battle, awoke twenty [illegible] later to find his watch and [illegible] gone.

"Mexico has no conception of the meaning of democracy. Honesty [illegible] is absolutely unknown, and [illegible] of the ballot is a mystery to the majority.

The Land Problem

[illegible] of the trouble in connection with the land problem lies in the [illegible] of land in Mexico. Not more [illegible] out of 500 millions of acres [illegible] cultivated. Moreover, since the [illegible] of Mexican history, when [illegible] settlers were granted large [illegible] land, ownership of the land [illegible] centered in the hands of a [illegible]

[illegible]n various fraudulent methods the Indian has been almost deprived of what little land [illegible] own. Many Americans own [illegible] tracts of land. Hearst and Fall [illegible] thousands of acres. Since Mexico has been trying to restore land for the Indians. Some [illegible] been taken with, and some [illegible] compensation. This attempt [illegible] the land has resulted at [illegible] strained relations between [illegible] and the American landowners.

JUNIOR SOCIETY PLANS BIG PARADE AND DANCE

Two outstanding events will feature this year's Key and Serpent week program: the Middlebury Smoker on Friday night, November 15, and the dance after the game with Middlebury, on Saturday night.

Friday night the student body will meet at the gymnasium to parade downtown, accompanied by green flares and plenty of noise. All speeches will be made, it is expected, in the Memorial Auditorium. As this is the big smoker of the year, a full turnout is anticipated.

Joe Lechnyr's ten piece augmented band will furnish the music for the dance Saturday night, which will be held at the High School gymnasium. A large crowd from Middlebury is expected to stay over to attend the dance.

JUNIORS NAME MAYNES, DINNIMAN AND TAYLOR AS COUNCIL MEMBERS

Choose Three as Additional Representatives on Faculty-Student Council

Three additional members of the Faculty-Student Council were named at a meeting of the junior class last Friday afternoon. One man was chosen from the College of Agriculture, one from the College of Engineering, and one woman from the class at large.

The following were elected: From the College of Agriculture, Harold Dinniman, New Haven, Conn.; from the College of Engineering, Roderick J. Maynes, Woodstock, Vt.; from the class at large, Helen F. Taylor, Montclair, N. J., who was nominated from the floor. Last spring Harvey D. Butterfield and Ruth E. Fields were chosen to represent the College of Arts and Sciences.

Men Active in Sports

The students chosen have been especially active in campus activities. Maynes is a member of Sigma Nu, last year belonged to Gold Key and this year is a member of Key and Serpent. In his freshman year he played on the class basketball team. Last spring he made the track team. This year he is out for varsity football.

Dinniman, a member of Phi Sigma Delta fraternity, is likewise active in three sports. In his freshman year he played on his class football team and was also a regular on the '31 basketball team. The same year he made his letter in baseball. This will be his third year of varsity baseball.

Helen Taylor is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. Her many activities include her membership in Home Economics Club, Health Council and Dramatic Club. In her freshman year she was one of the cast of the class play. This year she is W. A. A. secretary. She has played two years on the volley ball team and was one of the women cheer leaders at the Vermont-Union game. This is also her third year as member of the Women's Glee Club.

ANNOUNCES RESULTS OF GLEE CLUB TRY-OUTS

Professor G. A. Bennett has just made public the names of the successful candidates for the Glee Club sextet and double quartet.

Try-outs were held October 29. The sextet is made up of Hazel Ladd, '30; Elizabeth Eggleston, '33; Barbara Douglass, '31; Irene Marcotte, '30; Elizabeth Mandigo, '32; and Gene Petze, '33.

The double quartet is made up of Janice Simkinson, '33; Esther Beardsley, '33; Doris Duprat, '30; Esther Mandigo, '32; Winona Spencer, '31; Priscilla Perry, '33; Norma Carder, '33.

The Home Economics Club will hold a rummage sale Tuesday, November 5, at the Star Hose House.

NAME CAST IN FALL DRAMA PRODUCTION

Eight Veteran Players Included in Cast of Barrie's "Dear Brutus"—Two Freshmen Also Named

SET DECEMBER 12 AS DATE OF ANNUAL EVENT

Six women and five men have been cast for the fall play, James Barrie's "Dear Brutus," as the results of tryouts Wednesday and Thursday. The play, an annual seasonal event, will be presented the evening of December 12 at the Strong Theatre. The cast of the production is:

Mrs. Coade, Doris Kibbe, '33, of Rockville, Conn.; Lady Caroline, Beverly Householder, '30, of Burlington; Mrs. Dearth, Kathryn Rauh, '32, of South Orange, N. J.; Margaret, Priscilla Davis, '33, of Northfield; Joanna Trout, Annette Rosenberg, '30, of Burlington; Mrs. Purdie, Margaret Martin, '32, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Mr. Coade, Sam Barker, '32, of Montclair, N. J.; Mr Dearth, Herrick Macomber, '30, of Burlington; Lob, Robert Jenks, '32, of Burlington; Mateo, Robert Aiken, '31, of Burlington; Mr. Purdie, Harvey Butterfield, '31, of Burlington.

Eight Are Veteran Players

Three of the cast, Doris Kibbe, Priscilla Davis and Sam Barker, are new to college plays. The rest are already well known to University playgoers for their excellent work in previous productions. Beverly Householder, Kathryn Rauh, Robert Aiken and Harvey Butterfield all took part in the Junior Week play, "Summertime," while Beverly Householder and Robert Jenks had parts in "The

W. A. A. SPONSORS TRI-SPORT PLAY DAY MEET

St. Lawrence, Middlebury and Vermont Participate in Non-Competitive Meet Saturday

W. A. A. sponsored a very successful tri-college meet at the Play Day held Saturday afternoon in the University gymnasium. Middlebury and St. Lawrence sent representatives to the meet. The teams were composed of members from each college, selected impartially by counting off. The captains of the four teams were: Doris Kibbe, '30, Blue; Jean Wappler, '31, Orange; Helen Taylor, '31, Red, and Barbara Lowd, '32, Green. When the final scores for all the events were reckoned up, the Orange team came out ahead with a total of seventeen points, while the Green followed a close second with sixteen. About 250 coeds were present at the meet, approximately fifty being on each team, and the remainder, who did not care to join in the sports, cheering lustily from the sidelines. Estabel Perelman, '30, president of W. A. A., was ably assisted by Isabelle Warhurst, '31, chairman of the committee in charge of the meet.

At the opening of the program, cheer leaders were chosen from each team and led in rousing cheering which started things off with a bang. They were: Emily Maslen, '32 and Kathryn Rauh, '32, Orange; Emily Murray, '31, Green; Helen Taylor, '31, Red, and Marion Capron, '32, Blue. The Reds won the cheering contest.

After the point system had been explained, the contests started with an over and under relay race and a national derby race. These races were conducted simultaneously, one in the gym and one in the cage, in order that all four teams might be in action. The same principle was continued in the rest of the program. The next number was tennis between the Reds and the Blues, and volley ball between the Greens and the Oranges. Then they reversed the process, Reds and Blues playing volley ball, and Greens and

THIRTEEN MEDICINE MEN PLAY AT MILITARY BALL

Scabbard and Blade is now completing its plans for the military formal to be held in the Burlington High School gymnasium Friday evening. The Military Ball is a social event at Vermont that has become an annual tradition, and each year draws a large crowd.

Although final arrangements have not yet been made it is known that The Thirteen Medicine Men will furnish the music. Admission this year will be four dollars.

LARGE DELEGATION OF HIGH SCHOOL EDITORS AT U. V. M. CONFERENCE

Crockett Presides Over Meeting of Vermont High School Editors in Annual Convention

The University entertained on Saturday at the annual High School Editors' Conference 135 editors of High School publications, members of the staff and principals and English teachers directing such publications. This is the largest number ever to attend one of these conferences in the ten years they have been held.

St. Johnsbury Academy sent the largest delegation, 22, headed by Principal Theodore H. Wilson. Other schools represented were Spaulding High School of Barre, Bennington High, Bristol High, Burlington High, Danby High, Enosburg Falls High, Essex Junction High, Hardwick Academy, Montpelier High, Montpelier Seminary, People's Academy of Morrisville, Newbury High, Orleans High, Troy Conference Academy of Poultney, Proctor High, Randolph High, Richmond High, Rutland High, Vergennes High, Wallingford High, Wells River High, and Woodsville (N. H.) High, which is attended by quite a few Vermont pupils.

Held in Medical Building

The meet opened in Hall A, Medical Building. Walter H. Crockett, director of publications at the University, welcomed the editors and High School faculty members and outlined the purposes of the conference. Among other things, he outlined the growth of the school paper or magazine idea in Vermont High Schools and said there are now 42 such publications among the 100 or more High Schools and Academies in Vermont.

Mr. Crockett also called attention to a unique paper which has been started during the past year, namely the Interschool News published jointly by the pupils of four schools in Washington County, Cabot, Marshfield, Plainfield and Woodbury. This is the first publication to represent several schools in Vermont, so far as known.

The first school to start a weekly publication in Vermont is Rutland High School, Mr. Crockett said. Their paper is called the Red and White. The school publications ordinarily publish from two to eight times during the school year.

Professor Leon W. Dean, of the English Department, gave the school editors an interesting and instructive talk on the writing of short stories.

At noon, about 100 of the editors and High School faculty members were the guests of the University at luncheon at the Van Ness Hotel.

Following the luncheon, Mrs. Isabelle Clark Mills of the University Art Department talked to the editors about the use of linoleum cuts, which have become popular for school publications because they are comparatively cheap and offer considerable opportunity to develop an art department in connection with the literary end of the publications. These cuts are used for cover designs and for special features.

An important part of the conference was the discussion entered into by the editors themselves in which they raised questions regarding various problems which confronted them in their work and exchanged views. Several of the High School principals and faculty members spoke briefly regarding the value of the conference.

SECOND OPEN HOUSE WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Some Doubt Exists About the Saturday Night Date With So Many Planning to Leave Town

INTERFRAT COUNCIL TO MAKE ANNOUNCEMENT

Open house nights this week are Wednesday, November 6, and Saturday, November 9, unless notices are posted to the contrary. Some doubt has existed on the campus during the past week concerning the open house night following the Rensselaer game Saturday afternoon and preceding the holiday, Monday. It was thought that a good majority of freshmen and upperclassmen would go out of town over the week-end in face of the holiday Monday.

It is probable that no open house night will be held at all Saturday, but the Interfraternity Council, under whose jurisdiction such matters come, has not yet definitely decided. However the second open house will be Wednesday night, November 6, as scheduled, and the Interfraternity Council will give forth an announcement concerning the Saturday night open house at a later date. Notice of any change will be posted on the bulletin boards.

First Open House Successful

The rainy weather last Friday night did not dampen the ardor of the freshmen in visiting the various fraternities according to reports from the Greek letter societies. Some fraternities report that more freshmen visited their houses on the first night this year than ever before.

At least three more nights are open to freshmen during the pre-rushing season, and it is hoped that each of the freshmen will visit all the fraternity houses. Reports show that a goodly number have already taken advantage of their opportunity.

"Dear Brutus," written by James M. Barrie, was first presented in New York about 1918. At that performance the part of Dearth was taken by one of the most popular actors of the time, William Gillette, who was especially well known as the creator of the stage character of Sherlock Holmes. In the same cast, the part of Margaret was taken by Ruth Chatterton, who has played in several of Barrie's plays and who is now gaining more success on the screen.

Nine Mis-spent Lives

The play tells the story of nine people each of whom feels that his life, in one way or another, has been mis-spent or wasted. They are brought together by Lob, a queer creature, who makes it possible for each to see what he might have been had he been able to live as he secretly wished. This disclosure of what might have been and its effect upon each of the persons makes a gripping and vivid play.

Good Trenchermen

Tracing the history of America's eating habits in the World's Work, Sam Best, the writer, finds himself amazed at the gastronomic feats of our forefathers as they are recorded in the chronicles of the times.

In the effort to show that the Pilgrim Fathers were by no means gluttonous to drink, it has also been revealed that they were by no means gluttonous to food,' he says. "How their tables groaned—quarters of mutton, and legs of beef, whole hams, several kinds of fish, corn bread and light bread, tankards of ale and quarts of wine." One is amazed that the poor fellows survived!

When a man says he is cut out to be a bachelor, he doesn't always add who did the cutting.

Courtesy recalls the customer and invites a new one; discourtesy drives away those you have and keeps away others.

Wisdom is always courteous; discourtesy is the earmark of stupidity.

Discourtesy is no mark of superiority. The real aristocrat is the most courteous to those whom fate has placed in less walks of life than those he reads; thus we have a paradox which is a great truth—a real democrat is the only real aristocrat.

"Eyes" for blind flying!

Three new G-E contributions to the conquest of the air

LINDBERGH, flying blind much of the way, hit Ireland "on the nose" as he winged toward Paris. Now, as an aid to air navigation comes the magneto compass, a product of General Electric research, which gives pilots a navigating instrument of extraordinary accuracy.

Meanwhile, two other General Electric contributions to aviation have been developed—the electric gasoline gauge and the radio echo altimeter. The ordinary altimeter shows only height above sea level. The radio echo altimeter warns the pilot of his actual distance above ground or water by flashing green, yellow, and red lights on the instrument board.

Every year hundreds of college-trained men and women enter the employment of General Electric. Research, similar to that which developed "eyes" for blind flying, is one of the many fields of endeavor in which they play an important part.

This plan makes the office of House President one of major importance, since the dormitories all hold more than a hundred girls. She is chosen by the Dean after a conference of the House Director and the former House President. The House Committees are chosen by the presidents of the houses each semester.

False registration is considered a very serious offense at Mt. Holyoke and the person who indulges in it is "campussed." Automobiles are forbidden except to seniors after Easter. "Bumming" is not approved and motoring after sunset is not a pleasure to be indulged in without special permission. All rules about automobiles are made by the administration, but student government has taken on the responsibility of enforcing them. Mt. Holyoke is governed wholly by the honor system and "Permission and chaperonage rules are as few as possible to confirm to social custom."

Pledging in Other Colleges

The majority of colleges pledge men during their freshman year either before or after the mid-year examination period. Other colleges such as Dartmouth do not pledge until the sophomore year. Although there is this wide variation in the pledging policy of different colleges, it is generally considered a noteworthy step forward from the old type of "cut-throat" rushing when men wore pledge buttons even before they came to college and had not met but one or two of the members of the fraternity which they had joined.

MORTAR BOARD HOLDS PERENNIAL FALL DANCE

Mortar Board gave its annual fall dance last Saturday evening at the Burlington High School gymnasium. The hall was effectively decorated in orange and black and at the farther end hung a large mortar board outlined in gold against a black background. The dance music was furnished by the Medicine Men under the direction of Roger Albee, M '31.

Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Hartwell and Professor and Mrs. C. E. Braun served as chaperones. Joyce Richardson '30 was chairman of the dance.

The Flag Speaks

Beneath my folds soldiers have fought in defense of their passion for liberty and under the inspiration of my symbolism statesmen have built a Republic dedicated to the ideal of the sovereign rights of free citizens. I have seen the growth of a model system of public schools seeking to give a fair start in life to every boy and girl. I have encouraged the scientist in his search for truth, the merchant in his contribution to human wealth, and the inventor in his toil to provide for human comfort. For a century and a half the sons and daughters of Europe and Asia have looked upon me as the emblem of hope and opportunity.

Temperance for Mexico?

President Portes Gil has talked and argued for prohibition ever since he became head of the state, and if anyone thought he did not mean business he is now undeceived. A nation wide temperance campaign has been announced, to be financed by the state. The program is one of education and "gradual and prudent" dry legislation until all saloons are gone and only beer and wine sold to be carried home for consumption, says the Path Finder. Propaganda must be in school textbooks and in moving pictures, while temperance lectures will be given in the army, factories and to the membership of various organizations. The president says the use of intoxicating liquors is "the worst ill" of the Mexican people.

Key Town selling
—a new telephone idea

Commercial development men of the Bell System have originated a new use of the telephone which is proving economical and efficient for modern salesmanship. From important central towns the salesman makes periodic visits to customers and prospects by telephone.

To conceive this idea, to make it practical by selecting Key Towns on a basis of most advantageous rates to surrounding points, and to sell it as a business practice—all this illustrates how telephone service is as open as any commodity to constructive imagination.

Key Town selling is one of many indications of the steady demand, present and to come, for more and more telephone service.

Freshman coeds at the University of Pennsylvania may well be termed co-edinursers this year. Rules enforced by the sophomores demand that the first-year women have at least three nickels on hand at all times to pay fines for breaking freshman customs.

Raise Scholarship Fund

Many college administrators have found students who lack funds for a college education to borrow money, rather than risk their health and academic success by attempting to work their way through college. Now comes a new plan for the application of such advice. The New York Times announces the foundation of an organization of some fifty college presidents and a hundred men and women in public life, to raise a fund of $1,200,000 to provide loans for men and women desiring a college education. Applications for loans from the Lincoln Scholarship Fund will be considered regardless of sex, age, color, or creed. Recipients of loans will be obligated to repay the money received as soon as possible after graduation.

It is generally believed that a student who is prominent in college life is likely to be marked more leniently by his teachers than students less well known to the college campus.

If extra-curricular activities are worth what is claimed for them, students should be marked on them and given credit on them at least to a limited extent. In the small school, it is unquestionably true that participation in activities is one of the main avenues of vocational guidance.—James F. Kemp, University of Colorado.

College without scholarship and social students who do not study are a hindrance to the life of universities. Need to lower the rate of efficiency in college and university is to lower the rate of efficiency in the national life. If we are to have achievement in the affairs of a country we must have achievement in our halls of learning.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

If educated men do not earn as much money as uneducated men with equal capacities this may be because the educated men have found something in life more worth while than dollar collecting. THE BOARDING HOUSE REACH

By Ex-Converse Hall

SUNDAY AFTERNOON

The sun is shining shining very brightly.

That young lad pauses me blink but I have to get up and pull down the shade.

Another I like the sun. One gets a touch of it in state.

The campus is sending its wreaths of autumn colors as they hit the ground they seem to become more and I can detect a blush in them very much like the color of me and to 'o ruffle. Is the color in the leaves or in the sun?

Thanks the Lord my military days are over and I'm a civilian once more.

Civilian life is much nicer especially on Friday mornings.

Just put out my cigarette. It was burning the edge of the desk. I buried it in an ashtray. There are two ashtrays within easy reaching distance, and yet I laid the cigarette on the edge of my desk. Wonder why?

The roommate is sleeping—pounding his ear for all he's worth—on my bed, too, and he's snoring. He's got a pleasant snore though. It's a cross between a rip saw going through a knot in hard wood and a 1917 Max well self-starter in cold weather.

Would like to go for a walk. Guess I'll wake him up and drag him along.

No. I'll let him sleep. He was out late last night. Mortar Board.

He said he took a cute freshman, or rather she took him. By the way, should it be freshwoman or freshman when one means the feminine yearling?

Anyway, I know he was out with a woman.

He said he met lots of nice girls. Some from the home town, too. And I don't even know them. Life ain't fair, is it?

I just looked up from this sheet and saw a red banner with white letters Valley Forge—decorating the wall in front of me. No, I've never been to Valley Forge. Don't like cold weather and according to my history prof back in high—Professor Nutter they have tough winters up there. Wonder where I got that banner?

Professor Nutter was a good scout and a better teacher. Knew the value of a wisecrack now and then in waking up a snoring class.

I said snoring because the roommate's still at it. Only now it sounds like WABC on a rainy night—static drowning out the musical tones. He just turned over and moved his arm a bit. Problem for Freud; none of my business.

A Buick sedan just went by with two couples in it. One of the girls is a co-ed, and her escort was drinking in every word she was telling him. Poor fellow—maybe he's hooked.

Some kid down on the sidewalk is telling another youngster how a little dog bit him on the ankle. Gee, what a racket! Don't crab, buddie he probably couldn't reach any higher, being such a little pup.

The University of Maine has a pet bear for a mascot. They take him to all the games and he goes over big. Why not chip in and buy a real live catamount? Please send all objections to the cook at Grassmount. She gets plenty of 'em anyway.

Found out this noon that part of the Book Store profits went to buy some beds for the Campus House. Poor girls—if I'd only known what the true conditions were, I'd have let them sleep in my bed.

Come to think of it though, the authorities would have objected. Most kind acts and others are harshly received—we just don't understand the other fellow.

We should all join the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs and strive to make the world a truer, finer, sweeter, purer, nobler and happier place in which to live. Don't you think so—and if not, why do you?

A CONTRIBUTOR SENDS US THE:—BALLAD OF SCROOCYDOO

By Dan McGroo

O, football is a dirty game
And the men as play are ruff.
And they play the game in the mud and rain
When the frozen ground is tuff
And strong men quake and hoi' to fall,
And mother's sons shed blood
While whistles screech and quarters bawl
In the muck and fearful mud
Now the hardest man in that dirty game,
The meanest through and through
Was a great big slug who was named Gus Rugg,
But they called him Scroocydoo
Though men did rust with the lure and lust,
Great Gus stayed in the game.
A bottle or hooch, a cowboy hat,
And he'd knock the interference flat
Round the smoulderin' fire in Pete's saloon.
On winter nights they tell
Of the Waterloo of Scroocydoo
And the game in which he fell
November upon Fairfield hill
The sky was cold and blue,
But the faithful fans up in the stands
Gave a cheer for Scroocydoo
Big he was and handsome too
This guy they just called Scroocydoo
With his cowboy hat and wicked eye
Yet his simple grin would fool a fly
The game began: there was a frost
Down through the snow and mud and slush.
Forty yards right straight down through
With shoulders hunched, went Scroocydoo!
The battle raged and at the half
Old Gus grinned, then had to barf
The game, he said, was good as won.
He had six goals to the visitor's none
And then the second harf began
Team for team and man for man
And Scroocydoo came crashing through
With a nasty look and bold
But up popped a little stranger named
And the great Gus Rugg lay cold
On the cold hard ground lay Scroocydoo;
From the frozen stands there came a boo.
From that day on Gus Rugg was through.
—"Harf Pint" rallied an' won the game,
But Scroocy's never been the same
And still by the fire in Pete's saloon
On wintry nights they tell—
Of the Waterloo of Scroocydoo
And the game in which he fell.

BOXING LESSONS GIVEN THREE TIMES WEEKLY BY PHYSICAL DEPARTMENT

Boxing instruction starts this afternoon under the auspices of the Physical Education Department in the auxiliary gymnasium.

Lessons will be given on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Fridays at 4.00 P.M. throughout the winter with Frank A. Winchenbach, M-'31, as instructor in charge of the course.

Mr. Winchenbach will teach the fundamentals of boxing and will carry on the course as part of the Physical Education work.

START WOMEN'S INDOOR CLASSES IN PHYS. EDUC.

Plans have been completed for the freshman and sophomore women's indoor classes in physical education, which begin tomorrow afternoon. All students are expected to report then for their first appointments. Sophomores may elect dancing instead of setting-up drill and apparatus. This year the freshman program will be as follows: Monday—drill, stunts, marching, tactics, and general games; Wednesday—dancing with Miss Annis Baldwin as instructor; Friday—class practice in basketball and a five minute talk on general health principles.

A little East Side tailor whose store had been burglarized presumably by an eminent lawyer's client, was on the witness stand. "You say you locked the door of your store that night?" thundered the lawyer.

"Yes," said the tailor.

"Well then," exclaimed the lawyer, with a triumphant glance at the jury; "will you please explain to this jury how anyone could get in there?"

"Don't ask me, Mr. Lawyer," said the tailor meekly. "I'm just a poor tailor. Ask your client—he's a burglar."

CAT'S MEOW

SPORTING EDITOR—

We give those serious-minded people who stayed away from the Frosh Norwich frosh football game Saturday on Centennial Field a lot of credit for their remarkable intuitivism

It really wouldn't have been such a terrible game if the referee knew the rules even the simplest and most common ones. He was a joke.

Clipping occurred at one time right under his nose, so to speak, and he entirely overlooked it. That's one of the most obvious violations in football He failed to blow his whistle when a Norwich man downed behind his line Consequently that man was unable to complete what went for a lateral pass

The referee also thought a great deal of his own powers of measuring distance with his eye He made a bad guess when he shifted the ball between the third and fourth quarters.

As for the game itself, Holmes of Norwich had the Vermont defense baffled. He's a "wiz" on the ends

Cognetti's eighty-yard run to the five-yard line for the Kittens was the only feature of the play of the home team. He and Coburn played a good defensive game, too, but they couldn't do it all

Either the quarterback or the team must have forgotten the signals for all plays except a straight line buck in the first half. With the Norwich line as strong as it was that was the worst possible attack to use Touch football is gaining more and more popularity and interest as the games roll by. Much credit is due Howard Prentice for the efficient handling of the tournament.

The Physical Education Department interprets the touch football rule clause "any man in the academic colleges" to mean any man who is eligible for varsity football.

Frat tournament touch football games will have four periods of fifteen plays each instead of twenty as stated in the original rules. Darkness falls too quickly to permit the longer contests.

HADLEY SETS COURSE RECORD AGAINST SARANAC

Vermont Frosh Breaks Three-mile Course Mark Although Visitors Win Meet

Hadley, a Vermont freshman set a new University record for the three-mile cross-country course Saturday morning when the Saranac Lake High School harriers defeated the Kittens 31 to 24. Hadley's time was 15:21:6.

Composed mainly of boys slightly above five feet in height, the Saranac team placed sixth in the R. P. I. road race a few weeks ago

The gun sent the boys from the gym to South Prospect Street. Hadley leaped into the lead followed by Robinson of Saranac with Colburn of Vermont a little in the rear. The rest were well grouped. Hadley increased his lead at the Country Club with the remainder grouped as before. On Spear Street Colburn fell back to fifth place with the two Smiths, Clarence and Edward, of Saranac preceding him. As they neared the finish line Hadley sprinted and increased his lead to fifty yards, followed by Robinson (S), the two Smiths (S), Colburn (V), Sanborn (V), Traynor (S) and Coogan (S).

Hadley's time was extremely fast especially on the wet course and this boy looks like the best track prospect since the famous O. T. Wood

Hadley, Colburn and Sanborn made their numerals by placing among the first seven who finished

OWLS DEFEAT ZETA CHI 6-0 IN TOUCH FOOTBALL

S. A. E. and A. T. O. Today—Sigma Phi and Sigma Delta Tomorrow—Tau Epsilon Phi and Phi Mu Delta Thursday—Schedule Rearranged

The second game of the Interfrat Touch Football Tournament took place last Thursday on the back campus gridiron with Lambda Iota defeating Zeta Chi 6 to 0. It was a cold day, with only a few spectators present when the warriors took their positions on the gridiron. Captain De Mund won the toss for Zeta Chi and preferred to kick-off

The first quarter was rather sluggish, containing many incompleted passes. A few were intercepeted but to no avail. The gains, though very small, were made through rushes only Both teams were forced to kick continually because of no ground gained after four downs. The period ended with the score 0 to 0

The second quarter held a bit more in store for the Owls. This period featured more punting than passing The ball kept changing hands with very little ground being covered until Livingston of the Owls intercepted a pass and ran for a touchdown. At this point the game began to assume a more interesting angle with both teams showing some fight The half ended with the score 6 to 0 in favor of the Owls.

The second half opened with the Owls kicking-off to Zeta Chi. The ball again kept constantly changing hands through intercepted passes and punting. Rutkowski did some outstanding punting for Zeta Chi in this period which consequently pulled the latter out of many difficulties, neither team scoring

In the last quarter both teams which had heretofore resorted to a punting game in the second and third periods turned back to the passing element, again to no avail. Both frats put up a last stand with the Zetas struggling in vain at least to tie the score. The whistle blew with the final score 6 to 0 in favor of the Owls.

The line-ups:

ZETA CHI	LAMBDA IOTA
DeMund (Capt.)	Hendricks (Capt.)
Rutkowski	Livingston
Romanos	Dalrymple
Cross	Patten
Burns	Holbrook
Clark	Householder
Armstrong	Brush

More Games This Week

Sigma Alpha Epsilon meets Alpha Tau Omega in the second game of League I this afternoon at 4.15 o'clock

From all indications both teams are busy brushing up their offense. Those who will brave the elements should be rewarded with the pleasure of seeing a really close game replete with good passwork which is the basis of this game

Tomorrow another treat is in store when Sigma Phi opposes Sigma Delta Both teams have some good men along gridironistic lines who will display their prowess for the glory of their respective fraternities.

The game scheduled for last Friday between Tau Epsilon Phi and Phi Mu Delta was postponed on account of wet grounds to Thursday Consequently, the following changes have been made in the schedule Semi finals in League I will be November 11 and 13. Final in League II is on November 15 and the championship game will be played on Monday, November 18

CAPTAIN "BUMP" LEVINE ON BENCH THROUGHOUT

Before a large Dad's Day gathering the Vermont football team was defeated at Storrs, Conn., by the Connecticut Aggies last Saturday afternoon by the score of 34 to 0. Five touchdowns were made by the Aggies to beat the Green and Gold

The first quarter of the game showed the teams to be nearly evenly matched but Vermont weakened in the latter part of the contest and the Aggies got under way. Nearly all of the first period consisted of exchanges of punts. The Catamounts had a chance to score early in the game when they had the ball on Connecticut's 15 yard line but they lacked the punch to carry through for a touchdown. The score at the half was 14 to 0

Winant, Mace and Gardner were outstanding for Vermont. In the line, Filley and Davis played well. Captain Levine was forced to watch the entire game from the bench due to an injury received in the Union game

Lamoreaux, Harger, French and Williams were the stars for Connecticut

BASKETBALL OFFICIALS HOLD INTERPRETATION MEETING DECEMBER 7

Vermont State Board of Approved Basketball Officials now has tenative plans for a rules interpretation meeting to be held in the University of Vermont Gymnasium on December 7

At 1.30 P.M. on that date the board will hold its annual business meeting which will be followed at 3.00 P.M. by the interpretation exhibition. Last year Martin Souders of Milton, Mass., conducted the demonstration but this winter the board is sufficiently organized and has the competent men to carry on the work itself

The Vermont freshman basketball squad under Howard A. Prentice, coach, will supply two teams to give an exhibition game and rules interpretation. Mr. Prentice together with John Lambert, president of the board, who is working for a master's degree in psychology at the present time at U. V. M., Hyman Levine, and Archie Post will conduct the affair.

Referees, coaches and players throughout the State, as well as the general public, are invited to attend the exhibition and ask questions concerning the rules. The referees and coaches will be guests of the University at the varsity game at night

Similar meetings will probably be held in various remote sections of the State, pending the assured success of this one

Alma Farr, '30, is hostess at the Practice House this week; Dorothy Guerney, '30, assistant hostess; Elenor Wood, '31, and Helen Taylor, '31 cooks; Sylvia Hadden, '32, waitress, and Laura Johnson, '33, helper

Three Pacificisms

Mr. Joshi declared there are three types of pacifism negative, positive and benevolent. Negative pacifism is illustrated by the behavior of the Roman fathers when the Huns sacked the city. The soldiers found the fathers sitting in their senate chamber offering no resistance and paying no attention to the warriors, until one of the invaders, more intelligent or more courageous than his fellows, ventured to pull the beard of the senator nearest him. He was fiercely struck in the face by the affronted elder, but the spell of awe was broken and the occupants of the chamber were killed.

Positive pacifism is illustrated in Cicero's orations against Catiline. Cicero was possessed of sufficient influence to have Catiline removed by force, but he chose the more memorable way of oratory, just as efficient, yet undeniably pacific.

In the teachings of Christ is shown the benevolent pacifism. Christ told his disciples if any man desired their coats, to give him their coats also.

Kiang, Speaking at the Conference

Kiang, in the last address of the conference, speaking immediately after Joshi reviewed the various religions and philosophies which have held sway over China and closed with an eloquent plea for the idealistic philosophy best represented by the Christian religion, as opposed to the materialistic school which leads to atheism.

Confucius was the first and greatest of all Chinese teachers, Mr. Kiang said. He had a practical philosophy. He exhorted the people to purify their hearts and be upright. He made a profound impression on Chinese thinking and his teachings have been handed down by word of mouth for 2,000 years. His followers have a set of rules to govern all human conduct. They think that by following these rules they can become perfect. They have a rule much like our Golden Rule which says: "Don't do to others what you don't want others to do to you."

Taoism is a religion opposed to energetic reform. It teaches that people must be satisfied with things as they exist and never try to change anything. This results in inactivity, doing just what is necessary to sustain life. Taoism teaches to be humble. They believe in the teaching that "the meek shall inherit the earth." They think that ambition is the greatest crime in the world.

Buddhism is another religion which has a strong hold on China. This teaches the beauties of life.

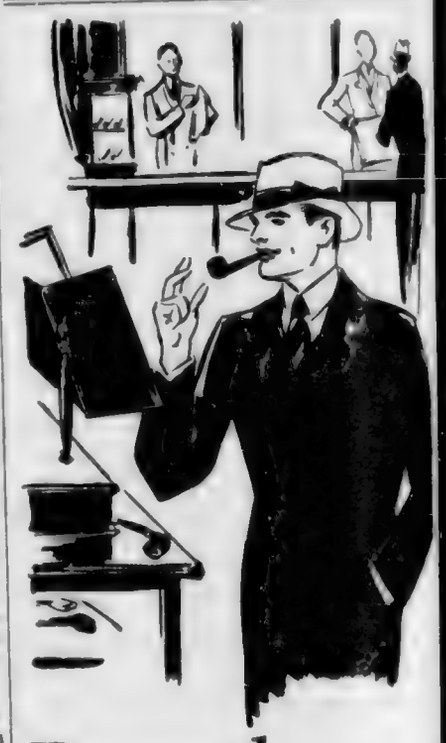
There is a strong youth movement now in progress in China to reform the country politically and socially. There is a war of two groups on in China, the materialistic group and the idealistic group.

The materialistic group argues that China should have a big navy and army, railroads and automobiles and take a big place in the world of commerce, thus asserting its strength. They say that China has had too much of ethics and religion, which have made the nation weak.

NOTICES

Bluestockings, women's literary society, will hold a regular monthly social meeting on Tuesday, November 4, at 8 o'clock, at the Kappa Alpha Theta house on South Prospect Street.

Professor Bennett announces a rehearsal of the University String Orchestra on Tuesday afternoon, November 5, at 4 p.m. The University Orchestra will rehearse on Thursday, November 7, at 4 p.m. in the Music Building.



Eta Sigma Phi will meet tomorrow evening, at 8 o'clock, in 34 South College.

Try-outs for all freshman women interested in debating will be held Thursday, Novermber 7, 4.00 p.m. in the Old Mill Chapel. Be prepared to speak for five minutes on either side of any question. Inasmuch as these try-outs will be the basis of selection for both the freshman and varsity teams, a large tournout is expected.

Appointments for the individual photographs for the 1931 Ariel must be made at once. The work starts next Tuesday. A table is in the Old Mill, and all juniors, junior Medics, and second-year T. Tr. may make their appointments there.

There will be a meeting of the Grey Friars literary society Thursday night, November 7, at 8 p.m. Manuscripts are to be read.

MORTAR BOARD RATES WOMEN'S DORMITORIES

As a result of inspection of the women's dormitories by members of Mortar Board, with regard to the relative ratings of living conditions, the following percentages have been accorded to the various dormitories: For the week of October 21: Allen House 90 percent; Campus House 85 percent; Grassmount 85 percent; Kappa Alpha Theta House 95 percent; Rand House 95 percent; Redstone 85 percent; Robinson Hall 85 percent; and Slade Cottage 90 percent.

For the week beginning October 28 Allen House had an average of 90 percent; Campus House 75 percent; Grassmount 85 percent; Kappa Alpha Theta House 95 percent; Rand House 95 percent; Redstone 90 percent; Robinson Hall 85 percent; and Slade Cottage 90 percent.

The relative ratings of each dormitory will be published in the CYNIC each week.

DISCUSS MISCARRIAGES OF JUSTICE AT SUNDAY LIBERAL CLUB MEETING

Members Discuss Famous Sacco-Vanzetti Case, Mooney-Billings Affair and North Carolina Strike Arrests

"Some Miscarriages of Justice" was the topic for discussion at the regular Sunday meeting of the Liberal Club this week. Under the direction of Dr. C. C. Adams, of the First Church, different students discussed the now famous cases of Sacco and Vanzetti, Mooney and Billings and the labor crisis at Gastonia, N. C.

Dr. Adams is a member of the committee which is seeking to keep alive the Sacco-Vanzetti case. John Dewey, Vermont graduate and internationally recognized as the greatest living philosopher, is a leader in this movement.

Class Prejudice in Sacco Case

In the Sacco-Vanzetti case it was shown that there was no real evidence to convict the two men. According to Massachusetts law the guilt of accused persons must be beyond doubt. In this case Governor Fuller appointed an investigation committee but no real evidence has yet been found. Yet the two men were executed, victims of class prejudice.

Two trade-unionists, Thomas J. Mooney and Warren K. Billings, are serving the thirteenth year of life sentences in California prisons. They were convicted on perjured testimony of planting the bomb that killed several persons during a Preparedness Day parade in San Francisco in 1916. The evidence of perjury, disclosed after their conviction, could not be reviewed in the courts. But, Dr. Adams said, the judge and jury who convicted them have declared them innocent in the light of the disclosures. So have the police officials in the case. The trial judge is the chief sponsor of the pardon applications, which are now before Governor Young. Successive governors, however, have refused to pardon the men because powerful capitalistic interests in California are opposed to their release. Everyone who has studied the evidence knows the two men did not commit the crime for which they are serving life sentences. Yet Mooney and Billings are still in prison.

The textile strike at Charlotte, N. C., has developed into the most bitter strife that has yet been stirred up in the south. In the Gastonia region several atrocities were committed during picketing demonstrations.

Dr. Adams said that the educational system of today is such that the student gets very little knowledge of the social problems and conditions of the time. This is due in large part, he believes, to the fact that colleges are attended largely by members of the capitalist class. As a result the tendency is for all education to become capitalistic in nature and especially in outlook.

Next Sunday the discussion will be continued and other similar social problems will be brought up for discussion. All students interested are invited to attend these meetings.

TWO OPEN HOUSE NIGHTS REMAINING

Confusion Attending Sudden Changes in Dates Does Not Dampen Activity of Freshmen, Who Visit Houses in Large Numbers

TUESDAY AND THURSDAY DATES FOR NEXT WEEK

Much confusion has resulted this week from the late re-arrangement in the open house program of the fraternities. Announcement of the change from Wednesday and Saturday nights to Tuesday and Thursday nights came so late Monday evening that a change could not be made in the CYNIC without causing a delayed appearance of the paper on the campus.

President Warren H. Burr of the Interfraternity Council in conference with President Bailey, Dean Swift and Dean Hills, secretary of the University Council, late Monday afternoon decided that a change in plans should be made in order that there be five open house nights before the rushing period. It was thought by many under the original plan that no open house at all would be held Saturday night with so many leaving town to spend the extended week-end at their homes.

Record Attendance Reported

Whether or not any freshmen took it upon themselves to visit fraternity houses last Wednesday night is not known. Although considerable confusion and misunderstanding did exist, the fact that so many freshmen did visit the fraternity houses Tuesday night shows how closely the first year men are following collegiate events.

Nearly all of the Greek-letter societies have reported record attendance of visitors on their open house nights thus far this year despite this week's sudden change in plans. Only two more open opportunities remain for freshmen to visit the different houses and become more closely acquainted with the members. The dates for next week are Tuesday, Novembr 12, and Thursday, November 14.

SENIOR HONORARIES TO DIRECT CAMPAIGN HERE

Boulder and Mortar Board Sponsor Red Cross Drive at University Beginning Next Saturday

Boulder Society and Mortar Board have been chosen to direct the annual Red Cross drive on the hill. At the present time the annual canvass for Red Cross funds is under way in the city. It was thought that the University students would be interested in the work that the Red Cross is doing and contribute their share as temporary residents of Burlington to help swell the fund.

Alumni Secretary Directs Campaign

John O. Baxendale, former secretary of the Alumni Council, is sponsoring the drive among college students this year. Local men were not outstandingly successful in their canvass of the fraternity houses and women's dormitories last year. The plan this year is to have the two senior honorary societies, who are closer to the student body than any other organization in Burlington, carry on the drive.

A table will be placed in the corridor of the Old Mill, Saturday morning, November 9, and all who care to contribute are asked to leave their donations with the student in charge. A member of Mortar Board will solicit the contributions of each of the women's dormitories, Friday night, November 8. A member of Gold Key Society will solicit the gifts of each of the fraternity houses on the same night.

It is expected that the down-town drive will be helped considerably by the donations of the students. Every student is expected to aid in the work of the Red Cross.

FRESHMEN AGAIN ARE WARNED BY GOLD KEY

Gold Key wishes to announce a pained feeling caused by certain first year men. Freshmen are not all obeying the rules as they should, and Gold Key feels sorry for them. Freshmen will also feel sorry when the next Gold Key party comes around, and then too will their names be made public.

Attention is called to the rule that if a freshman loses his cap, he must wear some sort of head covering until he negotiates the purchase of a new one.

PERKINS IS PHILOSOPHY CLUB SPEAKER AT NEXT MEETING TUESDAY EVE

Will Address Society on the Investigations of the Vermont Commission on Country Life

Professor Perkins, professor of biological evolution and related sciences at Vermont, and who is secretary of the State Eugenics Survey and assistant director of the Vermont Commission on Country Life, will speak before the John Dewey Club next Tuesday evening, November 12, at the Vermonters' Clubhouse, on the "Philosophy of Research."

In his talk, Professor Perkins will touch upon practical problems which have come up before the Vermont Commission on Country Life in the research which it is now conducting into various aspects of rural conditions in the state, religious, social, educational, literary and agricultural. However, Professor Perkins will stress, not so much the results of the work of the Commission, as the purposeful considerations which enter into the investigation.

Second Meeting of Year

Next Tuesday's meeting is the second to be held by the club this year. For those students who are not familiar with the John Dewey Club, mention needs to be made here that it is the philosophy and psychology club of the University. It is a departmental organization, being connected with the combined philosophy and psychology department of the University. It was named the John Dewey Club in honor of its "patron saint." John Dewey, an alumnus of the University of Vermont and at the present time outstanding among American philosophers. The purpose of the John Dewey Club is to acquaint students with various practical problems of a philosophical or psychological nature. Anyone interested in philosophical, psychological and related social problems is eligible to membership in the organization. Meetings are held twice a month, on alternating Tuesday evenings, unless otherwise specificated. Next Tuesday's meeting begins at eight o'clock.

VERMONTERS LEAD ENROLLMENT LISTS

Administration Figures Show 790 Students Out of 1,210 Natives of Vermont State—Large Drop Indicated in Student Numbers

ONLY MEDICAL COLLEGE INCREASES ENROLLMENT

Enrollment statistics at the University for the current year show the State of Vermont outnumbering in representation all other states combined, with a total of 790 students enrolled out of 1,210. A comparison with the total enrollment for last year shows a decline of 115 in the student body. Figures for 1928-29 showed 474 students registered from outside the State of Vermont; this year's records disclose only 420 enrolled from without the state.

Decline of 72 in Arts and Science

A comparison of this year's figures with last year's reveals the following results:

In the Arts and Sciences College in 1928-29 there were 421 men and 381 women, making a total of 802 students. In the same course in 1929-30 there are 379 men and 351 women, making a total of 730, or 72 students less than last year's total.

The College of Medicine in 1928-29 had 132 men and 9 women enrolled, making a total of 141 students. Last year's enrollment was less than this year's, which is 141 men and 10 women, a total of 156, or 15 more than last year's total.

In the College of Engineering in 1928-29 there were 139 men enrolled. In 1929-30 there are 121 men, last year's total thus exceeding this year's by 18 students.

In the College of Agriculture in 1928-29 there were 33 men and 81 women. This year's total enrollment is 98 students, 32 men and 66 women, or 16 less than last year's total of 114 students.

The total number of students enrolled in all courses in 1928-29, exclusive of Teacher Training, was 727 men and 471 women, in all 1,198, in comparison with this year's total enrollment of 678 men and 427 women or 1,105 in all. The difference between last year's enrollment and this year's is thus 93.

Geographical Comparisons Interesting

The geographical distribution of the students of the University of Vermont is as follows:

California in 1928-29 had 1 man enrolled. In 1929-30 1 man and 1 woman.

Connecticut in 1928-29 had 59 men and 39 women, a total of 98 students. This year there are 63 men and 34 women, a total of 97.

Delaware, 1 woman both last year and this.

Thirteen Fraternities Constitute List Of Academic Greek Letter Societies

Thirteen fraternities, nine national and four local, constitute the roll of men's Greek letter societies of the academic colleges of the University. These, with the dates of their founding are:

Lambda Iota (local) 1836; Sigma Phi, 1845; Delta Psi (local) 1850; Phi Delta Theta, 1879; Alpha Tau Omega, 1887; Kappa Sigma, 1893; Sigma Nu 1898; Phi Mu Delta, 1918; Tau Epsilon Phi, 1919; Zeta Chi (local) 1920. Sigma Alpha Epsilon (founded as Sigma Alpha Chi) 1922; Sigma Delta (local) 1923; and Phi Sigma Delta, 1928.

Brief History of Fraternities

Lambda Iota.—This society was founded April 23, 1836, at the University of Vermont. The badge of the society is of gold and represents an owl perched on a pillar between the Greek letters "L" and "I." Among the more prominent members of the fraternity have been: Governors Cross, Farnham and Smith, of Vermont, and John Heman Converse, president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works. The society owns a house built in 1911, worth $50,000.

Sigma Phi, Vermont Alpha, was founded at the University in 1845. There are ten active chapters with a total of 3,236 members in the various colleges of the land. Among the alumni of the Vermont chapter was M. H. Buckham, former president of the University of Vermont.

Delta Psi.—This fraternity was founded at the University of Vermont in 1850. It has a number of prominent alumni, among whom is Darwin P. Kingsley, president of the New York Life Insurance Company. The fraternity owns a chapter house valued at $22,000.

Phi Delta Theta, Alpha of Vermont, was founded in 1879. There are ninety active chapters with a membership of 28,883 students. Following are

CROSS-COUNTRY SQUAD OFF FOR ST. STEPHEN'S

Seven Men Making Trip—Wilder Making Best Time—Middlebury Next Week

Tonight the U. V. M. varsity cross country team will leave on the sleeper for Annandale-on-the-Hudson where they will contend with the varsity squad of St. Stephen's College on the following day.

Little is known of the strength of the St. Stephen's aggregation and the U. V. M. boys certainly will be obliged to fight hard to win, for last week's Frosh-Saranac meet quite obviously reveals the potential powers of an un known element.

Only seven of the eleven men on the squad were chosen to make the trip, due to lack of funds, and as this is the first trip of any considerable length that the team has ever made, the competition for placement was quite keen. Last Tuesday, Coach "Archie" Post held the time trials for elimination and the following seven men were selected, listed according to times made: Wilder, Varney, Leach, Joslin, Bachl, Stark, and Barker. This will be the first varsity meet this year and the boys certainly have been working hard, sincerely and unmindful of the adverse weather. Most of the above men were on last year's frosh team and they show promise of good results. Wilder placed first in the Frosh-Middlebury meet last year and also seemed to be doing remarkably well in practice. During the time trials he made our own three-mile course in 16 min. 8 sec. The other six men also showed up very wel' coming in close upon Wilder's heels. Of course, they are expected to do much better in the actual meet if the weather is not as bad as it was last Tuesday.

The outcome of this meet will show just where the team stands and just what is needed for the most important meet of the year which will decide the interstate championship—the Middlebury-Vermont contest. Norwich has no varsity squad to enter into this, but it will be represented by its frosh team which will enter in the triangular meet of the frosh squads of the three colleges concerned. In the future a triangular meet of the varsity teams is expected.

CAT'S MEOW

—SPORTING EDITOR—

I M HALLIGAN, Vermont's star halfback, is definitely out of football for the remainder of the season with a leg injury. He sure could tuck away a mean pigskin. Hope it won't affect his basketball playing.

Tilley was the only lineman able to hold his own at Conn. Aggies last week. Consequently he is expected to start at guard tomorrow

Capt. Levine is in good enough condition to play. Unless the coaches plan to save him for Middlebury next week he will see service tomorrow. Especially if the game is close.

All we can do for the Kittens is wish them the best of luck at Middlebury this afternoon.

The first touch football game of the second round will be played this p.m. on the back campus. Eight teams still remain. They're all good so the rest of the contests should be fast.

Norwich started her final drive on Monday for the state championship with hopes high of defeating Middlebury tomorrow. A victory over the blue eleven would give the Cadets four wins in seven starts. With the exception of Coane, all the Norwich players will be available for service against Coach Beck's eleven and with Waining in the backfield should give their opponents a real battle if not a setback. The duel between Waining and Guarnaccia will be interesting.

Although he was pretty well bottled up at Yale, Al Marsters, Dartmouth star, brought his season's total to 109 points, the highest in the country. Marsters' total is eighteen points better than that rolled up by Gene McEver of Tennessee. Too bad that flash is through with the gridiron on account of a broken bone in his back.

Here's a good one for those who delight in comparison of scores—Florida beats Georgia, Georgia beats Yale, Yale beats Army, Harvard holds Army to a tie and then beats Florida. Try and make anything out of that

THREE MORE FOOTBALL GAMES ARE COMPLETED

Phi Delts Beat Delta Psi, S. A. E. Defeats A. T. O., and Sigma Phi Beats Sigma Delta—

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday six fraternities battled for touch football honors on the back campus. Monday the Phi Delts took the Delta Psis into camp 18-6. Tuesday, S. A. E. romped away from A. T. O. with an extra touchdown beating them 18-12. Last but not least Sigma Phi trampled Sigma Delta into the dirt to the tune of 64-6.

Perrigard and Doten were the stars of the Phi Delt outfit. Perrigard scored one touchdown and Doten two. Mercier and Tomassetti were the winning combination for S. A. E., dazzling their opponents with their fleetness. Tomassetti made two and Mercier one touchdown. Tupper for the Sigma Phis covered himself with stardust. His runs and passes were spectacular. This boy should do well on the varsity.

All in all it was an exciting three days for the fraternities involved. The rest of the week will see some more stars in action for their respective fraternities.

This afternoon Lambda Iota and Phi Delta Theta, both winners in the first round matches in League II are scheduled to meet. From all indications this match should prove very interesting, as both teams are busy perfecting their offense.

Wednesday, November 13, will find Kappa Sigma battling the winner of the Phi Mu Delta-Tau Epsilon Phi tilt in League I.

Thursday, November 14, is the date set for a League I contest between S. A. E. and Phi Sigma Delta.

UNION, CONQUERED BY VERMONT, BEAT R. P. I.

Tomorrow afternoon on Centennial Field the Catamounts will set out to use their claws on Rensselaer in what promises to be an interesting football game. Vermont has certainly been having a rough time of it this season with a large number of injuries for a small squad but now prospects appear better than at any time before this year, excepting the fact that "Tim" Halligan will be in the stands. After several disheartening setbacks the Vermont fans can look forward to tomorrow's game with optimism. If the same fighting spirit is displayed as in the Union game, Vermont ought to attain the same result

The Green and Gold record is indeed nothing about which to be very boastful, but on the other hand R. P. I. can not show one much better. A win over Union and defeats by New York University, Yale, Boston University, Norwich and Connecticut Aggies are the results that Vermont has to compare with Rensselaer. The latter has two victories which were over Long Island U. and Cooper Union, two relatively weak teams. On the other hand, Clarkson, Rochester, Union and C. C. of N. Y. have all triumphed over the engineers from Troy, N. Y. One illuminating fact is that Union defeated R. P. I. by the score of 7 to 2 and lost to the Catamounts 13 to 7. Last year Rensselaer succeeded in winning over Vermont by a small margin in a game played at Troy.

VARIOUS HONORARIES IN EXISTENCE AT VERMONT

Tau Kappa Alpha is a national debating organization. Its members are men and women who have participated in intercollegiate debates. Franklin A. Sears, manager of debate, is president and Edith Thomas is secretary.

Pi Delta Rho is an honorary journalistic society composed of men prominent on the business or literary side of Vermont publications. While, at the present time, its functions are limited, the members are considering ways of assisting in the publicity work of the University. E. Henry Powell is president of the society, with Stuart S. Corbin as secretary.

The men's honorary dramatic society, Wig and Buskin, has, for its members, men of the three upper classes who have taken part in one or more of the college plays. Union with Masque and Sandal, women's honorary dramatic society, is now being considered. Both societies select the plays presented by the University players. Herrick M. Macomber is the president of the men's organization. In Masque and Sandal, Mabel Freemann is president, and Carolyn Whitney secretary.

Grey Friars is the most active of the honorary societies. Its membership is recruited from men interested in writing. Robert Stewart is president, and Edmour Germain secretary, of the society.

Scabbard and Blade is a national military society which takes its members from seniors in the advanced R. O. T. C. course. D. J. Vignone is president this year.

DORM PRESIDENTS HEAR OF STUDENT UNION TRIPS

The Student Union delegates who recently investigated the operation of student Union systems at various [illegible] colleges spoke on different phases of their investigations, at a meeting held by Deans Patterson and Whitman for the dormitory presidents last Tuesday evening. The students making the trip were Dorothy Dailey, Marion Hill and Margaret Stanley.

Professor Terrill to Attend Land Grant Colleges Meet

Prof. Bertha M. Terrill of the Home Economics Department leaves today for Chicago where she will attend the annual meeting of the Land Grant Colleges. From there she will go to Beloit, Wis., where she will speak at a meeting of the American Association of University Women.

Dean Brown of Yale will conduct the vesper service in Ira Allen Chapel Sunday, November 10, at 4.00 p.m.

W. A. A. ELECTION WILL TAKE PLACE SHORTLY

Elections for freshman representatives on W. A. A. Council will take place very soon. The following freshmen have been nominated: Juliette Marston, Carolyn Taft and Mary Sleep.

W. A. A. is now campaigning for new members and all those who have sufficient points for membership should see their class representative. Freshmen should hand in their points at the gym office to Estabel Perelman, '30. All those having fifty points or more are eligible for W. A. A. membership

PEP RALLY AND PARADE ON EVE OF MIDDLEBURY GAME COMES ON FRIDAY

Torchlight Parade Leaves Gym at 7.15 Headed by Band—Main Rally to Take Place in City Hall Park

Under the direction of Key and Serpent, one of the most stirring events of the football season, the annual pep rally and torchlight parade, before the Middlebury game, will be held Friday evening. This year it will be in the form of a torchlight parade starting at the gym at 7.15, headed by the band, and proceeding downtown to the City Hall Park where the main rally will be held.

There will be songs and cheers led by "Phil" Perry and "Bunk" Bolles, assisted by the crack R. O. T. C. band under the direction of "Joe" Lechnyr. Speeches will be given by Coaches Rattan and Tully, Manager Macomber, Captain "Bump" Levine, and Dr. "Mickey" McMahon. It is hoped that every student, both men and women, will turn out and by their pep and noise show members of the team that they are behind them to "Bury Middlebury."

As an added feature this year, the freshmen will make signs with all of the slogans on them, to carry in the parade. Moreover, every freshman will be required to participate and attendance will be taken.

HOLD FIRST REHEARSAL OF PLAY "DEAR BRUTUS"

The first rehearsal of the fall play "Dear Brutus," by James Barrie, was held last Wednesday evening, at the "Vermonters' Clubhouse." The time was devoted chiefly to reading and thoroughly acquainting the cast with the play. Further rehearsals for the play, which is to be presented December 12 at the Strong theater, will be held tonight and Friday. The cast of the production is:

Mrs. Coade, Doris Kibbe, '32, of Rockville, Conn.; Lady Caroline, Beverly Householder, '30, of Burlington; Mrs. Dearth, Kathryn Rauh, '32, of South Orange, N. J.; Margaret, Priscilla Davis, '33, of Northfield; Johanna Trout, Annette Rosenberg, '30, of Burlington; Mrs. Purdie, Margaret Martin, '32, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Mr. Dearth, Herrick Macomber, '30, of Burlington; Lob, Robert Jenks, '32, of Burlington; Maley, Robert Aiken, '31, of Burlington; Mr. Purdie, Harvey Butterfield, '31, of Burlington.

PRESS CLUB MAKES ALL ASSIGNATIONS FOR WEEK

Frances E. French, '31, chairman of try-outs, designated the following members of Press Club for work this week, at a social meeting of the organization last Friday at Robinson Hall:

Tuesday, November 12, Agnes R. Shaw, '31, and Hope K. Ranslow, '32; Wednesday, November 13, Cora I. Humphrey, '32; Thursday, November 14, Helen M. Cunningham, '32; Friday, November 15, Frances E. French, '31.

Cora Humphrey and Helen Cunningham served as hostesses of the meeting.

The Rummage Sale, held under the auspices of the Home Economics Club at the Star Hose House on North Winooski Avenue, was very successful, over $35 being realized.

REQUIRE TWO TRY-OUTS TO PICK TEAM

Judges Agree on Only One Selection for Freshman Women's Debating Team in First Trials Friday

SIX WOMEN PARTICIPATE IN SECOND OF TRY-OUTS

Only one woman, Laura Johnson of Wallingford, was chosen to the freshman women's debating team as a result of the try-outs last Friday afternoon. So closely did the judges rate the other debaters that a second try-out was arranged for yesterday afternoon, with the six leading contenders for team honors participating. The results of this second try-out have not yet been made known. The women entered were Pauline Bigelow, of Bellows Falls; Sylvia Boyd, of Wilmington; Helen Goddard, of Cohoes, N. Y.; Marion Kiel, of South Orange, N. J.; Caroline Taft, of Wallingford; and Margaret Tower, of Burlington. The judges at both try-outs, were Prof. L. D. Meredith, of the Economics Department; and L. S. Hartwell, of the History Department.

Use Two Trial Systems

Two different systems were used in the try-outs. At the first, each contestant spoke five minutes in behalf of a proposition of her choice. At the close each woman returned to deliver a three-minute rebuttal against her original case. Yesterday, however, the six participants were paired off, three against three, in a debate on the question, "Resolved, that the Co-educational College is more successful than the segregated type." Sides were arbitrarily assigned and each speaker took part in both construction and rebuttal. The jury system proved to be the most fruitful source of propositions in the first contest, no less than three speaking on the requirement for a unanimous verdict in jury trials. One of these speeches was that of Miss Johnson, first candidate to be named to the team. A phase of co-ed regulations inspired two other talks, the problem of the younger generation and the decline in the production of poetry furnishing the other topics.

Mostly Experienced Debaters

Of the contestants, all but one or two are experienced in the forensic art. Almost all have participated in the debates of the Vermont High School Debating League sponsored

HILLS, TUPPER, CROCKETT POPULAR AS SPEAKERS

Faculty members have been busy the past week filling speaking engagements outside of Burlington. Prof. Frederick Tupper, of the English department, Dean J. L. Hills, of the College of Agriculture, and Walter H. Crockett, director of publicity, have been particularly active.

Professor Tupper went to New York last ——— to address the New York Alumni Association one of the largest bodies of Vermont alumni in the country. A second alumni group will hear from the faculty of their Alma Mater when Dean Hills speaks November 14 before the Hartford Alumni Association.

Dean Hills represented the University of Vermont at the inauguration of the new president of the Connecticut Agricultural College at Storrs last Saturday. Mr. Crockett has had several engagements to fill recently, especially among Vermont high schools, where he is well known for his work in the encouragement of school publications. Mr Crockett was chairman of the Conference of High School Editors held at the University two weeks ago.

The Faculty Club, in which all members of the Vermont faculty claim membership, heard Arthur C. Eaton, of the New England Power Co., speak on "Meeting Power Demands of Industrial New England," at a meeting Saturday, November 9, in the Kiffa Club roms.

MACHINE GUNS, RIFLES AND FLAGS DECORATE AT MILITARY FORMAL

Scabbard and Blade Presents Novel Features at First Formal Dance of the Year

Under the chairmanships of D. J. Vignone, Scabbard and Blade, honorary senior military society, held a most successful dance last Friday evening in the Burlington High School gymnasium. The hall was artistically decorated with large flags of different nations draped around the sides, and several machine guns and other implements of war placed around the orchestra

As the sonorous moonlight dances were taking place the dazzling glare of a revolving spotlight would linger caressingly for a moment on a youthful military-clad student with his evening-gowned partner and then flit away to glare on another woman no less brilliantly-gowned with her white-front tuxedo-clad escort

The chaperons were Lieutenant-Colonel and Mrs. F. F. Black, Captain and Mrs. W. V. Rattan; Captain and Mrs. W. E. Lauer, and Captain and Mrs. K. L. Berry. The Thirteen Medicine Men, an orchestra composed namely of medical students furnished the music for the evening. As the chairman had predicted, the dancers enjoyed all the numbers played by this orchestra, a newcomer in the music field.

Members of Scabbard and Blade

The following are members of Scabbard and Blade: A. O. Aronson, of Proctor; C. W. Capron of Bellows Falls; C. N. DeRose, of Northampton, Mass.; H. B. Levine, of Burlington; R. A. Lawrence, of West

THORNE AND DEROSE CATCH WINNING PASSES

Uncorking a forward passing attack in the second half of the game with Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute on Centennial Field Saturday afternoon the Vermont eleven staged a comeback and won its second home game of the season 12 to 7.

Early in the second quarter Rensselaer ran and plunged its way to a 7 to 0 lead. In the third period Gardner made some substantial gains off tackle and caught a pass which put the Catamounts in position to score on a 25-yard pass from Winant to

He caught one for a 20-yard gain after Mace had reeled off a sensational 40-yard end run. The stage was set to clinch the game. Winant heaved the sphere from the R. P. I. forward line across the gridiron into the end zone where is lodged in the waiting arms of Charlie DeRose after traveling a distance of about 60 yards to bring to a close a spectacular aerial comeback.

"Mighty Good Bunch," Says Dormitory Janitor of Freshman Class

"Got a mighty good bunch this year," avowed Mr Abe Langworthy, janitor at Converse Hall, freshman dormitory, for over twenty years, as a CYNIC reporter asked his opinion of the residents in Converse this year.

"But isn't it a much smaller bunch than in previous years?" inquired the reporter. "I understand that there are less than 60 living here this year."

"Yes, you're right, just about 57, and in previous years the registration has averaged 87."

"Then how do you account for the drop?"

"Oh," replied Mr. Langworthy, "it's on account of the restriction caused by Mr. Wilbur's fund. They had to cut down a few this year, you know."

"What nationalities are represented here?" asked the inquiring reporter.

"Well, let me see. There's German, Italian, Greek, I guess that's all or no, there's Irish, and, of course, Yankees."

"What was the largest number of students that ever lived in the dorm?"

"One hundred and fifteen—that was the year that the Phi Mu Delts had the entire North Wing. And they sure did have it fixed up slick."

"I don't suppose you happen to have any statistics regarding who's taking what course and the representation of the different states do you?"

"Why, yes, I was figuring up that part last week. Let's see, where did I put that paper?—in here—no; oh, here it is, down in this drawer. I'll read them to you. I have a little table all made out.

Commerce and Economics	19
General Science	12
Literary Scientific	6
Civil Engineering	5
Pre-medical	4
Electrical Engineering	3
Chemistry	2

Mechanical Engineering	1

"So, you see," the janitor continued, "the 'commerce an' neckers' are way ahead of the others, though I don't know the reason why."

"Well, that is interesting," remarked the reporter. "Now how about the states?"

"Here they are":

Massachusetts	22
Vermont	15
Connecticut	11
New York	5
Maine	1
Virginia	1
District of Columbia	1

"Well, thanks a lot," sighed the reporter, as he rose to his feet. "You have given me some very interesting figures—but say, I have often wondered how you managed to get along so well with the fellows. How do you do it?"

"Ha-ha!" chuckled the janitor, "I guess I've had some pretty good boys here, and I've never had a great deal of trouble. Perhaps it's due to my discipline, perhaps to the boys—I don't know. But these boys, some of them a long way from home, often need a little advice—you know" and here he leaned forward confidentially "I've seen many a good student go to his ruin because of wine and women and I'm always willing to help the boys out with a little advice."

"Well, that certainly is fine of you, and I'm sure you deserve a great deal of credit for the work you've done here. Good-by."

"Good-by....Come in again any time."

SUCCESS—TO WHAT IS IT DUE?

Campus Comment

At Leipzig there has been established a chair of Publishing and the Book Trade. Already the courses have proved a pronounced success, and provision has been made for permanent endowment supported by the whole German publishing world.

An extension of the course will make it cover international publishing and bookselling, with special reference to the English and American markets.

"This new chair," says the English Publisher's Circular, "is another example of the thoroughness of the Germans. Students begin the course with such subjects as paper-making, paper trade, printing, book-binding, illustrating, and the art of reproduction. Then come author's rights, specialized markets for various descriptions of books, classification, indexing, librarian's duties, periodicals, and lesser subjects." Included also is an introduction to bookselling.

The courses are not confined to students of the University, but can be attended by publishers and their staffs, librarians, illustrators, and book-lovers.

Enrolled students after two years are entitled to present a thesis and receive the degree of Doctor of Publishing.

The modern student must attend a school whose graduates have the greatest social prestige. For it is by the social ladder that he must climb if he is to attain success in this present-day life. The modern educational system is busy furnishing him just this sort of training. That we should continue to call its mechanical unit an educational system is of course an anachronism. Learning has bowed gracefully to the greater god.—"Daily Illini."

THE BOARDING HOUSE REACH

By Ex-Converse Hall

TO BIG BOY RAWSON

Last evening while the roommate [illegible] Charlie said as he stepping [illegible] Jimmy Rawson and his pal [illegible] come up to the house. Here's the [illegible] the boys Rom cooked for us [illegible] pig very tasty strong.

[illegible] sweet potato tall
[illegible] and the pewee
[illegible] and maid
[illegible] and the power
[illegible] make 'em fall
[illegible] it seems to me
[illegible] that isn't all

You've got a grin
That's clean and straight,
The kind that makes
Em step and wait
The Big Boy win
No one could hate
And even Big Boy hand-
Shake sure is great

You've sure gone big
In the boxing game,
At twenty years
You've spread your name,
And the nation's sheets
Echo your fame
And you're still plain
Larry just the same

You never boast 'bout
The guys you've crowned,
And you never bragg
Bout that winning round.
And when cleaner gents
Are ever found
I hope that Boxing
Is still around

You told us about
The car you ran.
You said you were
A football fan
You never said,
"I have—," "I can—,"
You showed yourself
To be a man.

You sure don't look
Like a fighting pug
You haven't the face
Of the killer thug.
Nor the mauled up
Type of fighter's mug,
Nor the racking walk
Of conceit smug

We like a man
Who has gone his way
Whom the big shots
Pick as champ some day;
Who with boyish grin
Can sit up and say,
"Gee! I'd give a lot
To be champ some day."

If we can pick
From the human race
The stuff that's in one
From words and face,
Then here's the legend
That I will trace,
Big Boy won't follow,
He'll set the pace.

In life's battle
Tough blows are struck;
We have to punch and
We have to duck
You've roadster speed
And power of truck,
Big Boy, here's to you,
Lots of luck!

Economics 10—The Insurance Problem

Rubinow, Social Insurance:—

Statistics show that relatively few accidents occur during sleep.

Many workmen are injured because they insist upon fooling around the buzz saws

Causes and Explanations of industrial accidents—

1. Animals—white mules. Barking Dogs. throat-irritating Camels. biting White Owls. Louisville slugger bats and social hounds.

Then there are:—

2. Explosions—against [illegible] laziness, against long accounting assignments, against the kind of a girl, against the kind of a boy, etc.

We next find:—

3. Fall of persons—falling down elevator shafts while watching other shafts, falling down stairs when there are no stairs (known as Montreal mishaps), falling in love, falling down on tests and I Flu Down and Go Boom

We must consider:—

4. Falling Objects—Wilful or malicious dropping of [illegible] on the heads of innocent bystanders, falling indexes [illegible] of living (see Fisher in the Wall Street Journal [illegible] forgot to publish his picture), falling birds or parts of birds, falling darkness, [illegible] lence and 67⅞ others.

Turn to the problem of:—

5. Hand tools—all tools used by hand. Great care must be exercised here.

There are many:—

6. Harmful substances—tea, coffee, milk, Toddy, Instant Postum, Clicquot and light wines and beer. (Footnote: Read "That Night at the Merriam" or "The Gold Coast of [illegible] Street, Barrie.")

Accidents are caused by:—

7. Vehicles—automobiles, [illegible] roadsters, wheelbarrows, cement mixers, Steam [illegible] Rollers, Burlington [illegible] and Champlain fairies.

Experts class 53 distinct poisons in industry. Among these are:

1. Foremen.
2. Bosses.
3. Managers.
4. Efficiency experts.
5. Gate watchmen.

Pound, The Iron Man in Industry: "All work and no pay makes Jack very scarce."

What is true of engineering is true of various other lines of modern industry and professions. We take invaluable help for granted, with the thankless idea that "we're paying for it." As a matter of fact, many of us will never be worth enough "to pay for it"—available help is obviously mighty costly. Your professors are not looking for a profusion of thanks. The very fact that they're continually helping you shows that they have other motives in following their chosen profession. But just like everyone else, they do like appreciation—the very thing that is due them.

In the years to come when you've succeeded in doing rare things with machines and atoms, don't forget your old chemistry professor or your biographer what you owe him!

"Offensive fighting, since it is practically always for the purpose of protecting one's interests, is at least partially defensive. In a suggestive article Professor Wallace Craig has shown that fighting throughout the animal kingdom is in essence and purpose defensive in character. The animals have no inborn desire to fight. Considerations of this sort discredit the militarist's argument that war is inevitable because of an 'instinct to fight.' There is an innate urge to self-defense, but there is none for fighting in itself."—JOHN EDWARD ALLSOPP.

SAYINGS OF NAUTES

The Old Vermont Spirit

It is to me a cause of [illegible] overwhelming joy that at [illegible] there is that old spirit of [illegible] and loyalty that will not allow [illegible] rushing and advance pledging [illegible] condition at other colleges [illegible] thing terrific. When I was [illegible] one of the very exclusive [illegible] leges, Bryn Mawr (or Bryn [illegible] I heard it termed the other [illegible] was astounded at the conniv[illegible] ceit and unfairness among the [illegible] nal organizations. The Kap[illegible] had forty-three men pledged [illegible] they got out of high school [illegible] open defiance of authority [illegible] informal inish on the [illegible] house nights. Open-house [illegible] all very listless there after the [illegible] one or two, because all the [illegible] are already pledged up, and [illegible] don't go anywhere else but [illegible] pledging house, or if they [illegible] where, allow themselves to be [illegible] So no great effort is made at [illegible] tainment during open-house.

In reference to advance pledging [illegible] met one handsome athlete [illegible] yearling who showed me [illegible] pledge buttons; only one fraternity on the hill had not yet pledged [illegible] up, because he had not yet managed to meet the one member of that fraternity (the Alpha Alpha Alpha) [illegible] who, however, had three pledge buttons ready for him. I myself [illegible] by no means conspicuous, was picked up by the three houses to which I went, the Alpha Beta Gams, the Pi Rhos and the Phi Xi Psis.

The next year I transferred to Bavard Seminole Institute, where the conditions were worse if not destructive. As I stepped off the train a genial husky gentleman approached me. Extending his right hand he gripped mine firmly. In his uplifted left he held a pledge button. As I started to affix it I felt a sudden shock. Strong arms gripped me from behind and I was thrown to the pavement. When I came to four different fellows were having a fight near me. I noticed I had on an Iota Sigma pledge button. The first two gentlemen had been respectively, Zeta Theta and Sigma Sigma Sigma. The four fighters, as I gathered from their cries were Mu Nu, Omicron Omega Delta, Mu Mu, and Omega Omicron Kappa. I passed out again a minute later. When I came to the next time I had an unknown Red and Orange button on, and a policeman was standing over me. By my wonderful gift of gab I explained that my friend had gone for a cab and that, waiting for him I had grown sleepy, and had lain down in the street for a little rest. I think he doubted my veracity as I left the town the next morning early.

Vermonters Lack Punch to Stave Off Defeat—Score 20 to 0 at Half, 27 to 0 Final

MIDDLEBURY AND CADETS TIED FOR STATE TITLE

Coach Berry's freshman eleven [illegible] season Saturday when they were defeated by the Middlebury [illegible] to the tune of 27-0. The [illegible] could not stop the Blue and [illegible] rode that swept over them and were completely outclassed in every department of the game. The Panther [illegible] went on the offensive at the [illegible] whistle and from then on the [illegible] had their hands full. The [illegible] were too speedy for the Vermonters' taste. They skirted the ends [illegible] and again for long gains and were equally patent during the most of the game on their line plunges. The combination of speed and power of Middlebury ahead by twenty points at the end of the half, so Berry saved his men and sent in a second team, which managed to score another touchdown and the point after which they held the Kittens scoreless.

It was easy to see at the outset of the game that the Kittens didn't have a chance. They had neither the pep nor the driving force to push the ball across the line against a team like the one Middlebury placed on the field. Hoyle and Hartrey could not be stopped, and incidentally Hoyle handled his team like a veteran. He was really good and showed some pretty football. On the part of the Vermonters, Follett showed up well, especially on the defensive.

This game was the deciding one of the State series. Both Middlebury and Norwich have beaten Vermont, and in the game with each other, they deadlocked thus ending up in a tie for the title.

The line-ups:

Edward Frantz of Ohio Wesleyan gets credit for the longest run of the season so far. Playing against Case, Frantz caught a kick behind his own goal line and ran 102 yards for a touchdown.

CAT'S MEOW

—SPORTING EDITOR—

Vermont's forward passes were executed with precision Saturday. Most of the running plays lack that quality and consequently fail to gain.

Winant proved his worth more than ever by his clever throwing, kicking and running. He had plenty of aggressiveness in running back punts and is developing into a genuine triple-threat.

It seems that playing on Centennial Field is an inspiration to the eleven to play good ball. We couldn't ask for anything better than that second half.

Dave Morey, ex-Middlebury coach and present coach at Bates, has worked such wonders at the Maine institution that the alumni want to sign him for life. Morey took charge with the understanding of a free reign and has worked miracles with mediocre material.

A new sport will enter the category of intercollegiate athletics next spring when the College Humor outboard races are inaugurated in institutions throughout the country which are so situated on lakes or other bodies of water to lend themselves to aquatic events.

Phi Delta Theta in League Final Through Default—Tau Ep and Kappa Sig Today and Sigma Alphs Versus Phi Sig Tomorrow

Last Thursday Tau Epsilon Phi defeated Phi Mu Delta in the last game of the preliminary round of the interfraternity touch football tournament 44 to 6 on the back campus. The game was hard fought throughout and was featured by the brilliant playing of Bernstein, Price and Broudy for Tau Ep. These men were the main cogs in an attack which bewildered the losers.

The first touchdown was scored on a lateral, forward combination. Pelofsky lateraled to Bernstein, who forward passed to Price over the goal line. Then the plays see-sawed up field and down for the duration of the quarter.

Elowitch, diminutive Tau Epper, took a juggled pass from two Phi Mus and ran forty yards for a score. On the kick-off Phil Manning, of basketball fame, made a pretty broken field run of seventy yards to finish behind his opponents' goal. Another time Bernstein heaved a forty-yard bullet pass to Agel, who copped it from among a crowd of opponents to tally again. Price by his brilliant rushing scored a safety on Kendall, thus scoring two extra points. Bernstein scored on an intercepted pass and again after a pretty broken field run. Price tallied again after receiving a pass and Shuman repeated for the seventh touchdown.

Manning was supported by Kendall and Stevens for Phi Mu Delta, the three of them being the mainstays of their team.

Lambda Iota defaulted the first game of the second round to Phi Delta Theta on Friday last.

This afternoon the third game of the semi-finals will take place on the Lack campus gridiron. The contestants will be the Tau Epsilon Phi and Kappa Sigma fraternities. Tomorrow Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Phi Sigma Delta will contend in the last game of the semi-final round

VARSITY HARRIERS WIN AT ANNANDALE

Wilder of Vermont Places First, Varney Third—Difficult Course Slows Up Time

PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR MEET WITH MIDDLEBURY

Vermont harriers returned last night from Annandale-on-the-Hudson, where they scored a close victory over St. Stephen's seven. Led by the redoubtable "Ev" Wilder, the Green and Gold cross-country team placed first, third, fifth, seventh and ninth; the final score being Vermont 80, St. Stephen's 55.

The course was a very difficult one, having been laid out the morning of the meet. It was a three-mile route of a type which the Vermonters were unaccustomed to and in face of its difficulties due credit should be given to the results. There were three or four steep hills, narrow foot bridges, and two fences to climb under, which prevented any possibility of Wilder lowering his record time of 16.08.

The St. Stephen's aggregation was hampered by the loss of their captain, Gates, who broke his leg two weeks before the meet.

The results of this trip are very encouraging and potential victory for "Archie" Post's men is evident in the approaching dual meet with Middlebury next Saturday.

The order at the finish: 1. Wilder (V). 2. Corelcho (S). 3. Varney (V). 4. Peper (S). 5. Leach (V). 6. Bell (S). 7. Bache (V). 8. Sprague (S). 9. Stark (V). 10. Kates (S). 11. Smith (S). 12. Barker (V). 13. Joslin (V). 14. Brown (S).

Dorothy Feineer, '32, and Mailla Putnam, '32, sang a duet, which took the place of the usual anthem, at the vesper service, Sunday afternoon, November 10. The response was sung by Hazel Ladd, '30.

Jay and Gardner Play Stellar Games—Catamount Aerial Attack Overwhelms Engineers—Captain Kennedy Shines for Visiting Aggregation With Line Plunging

Immediately after the opening kick-off Winant punted back Diehl reeled off forty yards before being stopped by Tilley. Things looked bright for the red-jerseyed gridders until Vermont recovered a fumble and punted out of danger. Kennedy got loose for a series of first downs and a score was prevented only by the hard tackling of Heaton in the secondary. The quarter ended with the ball in the possession of the engineers on Vermont's twenty-seven yard stripe.

The New Yorkers opened the second period by attempting a field goal by placement which failed to click. Vermont resorted to punting to drive the opponents back. Straight line bucking brought the Tutes to the ten yard line and "Bump" Levine, stalwart Vermont captain and center who did not start the game on account of a mid-season ankle injury, went in to help prevent a score but on the fourth down Bliss scored through the forward wall. Diehl kicked the goal and the half ended Rensselaer 7, Vermont 0.

The second half was all Vermont. Rensselaer hardly had the ball. DeRose and Gardner worked the ball down until the Winant to Thorne pass cut the lead to 7 to 6. DeRose was held when he tried to plunge two yards for the tying point. The last period was featured by the running of Charlie Mace and Jay's pass. Finally DeRose sneaked over the line and scored the winning touchdown on the pass from Winant. Winant missed the kick. Rensselaer finished the last few minutes in a futile attempt to regain the lead with long passes, every one being grounded.

Winant deserves a world of praise for his accurate passing. On the line Segal, Collins and Tilley shone. For R. P. I. Captain Kennedy was outstanding and gained more ground by carrying the ball than any other man on either team. Diehl was good at quarter and Pinto, end, and Montie, tackle, starred on the line.

TUMBLING CLASSES IN GYM TWICE A WEEK

Cogland and Brasor to Instruct —Tumbling Last of Nine Sports—Tourneys in Wrestling and Boxing Planned

Tomorrow will mark the beginning of tumbling classes under the direction of the Physical Education Department. These classes will be held throughout the winter in the auxiliary gymnasium on Mondays and Thursdays at 4.00 p.m. John L. Cogland and Winston C. Brasor, both members of the class of 1931, will give instructions in various tricks on the mat. All those who are interested in the course may register with Howard A. Prentice, Director of Athletics, in the gymnasium.

Tumbling is the last fall sport to get under way in the Physical Education Department and rounds out the fall schedule of courses. Equitation, golf, and track have already been completed, while boxing, wrestling, touch football, fencing, and tennis are still in progress.

In the early spring, elimination tournaments in wrestling and boxing will be run off in the same manner as the wrestling tourney last year. Consequently, many are expected to register in the two courses in preparation for the tournaments. Competitors will be allowed to bout attached to their respective fraternities.

Intercollegiate News

Two proposals to stimulate interest in chapel at college which have come to our attention recently make the situation appear all the more ludicrous. One, which is undergoing the trial and error process at Tufts, entails the giving of academic marks for attendance at chapel. Besides making religion the focal point for all sorts of abuse, the system would seem to infer that men may climb the golden stairway and get their degree in practically one fell swoop. The other proposal, much like the first, is the brain-child of a supposedly intelligent Princeton alumnus who suggests the possibility of counting daily attendance at chapel as one credit toward a degree and Sunday attendance as two credits. Both seem to reflect the practically morbid state of mind to which many have arrived in their attempt to make the modern undergraduate "get religion."—"Yale Daily News."

Pipes save no midnight oil

IF PIPES made the man, anybody at all could rise in the world just by smoking a few pounds of Edgeworth. But pipes do not make the man.

Men make the pipe—most men do. Somewhat depends on the individual, more on the pipe, and the tobacco is most important of all. Things must be congenial.

Edgeworth is a congenial tobacco, cool, slow-burning, fully flavored. Edgeworth has poise, kindly good nature, real tobacco personality—Edgeworth welcomes new friends. Many a good man has been pledged to pipes by Edgeworth alone.

Like to meet Edgeworth? Just ask with the coupon—and the postman will bring your first few pipefuls of the genuine, three years seasoned if it's a day. Our treat, if you please.

Others have found Edgeworth and quit their discontent.

BURY MIDDLEBURY

Vermont Gets Chance For Tie In State Championship

Middlebury, Tomorrow's Opponent, Has One Leg on Title—Both Teams Have Won Two and Lost Five Games—Few Casualties on Either Squad

URY MIDDLEBURY IS CATAMOUNT SLOGAN

Tomorrow afternoon on Centennial field the Vermont Catamounts will engage in the most important football game of the present season when the Black Panthers of Middlebury will be here to engage in battle for the Green Mountain Conference Championship. With Norwich beaten, the Blue and White have reached the half-way mark on the road to the state title. The best Vermont can do is throw the race into a three-cornered tie with a win tomorrow. A defeat will put the Green and Gold in the cellar and will give the Panthers the football championship for the first time in years.

Middlebury has won two and lost three games this season. The two opening games were lost to Columbia and Williams but the Massachusetts games were defeated next. The Black Panther was beaten by St. Lawrence, Providence and Springfield before returning to trim Norwich.

Vermont has been hit hard this season by the injury jinx and this has been a decided handicap to the already small squad. So far the Catamounts have not lost a home game this season and the Green and Gold team is determined to cinch the clash with Middlebury and tie up the Conference title. Vermont dropped games to New York University, Yale and Boston University, but in the first home game of the season Union was defeated. Connecticut Aggies and Norwich each produced a win over the Green and Gold, but R. P. I. was a victim last Saturday.

Vermont coaches, players, and fans are all shouting BURY MIDDLEBURY! Halligan is still bothered with his ankle so is not expected to start. Drew, the only man injured in the Rensselaer fray has recovered from a slight concussion and is in there with a former fight. Carrigan developed knee trouble over the week-end and it is not known whether he will be able to start or not. In the event that he is forced on the hospital list tomorrow, Rose, Mace, and Jay are ready for the call. "Bump" Levine, captain and one of Vermont's best centers of all time, has been saved for this game and is prepared to give his last ounce to BURY MIDDLEBURY!

PERKINS DISCOURSES ON SOME ASPECTS OF THE WORK OF RURAL SURVEY

H. F. Perkins of the zoology department spoke before the John Dewey club on the "Philosophy of Education" last Tuesday evening at the Commuters' Club House. He stressed the point that breadth of interest is absolutely essential in all research activities, inasmuch as all the sciences are interdependent and all of the activities interrelated.

In the beginning of his talk, Professor Perkins declared that considerable research is being done in many fields throughout the world. The universities of Russia are doing much research work. The colossal political upheaval that is about in that country. Even in forbidden Mexico extends aid to students. China too is active in research. Universities in United States are encouraging

INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS SEX AND WORLD PEACE FIGURE IN VESPER TALK

Dean Brown, of Yale Divinity School, Addresses Audience at Sunday Services on "Youth and Age"

"Youth's enthusiasm and audacity mingled with the ripened judgment of age are both needed to solve three great problems of the present day, the relations between the sexes, the harmonizing of industrial conditions and the maintenance of world peace," the Rev. Charles R. Brown, dean emeritus of Yale Divinity School, told his audience at the vesper service in the Ira Allen Chapel, Sunday afternoon. His subject was "Youth and Age."

Taking his text from the bible story, in which "the spirit of Elijah descended upon Elisha," Dean Brown pointed out the difference between these two men, the old prophet and the young man, both working toward the same end, but in totally different ways.

"Age often becomes sour and cynical and sometimes sighs for the 'good old times that used to be,'" the speaker said. On the other hand, youth too often sits on the side lines and criticizes the players in the game, sneering at the way things are done, but never trying to do them. It doesn't require any brains to sneer, said Dean Brown.

Not All Good Nor All Bad

But the young people of today are, like those of other days, neither wholly good nor wholly bad. That they have a different viewpoint from their elders is nothing against them. It requires the ambitious and audacious viewpoint of youth, combined with the ripened judgment of age, to meet the problems of the world.

One of the big problems of the present age which will require a harmonious understanding between youth and age to solve is that of the relation between the sexes, declared Dean Brown. Mature people of the present day can hardly believe their ears when they hear the frank way in which sex relations are discussed by young people today. And they can hardly believe their eyes when they see some of the things which are written on this subject.

What the result of this frankness will be cannot be predicted at this time, said Dean Brown. If it results in the dying out of that chivalry which men have felt toward women through the ages, or if it does away with that reserve which has been a part of the character of good women, it will be a disaster. If it means the dragging down and making common and unclean certain of the holy relations of life, it will mean a great loss to humanity.

There is no doubt, continued Dean Brown, that certain plays and books which are appearing today belong in the garbage pail, and the quicker they get there the better it will be for mankind.

However, frankness in sex matters is not necessarily an unmixed evil, Dean Brown pointed out. We are realizing today that the air of mystery

FRATERNITY RUSHING SEASON NOW OPENS

Deliver Rushing Dates to Freshmen This Afternoon at 4.00 in Old Mill Chapel—First Date is Monday Evening

OPEN-HOUSES SUCCESS IN SPITE OF SHIFTINGS

This afternoon at four o'clock, freshmen will assemble at the Old Mill chapel and will receive instructions from Prof. D. B. Carroll and from Pres. Warren H. Burr of the Interfraternity Council. They will then proceed to another room to get their rushing dates.

Despite the changes that had to be made on dates for open house nights, and the rainy weather prevalent on most of these nights, the Greek letter societies report record attendances of freshmen who took this as their best opportunity to get a glimpse at fraternity life and to meet the upper class men who will be their closest friends during their college careers.

Open Houses Customary

The custom of keeping the fraternity houses open to first year men and other non-fraternity men is a procedure that is common to most colleges where rushing has been systematized or regulated by a council representing all the societies. Open house gives the new men an opportunity of seeing all the houses and of knowing the men who are living in them. Middlebury has already had its rushing and pledging. Norwich has its rushing period planned for the ten days immediately following Thanksgiving Day.

The majority of colleges pledge men during their freshman year, either before or after the mid-year examination period. Other colleges, such as Dartmouth, do not pledge until the sophomore year. Although there is a wide variation in the pledging policies of different colleges, it is generally considered a noteworthy step forward from the old type of "cut-throat" rushing, when men wore pledge buttons even before they came to college and had met but one or two of the members of the fraternity which they had joined.

The rules made by the Council concerning rushing are as follows, beginning with Rule V:

Rule V. Rushing dates will be four in number and will be held on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings from 6.00 till 12.00 p.m. No fraternity shall make more than one date with any one freshman.

Saturday-Sunday Neutral Period

Rule VI. From 12.00 p.m. Saturday, after the last rushing date until 6 p.m. Sunday shall be a strictly neutral period, during which time no active or associate member of an organiza

Key and Serpent Torchlight Parade Features Pep Fest

Rally to Start at Gym at 7.15 Tonight—All Men and Women Expected to Attend—30 Minutes of Speeches, Cheers and Singing at City Hall Park

MAYNES AND McBRIDE IN CHARGE OF AFFAIR

All of the pre-game pep and enthusiasm that has been brewing on the campus for the past week will have a chance to show itself tonight when the big Torchlight Parade and Pep Rally will be held. This parade and rally, held so that all students, both men and women may take part, will start at the gym at 7.15. Led by Joe Lechner's R. O. T. C. Band, the procession will march from the gym, by the weird light of the red torches, and make its noisy way downtown to City Hall Park, where the paraders will assemble around the band stand for cheers, songs and speeches. Here a program, modeled after that of a typical smoker will be put on under the direction of the Key and Serpent Society.

Cheers and Songs

Cheers and songs will be led by the cheer leaders, "Phil" Perry and "Bunk" Bolles, assisted by the band. There will be speeches by Graduate Manager Abell, Head Coach Battan, Line Coach Tully, Manager Macomber, Captain Levine and Dr "Mickey" McMahon. After about 30 minutes of cheers and speeches, the rally will be brought to a close with the singing of "Champlain."

First Used Last Year

A torchlight parade was first used last year as a means of getting up enthusiasm among the students. It was introduced by the Key and Serpent Society, who felt that a change from the traditional smoker, which only the male students attended, to a rally in which co-eds and townspeople might also participate, would be welcome. The result of last year's parade justified the experiment for the affair was attended by hundreds of students and townspeople, whose cheers and songs could be heard for blocks. The Junior society hopes that this year's rally will far outdo the great success of last year in both noise and numbers.

Remember Last Saturday!

Bolstered by the thrilling victory of the team last week, spirit on the campus has been growing more intense during the past few days until now it is at a fever pitch. It is hoped that all students will turn out on Friday evening to show the team just how much they are behind it to "Bury Middlebury" tomorrow afternoon.

Freshmen Must Attend

Of course, all Freshmen are required to attend the rally and attendance will be taken. This year, as an added

VERMONT DEBATERS TO ENGAGE KEENE NORMAL IN FIRST FORENSIC MEET

Three Veterans to Represent University Tomorrow at Keene on Advertising Question

Just one year to a day after meeting Bates College on the same question, the debaters of the University of Vermont travel to Keene Normal School to engage the New Hampshire teachers tomorrow on the advertising question. Vermont, in this debate will uphold the negative of the proposition, "Resolved, that modern advertising is more beneficial than detrimental to society."

The Vermont debaters are all veterans of many forensic contests. Besides the regular varsity—Louis Lisman, George Nelson and Franklin Sears—Coach M. D. Powers and E. M. Codding, alternate and assistant manager, will also make the trip.

Three- and Four-Year Veterans

Sears, who is also team manager, is entering his fourth year of intercollegiate debating. During this time he has engaged in debates with such colleges as Yale, Bates, St. John's Law, New York University, College of the City of New York, Middlebury, Tufts and St. Lawrence.

Lisman and Nelson, entering debating just as Vermont was beginning on the most ambitious schedules in her history, have turned engagements originally designed as practices for larger colleges into victories for Vermont and have helped to heighten Vermont's prestige in forensic circles. Nelson was on the team which defeated Yale in his freshman year and Lisman on the team which debated Bates to a no decision in his first year of debating. Together with Sears last year they took the New York trip which reached its climax when Vermont defeated New York University. Lisman and Nelson together engaged in the spectacular cowboy-farmer debate last year against Howard Payne College of Texas and, with Sears, defeated St. Michael's for the first time in six years and took the state championship in the first year of the Green Mountain Conference.

Keene an Unknown Factor

Keene has not yet debated this year and its strength is unknown. The debate may turn out to be little more than a practice meet for Vermont and then, again, Keene may show unexpected strength and fight its way to victory. Vermont has debated on this

PASTOR URGES LIFE OF "AGGRESSIVE GOODNESS" IN CHAPEL WEDNESDAY

"Aggressive goodness" was the topic of the Rev. Arthur M. Clark, pastor of the Commmunity Church of Huntington, Vt., who conducted the chapel service last Wednesday. He took his text from the fifth chapter of Matthew.

The Rev. Mr. Clark urged his hearers to uproot the feeling of revolt that we have against goodness, and to study it. He said, "There is nothing under heaven harder to define than goodness but the definition of Jesus of Nazareth is the best." This definition has no boundaries, no limits. The speaker did not believe that Christ's definition of goodness was expressed in any or in all, of his verbal teachings but that it is shown in his own life, perfectly lived in the image of God.

WHAT YOUNGER COLLEGE MEN ARE DOING WITH WESTINGHOUSE

This 5,000 h. p. motor in the Columbia Steel Company's plant, with its frame of arc-welded steel, is physically the largest synchronous motor ever built.

Ninety days to go— teamwork wins

While you Seniors were shuffling worries about machine stresses and saturation curves with those of football last fall, a group of your predecessors, not so many years ahead of you, were playing the game with grim realities.

The Columbia Steel Company of Pittsburg, California, completed plans on September 12th to build a new tinplate plant. On the 13th they gave an order to Westinghouse for two 5,000 horsepower synchronous motors to drive the rolls, to be physically the largest synchronous motors ever built. Delivery of the first was wanted in ninety days.

Ninety days in which to design, manufacture, assemble, test and ship any large unit, let alone a new achievement in size and type of construction, affords no time for idle speculation. Westinghouse men went at the job as only an experienced and thoroughly equipped organization could do. And on the scheduled date, four flat cars and a box car rolled out of the Westinghouse plant, carrying the completed and tested motor.

It was an industrial victory, as satisfying as any athletic gain. Teamwork and individual skill had won. Westinghouse had once more made good and upheld the reputation that earns the big electrical jobs for Westinghouse men.

BURY MIDDLEBURY!!

If you're looking for a neatly-worded elegantly rounded out, completely phrased piece of literature, don't read this. For this is rough, it's abrupt, it's abrupt but it has a purpose. BURY MIDDLEBURY!

There it is! All right now think it over again. BURY MIDDLEBURY! At the beginning of the season the team ran up against all kinds of obstacles. They were smeared all over the lot. They took a physical beating, and what is more they took a moral beating. And what's more they took it without a grumble. We did the grumbling; we did all the shouting against the silly policy. And where from? From the substitutes of course. In other words they did the dirty work and we provided the vocal entertainment. BURY MIDDLEBURY!

They ran up against Union, a team believed to far outmatch them. They went down back with the Union Jack at half mast. But they played with the stands half empty. BURY MIDDLEBURY!

Last Saturday they did the impossible. Far outclassed in the first half they came back in the last two periods like sugar out of a tin. They fought, they raged, they tore—they played good ball. They played mighty good ball with half the University scattered throughout the State of Vermont and neighboring settlements. Couldn't you shout at the game to-day some, could you? Matter of fact you could, and cheering right after the first class wasn't it? Sure—but when people were to greet the team when it fails to come through [illegible] BURY MIDDLEBURY!

[illegible] and get it straight. Tomorrow brings the last home game of the season. Middlebury. There's no secret about what we have to do to win. We must go into every scrap with the fighting spirit that we have displayed in the past. We must go into every scrap with the determination that we have displayed in the past. We must go into every scrap with the knowledge that we have displayed in the past. We must go into every scrap with the confidence that we have displayed in the past. We must go into every scrap with the will to win that we have displayed in the past. We must go into every scrap with the spirit that we have displayed in the past. We must go into every scrap with the fighting spirit that we have displayed in the past. It's going to be more than a game. It's going to be a real battle. We want that battle to get under the skin of the Red Kid. Does about it? Does [illegible]

[illegible] are allowed on the field. Only those who are supposed to be there. Who's going to be there? We're going to forget about the [illegible] and get behind the team. We're going to be up in the stands. We're going to [illegible] we're going to get on the team. We're going to [illegible] for the team. Yes you [illegible] BURY MIDDLEBURY!

[illegible] the right kind of a pep that's the kind that we need. Plenty of pep plenty of noise and keep it up. [illegible] a lot of time to philosophize the course of the game, [illegible] the substitutes [illegible] from your benches. [illegible] hard tests but one after [illegible] Don't [illegible] keep your mind on the game [illegible] MIDDLEBURY!

[illegible] because of possessing a big chest test tonight. Let us all [illegible] everyone. When the team what you think it will do tomorrow [illegible] Tuesday. Don't [illegible] the weather but you'll be thankful that you helped. Bury Middlebury!

[illegible] Now we've got that off our chest let's hear everybody thinking [illegible] BURY MIDDLEBURY!

Women must look at men in the same way that they look at boys to be happy. Unhappy and quarrelsome is the household where the husband drives his wife to feel responsible for some condition of mind of man's making for which he is not responsible. Why should he be concerned by the efforts of those having proximity who for instance, wish to shoot their last drop of ink in the name of their country.—Edwin S. Lovejoy, professor of sociology at the University of Southern California.

A nation which can attack always may attack, and assurances that armaments are only for defense will never be convincing.

It is not the smooth and unobstructed road to success which is most likely to lead to the goal sought.—St. Augustine.

Heres a funny pun pulled by Prof. Thomas Moon of Columbia. When over a hundred students gathered in his classroom for their final examination in International Relations they discovered they had had the original absent minded professor lecturing to them for the past term. The bell called for the fatal hour. Books were shut, notes stuffed away, but still Professor Moon did not appear, nor could he be located. Telegrams were sent far and wide until he was found at his summer home in Connecticut, quietly fishing. The examination had been completely forgotten.

WHAT IS IT?

The universities throughout the country have been crowded for years, and will continue to be even more crowded in the future with men and women who attend these institutions to acquire an intangible something which they call an education. Every person that ever attended school was quite sure that he did so in order that he might become educated, but when asked to define an education, about all that the average student can say is that it is the result of the work necessary to acquire a dipioma. Is that, we wonder, all there is to an education? Is an engineer who receives a degree from the university necessarily educated. Is the girl who leaves the University with an understanding of the subject of home economics or the athlete who can coach a team to play good ball an educated individual?

The following article which is an excerpt from Everett Dean Martin's "The Meaning of a Liberal Education" throws considerable light on the subject. "An educated person is not merely one who can do something whether it is giving a lecture on the poetry of Horace, running a train, trying a lawsuit, or repairing the plumbing. He is also one who knows the significance of what he does, and he is one who cannot and will not do certain things. He has acquired a set of values. He has a 'yes' or 'no' and they are his own. He knows why he behaves as he does. He has learned what to prefer, for he has lived in the presence of things that are preferable.

He has learned enough about human life on this planet to see his behavior in the light of a body of experience and the relation of his actions to situations as a whole. He is being transformed from an automaton into a thinking being.

And during the course of acquiring a degree from the University it might be well to bear that definition of an education in mind.—Purdue Exponent.

The Supreme Command

Men talk much of duty, but chiefly spend the most of their lives in efforts to evade its full obligations as ideally expressed through the ages.

Tennyson says: "Sweet it is to have done the thing one ought."

To appreciate and realize this sweetness is the reward of duty. Sometimes it is hard to do the thing we ought to do, but conscious satisfaction invariably soothes the soul that has been true to itself.

Duty is protean in aspect, but there is never a possibility that one will fail to recognize it in any expression, in any manifestation. There can be no mistake. It speaks a various language but we inevitably understand.

The thing we ought to do makes for spiritual growth and development always. We may evade, refuse to do our duty, but in so doing we invite suffering and loss of spiritual stature and estate.

To do unto others as we would that they should do unto us is duty in the highest sense. If men would but live this simple rule all our problems would be soon solved and the world be very glad.

It Has Been Said At Vermont

Shortly after the adoption of [illegible] educational system at Vermont [illegible] say 341 B.C., some say 423 B.C. [illegible] are in doubt)—the need was felt [illegible] all quarters, and urged by [illegible] women of the town and cam[illegible] a girls' dormitory as a haven [illegible] and repose to which the [illegible] retire after a fatiguing day of [illegible] gymnastics. As it was, the [illegible] were causing quite a scandal [illegible] ing out all night with regular [illegible] ing no place to sleep. Some [illegible] slept in Burlington's flowers [illegible] So when President Buchanan [illegible] appropriated twenty-five dollars [illegible] purchase of a girl's dorm to [illegible] as "Grassmount" it was felt that [illegible] step forward had been taken. [illegible] by step, hep, hep, hep, advanced [illegible] mighty armee. (From the old song: We are From Grassmount.)

This building is located on the corner of Main and Summit streets [illegible] possesses a fine view of the lake, the college, the Practice House and the Delta Dai House. It has lovely lawn grounds, great for playing fenade [illegible] ball (and they have some wild pitchers there; I saw one get the ball over the plate once—don't ask how) and volleyball, and a swell tennis court (for losing balls).

The authorities seemed quite satisfied with this building, indeed Lafayette, the cornerstone man, slept a night there as he passed through the town at noon one time. Finally, however, about the year 1066, when William the Long was approaching the soil of Great Britain, it got [illegible] about that conditions in Grassmount were too crowded to be ladylike. Immediately a project was set on foot to purchase a building across the campus from the old mill, which the authorities of the town had just condemned to destruction. "Authority, spare us," ering themselves deadly enough already, acquired the Practice House wherein to practice their woeful wiles. youth it fell often on my head, and I'll stand by it now." That was the campaign song of George W. Napoleon as he marched on a successful attack for the presidency. Once ensconced in that office, he leaned back in his swivel chair and remarked, "John I am at home to the mayor." John was the office lad. Well, the upshot of it was that the mayor paid G. W. N. ten dollars to take this campus house off his hands. That transaction concluded the "Campus House" as it was later called, was immediately fitted up as a dormitory.

The "Campus House" is a swell palatial residence diagonally opposite the Fuddle Potato House, and up the road from the Sicka Di House. The location is a stone's throw from the college, the railway, and all the other conveniences of a suburban home in the center of the metropolis.

After that girls' dorms followed in remarkable confusion. A man named Springs had a huge brick barn, a silo and a stable. When he died, his heirs found a clause in his will bequeathing these buildings to his "beloved co-eds." The President and the stable and silo was called "Red[illegible] Dean of Women personally supervised the cleaning of these buildings, and distinguished New York architect [illegible] the things up into rooms. The [illegible] was termed "Redrock" probably because it was built of red stone, and daughter," after that distinguished modern woman-hater and T. P. W. Sigh, shark.

For long these few sleeping apartments satisfied the scanty wants of Vermont's women. Hooray! But today these Homeneckers, or Homemakers or whatever they are, not only and the arts of making up [illegible] Vermont can now sleep in peace with the flafer.)

Broadly it is true that patriotism is a force effective only for war.

STATE HARRIERS RUN ON VERMONT COURSE

Wilder of Vermont and Dalton of Middlebury Expect to Furnish Thrills in Dual Varsity Meet—Three State Colleges Enter Freshman Teams

HADLEY AND COLBURN ARE KITTENS' LEADERS

A dual cross-country meet between Middlebury and Vermont is scheduled for tomorrow morning, while Vermont, Norwich and Middlebury freshmen will compete over the University of Vermont three-mile course for the first time.

In the varsity meet, it looks as though there will be lots of excitement. Dalton of Middlebury and Wilder of Vermont seem to be about evenly matched with a shade of the advantage on the part of Dalton. However, there is so little difference between the two men that it is impossible to prophesy anything.

In the freshman meet, the Green and Gold star, Hadley is looked to to bring home the bacon. He is easily the best cross-country man in any of the three colleges, varsity or freshman. If his sore feet will permit, Colburn, is fairly sure of a place in the meet.

The Middlebury varsity defeated the St. Stephens harriers by a larger score than did the Vermonters. Their squad is more experienced and looks forward to a victory.

Nothing is known about the visiting first year teams, except that the Dartmouth frosh defeated the cadet ponies last Wednesday. The Kittens were defeated by Saranac High but are favored to place a good number of runners among the leaders.

In future years Norwich will also enter a varsity team, making it a two-meet, three-cornered affair.

TWENTY-THREE FROSH RECEIVE GRID NUMERALS

At a meeting of the Athletic Council of the University of Vermont held Tuesday afternoon the following twenty-three freshmen were awarded the football numerals of their class:

Captain R. H. Coburn, R. B. Adams, T. J. Bushey, J. J. Coquette, H. Cohen, T. F. Collins, Jr., F. B. Follett, H. M. Farmer, K. C. Miner, B. S. Neal, W. A. Negri, C. B. Parsons, N. H. Price, Jr., G. J. Rapuano, S. Solov, J. L. Thompson, E. E. Wadsworth, G. H. Walker, Jr., J. E. Wood, H. D. Wood, and R. A. Howard, F. J. Pellegrino, R. W. Ryan, managers.

BY MIDDLEBURY

It has been done.

It can be done.

It will be done.

It's Vermont's only chance to boost its football stock. A victory will certainly mean a great deal.

Middlebury has been developing a forward pass defense all season. Norwich was able to complete only one overhead attempt last week even with Waining throwing. We think Winant is better, but it will be more difficult to repeat the stunt pulled against Rensselaer.

The Panthers engaged "Dick" Phelan of Holy Cross as line coach this year. He is a keen student of the game, and with Head Coach "Ben" Beck, makes a good board of strategy.

Granting that the Catamounts cross the Panther goal line there is one thing they will have to do -and that is score the point after touchdown. This is becoming more and more the deciding factor in close games. Middlebury has McLeod, an excellent place kicker. Vermont has attempted to score the extra point five times this season and has succeeded only once.

It looks as if Carrigan will not be able to play. He has been having trouble with an eye since the R. P. I. contest.

"Doc" Newton, coach of last year's junior varsity baseball team, will assist "Larry" Gardner with the regulars next spring, according to the Athletic Council.

Norwich ends its grid season in Providence today with a game against Brown.

The "swish" of the net will be heard regularly beginning today. Varsity basketball candidates start drilling in the gym under Captain Berry.

COACH BERRY CALLS VARSITY BASKETEERS

Halligan, Bernstein, Sargent, and Manning Are Lettermen Expected to Report

Captain Berry has issued a call for candidates for the first varsity basketball practice which will take place today at 4.00 p.m. There will be no practice tomorrow but thereafter practices will be held regularly on Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays at 4.00 o'clock. And Tuesdays and Thursdays at 7.00 o'clock.

Capt. "Tim" Halligan who sustained a leg injury in the Conn. Aggies football game will not be present for the first few sessions but will doubtless be out within a couple of weeks.

The leading candidates for this year's team will be Capt. Halligan and "Dink" Bernstein, forwards; Sargent, center; Manning, Tobin and Winant, guards. Winant is still playing football but will be out immediately after the Springfield game.

The revised schedule follows:

Dec. 7—Montreal A. A. A. at Burlington.
Dec. 11—Dartmouth at Hanover.
Dec. 14—McGill at Burlington.
Dec. 18—U. S. Naval Training Station at Burlington.
Jan. 4—Ithaca School of Physical Education at Burlington.
Jan. 10—Crescent A. C. at Brooklyn.
Jan. 11—Rensselaer at Troy.
Jan. 15—St. Michael's at Burlington.
Feb. 6—St. Michael's at Winooski Park.
Feb. 8—U. S. Coast Guard at Burlington.
Feb. 11—Norwich at Northfield.
Feb. 12—Lowell Tech at Burlington.
Feb. 15—Springfield at Burlington.
Feb. 18—Middlebury at Middlebury.
Feb. 21—Holy Cross at Worcester.
Feb. 22—Springfield at Springfield.
Feb. 25—Middlebury at Burlington.
Feb. 27—Norwich at Burlington.
March 1—Holy Cross at Burlington.
March 7—Junior Interscholastic B. B. Tournament at Burlington.
March 8—Junior Interscholastic B. B. Tournament at Burlington.

Captain Levine Ready to Play for Vermont—Winant Will Bear Watching—Guarnaccia, Panther Leader, Expected to be Recovered from Norwich Injury

SQUADS WORKING HARD FOR OBJECTIVE GAME

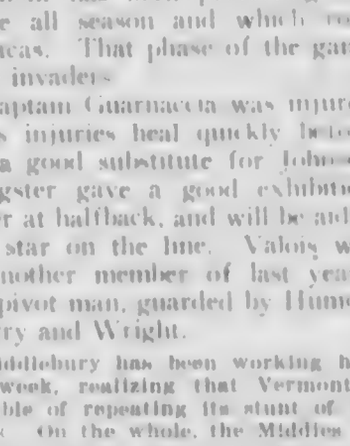
Collins will pair with Huey at guard. Burstein and Tobin will fill the tackling and Segal and Thorne will flank the forward wall. Ed Winant, star of last week's game is in A1 shape. Heaton, the tackling fool will back up the line in the fullback berth and Gardner will bear the burden of ball carrier. Vermont has been perfecting the passing attack which has been effective all season and which rose to unforeseen heights in the R. P. I. fracas. That phase of the game plus Winant's punting should bother the invaders.

Middlebury has a veteran team. Captain Guarnaccia was injured in the Norwich game, but even serious injuries heal quickly before championship games. Coach Beck has a good substitute for Johnson at quarter in Markowski. This youngster gave a good exhibition against Norwich. McLeod is an old timer at halfback, and will be aided by Foote. Thrasher, a soph end is a star on the line. Valois will guard the other extremity. Nelson, another member of last year's frosh team—and captain at that—is the pivot man, guarded by Humeston and Hasseltine. The tackles are Perry and Wright.



COACH BECK

Mentor of the Panther eleven which invades Catamount territory tomorrow

Middlebury has been working hard all week, realizing that Vermont is capable of repeating its stunt of last year. On the whole, the Middies are in condition to put up the best game of the year. Their offense is less powerful than the defense as has been demonstrated in all the games, so the mentors have been striving for scoring punch, and practice sessions have proven fruitful.

Middlebury was favored to win last year's game on Porter Field, Middlebury, but the contest ended in a 6 to 6 tie. This year let's BURY MIDDLEBURY!

Rule VIII Every pledge shall be ... for a period of seven months ... terminated by the pledging fraternity.

Any fraternity directly concerned with a pledge who is pledged at another college not before being initiated into membership in Vermont must ratify or disavow such pledge within ten days after the arrival of said pledge. The fraternity may ratify or disclaim such pledge by reporting same to the president of the Conference.

Rule IX All pledges shall wear ... unless pledging shall be ... declared irregular by the Faculty Council they shall be strictly honored by all fraternities. It is herewith expressly ruled that the Faculty Council alone shall have power to declare a pledge irregular or unlawful.

Rule X Penalties for the infraction of the Rushing Rules will be administered by a Faculty Council composed of five members of the faculty who are members of fraternities which do not have chapters here.

In dealing with a violation, the Faculty Council shall sit as a court with the offending fraternity as the defendant and the president of the Council Executive as a judge. All the evidence shall be presented to the court by both defending and prosecuting fraternities, and then a decision will be made by the court alone in secret session. A majority vote of the court will convict. The names of persons bringing charges will be withheld.

Rule XI The punishment for infraction of these Rushing Rules shall be the denial of the right to pledge men during the remainder of the school year and prohibition from all interfraternity contests. These shall include all interfraternity athletics and base works. In cases of minor infraction the length of the sentence will be determined by the Faculty Council. Subsequent infraction of these rules are cumulative of the penalty during the period in which the fraternity is being penalized for infraction of the rules shall be subject to punishment by the University Council. If a fraternity is found guilty by the Faculty Council of infraction of these rules the knowledge of such and the reasons shall be distributed to the freshmen of the next year through the Freshman Handbook and it shall be published in the Cynic. Any freshman or new student involved in an infraction of the rules may be suspended or prohibited from accepting a bid from any fraternity even in the conference for a period of not less than half a year of greater than one year from time infraction was committed.

Rule XII Any fraternity found ... of not observing these rules ... the conference of rushing dates before the cards are regularly given out will be causing a minor infraction of these rules and the matter shall be dealt with as specified in Rule 11.

Pastor Urges Life of "Aggressive Goodness" in Chapel

Goodness Positive

The definition of goodness is essentially not negative but positive. This is shown in the character of God, which is positive. In the Bible, God is introduced as the Creator, one who does things; Jesus refers to him as a worker. Jehovah means I am and suggests him as the God of being. Further evidence is manifested in Jesus teaching which is positive not negative. For example in the Sermon on the Mount Jesus starts with a negative statement "Resist not," but immediately turns to the command "Conquer your enemies."

Goodness that achieves is aggressive goodness said Mr. Clark. "A great many Christians have paused too long at the rudiments of goodness. They know what is not good, but they do not know what is. Their thoughts are characterized by 'don't' instead of by 'do.'"

The plan of the monks of old to obtain goodness that of shutting themselves away from all contact with the world would not work today. Goodness must be aggressive goodness, and must be put into positive, effectual action which will produce results.

feature, the Frosh will make and carry signs with appropriate slogans. All plans for the parade and pep rally are under the direction of Rodney Maynes and Francis McBride of the Key and Serpent Society.

Middlebury and Vermont are arch rivals, friendly enemies. Each year as the time draws near for the two teams to clash a high fever of excitement and school spirit sweeps the campus. It matters not what the eleven has done or has failed to do up to the time of the game. Middlebury is Middlebury and the last four letters describe Vermont's ambitions in this respect.

During this exciting period, smokers, pep fests, rallies of any sort are attended en masse. Never are cheers so loud or so prolonged as during this time.

Noise is such a problem at Northeastern University that signs are placed in the corridors to warn its students that classes are being held and that any undue noise is disturbing.

MEETING THE REQUIREMENTS

... in our colleges at the ... declares Dean Hawkes ... in his annual report to ... is given an opportunity of putting himself rather than ... subjected to a regime of ... testing. He is being directed ... courses of a survey character ... turn towards explicit departmental requirements. This finding comes, for example, because of the new light in which the student regards the study of the classics. There the trend is noticeably away from them, with the undergraduate yet attaining, through pursuit of other studies, the cultural standard they are conceded to possess.

The illustration is striking in that it presents concisely the new conception of American higher learning now being adopted along many educational fronts. The problem of developing new methods of instruction arises only because of the change in caliber of the student body. "It cannot be said too often or too forcibly that the kind of young man who is coming and whom we all wish to continue to come to our colleges cannot be thrown wholesale into the mold that has served so admirable a purpose for so many generations under utterly different conditions, and in the older British universities," writes Dr. Hawkes. Therefore arises the change in the tools with which the student is to be equipped for future existence. The American College is obligated to prepare its charges for problems which are properly current. One of the takeoffs for this training is intellectual stimulation by means of cultural and survey courses. Columbia, for its part, is conducting courses in general contemporary civilization and philosophic history, offering interdepartmental subjects of a survey character, adopting the plan of sectioning students according to ability, installing honors, perfecting various schemes of tutorial instruction, and particularly keeping intact, by the study of the bases of English literature, "that fineness of literary sense, and that sensitiveness to the finest and best in intellectual life which formerly came with a study of the classics."

A distinct connection exists between these ideas and those behind our own new curriculum. Except that here, at present, the emphasis is more upon science, the two plans are part of a movement to fit the student to a world which, in the field of knowledge, is ever growing larger and more complex. If the student is to find himself properly, the field of thought and fact must be laid open before him. Then, with intelligent guidance, the problem of finding his suitable life-work, and of thinking correct thoughts will be much simplified.—C. C. N. Y. Campus

It has been revealed recently that the first student to work his way through college attended Harvard University back in 1657. He entered the institution at fourteen years of age and was graduated at 18.

NOTICES

All students who were unable to get their tickets exchanged yesterday for reserved seats at the Middlebury game may exchange them this afternoon at the office of the Graduate Manager in the University gym.

As long as good weather lasts all regular gym classes for women will meet at the regular hours at the hockey field to play soccer.

All Juniors must make appointments to have their pictures taken for the Ariel. There is not much time left as the photographer is here for only ten days.

A class in social dancing will be arranged if a few more girls will sign up. Anyone who is interested will kindly write her name and "Social Dancing" on a slip of paper and put it in the box on the gym office door.

Coaches of class plays and chairmen of all the committees are requested to meet Lilian Cohen, Tuesday, November 19, at 4.00 o'clock in the Old Mill Chapel.

Health conferences are being held this week for sophomore women. All who have not yet made appointments will sign up on the bulletin board in the Y room.

There will be a hike Sunday afternoon, November 17. All who are interested should report at the gymnasium at 2.30.

STUDENT ACTIVITIES OF LAST YEAR CALLED FOR A $35,000 EXPENDITURE

Men's Athletic Association Spent Over $17,000 — Women's Physical Education Department Gets $4,500

According to statistics received from President Bailey, about $35,000 was spent on various student activities during the fiscal year ending June, 1929.

This includes $17,525 donated to the Men's Athletic Association, $2,312 to the CYNIC, $981, $837, $645, $504 to the classes of 1932, 1931, 1930 and 1929 respectively, $330.50 to the Men's Musical Club as well as for Men's Debating activities and to the Student Senate $165.25, to Key and Serpent $865.75, for general purposes pertaining to men. Then the Women's Physical Education Department received $4,500.92, the Women's Athletic Association $2,583, the Women's Musical Club $287, the Women's Student Union $430.50, the Women's Debating Clubs $205, and $537.50 for women's general expenses. Then too, $334 was devoted to the book rental of Teachers' Training students, and $167 for the Cap and Gown rental fund.

Before any of this amount was given over to the Men's Athletic Association, all applications were approved of by the graduate manager, and all the bills of the CYNIC and most of the other organizations were approved of, first, by Professor Groat's committee on student finance.

FRATERNITY BIDS WILL BE GIVEN OUT FRIDAY AFTERNOON IN OLD MILL

Rushing dates were given out last Friday afternoon at 4.00 o'clock in the Old Mill Chapel. Before the dates were given out, Prof. D. B. Carroll of the Political Science Department and Pres. Warren H. Burr of the Inter-Fraternity Council, explained the method of accepting the rushing dates to the freshmen. A line was formed and alphabetically the freshmen were called into another room of the Old Mill to get their dates.

The dates are Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week from six until twelve. Then between twelve Thursday night and four o'clock Friday afternoon is the neutral period during which time no fraternity man is to speak with a freshman.

The bids will be given out Friday at four o'clock in the Old Mill Chapel.

EDUCATION SOCIETY IS YOUNG BUT PROSPEROUS

A little more than six years ago the idea of Kappa Phi Kappa first took root at a National Educational Association meeting in Chicago. In the short space of time that has intervened the fraternity has become national and over thirty chapters have banded together for the purpose of making more professional the most fundamental profession of all.

Alpha Gamma chapter of Kappa Phi Kappa was founded in 1927 at the University of Vermont with twenty members including Professor Bennett C Douglass, head of the Department of Education.

The officers during the present year are: P. S. Robbins, president; Charles Mace, vice-president; O. A. Martinetti, treasurer; Keith Hooker, corresponding secretary; R. L. Stewart, recording secretary.

Meetings are usually held the second and last Thursdays of each month in the Education Office. At these meetings members of the faculty and others frequently give addresses which have a bearing upon education. Students who are interested in teaching as a profession are often invited to attend.

PAPERS BY SOPHOMORES READ TO BLUESTOCKINGS

Bluestockings Society held its regular social meeting at the Kappa Alpha Theta House on Thursday evening, November 14. After the business meeting there was a short discussion of the marketing of creative work.

The members of the sophomore class had been assigned to write some articles with the special aim of selling their products. Margaret Martin read her essay, "What Is Life?"; Hope Ranslow's contribution was a short story, as yet unnamed; Helen LeBaron wrote a familiar essay of combined mythical and nature subjects entitled "The Elephant's Head." All of the papers were criticized by the other members with a view toward increasing their value as saleable material.

Refreshments were served in charge of Margaret Rice, '31, followed by an informal discussion of the new fall looks.

FRESHMEN MEASURE UP TO SOPHOMORES

Heights, Weights and Ages Compare Favorably With Those of Last Year's Class

STATISTICS COMPILED BY MILITARY OFFICIALS

Statistics compiled from the records of the Physical Education Department show that the average man of the class of 1933 is a little bit older, a trifle taller and slightly heavier than the average man of the entering class of last year. Whether his intelligence quotient is higher or lower than that of the medium for the class of 1932 is yet to be determined.

To be an average freshman it is necessary to be 18 years and 10 months old, to weigh 142.5 pounds, and to be 5 feet 6.5 inches tall. An interesting fact is that the class of 1931 was the only class of those now in college to surpass any of these dimensions. When the juniors entered college the average man was 5 feet 8 inches tall, but was physically inferior in all other respects to the present freshmen.

Six Men Over Six Feet Tall

Six men of the class of 1933 are 6 feet tall, while four are over that height. Individual honors go to M. D. Eddy, Burlington, who is 6 feet 2.25 inches tall, an inch shorter than H. W. Davis, '32. To use the time-honored illustration, if all the men were laid end to end they would reach about a fifth of a mile; if they stood up that way they would extend about fifty feet higher than the Woolworth tower. F. E. Champo, Montpelier, carries off the honors for being the shortest man in the class. He looks up from a point 5 feet 1.5 inches above the ground.

H. Cohen, Burlington, would have a ten pound advantage over Davis, who weighed 207 pounds last year. J. D. Erit, Westport, N. Y., who weighs only 166 pounds, helps to keep the combined weight of the class below 13.5 tons

Another 16-Year-Old First-Year Man

In all four years the youngest man to enter college has been but 16 years of age. This year is no exception, for F. B. Drew, Randolph, is that age. The class of 1933 can, however, claim to have the oldest man entering college when they display R. W. Fitzgerald, Underhill, who is 29 years old. The twelve men in the class who have attained their majority bring the combined ages up to 3,460 years, enough to make Methuselah a mere child

GREY FRIARS READ AND CRITICIZE MANUSCRIPT OFFERINGS AT MEETING

Members Get Option of Either Oral Report or Reading of Manuscripts at Future Meetings

As an innovation from the regular schedule of reading a manuscript at the regular bi-monthly meetings, Grey Friar members will have the opportunity of giving a fifteen minute talk on some subject in which they have a particular interest. This may take the form of a book review of some noteworthy work of a leader in literary endeavor, decided Grey Friars, the men's society for the advancement of literature, which met last Wednesday, November 13, in the Old Mill Chapel.

Wilmond W. Parker, '29, and Joseph C. Carter, '32, were appointed to draw up a program of these student speakers.

Manuscripts were read and their merits and faults commented upon by the members present.

"What! Armistice Day?" was the title of an essay by Sam Barker, '32.

He described the recent Armistice Day as he saw it in one of our Eastern cities. "It is different from any other holiday," he stated, "because some of the same people who are celebrating it have been through the slaughter whose termination it marked in 1918.

"All Quiet on the Western Front," Remarque's famous war novel, was skillfully reviewed by Edmour Germain.

"The real value of the book," he affirmed, "is the fact that it tells the truth about actual warfare which only the soldier who fights knows." Someone said, after having read it, "This is a good book to read just before we decide to go to war."

It treats primarily of the reactions on the minds of the German youths who were forced into the struggle. It removes all the gloss of superfluous patriotism and the emotional appeal of the parade uniform, martial music and flag waving. "The book gives offense to no race," Germain stated "because it is an accurate description of the experiences of all who were in the war."

"One of the greatest needs of the world is tolerance," read Joseph Carter '32, as amid great hilarity, the

PANTHER LEADER SCORES THRICE, RUNS 90 YARDS

Playing as brilliant football for Middlebury as his older brother, "Dave," ever did for Harvard, "Sammy" Guarnaccia led and aroused Black Panther eleven to a 19 0 win over an outclassed University of Vermont eleven Saturday afternoon on Centennial Field to clinch the Green Mountain Conference title for the Blue and White.

The Middlebury captain scored the Panthers' three touchdowns. In the second period he intercepted a Vermont pass on Middlebury's thirteen yard line and romped ninety yards for a touchdown.

McLeod, whose work against Norwich won him a place in the first string backfield, and Foote ably assisted Guarnaccia in the ball carrying. Mace put Vermont in a position to score early in the second half, when he sprinted sixty-five yards to Middlebury's five-yard stripe but the Panther line braced and held Vermont for four downs. Winant, the Catamounts' quarterback, was the outstanding factor in Vermont's offensive attack.

Levine Hurt in Third Period

Capt. "Bump" Levine of Vermont was carried from the game in the third quarter, when he sustained a bad injury to his knee. Levine was Vermont's strongest defensive player. The Middlebury forward wall, functioning like a machine, smeared Vermont's line plays and battered down the Catamounts' aerial attack which had been successful against Union and R. P. I.

Middlebury's first touchdown came soon after the opening whistle when the Panthers drove down the field from their own forty-yard line. McLeod started hostilities by ripping off tackle for ten yards. Guarnaccia added another first down, McLeod went through the same hole at tackle for a third first down. Then Middlebury's captain sprinted around right end and was not stopped until he had reached Vermont's fifteen-yard line. McLeod carried the pigskin to the ten-yard line and Guarnaccia went over for the touchdown. The try for point, a place-kick failed.

Middlebury kicked and Vermont was held for downs. Guarnaccia almost added another touchdown on the first play, getting free out around left end and racing to the Vermont goal line where he was tackled by Winant and dropped the ball.

Three penalties for "clipping" and "offside" gave Vermont the ball on Middlebury's twenty-yard line in the first quarter. Vermont worked the ball to the Middlebury thirteen-yard line

Dr. Groat Thinks Young Plan Insufficient to Settle War Debt Question

"The whole difficulty started when it was discovered that the World War was rather an expensive undertaking," said Professor George Gorham Groat in discussing "The Background of the Young Plan" at the meeting of the International Relations Club last Thursday afternoon.

The speaker went on to say that before 1914 economists prophesied that there could never be a war because it couldn't be paid for. And when the war came, the economists insisted that it couldn't last long as the cost would be too great. They were right from the point of view of the money and credit then available, but a new kind of machinery for making credit was set up.

For eleven years, said Professor Groat, efforts have been made to arrange for the financing of the war. The defeated are ordinarily supposed to pay, but it was difficult to determine who were the vanquished and who were the victors in the last war. However, the Allies decided that Germany must pay something. So, at the Versailles Conference, a Reparations Committee was formed which was allowed until 1921 to fix the reparations. The Committee called for information from each of the Allies as to what was the minimum each would take from Germany. The first reaction was to throw in losses of shipping, raids on cities, pension systems, disturbance of trade, care of widows and orphans, and rehabilitation. The final estimate was some 60 or 70 billion dollars, an amount that probably equalled the total national wealth of Germany. Whereupon the Committee met with the German delegates, who showed the Committee that Germany couldn't possibly pay that amount. So the amount was reduced. Again the German delegates protested. And after about 12 conferences on the matter, finally, in 1921, when the life of the committee drew near to an end,

THOSE FUNNY LAWS

Give all the sentiments play a great part in these nations of the Old World. If they were done away with the peasant called man would soon cause the standing armies to cease to exist and thus the thrones would totter in their fall. Certainly all is vanity but the vanity of the soldier holds the crown on many a head the world over."—Stoddard

The Trouble With the Dawes Plan

The Young Plan

Recompense

By Anderson M Scruggs in the "Golden Book"

Surely the time will come when we shall know
The passing of the dream that men call youth.
When blooms we nurtured in the long ago
Shall yield at length the sombre fruits of truth
When that day comes our hearts will leap no more
At the bright call of youth, as breakers run
To greet the challenge of the shining shore
Our days with light and laughter will be done

But ours shall be the wisdom of old trees
Dreaming of countless summers come and gone.
Glory of westward ships on westward seas.
Beauty of shadow lace upon a lawn,
The sum of love beside a friendly fire,
And peace that is the end of all desire

It is a sage Chinese proverb which says that, if a man is not tall when he is twenty, strong when he is thirty, and wise when he is forty, he will never be tall or strong, or wise.

CANDIDATES REPORT AT OPENING HOOP PRACTICE

Manning, Bernstein, Sargent, Tobin, Tupper, Pouch Outstanding in First Session

Only a few candidates answered the first call issued by Captain Berry for varsity basketball. None, however, are expected at the beginning of next week.

The coach sent his charges through a stiff workout, gave a few instructions and admonished the candidates as regards training rules and attendance.

Tim Halligan, captain for the coming season, was not able to be in uniform because of the torn ligaments suffered in the Conn. Aggies fracas. Eddie Winant, Charlie Mace and Orrie Jay are still out for football but plan to report later in the month.

Phil Manning, last year's high scoring guard, "Dink" Bernstein, speedy forward, and Wally Sargent, giant pivot, are the nucleus of the quintet at the present.

Other candidates included Tupper, forward on the 1932 freshman outfit, Pouch, and Bob Tobin, guard on Cayward's second team last season.

Coach Berry wishes all men with previous experience to be at practice Monday at four o'clock. Strengthened by reserves the seasoned letter men should round out into the powerful aggregation that has raised the name of Vermont basketball to its present heights.

Grey Friars Read and Criticize Manuscript Offerings at Meeting

Friars prepared to listen to his essay "On Reading Biographies." It was a philosophical treatment of biographies in general.

"There is no greater teacher of tolerance than biographies," he stated Everyone craves a certain contact with great personages. . . . Satisfying this desire is what makes biographies so interesting and informative.

". . . . Or Not to Be" by Wilmond Parker '29 was an impressionistic short story. With almost perfect technic the author depicted the mental struggles of a young man in love who tries to plan his life, with the girl he loves, according to his own philosophy and ideals of happiness and comfortable contentment.

"The Inquisition" by George Robert Nelson '31 was an excellent account of the development of this Medieval institution. He told in a humorous manner of the progress of the inquisition, its flowering in Spain and the results upon those who encountered it.

TOUCH FOOTBALL FINAL TOMORROW

Kappa Sigma Beats Tau Epsilon Phi and Sigma Alpha Epsilon Defeats Phi Sigma Delts

WINNERS PLAY IN FIRST LEAGUE FINALS TODAY

Last Thursday, another page of the Interfrat Touch Football Tournament was turned over with the Sigma Alpha Epsilons sliding to victory over the Phi Sigs to the tune of 32 to 0, and moving into the final of League I. The score at half time was 18 to 0.

Both teams were greatly hampered by the terrestrial conditions and many an unexpected twist, turn and fall resulted, much to the chagrin of the individual concerned. However, the S. A. E.'s seemed to be able to take better advantage of their "breaks," and flashes of organized teamwork were intermittently seen. The Phi Sigs, at the tail end of the score throughout, kept up their defense and fight till the final whistle was blown.

During the last quarter, nightfall had become so pronounced that the warriors were hardly distinguishable from one another. It seemed quite probable that the Phi Sigs would have a chance to score when their four backfield men feinted a catch when the ball was snapped and went marching down the field, much to the confusion of the opposing team. Nevertheless, they were foiled when one wideawake S. A. E. cast the finishing touch.

TORCHLIGHT PARADE IS POWERFUL POULTICE TO DRAW CHEERS AND PEP

Rattan, Levine, McMahon and Prentice Speak Before Enthusiastic Crowd at City Hall Park

Green lights, noise, cheers, songs, speeches, and peppy band music all united to make last Friday's Torchlight Parade and Pep Rally one of the best ever held on the Hill Promptly at 7.15, the parade of rooters, headed by the band in green and white costumes, left the gym and started on its noisy march to City Hall Park.

The line of march was down Main to Prospect to College to Willard to Main and from there to the Park with the noise and enthusiasm increasing all of the way. At the park, the crowd massed around the bandstand and the program was started with music by the band.

Cheers were led by the leaders, Perry and Bolles, and songs were scattered throughout the program. Captain Rattan was called on and he told the crowd that Vermont was going to show Middlebury some real football. "Bump" Levine next spoke and told the enthusiastic rooters that although he would make no predictions, Middlebury would know that she had been in a scrap. Dr. "Mickey" McMahon and "Bunny" Prentice, both grads, next spoke and told the student body to fight with the team and show pep and loyalty that had been conspicuous by its absence in the other games. The rally was closed with the singing of "Champlain." However, the crowd split up into groups who continued to parade the main streets and let Burlington know that the Vermont student body was behind its team to win on Saturday.

Vermont opened up in the beginning of the third quarter and good gains by Winant and Mace brought the ball down to Midd's five yard line but the Catamount backfield men were unable to break through the Middlebury line in four bucks. Vermont's lateral passing game bothered Middlebury until late in the second half but once the Catamounts were in a position to score they lacked the punch to push the ball over

Middlebury's third touchdown came late in the fourth quarter, when Guarnaccia plunged one yard through the Vermont team, after he and his teammates had worked the ball up the field by steady plugging at the line McLeod made the try for extra point

All in a day's work for telephone men

A specimen of construction work in the Bell System is the new catenary span carrying telephone wires across the Gila River, Arizona. The "natural" obstacle is no longer an obstacle while there are telephone men to find a way through it or over it.

This is but one example in a general expansion program. Others are such widely varied projects as linking New York to Atlanta by cable, erecting 200 telephone buildings in 1929, developing a $15,000,000 factory at Baltimore.

The telephone habit is growing apace, and the Bell System will continue to keep a step ahead of the needs of the nation.

JOHN DEWEY LECTURES AT VERMONT AT MARSH CENTENNIAL OBSERVANCE

Noted Philosopher and Columbia Professor Delivers Marsh Lecture Here Tuesday, November 26

Professor John Dewey, world-wide known philosopher and educator, and "Patron Saint" of the University of Vermont John Dewey Philosophy Club, will lecture on "Coleridge, Marsh, and the Spiritual Philosophy" in the University gymnasium at 8.00 o'clock on Tuesday evening, November 26. The lecture will definitely connect James Marsh with the Romantic movement.

Appears at Centennial

The occasion for Dr. Dewey's appearance at the University is the celebration of the centennial anniversary of the publication of James Marsh's edition of Coleridge.

John Dewey was born in Burlington October 20, 1859, graduating from the University of Vermont at the age of 20. From 1881 to 1884 he studied at Johns Hopkins, where he obtained his doctor's degree. He was instructor and assistant professor of philosophy at the University of Michigan from 1884 to 1888. In 1888-89 he held the chair of professor of philosophy at the University of Minnesota, and, from 1889-94, at the University of Michigan. From 1894 to 1904 he was professor and head of the department of philosophy at the University of Chicago. While at Chicago he became director of the School of Education, and it was here that Dewey put into practice at an experimental school, the theories that have revolutionized education not only in the United States, but throughout the world. Finally, in 1904, Dr. Dewey went to Columbia University, where he has taught ever since, with occasional extended absences spent in travel through Russia, China and Mexico.

John Dewey is no doubt the most noted authority on psychology and philosophy in the United States, and one of the most noted in the world. In the realm of education, the little book, "How We Think," published in 1909, has been the source of a completely revolutionized education. It has turned the attention of the teacher in training from education as the mere painless imbibing of facts to education as the training of intelligence, the process by which, and in which, experience is freighted with meaning.

An Outstanding Liberal

On the side of political and social thought, Dewey's theories of democracy as the society of free and intelligently communicating human beings, of democracy in thought and industry and education as well as in mere external politics, have been the intellectual foundation of every serious liberal movement, and promises at the moment, under his leadership, to be the point of view animating a new national liberal party.

Perhaps the three most important of Dewey's books for the general reader are: The one already mentioned, "How We Think," "Democracy and Education," and "Experience in Nature." Other works of his are "Psychology," 1886; "Critical Theory of Ethics," 1894; "School and Society," 1889; "Human Nature and Conduct," 1922; and "Impressions of Soviet Russia," 1929.

FRATERNITIES ISSUE BIDS TO FRESHMEN

All Freshman Men Assemble This Afternoon at Four in Old Chapel to Receive Their Bids

RUSHING SEASON NOW IS DEFINITELY ENDED

This afternoon, at four o'clock freshmen will assemble in the Old Mill Chapel to receive the fraternity bids. On assembling, they will hear Professor Carroll, of the Political Science Department, and Warren H. Burr, president of the Interfraternity Council, who will give them their instructions, as well as a few hints on how to choose between fraternities. Thereupon, the freshmen will line up alphabetically, when they will proceed, one by one, to another room to receive their bids.

Successful Open-House

The open-house season which closes with the distribution of bids today, was a very successful one. Most fraternities report that more freshmen visited their houses this year than in almost any previous year. This method of open-house nights gave a wonderful opportunity to the freshmen to visit the different fraternities and to make the acquaintance of the men with whom they will be in close contact for the rest of their college life.

The majority of colleges, like Vermont, pledge men during their freshman year, either before or after the mid-year examination period. Other colleges, such as Dartmouth, do not pledge until the sophomore year. Although there are wide variations in the pledging policies of different colleges, it is generally considered a noteworthy step forward from the old type of "cut-throat" rushing, when men wore pledge buttons even before they came to college and had met but one or two of the members of the fraternity which they had joined.

STOCK EXCHANGE SENDS EXPERT TO SPEAK HERE

Jason Westerfield, Exchange Publicity Man, Lectures December 4 Under Commerce and Economics Auspices

Jason Westerfield, head of the publicity department of the New York Stock Exchange, will appear on the lecture platform at the University gymnasium, under the sponsorship of the department of commerce and economics on December 4 at 8 p.m. Mr. Westerfield will give a picture of the inside workings of the great financial institution and will bring with him three reels of moving pictures to illustrate his lecture. There will be no admission charge.

To Show "The Nation's Market"

The first picture shown on the screen by Mr. Westerfield is called "The Nation's Market Place" and contains one reel. The second, "The Mechanics of the Nation's Market Place," is made up of two reels. These are the only pictures to have been taken on the floor of the New York Exchange. The cast for the pictures includes the 1,500 employees of the organization as well as many of the 1,100 members.

At the world premier of the combined pictures, at the Colony Theatre in New York, the showing was continued for a second week by public demand. A description of the first picture says, in part: "The spectators are given an insight into what happens from the time the Exchange gong strikes at 10 a.m. until the last Wall Street edition of the New York papers is in the readers' hands."

This reel will show the entire execution of an order to buy or sell. It will carry the process right through from your phone to the great Stock Exchange, showing how it goes from

JOHN DEWEY MEMBERS RESERVE LECTURE SEATS

At the lecture to be given by John Dewey next Tuesday evening in the gymnasium, the members of the John Dewey Club will sit together in a section of the hall which will be especially reserved for them. The club was named after this famous philosopher, a Vermont graduate. Following the lecture, the members of the club will have the opportunity to meet John Dewey himself personally. Further details concerning the section of the gymnasium to be reserved for the club will be released later.

REHEARSALS PROGRESS IN SEASONAL DRAMATIC PRODUCTION BY BARRIE

Metcalf Reports Great Progress in Rehearsals of Fall Play—New Talent Showing Up Well

Under the able direction of Prof J. T. Metcalf, the fall play, "Dear Brutus," has been progressing swiftly. Beginning rehearsals on November 6, the players have met together three nights a week, with one special rehearsal a week, and have already begun to show marked art in execution. It can be said with certainty now that the University players will have something unusual in college drama to present December 12, and will present it in a way that will bring out all, or nearly all, that Barrie wrote into it and that is saying a lot.

The play is not a play but a poem, a beautiful poem rather like a lengthy lyric with two lines of philosophy its theme, the oft-quoted words of Caesar given him by Shakespeare:

"The fault, Dear Brutus, is not in our stars,
But in ourselves, that we are underlings."

Midsummer Eve Plot

The plot, if the play can be said to have a plot, is this. Lob, a curious creature, who is of no age at all, very likely a relic of Elizabethan days, has gathered a number of people to his house on Midsummer Eve. Although seeming, especially to themselves, so diverse, they have one thing in common. They all think that if they were allowed to make again the choice between two courses that they made sometime past, in their youth, they would choose the other, and that it would be the better one, would make them happier and more successful.

So in this Midsummer Night's dream, as it were, these characters are placed in the positions in which they would have been in at this time of life had they chosen the other course. But in only one case is it definitely better.

In fact, the second course seems to show the characters in a burlesque exaggeration of their chief characteristics—and defects. This second act is the humor act of the play, and if rudely interpreted, might seem a crazy vaudeville act.

In the last act the characters realize how little they made of that chance. And the words of Matey, at the end of the play, in reply to Joanna's questioning if there is ever any permanent effect from this experiment:

"So far as I know, not often, Miss; but, I believe, once in a while."

"He could tell you," sums up the hope and futility of the play.

For the connoisseurs of the aesthetic and of the terpsichorean art, Sam Barker, '32, as Coade presents a delightful imitation of Pan in a gay and carefree dance. Lady Caroline, Beverly Householder, '30, and Matey, Robert Aiken, '31, also render a charming little old-fashioned dance in the gay wood.

All in all, the second act is an interlude of humor between the illusion of the first and the disillusionment of the third.

In this play, so often presented all over the world, Barrie has put something that is a part of life, something that will live, and keep it—doubtful honor—a standby for scholastic presentation, and a thing of beauty for the reading of admirers; a fairy tale

V. C. A.'S PLAN FOR THANKSGIVING DAY

Men's and Women's Christian Associations Give Dinner and Dance on Holiday to All University Students

ADMINISTRATION BACKS PROGRAM FOR OCCASION

Thanksgiving Day at the University of Vermont will be an unusually happy day. Through the efforts of the men and women's Christian associations and the administration represented by Dean Patterson, Robinson Hall is in a position to invite all the men students of the University to a Thanksgiving dinner. Moreover, facilities for various kinds of recreation will be offered for the remainder of the afternoon to all who attend. Furthermore, a Thanksgiving dance will be held free of charge for all the students of the University. This will also be spnsored by the men's and women's Christian associations of the University with the permission of the administration.

Tickets at "Y" Office

The program prepared this year for Thanksgiving day is the most ambitious one ever presented by the Christian Associations. The committee in charge of arrangements for the Thanksgiving dinner however desires all students who intend to attend to signify their intention to do so in the Y. M. C. A. office no later than Monday evening. The price of the dinner will be seventy-five cents. The dance will be free of charge to all students who present tickets, which can be procured the early part of next week at the Y. M. C. A. office.

Those responsible for this worthwhile and commendable attempt to further the social life of the students of the University were influenced in doing so principally because they felt that as Thanksgiving Day does not permit the majority of students to visit their homes, the program as planned would in a certain degree make up for this lack by the friendly spirit of festivity which is always

ALUMNI CLUBS EACH TO NAME REPRESENTATIVE TO GRADUATE COUNCIL

Fall Meeting Adopts Constitutional Changes—Nominate to Fill Vacancy

Alumni clubs of the University of Vermont throughout the country will hereafter have the opportunity to elect one representative each to the Alumni Council, according to a change in the constitution of the Council adopted at the fall meeting held at the Ethan Allen Club house Saturday morning. Heretofore only class representatives and members at large elected by the Council itself have been members of the Council.

The nominating committee, consisting of M. Shaler Allen of New York, Mrs. Lucia B. Downing of Essex Junction and Albert E. Lewis of Boston, brought in the following nominations, which were approved by the Council to be submitted to the entire alumni body:

Four For Trustee

For alumni trustee to succeed Dr. T. W. Huntington, deceased: Dr. James H. Naylor, '95, of Hartford, Conn., or Dr. John Wallis Avery, '96, of California, or Dr. Lewis W. Flanders, '85, of Dover, N. H.; with Dr. Frank H. Clapp, '86, of Grafton, Mass., as alternate.

These names will be voted upon by ballot. The ballots will be sent to the alumni by mail from the alumni office in the near future and the result of the election will be announced at the June meeting of the Council.

Jacobs Explains Earthquake Shock As Due to Geological Readjustment

Students were afforded a few minutes diversion Monday afternoon at about half past three, by a slight earthquake which set up tremors for a few moments. Classes in the upper stories of the buildings seem to have felt the shock more than those on the ground floors. Reports to that effect have come in especially from the art class on the third floor of the Medical Building. These moved to lower regions when they had subsided.

The earthquake was felt throughout the New England region, extending as far as Nova Scotia, and as far south as the State of Rhode Island. The city of Burlington itself is reported that a greater shock was felt in the lake region than on higher ground.

"I doubt if we will ever have a destructive earthquake in Vermont," declared Prof. J. C. Jacobs of the geology department, on the next day. "These little rumblings represent the settlement as the land is settling, following the retreat of the glaciers. There are no records of extensive earth disturbances in recent years," Professor Jacobs said.

In commenting on the earthquake, Professor Jacobs confirmed the opinion that this disturbance centered somewhere along the Fundian fault, a line extending under the Bay of Fundy, the Atlantic Ocean and coming to land at Cape Ann.

The earth shock Monday was more intense in the downtown section of the city and Professor Jacobs explained this by stating that this section of the city is built on soil which contains relatively little rock. In such material the "wave" or shock is more intensified than in the solid rock which is found farther up town.

Professor Jacobs pointed out the course of some of the larger faults in eastern America and stated that Burlington is located directly on one of these, the Logan fault, which is one of the most important. This break in the strata of the earth's crust extends along the south side of the St. Lawrence River, nearly to its mouth and then comes south, the indications being clearly shown at Rock Point and at the cliffs at Ethan Allen Park. From Rock Point it extends across Burlington Bay coming to land at Shelburne Point and extending southward through Shelburne, Hinesburg, Middlebury, Shoreham and into New York State. The old "scraps" or upthrust cliffs are indications of the places where in past ages readjustment of the earth's crust has taken place. It is finally lost in New York.

Another fault is found along the base of the Green Mountains on the western side and probably extends for the whole length. Indications of this are clearly to be seen in the mountains between Middlebury and Bristol. The Fundian fault is the third large area where adjustments of the earth's crust have taken place.

Professor Jacobs pointed out that because of the fact that the Green Mountains belong to an early [illegible] period, that there is comparatively little danger to fear from earthquakes. "It is where young mountains are being formed that we expect to find earthquakes and volcanoes."

The last earthquake shock of any intensity occurred north of the St. Lawrence in the Saguenay region. Professor Jacobs is of the opinion that a settlement along the Logan fault was responsible for this tremor.

"During the glacial age which ended some 35,000 or 40,000 years ago the land in this section was submerged by an enormous pressure and was considerably. Since the passing of this period the land has been rising and this has been the cause of many of the earth shocks which we have had," Professor Jacobs explained.

"There are no surface indications which show that there have been severe earthquakes in this region in modern times," Professor Jacobs explained. He pointed out that all of the old scraps indicate that any movements of the earth's crust must have occurred long before the presence of white men in America.

"I trust that we may have a seismograph at the University within a short time," Professor Jacobs said and explained that such an instrument would furnish valuable data in keeping up on earth movements. "At the present time there are none closer nearer than Albany, Boston, Montreal and Toronto. One located here would enable us to make accurate checks about the half-way point between these places," he said.

GERMAN PROFESSOR AT VERMONT DIES ABROAD

Dr. Anton Hermann Appellmann, formerly professor of German language and literature at the University of Vermont, died Tuesday morning in Canabrueck, Germany, according to word received here.

Doctor Appellmann was born in Badbergen, Hanover, Germany, in 1884. He was educated at Meppen and did post-graduate work at the Universities of Munster, Strassburg, Basle, Zurich and Paris. He received his degree as doctor of philosophy in 1910. He was an instructor in the University of Munster from 1910 to 1912 and at that time was sent by the German government to do special work in the high schools of Boston. During the winter of 1912 he lectured at Harvard.

He was appointed professor of the German language and literature at the University of Vermont in 1913. He was the author of several textbooks on German language and literature.

During his tenure of office bitter feeling was directed against him because of his pronounced German sympathies. Some alumni accused him of being a spy and feeling in the college ran high.

He was civilian military liaison official at the American front and was with General Allen at Coblenz. He later resided in New York.

The second period consisted of some fine playing with a safety for the Phi Delts as the only bit of scoring. The half ended with the score 18 to 8 in favor of the Sigma Phis.

At the opening of the second half, no climax had yet been reached Sigma Phi kicked off, and after a few plays, Perrigard, Phi Delt, received a pass from Armstrong for a touchdown, making the score 18 to 14. A series of spectacular plays then followed with Lang, receiving a pass from Tupper, who added to his reputation as a shifty, broken-field runner by his dodging and evasiveness exhibited previous to the heave, crossing its goal line for another half dozen units.

Immediately after the beginning of the last quarter, Sigma Phi, after driving the Phi Delt line toward its own wall scored a safety. To show that their spirit was unaffected by the onslaught of the Sigma Phis, through a spectacular pass from Armstrong to Sargent Phi Delts again scored, bringing the final score 26-20

LENGTHY RIFLE LIST ARRANGED FOR WINTER

A. H. Roller Elected Manager, Berger Assistant—Captain Berry, Coach, Has Won Various Honors on Range

Manager A. H. Roller of this year's rifle team announces a lengthy schedule for this winter and is now preparing for practice, which will begin immediately after Thanksgiving under the coaching of Capt. K. L. Berry. Roller, who was elected last month, is from Jersey City, N. J., a member of the junior class and of the Phi Sigma Delta Fraternity, assistant manager of tennis and a big figure on the hill. Perry Berger of Burlington was elected assistant manager. Captain Berry, who is probably the best rifleman who has come to the University in years has a long list of honors. He was on the infantry rifle team which won the national championship in 1927 and 1928 and placed third out of 110 in 1929. He placed in the national individual rifle contest in 1927 and 1929 and was among the "President's Hundred" in 1927 and 1928. In 1927 he tied for second place in the Grand Aggregate and placed in 1929. He was made a distinguished marksman in 1927, the first year of competition for this honor. Besides these honors Captain Berry has won many other places in individual cup and medal contests.

With such a coach and a good bunch of veterans, prospects for the team look pretty rosy. Men who were awarded letters last year and have returned this year are A. L. Wardwell, captain, E. C. Ball, W. F. Burns, G. M Donaldson, M. L Joslin, J. O. Percival, C. V. Primpas and L. S. Wright.

Miss Eleanor Cummings and Miss Alice Blanchard of the Physical Education department were present at the women's hockey meet at Middlebury College, Thursday, November 14.

A demonstration game of hockey was played as in 1909. The participants wore the costumes and observed the rules typical of that period.

YEARLINGS REPORT TOMORROW IN GYM

First Practice at Two O'clock—Squad of 50 Expected to Turn Out—Last Year's Team Had Good Record

MATERIAL FOR FROSH TEAM LOOKS PROMISING

Howard A Prentice, coach of freshman basketball, has issued a call for yearling candidates to report to him tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock in the gymnasium

Coach Prentice had charge of last year's freshmen and with mediocre material turned out a winning aggregation. Although that team was not victorious in every contest it made a creditable showing. Lacking individual stars around which a team could be built, the quintet was developed into a good defensive and accurate passing combination

This year there are several frosh who have had previous extensive experience on high school and prep school teams. All men who have had experience or have ability on the court are urged to appear for practice tomorrow.

Among the prominent candidates expected to report are Spencer, Shoor, Young, Ianni, Munsey, Chialino, Baker, Talbot, Taft, Marvin, Valerio, Swain, Buzzell, Massucco, Neal, Farwell, Agel, Cohen, Negri, Greenblatt, Grant, Collins, Mahoney, McGowan.

EVAN THOMAS SPEAKS ON THE GLOOMY DEAN

Vermont Professor Lectures on England's Sensational Minister, Thinker and Scholar

Prof. Evan Thomas, emeritus member of the University faculty, spoke before the Discussion Club of the College Street Congregational Church last Sunday on Dean Inge's interpretation of Christianity

In the first place, after showing that the Dean's name is pronounced in more ways than almost any other person who can be named, Professor Thomas said, that upon personal inquiry while he was abroad, he found the Dean himself makes his name rhyme with "bring," as though it were written "Ing."

Dean Inge is one of the most scholarly men in the Anglican Church today. He is its best scholar, especially in Greek philosophy and culture. He was fortunate in having not begun his present prolific writing until he was well advanced in life.

Professor Thomas described Dean Inge as a champion of the spiritual. Socially, he is an aristocrat by birth and association. He thinks we have produced no literature superior to Aristophanes and Shakespeare, no inventions superior to the wheel, the manufacturing of glass, the process of weaving, and the alphabet

In the sphere of ethics and human conduct he fails to detect any evidence of real progress in spite of visible improvements in spots. The ethics of Socrates and Jesus have not been improved upon. Oppressions in Europe, lynchings and butcheries in America, the World War and the inhumanities inseparable from an industrial age—these are not at all calculated to confirm faith in progress

Essex Junction was elected a member at-large of the Council to succeed Miss Mildred Powell, resigned.

James D. Brennan of Boston, chairman of the Council, who presided outlined a plan for checking up on Loyalty Fund pledges during the next few months, so that the Council may know by the June meeting just about where it stands as to prospective income from present sources. It is then planned to take steps to increase that income. The Council at a previous meeting voted to make as its aim the securing of a Student Memorial building for the University.

Mr. Brennan said he hoped to be able to make a tour of alumni clubs in the East during the winter and to talk over with them plans for greater financial support of the University through the alumni fund.

MILDER FOOTBALL SCHEDULE FOR 1930

Amherst and Harvard Open Season Away From Home—Springfield is Turkey Day Opponent Again

STATE CONTESTS ON SUCCESSIVE SATURDAYS

Vermont faces a somewhat milder schedule in the next football season than they have had to put up with for the last two years, and the Green and Gold fans are offering up a prayer of thanksgiving for a schedule that does not cripple the squad so that they are even outclassed in nearly every game that they play after the first two Harvard, which is the second opponent that the Green and Gold will face is the only rival which will really outclass the Green and Gold All the rest of the games are with colleges of more or less the same caliber as Vermont

The schedule opens with Amherst who has not appeared on a Vermont schedule for many years. The only other new teams that are scheduled are the U S Coast Guard and New Hampshire All the rest are ancient rivals This is the first time that the Coast Guard has met the Catamounts on the gridiron and they are to open the home season on October 11. Next year is also the opening of a home and home series of games to be played with New Hampshire. R P I. for the second time in succession will play on Centennial Field and should prove just as interesting next year as this year One unfortunate thing about the schedule is that the games with Middlebury and Norwich come on successive Saturdays instead of with a week between as in former years The Cats barely get rested up from one tussle before they meet their other big rival Circumstances, however, made this condition unavoidable

Much credit is due the graduate manager, in whose office such policies are instituted, for the favorable action taken in this connection

The schedule for 1930

September 27—Amherst at Amherst
October 4—Harvard at Cambridge
October 11—U S. Coast Guard here
October 18—Union at Schenectady
October 25—New Hampshire at Durham

EAN SWIFT GIVES SCHOLASTIC FIGURES

ass of '32 Has Largest Number Under Warning—95 in Arts and Sciences in Difficulties —82 With B Average

SUE LIST OF RULES COVERING SCHOLARSHIP

ording to statistics just released Dean Swift treating the scholarship students enrolled in the arts and ces curricula, the number of stu- s under warning this half is but tly larger than the number at this od last year.

The class of 1932, as might be ex- ed, has the largest number of stu- s under warning. They have 52, increase of eight over last year; 1 now has 16 students in scholas- difficulties as compared to 17 last r. 1930 has only half this number, increase of one over the correspond- period of 1928; 1933 has 19, a de- ase of one. The comparisons are e with the number of students the preceding class. In all, 95 are er warning this year as compared ast for last.

t is interesting to note that, though are 95 in serious scholastic dif- lties, there are 82 students with B average to compensate for them. The class of 1930 has lost 7 percent its number, has 8 percent under rning, and has 22 percent with a B rage.

Decided Drop in Scholarship

The class of 1931 shows a decided p in percentage for scholarship ve only 8 percent have a B average, only 10 percent of the class are der warning.

The class of 1932 has lost one- rter of her total enrollment, has ost that many under warning, and 11 percent with a B average.

In this connection it may be noted at the class of 1932 has had the west percentage of freshmen dropped ce the year 1924-25. In their fresh- n year, the seniors had 16 percent ll by the wayside, and the juniors that corresponding period lost 15 cent. These figures are exclusive four year teacher training students. The following are the rules con- ning scholarship. At the present e changing the word "one-third" 30 percent" in Rule 6 is being sidered.

Rules Concerning Scholarship

1. The scholarship of the students graded on the scale of 100 percent follows: A (90-100 per cent); B (80- percent); C (70-79 percent); D (60- percent). X and F (below 60 per- t). An X indicates a failure which be removed by re-examination. F indicates a more serious fail- and requires the repetition of the se without privilege of re-examina- n.

POST IS DIRECTOR OF INTRAMURAL ATHLETICS

Mr. A. T. Post, assistant director of physical education, has been appointed director of intramural athletics. This appointment took effect last Thursday, November 21. All problems and questions pertaining to intramural sports should be taken up with him. Mr. Post is coach of varsity track as well as freshman and varsity cross-country teams.

THANKSGIVING TO BE CELEBRATED HERE

Robinson Hall Scene of Dinner—All Men Invited to Attend—Charge is Seventy-five Cents

CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATIONS TO GIVE A FREE DANCE

Thanksgiving at the University of Vermont will be a day of unusual festivities. Through the combined efforts of the men and women's Christian associations and the University administration, represented by Dean Patterson, Robinson Hall will be the scene of a Thanksgiving dinner which all the men students are invited to attend. The committee in charge of arrangements for the dinner desires all students who intend to be present to signify their intention to do so in the V. C. A. office not later than this evening.

The price of the dinner will be seventy-five cents. Cards will be played and there will be songs, cheers, and a general time of mirth and merry-making.

The Association dance in the evening will conclude the Thanksgiving festival. This is to be a supreme social event and admission will be free to all students of the University who present tickets which may be secured at the "Y" office.

The dance wil be held at the Burlington High School gymnasium from eight until twelve o'clock. Holbrook's Orchestra will provide plenty of harmony. Mr. and Mrs. Merrill P. Powers and Prof. and Mrs. George V. Kidder will chaperone. Refreshments are to be served.

CHOOSE NEW TEAM TO DEBATE MIDDLEBURY IN PRACTICE MEET FRIDAY

Bigelow, Mattison and Frazier Engage Panther Forensics in Preparation for New Zealand Debate

Vermont and Middlebury will meet in their first debate together this year, Friday evening at eight o'clock in the Old Chapel. The debate is a practice for the Middlebury team, which meets New Zealand in an international debate next week. The decision will have no effect on either the state championship or the Lawrence prizes.

Vermont Presents New Team

No veterans will debate for Vermont. None of the veteran team—Lisman, Nelson and Sears—which defeated Keene Normal a week ago Saturday, will participate in Friday's engagement. Donald Frazier, '32, Hugh Mattison, '31, and James Bigelow, '33, speaking in the order indicated, will uphold the case for Vermont, on the affirmative side of the proposition "Resolved, that the emergence of woman from the home is a regrettable feature of modern life." All three have participated in class debates. Mattison, debating with Lisman and Nelson, was on the sophomore team which last year took the Bailey Cup. Frazier this year did some excellent work in the class debate for the sophomores. Bigelow was outstanding on the freshman team. Together with Colburn and Donaghy, he won the Bailey Cup this year.

JUNIORS WIN DEAN CUP FRIDAY NIGHT

Score With Excellent Presentation of "Overtones"—Sophomores Give "America Passes By"—Frosh Give "The Wedding Present"

MUCH CREDIT DUE TO EXCELLENT COACHING

The junior women carried away the Dean Cup last Friday night with the presentation of "Overtones." This cup is the annual class play trophy donated by Mr. and Mrs. Leon W. Dean for the class which best presents a one-act play. The plays were held in the University gymnasium, sponsored by the Dramatic Club. The judges were Professors Tupper, Myrick and Dean of the University.

The winning play "Overtones," was one that took a lot of skill and artistry to act properly. The two sides of the two persons in each of two women, continually warring were shown to the audience so that not only the speeches of the women, but their thoughts as well, were given. Seldom is an amateur production as well done as that was. The play was coached by Irene Marcotte and Lilian Cohen, both of the senior class. The property and make-up assistants were Gladys Press, Harriet Wright and Suzanne Rutledge. The cast was: Hetty, Winona Spencer; Harriet, her overtone, Gertrude Levin; Maggie, Dorothy Nash; Margaret, her overtone, Janice Davis.

The Sophomore Play

The sophomore play, an exquisite problem entitled "America Passes By," had its romantic and tragic touches. The lovers meet in the romantic Orient where all is mellowed and time is sweet, only to realize in Chicago, that there is a difference between conditioned love and personal love. This play also was certainly well up to par. There were several scenes really excellently done. The part of Kate, the contented American wife, was more than adequately filled by Elizabeth Hollis; Katherine Woodward represented George, the contented American husband; while the curiously disillusioned lovers were Leonora Neeld as Anne, and Lois Harrington as Bill. The coach of the sophomores was Jean Wappler, '31, and her assistants were Mildred Gile, Pearl Brown, and Olive Fields.

And the Freshmen

The freshmen, for contrast, had an amusing little skit called "The Wedding Present." It had to do with that momentous occasion, the first quarrel of a bride and groom. The fight was about a wedding present, the sender of which, naturally enough, neither could recall. When the sender arrived, he was a little bit embarrassed himself; he had asked his sister to take care of getting the present for him, and had never thought to ask what the gift was.

Marian Kiel did her usual good interpretation as the bride, and Peggy Wharton well impersonated the firm, high-minded husband, Bob. The poor sender of the gift, more blessed one, Jim, was represented by Alice Fairchild. The coaches of this play were Clarissa Peters, '30, and Pauline Willis, '30; and Pearl Cannon, Eleanor Eggleston and Ruth Conant assisted them in their work.

A great deal of the credit for the quality of the acting should go to these coaches.

MASQUE AND SANDAL INITIATES FOUR FRIDAY

At a meeting last Friday at the Kappa Alpha Theta House, Masque and Sandal honorary dramatic society, initiated the following women: Margaret Ann Martin, '32, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Beatrice Parkhill, '32, of Middlebury; Caroline Howard, '32, of White River Junction; and Elizabeth Howe, '32, of Adams, Mass.

Mabel Freemann, '30, and Carolyn Whitney, '31, will represent Masque and Sandal at a convention of Women's Dramatic Societies to be held on December 6 and 7 at New Jersey College for Women, New Brunswick, N. J.

PLAN WOMEN'S MASS MEETING FOR DEC. 6

W. A. A. will hold an indoor rally in the gym, December 6, as a feature of the Student Union mass meeting called for that evening. Awards will be made by W. A. A. at this time. All girls who have points for W. A. A. credit should hand them in to their class representative before Saturday, November 23.

Nan Ousley and Frances Hazen are the senior representatives, Jean Wappler is the junior representative and Lillian Mount is the sophomore representative. The freshman representative will be chosen this week and the result of the election announced at the mass meeting. Juliet Marston, Caroline Taft and Mary Sleep have been nominated for the position.

FRATERNITY SINGING CONTEST DEC. 2-3

Majestic Theatre to Hold First Annual Interfraternity Singing Contest—Event to be Staged by Ex-Converse

WINNERS TO RECEIVE A SILVER LOVING CUP

A new interfraternity competitive event will be ushered in at Vermont December second and third, when the Majestic Theatre will present its First Annual Interfraternity Singing Contest. Each local chapter will render its favorite fraternity song and judges selected by the Interfraternity Council will pick the winning group. A suitably engraved cup will be given to the winner and a ticket to every participant of the second best group.

It is planned to divide the number of houses as equally as possible, giving each fraternity its choice of appearance on either the night of December second or third. On each of these two nights the judges will select the winning house, and the playoff for the championship and cup will be held shortly afterwards, on a date to be decided upon by the finalists meeting in joint session.

Judges Will Decide

The judges chosen for the event will not only decide upon the winner, but will draw up their own set of standards as well. This is deemed advisable in order to eliminate any suggestion of influence by the theatre management. Furthermore, the judges must be in no wise connected with or possess any financial interest in the Majestic Theatre. They may be picked from the University faculty or from the business or professional groups of Burlington. None may be members of any fraternity on the campus, or affiliated in any way with such fraternities.

Staged by Ex-Converse

The contest, the first of its kind ever to be presented at Vermont, will be handled by Ex-Converse, proprietor of the Boarding House Reach column in the Cynic. Last year this individual staged a successful College Night at the Majestic and scored with another extremely enthusiastic presentation of a like affair this fall. Popular demand has dictated the staging of an interfraternity contest of the above nature, and the theatre management has consented to cooperate in the affair.

Rules Governing Contest

1. The contest will be known as the First Annual Interfraternity Singing Contest.

2. It will take place at the Majestic Theatre on the nights of December 2 and 3. The finals will be held on the night of December 6, providing both finalists find this date satisfactory.

3. Each academic fraternity at Vermont may submit one fraternity song and the members may choose between the two above dates for its presentation.

4. "Art" Brown will play each song in turn on the organ and the corresponding fraternity will sing it.

5. The judges of the contest will be chosen by the Interfraternity

JOHN DEWEY SPEAKS HERE THIS EVENING

World-Famous Philosopher And Vermont Alumnus Lectures Here on Occasion of Marsh Centennial

IS A LEADING EXPONENT OF LIBERAL THOUGHT

Third in the series of University lectures, and one of paramount importance, is that of Professor John Dewey, known the world over as philosopher, scholar, thinker and leading exponent of liberal thought, who speaks at 8 o'clock tonight, in the gymnasium. Professor Dewey comes at the invitation of Professor Gifford's committee, which planned the lecture series for this season, to speak on the centennial anniversary of the publication of James Marsh's "Essay on Coleridge." Thus far, Bertrand Russell and Charles R. Knight have spoken here. The University, later in the year, will present S. K. Ratcliffe, English editor, and Carl Sandburg, poet.

James Marsh, whom Dr. Dewey will seek to connect with the romantic movement, was the fifth president of the University. He was recognized throughout the nation as a thinker and a scholar, and was a pioneer in the introduction of elective courses and of student government forms. The title of the lecture will be "Coleridge, Marsh, and the Spiritual Philosophy."

A Leading Liberal

Professor Dewey is widely known for his liberal point of view in every phase of life. He has lent his powers of liberal thought to such various problems as racial equality, democratic control of institutions, oppressed nationalities, freedom of speech, self determinism in Mexico, China and Russia, rights of the worker, and compulsory military training in the universities and high schools of the United States.

From a recent book of his, "Impressions of Soviet Russia, and Other Revolutionary Worlds," one gleans many interesting observations on our educational system as compared with the Russian. Russia, as well as China, Turkey, Egypt and Mexico, has actually put into practice Dr. Dewey's revolutionary theories of education, which first made their appearance in this country through the publication in 1909 of a little book called "How We Think." In connection with this book, it is interesting to note how we actually do think, and the following extract from "How We Think" describes the complete act of thought. "Firstly, a felt difficulty; secondly, location and definition; thirdly, suggestion of possible solutions; fourthly, development by reasoning of the bearings of the suggestion; and fifthly, further observation and experiment leading to its acceptance or rejection; that is, the conclusion of belief or disbelief."

In his book, "Impressions of Soviet Russia," Dr. Dewey expresses very frankly his opinion of the schooling that Americans get. He holds that we are not educated. If education means the development of a "trained habit of discriminating inquiry and discriminating belief." We fool not only ourselves, but others as well because we have not that inner defense against excitement, sensation, credulity, and conventionally stereotyped opinion which is found only in the trained mind. Our educational system does little to train the intellect to guard against the invasion of bunk, especially of social and political bunk.

The activities of the school, says Professor Dewey, fit in strongly as to aim, spirit, and administrative organization, with all other social agencies and interests. However, any honest educational reformer in the western nations can not deny that the greatest practical hinderance to making use in our schools of this necessary connection to our social life is the enormous part played by personal competition and the desire for private profit in our economic life. Only in a society based on a cooperative principle can

AN ILLUSTRIOUS SON RETURNS

[illegible] returns to Vermont.

While the whole world is acclaiming him with honors and praise on the occasion of seventy years of service in the interests of [illegible] and humanity, John Dewey, child of the green hills and [illegible] and old Vermont, quietly slips away from anniversary [illegible] and gay celebrations to accept the invitation of his Alma Mater to lecture in Burlington at the University gymnasium tonight.

Vermont is celebrating an anniversary of her own. One hundred years ago, one James Marsh, fifth in the list of Vermont's presidents, a Dartmouth man but Vermonter to the bone, scholar and thinker of no mean repute, published an "Essay on Coleridge." The lecture tonight commemorates the centennial anniversary of the publication of that work.

One hundred years from tonight, Vermont will celebrate yet another anniversary—the one-hundredth anniversary of the return of John Dewey to Vermont. The man the students of Vermont will see tonight is not of a towering stature physically; he bears no haughty countenance; he is not imperious of mien. His supremacy lies, rather, in the realm of thought. There he is a veritable giant; there his every act carries weight; his very word is law. He will, in all probability, say nothing very startling tonight. It is quite likely that much of what he will say many of us have heard before. But he is worth listening to because every word he utters has in it the flavor of a mellowed wisdom, of a clear and active brain, and the product of the researches of many years. But above all, he remains John Dewey, a man worth listening to for his own sake, an alumnus of Vermont who richly deserves all the honors and more that have been so freely accorded him by an admiring world.

John Dewey has held the chair of philosophy at Michigan and at Minnesota, at Chicago and now at Columbia. Many a student has learned to love him; and of the thousands to whom he has spoken, every one has accorded him the fullest respect. Russia has come to [illegible] him, and China and Mexico and Turkey. The laborer, for whom he has fought in the interest of his humanitarian principles, knows him well. So do the radical, the banker, the captain of industry, the statesman, the divine, the man of letters. John Dewey, son of Vermont, is Vermont's gift to humanity—a citizen of the world.

It is not often that students at Vermont are privileged to hear such men of international repute as have appeared in the lecture course of the University this year. First was Bertrand Russell, recognized as one of the world's foremost philosophers. Then came Charles P. Knight, internationally famed artist. And now there comes to our campus this evening John Dewey, whose reputation as an educator and philosopher can scarcely be equalled by any living person.

We students of Vermont should not only feel a more personal interest in John Dewey, but also should speak of him with pride, for he is an alumnus of our college. Dr. Dewey is an excellent example of the finest type of man that our University nourishes for four years and then sends out to carry to the world those ideals and habits which he has learned during his short sojourn here.

Professor Dewey, who has been teaching philosophy at Columbia University for the last 25 years, has completely revolutionized the educational theories which were prevalent prior to the publication of his significant book, "How We Think" in 1910. His theories, however, have not been confined to the United States, but have swept aside all national barriers and have become the basis of educational systems in Russia, China, Turkey, Egypt and Mexico—countries where are put into practice to an even greater extent than our own.

Dr. Dewey's philosophical theories, as well as his educational theories, are based upon a strong trust in human nature. On the human instincts of freedom and cooperation he finds the basis of democracy—democracy in education, thought and industry as well as in our political structure. He is a pragmatist of the most realistic type and seeks to interpret human nature through human experience.

This keen and active thinker who reached the age of three score years and ten last month, received boundless praise for his fearlessness in thought, for his championship of new ideas, and for his humanizing influence in philosophy. Messages from all parts of the globe expressed good will to this most genial benefactor of mankind.

It is no little honor to the University of Vermont that Professor Dewey should consent to come here to lecture. Professor of philosophy, an active member of organizations of national and international scope, much in demand as a lecturer, his every minute is precious to him. The world demands much of a man who shakes the very foundations of education and philosophy, and his time is often jealously guarded by the greedy public.

We students should take advantage of this exceptional opportunity to welcome back into our midst an alumnus who has so well illustrated to the world the product of our Green Mountain State institution of learning, who comes to celebrate the centennary of the publication of James Marsh's essay. To have the names of these two great men of Vermont so linked together should serve as a reminder of what this University can do.

The administration, which is bringing John Dewey and the others of this season's series to us, deserves the thanks of the whole student body. The work of Professor Gifford and his committee, who have worked untiringly to induce these men to come to Vermont, is especially commendable. John Dewey is no publicity agent. He comes as the representative of no single cause. He comes to offer us no panaceas, no propaganda, no press-agenting advertising. He comes as the guest of the University. For tonight he is ours—the student body of the University of Vermont.

"Progressiveness is willingness to take chances with a new idea or method. It expects that some new methods will prove useless but in order to discover the worth while it will take broad risks."—EMORY S. BOGARDUS.

[illegible] the ideals of educational reformers be adequately carried out.

Dewey wrote very enthusiastically of the Soviet educational system, holding that the essential difference between their system, and that of other national systems is precisely the complete control of every educational procedure by reference to a single and comprehensive social purpose. It is not so much the newness of a theory for the connection of pupils, studies, and method with social life has been advocated previously, but for the first time in history such a system has the authority and weight of a governmental regime behind it, and the educational system is officially organized by it. This can be contrasted with the few scattering schools that we have in this country based on a somewhat analogous principle.

"We Have No General Aim"

Moreover, continues Dr. Dewey, we should not confuse our "project" method with the "complex" method of Russia. Our projects are somewhat trivial and have no general aim. On the other hand, the Soviet "complex" system centers about the study of human work in its connection on the one side, with natural materials and energies and, on the other side, with social and political history and institutions.

Another range of Professor Dewey's interests is well illustrated by his connection with the League for Independent Political Action, of which he is national chairman. The general purpose of this League, in Dr. Dewey's own words, is "to bring to articulate organization in its own interests the public that is so inchoate, so supine, and so indifferent." Elucidating further the general aim of the League, Dr. Dewey, in speaking over the radio last month, said that though our social life has been completely changed in the last generation, there has been no corresponding political realignment. The old parties continue to voice the old phrases and to display ostentatiously the old slogans before the public, while behind the curtain, despite the protests of large dissenting minorities in each party, they have yielded abjectly to domination by big business interests and have become "their errand boys."

The leaders of the League for Independent political action explained Dr. Dewey, believe that our American life is badly in need of reorganization based upon a sense of the realities of our social life," and that this rebuilding can be accomplished only by political policies which take into consideration existing financial and industrial conditions.

Some of the practical things which the League advocates are old age pensions, public ownership of public utilities, unemployment and health insurance, the abolition of "yellow dog" contracts, agricultural relief, a virtually free trade basis, high progressive taxes on incomes, non-restriction on negro and immigrant labor suffrage and a sincere and determined effort to eliminate the economic, psychological, and political causes of war.

Still another field in which John Dewey finds time to devote considerable attention is one which ought to be of interest to the freshman and sophomore classes of our University. He is especially noted in current affairs for his stand against militarism.

Society Notes

DELTA DELTA DELTA

The forty-first anniversary of the founding of Delta Delta Delta was celebrated by Eta chapter, Alpha Iota chapter of Middlebury, and the Burlington Alliance, at the Vermonters' Club house on Monday evening, November 25, with Eta chapter acting as hostess. "Hello."

There was no answer, so I [illegible] and stumbled into the bed. I la[illegible] a few moments. My head wa[illegible] terribly and ringing like a [illegible] all the bells in Christendom.

"What a hangover!" I [illegible] "What a fool I was! What [illegible] fool I was!"

I groaned, turned over and [illegible] go to sleep. Useless attempt. The dull roaring in my ears, that [illegible] thump! thump! thump! in my te[illegible] couldn't sleep; I couldn't rest. The bed started to sway, like the [illegible] of the Old Mill on a windy morning. The swaying turned to a long heaving swing.

Clang! Clang! Clang! softly [illegible] my faithful Baby Ben. Plunk! Plunk! Plunk! gently answered my [illegible] Ingersoll from the other side of the room.

Up and down, up and down [illegible] sometimes even down and up [illegible] my bed. Its motion became more sharp and abrupt. Umph-ch[illegible] leaned over for a few moments and felt much better. Yes, much better. No, there it was again. That same dizzy feeling, that terrible pounding in my head. I lay and suffered. Minutes seemed like hours and hours seemed like fifty-minute English Lit periods. Would the time never pass.

YES	Check One	NO

Finally Dawn arose. I don't know her last name, but I know she arose, for she failed to pull down her shades and my bed commands an excellent view of the upper stories of the domiciles across the street. Eight o'clock came and went. Another hour slid to Help! Help! I must have screamed, for the pain was growing absolutely intolerable. Honest it was, so there, Miss Slayton!

I had to get up, just had to make that eight-thirty class. I fought with myself. My spirit was as willing as a red head, but my flesh weaker than the morning after itself. Then came the inner struggle with myself, the psychological touch so essential to successful present-day novels.

I finally stood up uncertainly, swaying from side to side. In pain and despair, almost on the vivid verge and ragged edge of collapse I managed to blurt out—

"Oh, what a fool I was to sit up all night studying for that Ec. exam!"

CHADWICK AND TUPPER STAR FOR THEIR FRATS

Saturday, the Interfraternity Touch Football Tournament was officially brought to a close with Kappa Sigma overcoming the Sigma Phi's early lead to down the latter in a very exciting and closely contested struggle—24 to 18—on Centennial Field. The day was ideal and the field was dry thus adding indirectly to the merits of the game. The contest was of such quality as never before exhibited in the tournament and the outstanding playing displayed by Tupper, a Sig, will long remain on the lips of the spectators present. Even though Tupper did shine brilliantly throughout, the other thirteen men on the field could not be slighted as they all added considerably toward making the game concerned as spectacular as it was.

The game opened with the characteristic fight and energy of a battle that has the indications of being long and severe—and it proved to be just that. Before a few minutes had elapsed, Tupper, Sigma Phi, got off one of his well-aimed passes to Morse who took the ball over the goal line for the first bit of scoring of the game. Again, before the Kappa Sigs were able to gain their bearings, Tupper heaved the pigskin through a long trajectory to Beer who also saw to it that the pass would not be in vain and consequently added six points to the score. Well, it certainly looked as if the story was going to be one-

WILDER CAPTAINS CROSS-COUNTRY, COLBURN LEADS FRESHMAN AGGREGATION

With the close of the cross-country season, G. E. "Ev" Wilder, star of the frosh team last year and of the varsity this year, was elected captain of the latter for the season just ended. He also was awarded with the captaincy of the varsity for the succeeding season. He was very successful this year, coming in first in the Vermont St Stephens meet which the Cats won 25 to 30 and second in the Middlebury-Vermont contest, in which Middlebury was the victor 22 to 33. Wilder is the first man to hold the leadership of a Green and Gold cross-country team for two seasons.

R. F. Colburn, star of the frosh cross-country aggregation, was recently elected captain, the election taking place after the triangular meet in which Vermont placed second, Middlebury being the victor and Norwich the goat. The first frosh match resulted in a victory over Saranac N. Y. High 24 to 31.

Colburn is looked forward to be quite a prominent member of next year's varsity.

LARGE RIFLE SCHEDULE FOR COMING SEASON

Manager Roller of the U. V. M. rifle team has been working hard on a large schedule for this winter. One set of targets is shot each week and the scores made are acceptable for all matches that week. The schedule this season will include a trip to Norwich for a shoulder to shoulder match and a trip to Boston to compete in the N. R. A. Marksmanship Contest. The tentative schedule follows:

February 8—Gettysburg, Pittsburg, Washington, Western Indiana.

February 15—Kentucky, Rose Polytechnic, Lafayette, DePauw, Rhode Island State.

February 22—South Dakota, Illinois, Northwestern, Nebraska.

March 1—Alabama, Mississippi Agricultural and Mechanical, Johns Hopkins, Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical.

March 8—West Virginia, California, Massachusetts Aggies, Alabama Polytechnic, Delaware.

March 15—Michigan State, Carnegie Tech.

March 22—Cincinnati, Culver Military Academy, North Dakota, New York Exchange.

March 29—Ohio State, Idaho, Connecticut.

FRESHMEN GRIDDERS WIN SINGLE CONTEST

Win, Tie, Four Defeats, Constitute Yearlings' Record—Montpelier Seminary Only Victim—Kittens Score 24 Points to Opponents' 67

PANTHERS AND CADETS IN CLINCH FOR TITLE

One victory, one tie, and four defeats is the record that the freshman football team has for the past season that closed November 8 with the Middlebury game. Both state series contests with Norwich and Middlebury plebes were lost, and, in general, the results this year were poorer than those made by any recent Vermont first-year gridiron team.

Weight seems to have been a decided handicap in most cases for, as a whole, the team was light in comparison with most of their opponents. Montpelier Seminary was the Kittens' victim in the opening game, while Clark School of Hanover, N. H., played to a tie in the next contest. Fort Ethan Allen and the freshman teams of St. Lawrence, Norwich and Middlebury were subsequent winners. Captain Coburn made three of the frosh touchdowns while Wadsworth made the only other one.

The Green and Gold yearlings opened the season October 5, by defeating Montpelier Seminary 12 to 0 on Centennial Field. The frosh scored for the first time early in the second quarter, when Coburn intercepted a pass and ran 60 yards for a touchdown. The other six points were gathered in the last quarter. Coburn went around right end for a 25-yard run and then the Kittens broke through their opponents' line again and again to finally shove the ball across the tape for another touchdown. In the line Farmer, Cohen and Negri performed well and in Coach Berry's backfield Coburn and Rapuano did outstanding work.

CAT'S MEOW

SPORTING EDITOR—

WITH the Thanksgiving morning tilt at Springfield the Catamounts end another season of football, which, although far from successful, surpasses the record of last year's team.

The 1928 outfit won only a practice game with the medics and came in second in the state championship by virtue of two tie games. Union and Rensselaer were taken into camp by the Cats this year.

Springfield has a powerful team. Beating Brown in the first game of the year is nothing to be taken casually.

CAPTAIN LEVINE (left), who probably played his last college football against Middlebury when he wound up a sensational football history and period of leadership, will watch the Springfield contest from the bench according to doctor's reports. MANAGER MACOMBER (right) directed the affairs of the 1929 Catamount eleven in a commendable manner.

White, sub quarterback for the gymnasts, has played football and basketball in Burlington with Spaulding High of Barre. He is the fastest and most elusive man on the Bay Staters' squad and is one of their high scorers. Lack of weight is his drawback. He'll be a star next year. Vermont will have to watch him Thursday—he's sure to get a crack at carrying the ball.

Due to the lack of spirit and cooperation among the entrants in the fall intramural tennis tournament we feel that it is fitting and proper at this time to set forth an appropriate obituary. The competition never progressed through the second round.

In this issue will be found the All-Tournament Touch Football teams—first and second—chosen by the Department of Physical Education of the University and the Sporting Department of the VERMONT CYNIC.

Frosh basketball practice, originally slated to start last Saturday, was postponed to yesterday. A wealth of material reported to Coach "Bunny" Prentice.

"Bob" Grant, one of the oustanding men on the yearling squad, played three years for Adams (Mass.) High where he captained the quintet which won the Berkshire County championship. "Bob" is one of those unassuming pluggers, and under the expert coaching of the freshman mentor should develop into a star this season.

From the office of the Director of Athletics at Norwich it has been learned that the Cadet football schedule for 1930 has been cut from eight to seven games. Brown has been dropped from the card and Bates replaces Colby.

Season Closes With Turkey Tussle Against Springfield

Bay State Outfit Has Impressive Record—Captain Levine Not Slated to Start—Rest of Team Same as Opposed Middlebury Most of the Game

CONTEST IS ANNUAL CLASSIC ON "Y" FIELD

Thanksgiving Day will have its usual double meaning for the University of Vermont and Springfield College football teams, for on this day these two teams stage their annual classic at Springfield, Mass. The "Y" college usually puts out a strong team and viewing the current season's record, appears to have a sharp edge over U. V. M. Last year the Red and White defeated Vermont, and it would be a lone feather in their caps if the Catamounts would avenge this loss. The Turkey Day game will close the season for both teams.

Springfield's record this season shows four victories, two tie games, and one defeat, whereas Vermont has won two contests and lost six. One week ago Saturday the Massachusetts college suffered its first set-back when it was upset 13 to 0 by New Hampshire. Previous to this Brown, Middlebury, Boston University and the Mass. Aggies had fallen victims to the gymnasts' gridiron attack while the tie games were with East Stroudsburg Normal School and Rochester. One disturbing fact is that Middlebury, which conquered Vermont 19 to 0, was defeated by Springfield by the same score. Also, Boston University produced a 27-6 win over the Catamounts but lost 34 to 6 to Springfield. These side-lights dim the hope of a

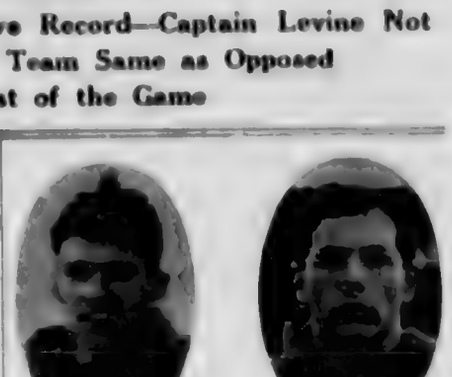
Captain Halligan Still on Injured List—Football Players Will Report Next Week

TRIO OF LETTERMEN REPORTING REGULARLY



With the approach of winter and the end of varsity football, general interest is being centered more and more on basketball. During the last week some thirty candidates have been practicing in the gym under the direction of Captain Berry.

The squad has been sent through the various preliminary functions—stepshots, dribbling, pivoting, and passing, and are now settling down to hard work in preparation for the opening game with the Montreal A. A. A. on December 7.

"Wally" Sargent, giant center of last year's Catamount five, "Dink" Bernstein, speedy forward, and "Phil" Manning, stellar guard, are the veteran lettermen who have reported and on whom Coach Berry will build his aggregation. "Bob" Tobin, guard of Cayward's second team, and "Freddie" Tupper, a member of "Bunny" Prentice's Kitten quintet, are other men who are being used at present.

"Tim" Halligan, captain of the team this year, has not been able to report because of his leg injury, but will answer the call during the coming week.

With the winding up of the football season Thanksgiving Day against Springfield a few more stars are expected to report among these Mace, Deltose, and Winant have all had previous experience in either varsity or freshman basketball, and will add needed strength to the Catamounts.

HALLIGAN (left), star backfield man, left the college gridiron permanently when a leg injury forced him out of the Conn. Aggies game. BURSTEIN (right) has played a steady game at guard and tackle for three years and completes his activities for the Cats on Thanksgiving Day.

The pacifist attitude is probably as fundamental to human nature as the combative attitude.

Kappa Sigma Wins Touch Football Tourney and Cup

[illegible] cup for the Kappa Sigs finally put up to the fact that they were about [illegible] and to prove it they had [illegible] the ball over for their first touchdown and immediately after the kickoff was again brought into play by an intercepted pass from Chadwick to Cummings to Traynor, the score standing 12 to 12. The Sigma Phis evidently believing in the old proverb "do unto others as you'd have done unto yourself," did not seem to begrudge the return the Kappa Sigs made and immediately fell to work to repeat their original encroachment. At this point Tupper, executing the most spectacular run of the game first by throwing his immediate guardian "Hank" Durfee, off balance and then by evading a number of potential taggers, finally threw a pass to Thompson who in turn boosted the score six points. The Kappa Sigs desperately attempted to tie the score before the half ended but to no avail. The score at the half was 18 to 12.

Soon after the beginning of the second half the Sigma Phis again attempted to add to their collection of points but the Kappa Sigs, inspired with new hopes, held firmly and finally gained possession of the ball. To make some use of their advantage, Durfee received the ball and evading his immediate opponent raced up the field and finally passed to Rugg who took the ball over the goal line to tie the score. At this point the Sigma Phis started to weaken. Tupper was injured when he crashed into the stands and his passes, formerly so effective, began to fall short. At the same time as if to uphold equilibrium, the Kappa Sigs seemed to assume new vigor and fight. Immediately after a number of short gains they scored by means of an intercepted pass by Cummings who threw to Durfee. This was the first time the Kappa Sigs were in the lead and this lead they were destined to retain. Upon receiving the kick-off, the Sigma Phis, showing that there was still present within them the same fight that was so characteristic of their playing throughout the tournament, marched up the field, through the aid of Tupper, to within a few feet of the goal line where he was tagged. There, after four futile attempts they finally surrendered the ball to the Kappa Sigs. From this point on till the end of the game, there existed only a battle between the two fraternities for possession of the pigskin and thus ended the game with Kappa Sigma as the conquerors.

NOTICES

Classes will be set ahead one half an hour on Wednesday, November 27, and there will be no chapel services. Students are warned not to be absent from classes on days either preceding or following a holiday, unless having permission from the Dean. Students not heeding this advice will be put under severe restrictions.

Tonight, Tuesday, November 26, John Dewey will favor the Vermont students with a lecture, the subject of which is "James Marsh and the Romantic Movement." The lecture is at the gymnasium at eight p.m., and it is free. Everyone is advised to attend.

On December fourth, the Commerce and Economics Department is sponsoring a lecture by Mr. Jason Westerfield, director of publicity of the New York Stock Exchange. Mr. Westerfield will discuss the "Nations' Market Place."

James Puffer, manager of the freshman football team, wishes all frosh football men who have not yet turned in their equipment to do so immediately.

All men wishing to scrub basketball will report to the assistant manager at the athletic office.

All material for Bluestockings must be handed in to Joyce Richardson, '30, before Thanksgiving.

The Department of Music announces a joint recital by Miriam N. Marston, organist, and Charlotte de Volt, violinist, at the Ira Allen Chapel, Sunday, December 1 at 4 o'clock. The public is cordially invited.

ORENSICISTS STAGE O-DECISION DEBATE

ermont and Middlebury Contend Before Small Crowd—Mattison, Frazier, and Bigelow Compose Vermont Team

RGUE EMERGENCE OF WOMAN FROM HOME

A small crowd witnessed an intercollegiate last evening in the Old Chapel between the University Vermont and Middlebury College, e contingent that attended agreed at Vermont's new warriors in the ensic field acquitted themselves editably. No decision was rendered this was only a practice meet for Middlebury team, which meets w Zealand in an international de- te December 3.

The question was, "Resolved, that e emergence of women from the me is a regrettable feature of modn life." Among the most important pects of the case noted were the onomic and social results of the odern tendency of women to leave e hearthstone to compete directly th men in the outside world. The cial and economic effects of such emergence were portrayed in a ver style by the artists on both ams. Other interesting arguments ntered about the differences in the otional make-up of men and women. The debate was carried on in the pular Oxford style. Middlebury, pholding the negative side of the estion, was represented by Gray M. aylor, C. Arthur Hazen, Reamer ine and Richard Sanzo, as alternate. The Vermont debaters, who, although not veterans, have all had experience in forensic engagements, re: Hugh R. Mattison '31, who, deating with Lisman and Nelson, was the sophomore team which last ar took the Bailey cup; Donald razier '32, who this year did some cellent work in the class debate for e sophomores; and James E. Bigelow '33 was outstanding on the freshman team and, together with Russell Colburn and R. Peerdon Donaghy, on the Bailey cup this year.

SOPHOMORES PREPARE FOR ANNUAL FOOTBALL HOP EARLY NEXT MONTH

Class President Announces Committee for Annual Event Scheduled for December 7

Basil Armstrong, president of the sophomore class, announces the appointment of Jack E. Willis as chairman of the Sophomore Football Hop, scheduled for the evening of December 7. Although the committees in charge met yesterday afternoon in the Old Mill Chapel to consider plans for the annual event, nothing further is known as yet except that Captain and Mrs. A. V. Rattan and Captain and Mrs. L. L. Berry will chaperone the dance.

Announce Three Committees

The committees for the dance are: Jack E. Willis, general chairman. Committee, Stewart Manning, Joanna Tewksbury. Decoration committee, Edward Meehan, W. A. Mace, Christine Bliss, Beggs, Alice Brooks, Lillian Refreshments committee, Raymond Philbin, chairman, R. W. Mas- Fields, C. M. Barber, Vivian The committees are attempting to secure the Burlington High school gym for the function.

The feature of the Football Hop is the distribution of football blankets during the intermission. For many years it has been the custom for the Cap and Serpent Society to present the members of the football squad, coaches and the manager with large blankets of Green and Gold. Each blanket has a large gold "V" on one side and smaller gold "V's" on the other corners. Last year, thirteen blankets were awarded.

GOLD KEY BEGINS RIGID ENFORCEMENT OF RULES

In collaboration with Boulder Society, Gold Key next week will begin a rigid enforcement of all freshman rules in an effort to make the men of 1933 realize and appreciate the fact that Vermont has traditions which must be revered. Gold Key regrets that so many freshmen have in the past continually disregarded the rules so explicitly stated in the Freshman Hand book.

The men have been closely observed and from all indications fully one-half the class have little intention of upholding the rules and traditions of the University of Vermont, which the members of classes before them have been required to observe.

The wearing of the green cap has been a custom here for many years and will be for many more. It is no difficult thing to wear the cap. If some of the first-year men have been so careless or unfortunate as to give them to members of visiting colleges they are, nevertheless, required to purchase new ones, and to wear them. Men in previous years have worn black socks and this same regulation is to be carried out as before. For the information of those who may not know it, black socks cost less than gaily-colored ones and as a rule they outwear many pairs of the latter.

Matches are not so heavy and upperclassmen do enjoy a smoke now and then, especially if a kind freshman furnishes them with matches. And also most of the lowerclassmen use them in laboratory courses. Then, too, freshmen are never allowed on the north side of College Street. The attention of freshmen is here again called to this rule.

INTEREST IN COMMERCE AND ECONOMICS STOCK EXCHANGE TALK RISING

Three Reels of Motion Pictures Which Ran at Colony Theatre Shown by Mr. Westerfield

Increasing interest has been manifested throughout Burlington, as well as at the University, in the program dealing with the New York Stock Exchange to be given by Jason Westerfield, publicity expert of the exchange, at the University gymnasium under the auspices of the Department of Commerce and Economics December 4, at eight o'clock, in the gymnasium. The Burlington Chamber of Commerce is giving the University its wholehearted support in an effort to make Mr. Westerfield's program a most successful one. Other prominent townspeople have also shown a keen interest, while students about the campus are enthusiastically supporting the program.

To Present Three Pictures

Jason Westerfield, head of publicity department of the New York Stock Exchange, who is the principal attraction of the evening, will show three reels of motion pictures, the first of which, "The Nation's Market Place," will be followed by a lecture in which Mr. Westerfield will endeavor to correct the numerous misconceptions concerning the New York Exchange which have prevailed so long through the country. "The Nation's Market Place," first shown at the Colony Theatre in New York and which had in its cast the 1,500 employees of the Exchange together with many of its 1,350 members, is, when shown in conjunction with the "Mechanics of the Nation's Market Place," the only official motion picture ever taken on the floor of the exchange.

The second two reels of motion pictures which will follow Mr. Westerfield's lecture on the "Nation's Market Place" are entitled "Mechanics of the Nation's Market Place" and deal with the workings of the stock exchange. The picture shows a man in Tacoma, Wash., who wishes to buy stocks. It explains the exact steps by which he purchases them from a man in New Orleans who wants to sell. This part of the reel should prove an interesting addition to the entertainment as well as a clear illustration of the intricate workings of the stock exchange which otherwise the world would be ignorant of. There is no admission charge.

EIGHT FRATERNITIES GIVE PLEDGE DANCES

Celebrate Close of Rushing Season With Informal Affairs Last Night at Eight Houses

ARE SECOND IN GROUP OF FALL INFORMALS

Celebrating the close of the rushing season, eight fraternities held their annual fall dances last night. This was the second group of men's fraternity dances this season. The social calendar, as a rule, providing only four dates each semester for such events. The houses which chose to hold their pledge dances last night were Lambda Iota, Phi Delta Theta, Alpha Tau Omega, Kappa Sigma, Sigma Nu, Phi Mu Delta, Zeta Chi and Phi Sigma Delta

Holbrook's Harmony Hounds played at the Lambda Iota dance, which was held at the fraternity house, on Pearl Street. Prof. and Mrs. L. B. Puffer and Mr. L. S. Rowell chaperoned

Major and Mrs. O. H. Stanley and Captain and Mrs. W. E. Lauer acted as chaperons at the Phi Delta Theta dance at the chapter house. At the Alpha Tau Omega informal, for which The Troubadors furnished the music, Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Hartwell and Prof. and Mrs. H. Jordan chaperoned the occasion

Freddie Lynch's orchestra provided the syncopation at the Kappa Sigma dance. The chaperons were Prof and Mrs. G. V. Kidder and Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Abell.

Prof. L. D. Meredith, Miss Frances Knight and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Behney chaperoned at the Sigma Nu dance. The Medicine Men furnished the music.

At the Phi Mu Delta house Prof and Mrs. V. R. Yates and Prof. C. L Stineford served as chaperons. Lynch's orchestra played

At the Zeta Chi dance, which took the form of a Victrola party, a double celebration took place. The dance, originally planned in honor of the new pledges, served also as a housewarming for the fraternity's recently purchased home. Prof. and Mrs. H. G. Millington and Mr. and Mrs. George Ward chaperoned.

Phi Sigma Delta held its informal pledge dance at the Hotel Vermont roof garden. Prof. and Mrs. F. D Carpenter, Mr. M. H. Laatsch and Miss Charlotte de Volt served as chaperons for the evening. Josh Gould's orchestra provided the music.

NEWMAN CLUB TO HOLD MINSTREL THIS SEASON

A meeting of the Newman Club, Catholic organization of the University, last Sunday evening in the Cathedral High School, decided upon plans for an entertainment which the Newman Club is to put on soon. As a result of the report of the entertainment committee it was decided to make the show part minstrel and part musical, the event to be held at some convenient date in the near future, preferably after mid years. Mr. Beaupre who will coach the play, was present and immediately began the task of rehearsing the musical part of the show.

The hour was taken up with the rehearsing of several songs under Mr. Beaupre's leadership at the close of which F. A. McBride, president of the society, announced another meeting of the Club for December 8 at the Cathedral High School at 8 o'clock. All members are urged to attend and to bring their friends. At this meeting it is expected that the second rehearsal will be held.

THANKSGIVING PROGRAM AS HANDLED BY V. C. A. PLEASES LARGE NUMBER

Dinner Served at Robinson Hall —Four Hundred Crowd Burlington High Gym at Dance Thursday Evening

The program for Thanksgiving Day, as planned by Dean Patterson and staged by the Vermont Christian Associations, was a distinguished success, and the Associations hope that the precedent so established will be followed in later years.

What a delightful, cheery New England Thanksgiving dinner! Will the two-score men who were there ever forget it? Everything just as they used to dream about for a perfect Thanksgiving dinner. It is in such things as this that the true spirit of the Pilgrim fathers, in their better lights, is reproduced today. Robinson Hall, with all its associations, added to the pleasure of the guests. All who had a hand in preparing and serving that meal, it was unanimously agreed, deserve a medal

Dinner Plus Entertainment

And, after the dinner, entertainment. Cards and everything else. And that dance! It certainly was a wonder that that High School Gymnasium floor didn't break through. One hundred couples is the most conservative estimate yet found of that crowd. Holbrook's Smooth Boys, hardly heard above the voice of the crowd, furnished music inciting to movement, rhythmic movement. If there is no room to dance, pat your toe; if you can't do that, shake your shoulders—seemed to be the slogan of the students. We want to know if it was hot. That cider in the time-out certainly came in handy.

At eight o'clock the crowd began to come; and when they came, they came in numbers. And for a while they kept on coming and coming. After a few hours the number ceased increasingly; indeed, began to dwindle.

The chaperons were Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Powers and Professor and Mrs. F. D. Carpenter, Calvin Walker had charge of the dance and Harvey Butterfield was in charge of the dinner.

The officers of the associations who were entirely responsible for the conduct of the program of the men's Association are: President, Harvey Butterfield; vice-president, Robert Stewart; secretary, Richard Cowles; treasurer, William Brock; chairman of publicity, Alfred Morin; chairman of entertainment, Calvin Walker; chairman of student service, Joseph Carter; chairman of literature, Edmour Germain

The officers of the Women's Christian Association are: President, Marion E. Tift; vice-president, Margaret G. Stanley; secretary, Joyce R. Richardson; treasurer, Gertrude Bingham; chairman of finance, Isabelle Warhurst; chairman of publicity, Pearl Brown; chairman of meetings, Carlotta Grimm; chairman of social service, Margaret Parry; chairman of conferences, Georgina Hubert.

John Dewey, in Marsh Lecture Tuesday Evening, Expounds Philosophy of Former Vermont President

LECTURE IS THIRD ON PROGRAM FOR SEASON

"Professor Marsh was a student of Plato and Aristotle and brought to his study of Coleridge the wisdom of these great philosophers," said Dr. John Dewey, speaking on "Coleridge, Marsh, and the Spiritual Philosophy," before an interested crowd of 800 students and townspeople at the University Gymnasium last Tuesday evening. This lecture was the third in a series which the University has arranged for the winter months, and is known as the "Marsh Lecture," since it commemorates an event of great importance in the intellectual and moral life of the early nineteenth century, the publishing of the American edition of Samuel Taylor Coleridge's "Aids to Reflection," with an introduction by James Marsh, fifth president of the University. The book was published in November, 1829.

Professor Dewey, before launching into a discussion of the philosophy of James Marsh, took the opportunity to express to his audience his pleasure at returning to the place where he was born, brought up and graduated from, and the honor that he considered it to be to have the opportunity to deliver the Marsh lecture.

Explains Romanticism

In 1829, said Dr. Dewey, Coleridge's "Aids to Reflection" was published in this country, with an introduction by James Marsh, in which he traced the philosophy of Coleridge. To understand why this introduction assured Dr. Marsh a place in the intellectual life of his time, it is necessary to look at the prevailing philosophy of the age. For this, we can go to an article by Dr. Marsh published in the North American Review in the 1820's. Professor Marsh was a romanticist, but not a romanticist in the sense of the modern meaning of the word. In his day, the word romanticism was used to mean the modern spirit in contrast with the classicism of the preceding generations. Also it meant the northern spirit in contrast with the southern, or Latin, temperament. In this article, Professor Marsh emphasized "the world within." He maintained that the modern spirit had removed the center of thought from the world without, the Greek world, to the world within. All outward signs of material progress were just the shadows of a restless spirit within the individual, seeking expression and always inspired by the infinite.

Professor Marsh had mastered not only Italian, Spanish and German, but he had a fluent reading knowledge of Latin, Greek and Hebrew. This indicates the range and thoroughness of his scholarship. He was probably the first American scholar to have a first hand acquaintance with Emmanuel Kant. Though he did not have primarily a scientific education, he was very much interested in scientific theories. He came to Coleridge with a prior preparation in both reading and thinking, and both had a common interest in religion, and a common desire to arouse in the nominal believer a conviction that there was a vital truth in religion, and that religion was not just a body of rules.

To grasp clearly the meaning of "Aids to Reflection," we must first place ourselves in the intellectual and moral atmosphere of the nineteenth century. It was previous to all the later inventions which have so changed our society, and it was at a time when there was very little concern for the inner meaning of outward institutions. The general dominant interest of 1829 was closer to the middle ages than to 1929.

Marsh, a student of the sources of Coleridge, was all the more ready to devote himself to the thought of Coleridge, and so it was as an ally of spiritual and religious philosophy that he turned to the study of the man's work. Marsh found the prevailing

A REAL TREAT

Next week the Economics Eighties bring into our modest [illegible] students [illegible] in the school of science along some particular line and dedicated to the proposition that U. V. M. students need [illegible] to be more than mere seekers after [illegible] Through the medium we have become acquainted with [illegible] with philosophy, with the questions of the [illegible] training and a host of other subjects. Most of us have profited these Economics lectures and we have benefited [illegible] We therefore take this occasion of thanking the [illegible] efforts to give us something fully as important [illegible]

[illegible] to Vermont a real treat. It's now it's [illegible] It's interesting, it's instructive, it's thoroughly [illegible]

[illegible] is going to tell you and show you all about the New York Stock Exchange. Introducing Mr. Westerfield [illegible] Economics Society of Vermont.

We have with us this evening one of the most prominent men in the financial world. He has spoken throughout the country [illegible] and I am glad that so many of you have turned out this evening to hear what he has to tell us. As director of the New York Stock Exchange, our guest has had a better opportunity to study the operation of that vitally important institution and financial transactions of the country [illegible] than probably any other man in the United States.

He has supported his talk divided into three parts a system of [illegible] which he has carefully cherished ever since his high school days [illegible] In the first part we have an excellent moving picture presentation of bona buying and selling on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange are conducted. We shall see how a man in New Orleans is able to invest heavily in Cook Mimeograph or Merchandising Corporation quickly and easily. In the cast of this super special shown on the screen we find the fifteen hundred employes of the Exchange and a number of important men in the financial world. You will be lucky to be able to pick out many of your friends employed in the famous panic mart. We, for example, hope to see our former roommate looking madly about the scene covered with ticker tape and [illegible] of importance as he attempts to execute numerous awe-inspiring transactions.

Part two of the evening's presentation will be filled by a lecture by Mr. Westerfield. It will be one of the most enjoyable as well as instructive lectures that we have ever attended. It unanimous acclaim throughout the length and breadth of the United States mean anything at all.

And for the final part we have movies. Lest you draw the [illegible] conclusion that the pictured presentation is in any sense an amateur production, let me hasten to assure you friends that it was filmed upon the floor of the exchange itself by professional men employing professional equipment, that it is the latest and most ambitious of all such productions, that it is three reels in length and that it ran at the Colony Theatre, Broadway, for quite some time and was finally held over for still another week because of popular demand.

Since the New York Stock Exchange needs no introduction to you, it gives me unique pleasure to present as speaker of the evening Mr. Jason Westerfield, Mr. Westerfield.

While Mr. Westerfield is bowing in acknowledgment of the applause, let me inform you that the Economics department is responsible for the social gentleman's appearance at Vermont. The local Chamber of Commerce got busy [illegible] to push the [illegible] with which were ready to have called time those who [illegible] We have [illegible] you will be sure to [illegible] by spreading the news among your friends. They will thank you indeed for doing so.

Save the night of Wednesday December fourth, and be present at a real treat.

THE FORUM

He was a football star, captain of his crew, Phi Beta Kappa, prom chairman and after he was elected Rhodes scholar from the University of Wisconsin he suffered a nervous breakdown and has spent nine months in Idaho recuperating so that he can go abroad to study.

Jeff Burrus, the man in question, came out of it all with the conviction that college athletics used him rather selfishly. Says an article in The Nation, a magazine known for its abrupt and downright stands on topics of national interest: "He believes that the exploitation of physically endowed young men as if they were game fighting cocks or maddened bulls is something less than one ought to expect at the hands of his Alma Mater.

That modern football was not really an amateur sport at all—that it was from the outside a great show by means of which universities keyed up the loyalty of alumni associations and impressed the taxpayers, from the inside a relentless industry which built commodities of various kinds upon the blood and sinew and carefully nourished college spirit of the players.

If such be the case, and the recently published Carnegie Foundation report dealt with the subject of college football in the light of big business, let the boy who wishes to become a warrior on the gridiron be paid a high price for his services. The salaries should be high because of the extraordinary talent required and the serious risks run.

In addition, colleges should throw the shrouds off the business of football, pay openly for the services of stars and indulge in open competitive bidding for the cream of the prep schools. Reality should characterize the dealings of colleges with the major sports because these sports are no longer in the realm of amateurism.

Librarian Explains Catalog System at Billings, A Deep Mystery to Many

By THE LIBRARIAN

I beg your pardon, but are you the party that wishes to be shown around the library today?

Yes, sir, we answer. We know that we are about to be initiated into the mysteries of the Billings Library.

That's fine. We'll start in right now over in this corner which is at present right as you come in the door. Here as well as in the little corner opposite are the reference books, which can not be taken out of the library on any consideration whatsoever. On this side are mostly bibliographical reference books: American, English, French and German. Here also is a very valuable book on etiquette by Emily Post, which has saved the face—so to speak, of many a student. And this large red book, Who's Who, up near the top of this section, is very much in demand."

Over on this side," continued our guide, leading us to the little corner at the left of the entrance, "are the Encyclopedia Britannica, the American and a Religious Encyclopedia. Of course, this large book on the table before you is Webster's Dictionary. How much it is used can be surmised from its worn-out condition. And up here next to the window are the World's Almanac and the Vermont Register, two very valuable sources of information. Now, let us enter the psychology office," remarked our guide, leading us around to the first alcove on the left.

"The psychology office?" I repeated. Why, I thought that was over in the Old Mill."

Our congenial guide laughed, and said, "We call it the psychology office because in here are most of our books on psychology, and this is the favorite habitat of psychology students. But before we go in, I want to explain the library system to you. This large, varnished case with the many little drawers in it is the beginning of our catalog, in which all the books in the library are indexed. The catalog continues over on the other side of the room. Now, here's a card. At the top is the number 150, and under it is the letter F, followed by the numerals 1 and 2. The top number is the general shelf reference number. Different classes of books are placed under different numbers. For instance, the numbers 100-199 are books on psychology, philosophy and ethics, and they happen to be found right in this alcove. The letter stands for the author and the small letters or figures following merely represent the orderly arrangement of the books under that author. Do you understand?"

"Yes, for the first time. I never did understand what those figures and letters meant."

170 For Good and Evil

"There are plenty more who don't either. But let's go into the psychology office. This alcove has been the scene of many an amateur attempt at psychoanalysis. Can't you just sense the Freudian atmosphere? And by the way, Freud is one of the much read books in this section, his reference number being 131. One hundred and seventy is pe... students struggling with the ... of good and evil: In other ... Ethics. And for those stude... are taking Professor D... course in the History of Ph... numbers 191-199 are very helpf... are the works of the great ... phers, brought right up to ... James and Dewey.

"Psychology and philosoph... dents," continued our guide, "... a great deal of competition ... Alcove in the past, and it is ... means extinct yet. You see ... north side of this alcove are the ... numbered E170-78. They are ... cation books, and teachers' ... students and education students ... tried to conquer this sacred ... time after time they have fa... they keep trying. It has been a classic struggle."

"You don't mean they actually fight each other out of here!" ejaculated my companion.

"Oh, no, nothing like that," laughed our guide. "It is merely a case of 'first come, first served.' But we must go on. On the north side also are the remaining books in this alcove, numbers 300-325. They deal with such subjects as Political Science, the State and the Church, Woman's Suffrage and Colonial Emigrations. Let's go into the second alcove now. The stacks in this alcove lead up to the West Gallery, where all of the 200's are located. The 200's are books on religion, both Christian and non-Christian beliefs. We will look them over more thoroughly later.

"What is the general classification of the 300's?" I asked. "You neglected to tell us."

"So I did. I'm sorry. Under 300 are classed books on Sociology, covering the fields of government, economics, law, education and the like. For instance, if any student feels that his professor is driving him too much, he can gain compensation by delving into the books arranged under 326, which deal with the subject of Slavery, or for those students interested in the foreign relations of the United States, number 327.7 provides some very interesting books on that subject. Both of these are in this alcove, as you see. Political Economy is 330 and number 331 furnishes some very thorough and intriguing material for those students interested in the vital problem of the relations existing between the capitalist and the laborer. Those momentous and revolutionary volumes of Karl Marx are found up here near the top of this right-hand section. His work, Das Capital, here translated into English, is supposed to be the basis of the Communistic system of government. I guess that gives you a fair idea of what there is in this alcove."

"Well, I guess we'll have to call that enough for today, as we have a class now, but we'll be back tomorrow to continue our journey."

"Library work is extremely interesting," our guide replied, "and I know that it will prove a great help to you to be able to find books easily. Well, good-by. I'll see you tomorrow."

"You certainly will. Good-by."

TERMS UNIVERSITY EDUCATION "HANDICAP"

For a young man planning to enter business as a career, a college education is a four-year handicap, according to Floyd L. Carlisle, prominent business man and himself a college graduate.

In an interview in the Daily Princetonian, Carlisle, who is head of F. L. Carlisle & Co., Inc., New York Bankers, said:

"From my experience the average college man enters business late. The most formative period of his life, from 18 to 22 or 23, is spent in a place where he acquires lazy habits of thinking. A university cannot produce in men the drive that business gives them. They are not required to work rapidly and accurately and life is easy and soft for them. The backbone of business today is the rapid absorption of details and there is nothing in college that trains a man to this ability."

Carlisle was graduated from Cornell in 1903.

Juliette Marston, '32, has been elected freshman class representative of W. A. A. Miss Marston has already shown her interest and ability in athletics on the hockey field, being a captain of her class team. All points for W. A. A. credit should be in the hands of the class representatives. Awards will be given at the women's mass meeting, Friday, December 6.

NOTICES

Sophomore Health Conferences are still being held. There are several members who have not yet signed up who should do so immediately.

There will be a meeting of the Freshman Rules Committee Monday, December 2, at four o'clock in the Old Mill Chapel.

Women's basketball begins Tuesday, December 3. All women interested in playing should sign on the chart in the "Y" room.

There will be a meeting of Eta Sigma Phi on Tuesday, December 3 in 34 South College.

"BE-A-SNOB" PROFESSOR ASSAILS BRIDGE PLAYING

Prof. Robert Emmons Rogers, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology of "be-a-snob" fame, feels that playing bridge is the "lowest depth to which a human being can fall."

He so told 800 women and little more than a dozen men who heard him lecture on "recent books" at the Gardiner Auditorium in the State House in Boston last Tuesday night. His remarks on bridge playing were a digression and brought a laugh from his audience.

Rogers, who is a professor of English, declared in praising recent literary works by British authors that "English writers live near the earth while most of America's literary contributions are born in apartment houses."

WOMEN ORGANIZE NEW HIKING CLUB IN W. A. A.

At the weekly meeting of W. A. A. last Monday in the gymnasium office a Hiking Club was innovated to further co-ed interest in sports. Christie E. McLeod, '31, was elected chairman of the new Club, and is to be made a member of W. A. A. Council.

W. A. A. will join with the Women's Student Union in a mass meeting to be held Friday, December 6. Awards will be made at this time, as the mass meeting is to take the place of the annual Athletic Banquet.

WIN, TIE AND SERIES OF DEFEATS, FROSH RECORD

One tie and four defeats marked the record of the yearling gridders this season, after the initial win over Montpelier Sem.

On the following Saturday afternoon the Green and Gold yearlings fought a 6 to 6 tie with Clark School on a muddy Centennial Field. The frosh scored first, in the third quarter, after Coburn had made a run of 40 yards. The attempt to gain the extra point by kicking was blocked. The prep boys did not even the count until in the last two minutes of play when a touchdown was made through a brilliant passing attack. Rapuano, Coburn and Collins were the outstanding frosh players.

The first defeat of the season came when the Kittens went to Fort Ethan Allen and lost to the soldiers 13 to 0. The Post team was much heavier than the freshmen and used this advantage to score two touchdowns in the first half. Captain Coburn led the frosh attack but failed to score.

Again the Green and Gold gridsters tasted defeat when the heavy St. Lawrence yearling eleven downed them at Canton, N. Y., by the score of 6 to 0. The freshmen put up a game fight and the New Yorkers could not add to their single touchdown made in the first quarter.

The first game of the junior state series was lost by Vermont when the Norwich yearlings won on Centennial Field 15 to 6. The Vermonters scored in the last period when Cognetta ran 80 yards to put the frosh in a scoring position and a few minutes later Wadsworth pushed the ball across for the only Vermont touchdown of the contest. Holmes starred for Norwich and looked like great varsity material.

The last contest was dropped to Middlebury, 27 to 0. At the half the score stood 20 to 0 and in the last frame the Midd second team managed to score another touchdown. The result of this game left Middlebury and Norwich tied for the State Freshman Football Title. Both of these teams have beaten Vermont, and in the game with each other they were deadlocked.

In 1912, Sub-Freshman Week was introduced for the purpose of bringing prospective students to the University. Each year seniors from high schools about the State are invited here as guests of the Kake Walk Committee for the great classic during the week-end of February 22.

This year the Kake Walk directors are Rollin G. Hawley and James C. Puffer. The fraternities who will compete for the cup offered for the best stunt are Lambda Iota, Delta Psi, Sigma Phi, Phi Delta Theta, Kappa Sigma, Sigma Nu, Phi Mu Delta, and Sigma Delta.

As Director of Physical Education, Prentice instituted a new wrinkle last week in the physical education classes. He delivered lectures on posture, care of the body, and other such subjects helpful during a college career and in a program of physical culture.

Ocean-hoppers and good-will cementers are requested not to come to New York for welcomes until further notice. Wall Street cannot spare any ticker tape just now.—The New Yorker.

VARSITY CANDIDATES FIGHTING FOR BERTHS

Most Positions Decided—One Week Remains to Opening Game—Squad in Young State of Development

Varsity basketball is continuing on its uncertain way at the University gym and Coach Berry is busy whipping the Green and Gold five into shape for another tough year of battles. There are three members of last year's varsity on the floor at present and Captain "Tim" Halligan is expected to put in his appearance as soon as he recovers from the injuries that he received in the past football season.

The way things appear now there seems to be just one position on the quintet open. Sargent will probably occupy the pivot position as he did on last year's team and in the forward positions there are Halligan and Bernstein, two men that will be hard to beat. Halligan is easily the fastest forward in the State just at present, and his eye is deadly, especially at close range. Bernstein is also swift and accurate. He showed a world of stuff as a sub last year, and as a regular now he will undoubtedly prove to be more than equal to the task. The pair of them form a genuine menace and it will take an exceptionally great pair of back court men to hold these good men down.

Phil Manning is pretty sure of occupying one back court position. Phil has been playing on the varsity since his sophomore year, but last year he was handicapped by a trick knee that kept him on the bench for several games. There is a guard position still open, with plenty of struggling going on for that berth. Tobin seems to be making a pretty strong bid for the back court, and will probably get the opening call.

St. Michael's has its entire team of last year back, and Middlebury is going to put in a strong bid for the title this year. Vermont will have to tear if she wants to come out on top of the heap.

The squad is not developed as far along as it should be by this time. Only one week remains to the Montreal A. A. A. game and very little offense or defense has been practiced.

WOMEN'S FACULTY CLUB ELECTS ALEXANDER AND DAVIS TO 1929 OFFICES

Miss Nelle S. Alexander was elected president of the Women's Faculty Club and Miss Gennette Davis was elected secretary-treasurer at the first meeting of the year, last Saturday evening.

Miss Alexander is an instructor in the department of education. A graduate of Ohio State University, she holds the degree of Master of Arts from Columbia. She is a member of Sigma Kappa sorority and of Kappa Delta Pi, honorary educational fraternity.

Miss Davis, an assistant professor of Economics, holds a Bachelor of Science degree from the University of Wisconsin and a master's degree from Columbia. She is a member of Alpha Chi Omega.

CAT'S MEOW

—Sporting Edition—

...erything was not turkey for Springfield in the first half of the Thanksgiving fracas. Although the Green and Gold did not look like the winning team they put up a game fight during the opening periods.

Dincolo of Boston University and Guarnaccia of Middlebury are men who played against Vermont this season who are named on Springfield's all-opponent team.

With Capt. "Bump" Levine in condition for the Catamounts there would be no doubt about his making the team.

A Cadet hockey schedule of ten games, six of which will be played at home, was announced by Coach Ellis at Norwich. The sideboards of the skating rink have been erected on Sabine Field and hockey practice will start as soon as weather permits.

A new rink is now being built on the back campus for the Catamount skaters.

At a meeting of the Middlebury College Athletic Committee, Richard Phelan, former Holy Cross star, was appointed head coach of hockey for the coming season. Phelan was line coach of the Panther eleven and memories are not too distant of the brilliant play of the Blue and White wall.

Harold F. Perry was elected captain of the Middlebury football team for 1930. Perry has played tackle for the Blue and White the past two years.

Three Norwich basketball regulars who took a week's respite from athletics following their work with the football eleven reported to Coach Graham. The trio comprises Capt. Grandy, Fanos and Teachout. Grandy and Teachout were regulars on last year's quintet and Fanos was varsity guard two seasons ago.

Cross-country history was made in the eastern intercollegiates last week when two University of Maine harriers ran a voluntary dead heat for first place. Besides establishing a new record, it goes down as the first tie finish in twenty-one years.

Middlebury's triple victory—freshman and varsity cross-country and varsity football championships makes the Panthers sit pretty. It's up to Vermont to beat them in baseball, basketball, and the minor sports.

GOOD LOOKING FROSH SQUAD TURNING OUT

Thirty men responded to Coach Howard Prentice's second session of freshman basketball practice held on Wednesday evening. Numbered among the prominent were McGowan and Mahoney, members of Cathedral High's speedy quintet of the last two years both of whom looked capable of handling guard positions, Collins of West Hartford (Conn.) High, a forward, and Grant of Adams (Mass.) High, whose shooting, footwork, and passing stamp him as future varsity material. Farwell of Cushing Academy and Marvin of Essex Junction and a brother of the famous ex Vermont star "Doc" Marvin, look good at center. Chiolino also shows much ability as a guard.

Cutting and shooting practice opened the program and was followed by instructions in the criss-cross offense. At this point the squad was divided into two groups and much time was spent on shooting and dribbling. Here the freshman mentor, assisted by "Archie" Post put the squad through a lengthy passing drill. Three laps around the track abruptly ended the strenuous workout. Other men who showed promise were Talbert, Cohen, Adams, Prouty, Willard, Shoor and Sullivan. From all indications the present freshman class must have been born with basketballs and high hopes are held for the best Kitten quintet in years.

College Athletics

It is because of this fact of more general interest and participation in sports that the ancient "Rah-Rah" spirit has disappeared from the campus, a disappearance looked upon by many of the old guard as simultaneous with the death of double-fisted, hairy-chested collegiate virility. There was a time when a group of large-boned, strong-muscled students represented the college on the playing fields. These were the college athletes, the respected and adorned. The rest of the students were on the sidelines, yelling themselves hoarse, . . . cheering, as the only form of athletic exercise they felt capable of performing. If they cheered loudly enough and worshipped the football captain with the proper reverence, they were fine-spirited college men. They didn't have to know how to play . . . . they are not out on the sidelines now because they are out playing their own games. The crowded golf course on any afternoon of a baseball game is sufficient evidence. Their attitude seems reasonably healthy—"Let the varsity team play its game because the players enjoy the game, but let us play our own games on the courts and the links." They are not always in their rooms, drowsing over an aesthetically bound volume of decadent verse, as some gloomy souls seem to think.

CHRISTMAS CONCERT TO PRESENT "THE MESSIAH"

Handel's oratorio, The Messiah, presented almost in full for the first time at Vermont, will take the place of the usual program of vocal and instrumental solos at the annual Christmas concert, which this year will come December 16. The choir and the University orchestra together will present the oratorio under the direction of Prof. H. G. Bennett of the Music Department.

The choir in past years has rendered selections from The Messiah at the concerts. The first part is particularly appropriate to Christmas with the birth and the prophecy of CHRIST. The orchestra will play the Pastoral Symphony from the Messiah which has been played before by the Student Symphony Ensemble and in addition will play the overture and the accompaniment to The Shepherds' Chorus and a few other selections which will be substituted for the four choruses of part one.

LIEBESLIEDER ENSEMBLE SINGS HERE THURSDAY

The University in conjunction with Arthur Ilow will present the famous Liebeslieder Ensemble at the University gymnasium next Thursday December 3 as the second number of the University concert series. The ensemble consists of Esther Dale soprano, Elizabeth Lennox contralto, Paul Althouse tenor and Jerome Swinford baritone. With them is a small orchestra of fourteen players directed by Rosaline De Mario.

This concert is free to students. The University offers 300 seats free of charge to the first 300 students who apply for them at the University store in the Old Mill. For the first concert by Harold Bauer, pianist, every student ticket was taken. Tickets are not for the faculty. They are for students only.

The name of the organization is taken from the Liebeslieder Walzer, the Love Song Waltzes of Brahms. They are sung on all the programs of the Ensemble. The artists will also sing solos including arias from famous operas and there will be orchestra numbers too.

Esther Dale is a leading American soprano. Elizabeth Lennox has been heard many times over the radio. Paul Althouse was for nine years a leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera House and Jerome Swinford has had a rapid rise in baritone fields. The Ensemble made its first appearance last New Year's Eve in New York and was hailed by critics as a great organization.

CO-EDS HEAR TALK ON POISE, BEARING, EXERCISE

Freshman and sophomore women attended a lecture by Miss Elizabeth Leavens in the Old Mill chapel last Monday. Miss Leavens gave a very interesting talk on poise, bearing, plenty of exercise, and good health. She urged her audience not to be content with merely fairly good health, but to strive for perfect health.

This lecture was held in place of the Monday and Tuesday physical education classes, and attendance was required.

FALL PRODUCTION WILL MARK 117 SEASONS OF DRAMATICS AT U. V. M.

Researches Show First Play Was Presented in 1812, When Vermont Student Wrote "The Dumb Gent"

At this time [illegible] the production of the fall play many supporters of the dramatic cause at Vermont have been recalling the events of past dramatic seasons. Researches into the [illegible] of University history brings to light the fact that 1929 will mark the one hundred and seventeenth year of amateur theatrical presentations at Vermont, the first such production at the University dating back to 1812. That year the play was written by one Royall Tyler who was a son of Vermont's chief justice, and who was a visitor at the time at Vermont. The play was entitled 'The Dumb Gent.' It is interesting to note that there were no parts in the play necessitating an impersonation of a woman, no college student at that time being willing to impersonate a woman on the stage. Even when women were duly enrolled in the University it was some time before they began taking part with men in the college plays.

Edward F. Crane, '16, writing of 'Dramatics at the University,' says in the December 2, 1925, issue of the Alumni Weekly:

The "Devilings Histrionic"

While recognition of woman was slow in coming to U. V. M. dramatics, there seems to have been recognition since the beginning of dramatic societies at the college of the serpent's right to be connected with the drama. For the first dramatic society of which there is an definite record at Vermont was called 'Devilings Histrionic.'

Whether the students of those days, back in the nineties really believed that the stage was necessarily a part of the realm of His Satanic Majesty, or whether they simply sought a high sounding name for advertising purposes probably cannot be definitely stated today. But it appears that they recognized in this name the Devil's right to a part in the drama, while woman was not encouraged to add her charm to the college plays.

In fact, it is only in recent years, particularly since the World War when women have more definitely asserted their rights, that it has become the rule, rather than the exception, for the women to participate with the men in the regular college plays.

It must be admitted by any unprejudiced critic that since the women began to take part in the college plays, dramatics at the University have reached a degree of excellence and have commanded an interest among the students never known before on the hill. It has come to be realized in recent years that Mark Twain's suggestion of 'distributing the sexes according to the will of the Creator' may be applied with benefit to the drama at Vermont."

Stage Two Plays a Year

For six years now, the Wig and Buskin and Masque and Sandal have been staging two plays a year, one in December shortly before Christmas and the other during Junior Week in the spring.

The plays that have been produced by the men's and women's dramatic societies of the University of Vermont since 1923, are as follows: philosophy of his day, based largely on Locke, to be profoundly discordant with religion. Christianity was to Marsh a truly philosophical revelation in his own words. A thinking man was to have one system of thinking, in which his philosophy was religious and his religion philosophical." Marsh wanted to teach his generation that religion contained the most rational truths about God and the relations between God and man. However, between the lines of his writings, one could read the fear that he might be thought either faithless to any religion or desirous of reducing religion to a mere body of rules.

"The Successful Calamity," given during Junior Week, 1923; "Dulcy," in December, 1923; "Tweedles," during Junior Week, 1924; "Milestones," in December, 1924; "Her Husband's Wife," during Junior Week, 1925; "The Goose Hangs High," in December, 1925; "Saving Grace," during Junior Week, in 1926; "Lady Windemere's Fan," in December, 1927; "Adam and Eva," during Junior Week, 1928; "Devil's Disciple," in December, 1928; "Summertime," during Junior Week, 1929; and, this year, "Dear Brutus," will be presented in December.

Professor Marsh's views on education were well in advance of his age, and inclined to be still further in advance of our own age. He thought that education had its center in religion but religion and rational truth were one. Religion should not be made a separate and specific study, but should pervade all studies. And, commented Professor Dewey, we still feel the need of some simple principle to bind together all the specific details. Dr. Marsh's ideas on the conduct of the administration were generous. He held that the rules were too rigid and inflexible. He was for allowing more latitude in developing the initiative, and considered it absurd to bind one down to one method or one course of study. He thought that the courses should be made more elective, and the compulsion element withdrawn.

As for the relations existing between the student and the instructor, he declared that there should be more of an interplay between their minds, that there was too much emphasis placed on text-books. He opposed the formal method of classification, of tests, and of strict discipline.

He regarded education as having a two-fold purpose. First, as the development and unfolding of the individual and, secondly, as developing and reflecting the tone of the moral community life. The ultimate purpose of education, in his mind, was to elevate the character of the American people.

Professor Dewey closed with a few remarks on the character of President Marsh himself. He was sensitive, rational, and possessed an unusually scholarly trait. Though there was nothing second- he and in his thought, yet he lacked a certain audacity necessary to far-reaching thought, and clothed his words in the language of others. He felt that truth had to be acted to be known and that knowledge is a product of action. Religion was to him supreme, though he condemned what currently posed as religion. He had a rare personality, was gifted in scholarship, and was one who wished to use that scholarship to awake his fellow citizens to the possibilities in themselves.

PLANS FOR FRATERNITY CONTEST ARE COMPLETE

Each Fraternity to Sing One Song at Majestic—Half to Appear on Each of Nights of December 2 and 3

Plans for the first annual Fraternity Singing Contest to be held at the Majestic Theater December 2 and 3 are now completed. Also [illegible] the fraternities will appear Monday night and the other half will appear Tuesday night. In as much as the contest will take place at the beginning of the second performance, the various houses competing on any one night will be able to finish their regular Monday night meetings before going in a body to the theater.

Reserved Sections

Sections will be reserved for the groups so that each may present a compact and united front.

The judges are Professors [illegible] Meredith, with the third one [illegible] decided upon.

Unusual interest in this contest has been shown on the campus as this is the first of its kind ever to be held at Vermont. A handsome silver loving cup, suitably engraved and now on display at Hayes & Carney, will be presented to the winning fraternity and tickets good for any performance at the Majestic Theater to the runners up.

One fraternity will be selected by the judges on each of the two nights, December 2 and 3, and the finals will be held at a later date—on December 6, if agreeable to both of the chosen contestants.

Any fraternities desiring to make any last minute changes or additions should communicate with Mr. Carney or "Art" Brown at the Majestic as soon as possible.

ERMONT DELEGATE TO NATIONAL MEET

ebate Manager Franklin A. Sears Goes to Seventh Annual Convention of Tau Kappa Alpha

ERMONT REPRESENTED FOR FIRST TIME IN YEARS

Fran lin A. Sears, '30, is the dele- from the local chapter of Tau ppa Alpha, the national honorary ing fraternity, to its Seventh An- al Convention held this year at Ox- Ohio, December 6 and 7. Chosen the members of the local chapter of e fraternity, he will leave Wednes- y, December 4, and return Monday, cember 9.

This is the first time in many years at the local chapter has been able send a representative of the Uni- sity of Vermont to the national nvention. Sears will be accom- nied by Reamer Kline, Middlebury ollege's representative to the gather- g at Oxford. It will be remem- red that Kline was one of the con- stants in the Middlebury-Vermont ate last Friday night in the Old ll Chapel.

One of the first efforts made in United States to obtain accurate, pective data concerning the relative e of several methods for judging ercollegiate debates will be the fea- e of the program of the Convention. Teams of the University of Cincin- i, Cincinnati, Ohio, and Wittenberg ollege, Springfield, Ohio, will debate e question, "Resolved, that trial by y should be abolished." Decisions l be returned by three boards of ree judges each selected from the aculty of Miami University; by sev- al expert judges, professors of public peaking in various colleges of the ited States, and by audience votes th before and after the debate it- lf. The three types of decision are ntended to provide comparative data the operations of three—judge, sin- le expert judge and audience decision stems.

Difficulty With Decisions

Difficulty in obtaining reasonable decisions continues to be perhaps the ost difficult obstacle to the populari- ation of American intercollegiate de- ates," declared Morris Edwards of Washington, D. C., National Secretary- Treasurer of the Fraternity, who ar- anged the program for the experi- ental debate. "The breakdown of judging systems is responsible for he no-decision type of debate. It has istinct merits, of course, but Ameri- an debating audiences are accustomed o having decisions rendered and it is ir desire to begin the development f adequate data upon judging sys- ms through this experimental de- ate.

When we shall have found a sys- m that returns a reasonable decision nine cases out of ten, we shall have ound the principal missing link in he effort to place American debating n the plane of popular interest and espect to which it is entitled."

Other timely problems of intercol- egiate debating administration and ubjects occupy prominent places n the convention program. The after- noon session of December 6 will be given to the discussion of "The Program in the Small Col- ege," C. N. Shutt, dean of Berea Berea, Ky.; "Sponsorship of School Public Speaking Compe- ition," Miss Idah White, of West- rn State Teachers College, Kalama- oo, Mich.; "The International De- ate," Prof. H. H. Higgins, of Uni- ersity, and "Forensic Pro- ram Work in Large-City Institu- ions," Miss Evelyn Hellerstein, f East High School of Denver, Denver, Colo.

Meet in Cincinnati

The National Council of the Frater- ity held a meeting in Cincin- ati prior to the convention. Officers of the Council are J. Q. Dillon of Baton Rouge, La., National President; Frank L. Palmer, Denver, Colo., Vice-President; Morris Ed- ards of Washington, D. C., National Secretary-Treasurer, and Ralph G. Williamson of Alliance, O., and Charles Hunter of Knoxville, Tenn., members-

FRESHMAN CLASS IS MOST COSMOPOLITAN

The freshman class of Smith College is not only the largest class admitted in ten years, but also the most cosmopolitan. Its 660 members have come from Egypt, Russia, Mexico, Canada, the Canal Zone, Bermuda, Hawaii, Porto Rico, Cuba and thirty-six States in the Union. New York State heads the list, with Massachusetts a close second and Connecticut, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New Jersey following.

More than half of the fathers of the members of the class of 1933 are college graduates. Yale, which of late years has displaced Harvard as leader, continues to lead with fifty-seven parents, and Harvard follows with forty-nine.

Ninety-six colleges and universities are represented. These include the University of Heidelberg, Bonn, Berlin, Vienna, Edinburgh and Melbourne. The mothers of the members of the class include 178 graduates of the colleges.

FAMOUS LIEBESLIEDER ENSEMBLE TO APPEAR AT GYM DECEMBER 5

Esther Dale, Internationally Known Vermont Soprano, One of Group—500 Free Student Tickets at University Store

An internationally famous Vermonter, Esther Dale, soprano, will be heard at the University gym Thursday, December 5 as a member of the Liebeslieder Ensemble. Not since the days of Mary Howe has a native of Vermont won distinction in the musical world, and the brilliant career of Esther Dale has added another page to the artistic history of her home state. Not only in the United States and Canada, but also in England, France, Germany and Austria Miss Dale has received high praise for the beauty of her voice and the intelligence of her interpretations.

With Miss Dale in the Liebeslieder Ensemble are associated Elizabeth Lennox, contralto; Paul Althouse, tenor; Jerome Swinford, baritone, and the De Maria Ensemble, a small orchestra of fourteen instruments directed by Rosolino de Maria. The organization derives its names from the "Liebeslieder Walzer" (Love Song

SPIRITED SINGING AT MAJESTIC THEATRE

Initial Night of First Annual Interfraternity Singing Contest Ushered in With Bang

MORE FRATERNITIES TO TRY FOR CUP TONIGHT

Last night found several fraternities participating in the spirited first night start of the first annual interfraternity singing contest held during the second performance at the Majestic Theater. The judges, Professors Dean, Meredith and Ewert handed down the decision, which was, however, sent in too late to be printed in this issue.

"Art" Brown played each fraternity song on the organ and the corresponding house sang it. Much applause greeted each of the efforts which showed a great deal of preparation on the part of the members.

Tonight several more fraternities will compete. A greater number will sing at this time, inasmuch as fraternity meetings were responsible for the non-appearance of many of the groups.

At the finals of the contest, to be held on a date decided upon by the winners of each of the two preliminary nights, a handsome silver loving cup, suitably engraved, will be presented by the Majestic Theater management to the winning fraternity and

Stock Exchange Expert to Lecture and Show Three Reels of Movies at Gymnasium Tomorrow Night at 8 P.M.—No Admission Charge

SECURED BY COMMERCE AND ECONOMICS BRANCH

Eight p.m. tomorrow night brings to the University gymnasium Mr Jason Westerfield, head of the publicity department of the New York Stock Exchange, under the sponsorship of the department of Commerce and Economics. Mr. Westerfield will give not only a most interesting lecture on the inside workings of the great financial institution in which he is so vitally interested but will bring three reels of honest-to-goodness movies with him as well. The films are professionally made and professionally accurate. They enjoyed an extended run at a Broadway Theater, which fact alone should crowd the gymnasium to capacity.

Lots of Movies

The first picture shown on the screen by Mr. Westerfield is called "The Nation's Market Place" and contains one reel. The second, "The Mechanics of the Nation's Market Place" is made up of two reels. These are the only pictures to have been taken on the floor of the New York Exchange. The cast for the pictures includes the 1,500 employees of the organization as well as many of the 1,100 members.

This reel will show the entire execution of an order to buy or sell. It will carry the process right through from your phone to the great Stock Exchange, showing how it goes from the local broker to the New York broker, and thence to the floor of the exchange. The film, in showing the handling of the order, will emphasize its celerity of completion.

Mr. Westerfield is an excellent speaker who has talked to packed halls at educational and other institutions throughout the country. His knowledge of the subject is practically unsurpassed and his experience indeed wide.

The lecture starts at 8 p.m., and there is no admission charge.

MRS. CARPENTER FINDS MUCH OF INTEREST IN VISIT TO CONNECTICUT

Mrs. F. D. Carpenter, chairman of Rural Life of the Vermont Congress of Parents and Teachers and Public Welfare, chairman of the Vermont League of Women Voters, has returned from a week in Connecticut where she has been visiting various educational institutions and telling of the work done in Vermont. While in Connecticut Mrs. Carpenter had conferences at Yale and Wesleyan and spent a day at the State Agricultural College at Storrs. She also visited high schools in Hartford and Simsbury, grade schools in New Britain, Simsbury and Winsted and rural schools in Simsbury and Storrs. Other institutions seen were the State Training School for the Feeble-minded at

UNIVERSITY PROFESSORS DEMANDED AS SPEAKERS

Professor Crockett and Prof. H. F. Perkins recently attended the New England Council meeting held in Boston. On this same trip Professor Crockett addressed the Rutland chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and also the Rutland County Engineers Society.

Prof. Leon Dean recently delivered an address at Plattsburg, N. Y., to the Men's Discussion Group of the Y. M. C. A. He has also recently spoken before an alumni meeting at New Britain, Conn.

Prof. Evan M. Thomas delivered a sermon at the Congregational Church in Milton, Vt., Sunday, November 24.

GREY FRIARS HEAR TWO MANUSCRIPTS READ AT THEIR FRIDAY MEETING

Robert Stewart Presents "A New Social Code" and Alfred J. Morin Declares "Let's Laugh!"

Grey Friars met Friday at 4 o'clock to read manuscripts.

Robert Stewart read an ironical essay entitled "A New Social Code."

"The students at U. V. M.," he says, "are tearing away from the old traditional forms of courtesy and practicing an entirely new social code."

"Why try to be what we are not?" he asks. "Vermont is not backward and does not cling to the old ideals and well-formed habits and simple courtesy and politeness."

"Witness the recent U. C. A. dance at the Burlington High School Gymnasium: Several male members of the Association cabinet took it upon themselves to deprive a number of the fair sex of their sents and gave them an opportunity to stand up and grow tall."

"Does not this demonstrate the superiority of the modern method over the old? Who says Vermont is conservative?"

Alfred J. Morin presented a psychological discourse on the subject of laughter, which bore the name of "Let's Laugh."

He said: "There is a wonderful recreation in cheerfulness. It gives one ease and prevents nervous strain and physical disorder."

PROFESSOR CARROLL ON CHINESE TURMOIL

Will Present Background of Chinese Revolution Before International Relations Club Next Thursday

CLUB HAS EXCELLENT SPEAKERS DURING YEAR

Prof. D. B. Carroll of the Political Science Department will be the speaker at the International Relations Club meeting which will be held in 3 North College next Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock. He will discuss the Chinese Revolution, laying emphasis on its background.

As can be seen by the subject, China is to be the topic for discussion in the International Relations Club this month. Professor Carroll, who gives a course in Far Eastern politics next semester, has at his command a fund of knowledge about China, especially old China, and the members will be certain to find a discussion of that country very interesting.

Excellent Speakers This Year

The club has been taking advantage this year of the excellent speakers who are found right here on our own campus or in the city. Prof. E. C. Mower spoke on "Why an International Relations Club?" at the first meeting of the club this year. He was followed by Dr. C. C. Adams, who discussed "The Higher Patriotism." Then Mr. L. S. Hartwell delivered a very enlightening talk on Mexico. At the last meeting of the organization Dr. George G. Groat presented "The Background of the Young Plan" in a clear, concise and interesting manner. He cleared up the haze in the minds of several—a haze that had obscured the simple chronology of events and facts.

Meetings Open to All

The meetings of the International Relations Club are open to all. Any student who has the slightest interest in international relations will find worthwhile points of men presented at each meeting. Not only will he add to his store of knowledge about other countries, but also he will come away from the meetings with perhaps a little better insight into the problems awaiting him when he graduates.

Wherein the Question of Who Gets All the Scholarships is Cleared Up

"Out of about 180 potential honor scholarships awarded each year by the University of Vermont to students graduating from approved Vermont high schools about 65 are used," stated President Bailey to a Cynic reporter in a recent interview.

"That sounds interesting! How do the figures stand this year in regard to honor students now enrolled in the freshman class?"

"There are 111 women enrolled. Of these, 20 hold scholarships. Of the 202 men in the class, a slightly higher figure, 24, entered with these awards. Then there are also two extra scholarships being used by sophomores who could not enjoy them last year. So you see there are 46 being used this year, a somewhat lower figure as contrasted with the usual average of 65."

90 Per Cent. Go to U. V. M.

"How many of such approved high schools are there in the State of Vermont?" queried the reporter.

"Last spring," President Bailey continued, "there were on the records 79 high schools, including junior and senior divisions, and 19 private academies."

"Do the private schools get scholarships, too?"

"Oh, yes, each year 25 are set aside for the total number of these."

"Isn't the number who accept the scholarships rather small?" the reporter inquired.

"Well, we do know," put in Mr. Kehoe, who was ready to give the figures, "that very few students graduating from high schools with honor awards go to other universities. It is pretty safe to say that about 90 per cent. go to U. V. M."

"What is the value of the honor scholarships?"

"They are $175 each and are awarded by the Board of Trustees to the young man and woman graduating with the highest standing in a college preparatory course. They are good for one year only and are expected to be used in the year awarded."

"Is an award transferable, in case one cannot take advantage of it?" asked the interviewer.

"You see, as the reward is to the boy and girl of highest standing, it is personal and individual, and so cannot be transferred to another."

Other Scholarships

Mr. Bruce, the cashier, was asked if there are other scholarships given.

"Yes," he replied; "each year we award high school debating scholarships. An interscholastic debating league has been organized among the various preparatory schools of Vermont and several district groups have been formed."

"Where are the debates held?"

"The individual meets are at the several schools throughout the State, and then the final contest, after the others have been eliminated, is held at the University of Vermont."

"Is a prize of some sort offered?" interrogated his caller.

STOP, LOOK AND LISTEN—BUT SEE

It is one thing to look at an object; it is another thing to see it.

Try this trick on your best friend. Immediately after he has examined his watch and returned it to his pocket, ask him what time it is. The chances are ten to one that he will pull out his watch again before replying. Why will he do this? Simply because his first action will be unconscious, his second will be definitely motivated by your request. In the first instance he will look at his watch; in the second he will see what time it is. A keen looker, in other words, with his eyes he may well be blind. The first action is purely physical; the second a psychological.

The real distinction between a sluggish, dull mind and a man of alert intelligence is that the first merely looks whereas the second sees what he looks at. The impressions which the first receives never seem to get behind his retina; the eye of the intelligent man on the other hand is only the channel by which perceptions reach an active mind where they are interpreted and partially digested. It is possible to test your mind's eye by how it reacts to the stimulus of words. Read but one little sentence, another may look at it for half an hour.

The worst result of looking without seeing is that it adds nothing to a man's intellectual stature. Yet it is quite clear that experiences of life are as meaningless and empty as a montage film, a succession of motion pictures may [illegible] be [illegible] almost as rapidly as they fade from the screen. But the man who sees with his mind's eye perceives relationships where the other does not. He has the experiences of life all organized and coordinated into a meaningful pattern. Which of you by taking thought can add one cubit unto his stature? To use physical stature the answer is the thinker may add nothing; but it he will acquire the habit of using the eye of the mind to see correctly and learn a cubit to his intellectual stature. If you would grow in this direction you must learn to see and not remain satisfied merely to look.

THE BOARDING HOUSE REACH

By Ex-Converse Hall

SKIRTING THE CAMPUS

We signed up to advance the cause of coeducation. Well, we didn't exactly [illegible] but the dean of women said we could go ahead. As a matter of fact she didn't actually say we could go, but she didn't say we couldn't. She has been so nice to us. Nature in conduct that the sexes should mingle together and to separate them is [illegible] to nature. S'fact! The Darwinian Tests substantiates it. Where would we be today if it wasn't for an [illegible] instinct? And don't forget that old saying. "Misery loves company."

Although we can't find fault with Miss Birds contending the male to be superior when she stated, "They [illegible] are barely tolerated by the superior male, yet we cannot agree that women's colleges are more progressive than coed schools, as she maintains. Seems quite the opposite. The girls don't have to dress, wash their necks once in a while, and comb their hair for first period classes in women's institutions, do they?"

This Miss Hall, of ours, has a real sense of humor. Did you get what she said about ". . . in olden times, when women . . . . were supposed to be feminine and stay at home. . . ."? Rare sense of humor, thet gal!

An' what Miss Godsoft said about Norwich cheering better'n Vermont! Them air Norwich men hev hair on thair chist! An' thair voices is deeper 'en ourn. They're all horse.

Now, whut in the wuruld did Miss Justice mean when she said that in co-ed schools "the two (sexes) grow accustomed to each other on less awe-inspiring occasions"?

'Twaz report that in the rebuttal the girls used thair elbows—no, we miscued—it said "interesting points were brought up." Well, enyhow, the original arguments remained unshook-en, which goes to pruv that a woman doesn't always exercise her ancient prerogative.

Pussonly, we believe in equal rights for women, with perhaps an occasional left. An' to make a binding match the punch should be kept low. Remember "the way to a man's heart is through his stomach." That's what's meant when a man says "that hit the right spot!"

What we wunt at Vermont is not only ladies but more women. Real women! The women draw the real men. The real men draw the real women. The real women are drawn to the real men and vice versus. Well, enyhow, we ort to hev a real good hockey team, or at least an archery team.

We like to have lots of womanhood around us. We mean numbers. We believe that for every male there should be six of the female. "Theoretically," says a prominent Englishman, "death may be postponed indefinitely." But we all come closer in death. But still physicists now have come to the conclusion that no two persons in this universe can ever be more than 54,000,000,000,000,000,000 miles apart.

Reports have it that down in the Belgian Congo you can get a wife for three goats. Thet's whar thet expression "gettin' yer goat" begun, we reckon. Howsomeever, the report didn't state that the system worked both ways. Well, anyway, it's nice country down there, or at least, we hope it is. Well, let see—oh, yes—

Co-agitation schools—nope, co-agulation—co-education is a problem that cannot be successfully handled with silk gloves. Beware of apples! That old saying about an apple a day ain't always the truff.

What we said here about co-education, that is, what we intended to say; we mean what we could have said; we should say what we should have said—well, anyway, that is jest in fun—or we were having some fun in test or—well, what difference does it make anyhow? It's a good thing anyway—that is, co-education is a good thing. At least there are good things in co-education. We mean features; that is qualities. No, not physical in the system; that is the system of coeducation we mean—oh, what's the use.

"Whose goin' to the movies?"

I extend pity to no man because he has to work. If he is worth his salt, he will work. I envy the man who has work worth doing and does it well. There never has been devised, and there never will be devised, any law which will enable a man to succeed save by the exercise of those qualities which have always been the prerequisites of success, the qualities of hard work of keen intelligence, of unflinching will.—Theodore Roosevelt

Interfraternity Sing for Alumni Trophy

The fourth annual Interfraternity Sing for possession of the [illegible] Challenge Trophy will be held in [illegible] Hall, Tuesday evening, December [illegible] at 8.30 p.m. Active interest has already been shown in the contest and most of the fraternities are planning to compete. Several houses have already begun practice for the event. Each fraternity is to be represented by a group of not less than eight nor more than twelve men.

The silver loving cup, [illegible] awarded to the winner was given by the class of 1902 on its twenty-fifth anniversary. For many years Amherst has been known as a singing college, but as it was felt that interest in singing had declined the trophy was put up in 1927 to renew interest in singing. The winner each year is entitled to retain the trophy for the ensuing year, and the house winning it three times has permanent possession of it. Psi Upsilon won the cup in 1926, while Delta Kappa Epsilon has been the winner for the past two years.

Seniors and Class-cutting

Student reaction to the proposal that seniors be accorded wider cutting privileges indicates clearly that the supporters of the plan are legion. Undergraduates are wholly in favor of a system whereby the last-year men would be permitted to "cut" a class if they believed they could use the period to better advantage in some other way. Under such a system seniors would be accorded complete freedom in their scholastic endeavors. Then the graduate of tomorrow would be brought face to face with the responsibility that is his; he would undergo a test of character and ability without feeling academic pressure and the eventual outcome would indicate to a large degree his future possibilities.

Simultaneous with this agitation for a new system of cutting is an expression of opinion in favor of unlimited cuts without the restrictions of a "Dean's List" or any like arrangement. The opinion is widespread that the granting of privileges to a few—the scholastically high—would not serve the purpose for which such freedom is intended. Unquestionably student support favors the installation of a new system for no other reason than to make each individual responsible for his own scholastic welfare.—Penn State Collegian.

Mary's older sister followed right in Mary's footsteps. And then her mother, and soon her grandmother. Shakespeare names the seven ages of man, from babyhood to old age. An observant paragrapher now names the seven ages of modern woman as follows: (1) babe, (2) child, (3) little girl, (4) young woman, (5) young woman, (6) young woman, (7) young woman.—DEAN GOODNIGHT, Wisconsin.

The finest mirror you could use would not reflect a true picture of your real self. The beauty of your skin or the freckles on your nose do not make or mar you.

You may know your real appearance by the way others look to you. For that is how you seem to them.

You may command the lasting respect, confidence and friendliness of others in proportion as you give it. As you give, so shall you receive.

The friend, looking at the figure, exclaimed, "Have you been idle since I saw you last?" "By no means," replied the sculptor. "I have worked this feature and brought out more muscle; I have given more expression to this lip, and more energy to the limb." "Well, well," said his friend, "all these are trifles." "It may be so," replied Angelo, "but remember trifles make perfection, and perfection is no trifle."

TWENTY LEFT WITH FRESHIE HOOP SQUAD

Third Cut This Week—Good Squad Promises Hectic Battles for Regular Berths

SQUAD BEING RAPIDLY CONDITIONED FOR OPENER

After a solid week of freshman basketball preliminaries Coach Howard Prentice made a second cut and reduced the squad to twenty men.

The first practice brought forty-eight players out but this group was immediately cut to twenty-nine. The present congregation of yearlings will be minimized this week. It is expected that a select fifteen or so will uphold the glory of the wearers of the green and gold cap.

Routine passing and shooting drill took up the first couple of sessions for the purpose of sorting out and conditioning. The last two practices were featured by offensive drill with the criss-cross attack. The latter necessitates whipping the team into a fast, accurate-passing combination, and the remaining candidates look good to the task under the tutelage of their efficient mentor.

Prominent among those who survived the second cut are Bob Grant, Colins, Valerio, Cohen, forwards; Talcott Eqwell centers; Mahoney, McGowan, Chiolino, Marvin, Taft, guards.

Sluggish Springfield Team, Stopped by Courageous Catamounts, Rallies with Aid of Forward Passes to Beat Rival Seventh Year in Succession

COLONEL EDWARDS' AID PROCURED FOR FENCING

Col. E. H. Edwards, coach of the varsity fencing and polo teams at Norwich University since 1921, has offered his expert services for the University of Vermont fencing unit. He will devote three hours a week here in the future, and, according to the results of last Saturday's practice session which he attended for the first time, and to his fine reputation he should be able to round off our boys in smooth fashion and consequently turn out a winning band of foilsmen.

So far, the schedule for the present, or rather, the approaching season is indefinite owing to a lack of funds and the inability to obtain contracts from schools in the same or immediate vicinity in which one school has already been tentatively contracted in order to make worthwhile a trip to the locality concerned. The match with Montreal A A A has been post-

HEATON, DE ROSE, WINANT SEGAL STAR FOR THE CATS

Weak in the execution of its attack in the first half against a feeble but courageous Vermont University football team, Springfield College gathered in its truant threads of power and by scoring three touchdowns and two resultant points in the final quarters of play, won a 20 to 0 game on Thanksgiving morning at Pratt Field, Springfield. The victory marked the Red and White's seventh straight conquest in the annual Turkey Day meetings between the institutions. For Springfield it was the end of another successful season but for Vermont the bitter finish of a schedule that was fraught with disappointments.

Sluggish in First Half

Springfield's vaunted accuracy at the aerial style of offense was in a great measure responsible for a spirited finish to a contest that had a drab start. Where in the first half the Hill eleven showed a habitual tendency to waste opportunities inside its thirty five-yard line and displayed a deplorable lack of push for such a talented team, it shook off a sluggish nature on an equally sluggish gridiron in the third quarter to start a rally that decided the tilt by a decisive margin.

A muddy and somewhat slippery field, the result of heavy snowfall in the early morning, handicapped the players, who found footing uncertain and a wet ball hard to hang onto. The local team, especially, was guilty of much fumbling in the first half. Tommy Owl, the full-blooded Indian halfback, and Simonson, fullback, each cutting drives short by allowing the leather to get away from them.

The Red and White had nothing to worry about except its attack. Coach Jack Rothacher's forwards thwarted all the Green and Gold attempts to pass them, which is proved by the fact that the Catamounts never once were inside the local thirty-five-yard line. The team was on the offense so much that only once did it punt. Yet with all these advantages the attack did not begin to function until the final periods. Once the Rothacher machine did gain momentum, however, it left havoc in its wake, outrushing the Catamounts 19 first downs to 5.

Two of the home city touchdowns came as the direct result of forward passes, the final score of the day coming by the air route just before the end of the game.

Owl and Nielson Star

Prominent figures on the Hill team were Owl, who played one of the most brilliant games of his career, and "Buck" Nielson, the lanky negro boy who played his last game at the Hickory Street grid. They were the leaders of the attack, sharing equally the passing and ball-carrying honors. It was left to "Deedee" Dogherty, substitute quarterback, however, to give the Red and White confidence in itself just as the team seemed destined to make a mediocre showing. Dogherty snared a pass from Owl straight over the line of scrimmage that paved the way to the first touchdown in the third quarter. The advance netted thirty yards and on the next play Nielson skirted right end for nine yards crossing the visitors' goal line at the extreme corner of the field and finding difficulty in staying in bounds because of the maze of would-be tacklers to the right and left of him. Nielson faked a kick for the extra point, but "Curly" Dressel, who went in for Simonson, rushed the ball over for the extra point.

The second touchdown, resulting from straight football, was all but scored in this same quarter, the ball being brought to the two-yard line before the teams changed goals. On the second play of the fourth period Dogherty dove over the line for the touchdown that gave the Red and White a 13 to 0 margin. "Charley" DeRose knocked down the pass for the attempted extra point.

Springfield's third score came in the final minutes, when "Hube" Wilson acting as an end substitute, shot off from the right wing to take a pass from "Boo" White and make the

Wherein Colonel F. Black Tells How The Many Military Classes Compare

Since military training is such an important and much talked about part of the University curriculum, we ventured to approach Colonel Black to learn how the present freshman class compares with the other classes in the different branches of the work. We found him very non-committal. He would not wish to make any direct comparisons, but he did give us several interesting facts in answer to our questions.

"How does the previous military training of the members of this new class compare with that of last year's?" we asked.

Well" the Colonel replied, "I can't give you the exact figures of last year, but I know that the number that have had military training before coming to college runs about the same from year to year. This year there are seven who have attended C. M. T. C. camps while last year I think that there were six. One of the freshmen has the unusual record of having had three months work in the C. M. T. C."

But isn't there some junior R. O. T. C. organization in the high schools?

Yes there are three cities in New England that have the R. O. T. C. under government supervision. Boston has a high school cadet corps of course. There are four of the freshmen who have such training; one of them is the New York Military Academy and one in the Quebec High School. In addition, there are four men who have had previous training in the National Guard."

Fifteen With Previous Training

That makes fifteen who had some sort of military science before coming to college doesn't it? How about the rest? How do they take to the military drill and instruction?"

Of course, every freshman class has a little getting used to the new life and work in military science just as in any other course. We have given two examinations so far this year and the second showed very good marks and was a big improvement over the first one. But there is really very little difference in the work of the classes from one year to the next. Every now and then a class will turn out an unusual number of outstanding men. But in general the classes run about the same, especially for the first year or so."

"Now and then," continued Colonel Black, "we find a man who seems to be absolutely unable to keep step. It's a strange thing, but such a man has no idea of cadence and doesn't seem to be able to learn to march. There are none this year but there have been two or three in the past few years."

Bigger and Better Band

"Isn't there an unusually large number of freshmen in the band this year?" we asked.

"Yes, there's a mighty good bunch and I think that it is larger than usual," replied the Colonel with a smile of satisfaction, for the R. O. T. C. Band is Colonel Black's special pride.

"There are thirty freshmen in the band this year and I guess that they play just the instruments that 'Joe' Lechnyr especially needed."

"I guess that you have about everything that I can give you regarding the freshmen," concluded the Colonel. "I wouldn't want to make any general comparison of this class with any other, though, for it would not be fair to either. I would tell you how they compared as marksmen after they've been shooting awhile. So if you'll drop in again in a couple of weeks I may be able to give you some interesting material."

We promised to drop in. We will.

At the weekly meeting of W A A held on Monday, November 25 a Hiking Club was formed with Christie E. McLeod '31 as chairman.

Hygiene lectures for all freshmen who failed in the course will start Friday, December 6, at 4.00 in Hall A, Medical Building.

Miss Blanchard will give basketball talks on Fridays at 4.00 in 28 South College.

The annual Football Hop has been a Vermont tradition for years. Years ago it was held in the University gym by the fraternities and the independents. Extensive decorating was done by the various organizations and the dance was made one of the most colorful events of the social calendar. This practice was discontinued in 1925 and since that time the dances have been held both in the University gymnasium and in other halls. Last year, for the first time, it was held in the high school gym.

CAT'S MEOW

SPORTING EDITOR

FOOTBALL disappears into the past as the multitude of athletes dive into the various winter sports. Most prominent among these are basketball and hockey.

With the conclusion of football several men reported for varsity basketball practice. DeRose and Jay reported Friday and bolster up the squad.

The outstanding feature of the week was Capt. "Tim" Halligan's first appearance in uniform Friday afternoon. His ankle is in condition although he will favor it for a couple weeks more.

Manning's trick knee is still hanging over from last season.

It looks as if the starting team on Saturday against Montreal A. A. A. will be picked from Halligan, Tupper, Sargent, Manning, Tobin, and DeRose.

The game this year should be closer than it has been for several seasons. Montreal is as good as ever while the Cats will be weaker than usual until mid-years at least.

The freshmen will not play a preliminary Saturday. They will be used in the interpretation meeting in the afternoon.

In connection with the intramural athletic program of the Physical Education Department under the direction of "Archie" Post, the interclass basketball tournament drawings and rules will be announced this week. Class presidents should see either Prentice or Post for practice hours and get their teams organized and ready to play. Coaches will have to be provided by the classes themselves if they wish one.

NATIONAL INTERFRAT CONFERENCE OPPOSED TO DEFERRED PLEDGING

The Interfraternity Conference, which concluded its annual two-day session at the Hotel Pennsylvania recently, acting on the question of deferred pledging, which has been much discussed on college and university campuses, urged hastening the affiliation of students with fraternities in order to help them to "get down to the business of study."

The meeting adopted the report of a committee on deferred pledging which sent out a questionnaire on the subject and studied the replies of 122 colleges and universities before coming to the conclusion that "three weeks is sufficiently long enough for a freshman's mind to be concentrated on getting acquainted and on receiving a bid."

The detailed plan permitting pledging at the end of the second week of college, which lays emphasis on scholarship, recommended that initiation be deferred until the student pledged has proved his ability by maintaining

SUCCESSFUL EXAM IN CORRECTIVE CLASSES

A follow-up physical examination of the classes in corrective exercises was held last week by the physical education department. The examination was conducted by Dr. Pike and six senior medics, and the results were very favorable. The class has been running under the supervision of Howard Prentice, director of physical education, since the beginning of the year. It deals with helpful corrective exercises and evidently the forty men who are in the classes have benefited by them. This is the first year that classes of this sort have been conducted but they will continue this year and probably in future years if they continue to prove successful.

CATS WON TWO AND LOST SEVEN GAMES

Union and Rensselaer Defeated by Green Mountaineers—Both Wins on Centennial Field

SEVEN MEN ARE LOST THROUGH GRADUATION

Two victories and seven defeats is the final record of the University of Vermont 1929 football team. Since the opening game with New York University on September 28 until the last contest on Thanksgiving Day with Springfield the Catamounts have been mauled and shoved about with several discouraging losses. At home Coach Rattan's men showed up much better and turned two of the three games on Centennial Field into wins. The victims were Union and Rensselaer against whom the Green and Gold standard bearers showed a fighting spirit that put heart into the fans. The real climax of the season came with the Middlebury game, played at Burlington. Stirred up by the victory over Rensselaer the Vermont students showed unusual spirit in anticipation of the Midd contest. However on the field the Blue and White warriors carried off a 19-0 triumph to win the State championship. After glancing at the names of the competitors in Vermont the results of the games are not so surprising. New York University, Yale and Boston University were the first three to defeat the Catamounts and subsequently games were dropped to Norwich Connecticut Aggies, Middlebury and Springfield.

Season Opens at N. Y. U.

The Green and Gold opened the season against N. Y. U. on the latter's home field. In this game the Catamounts were hopelessly outclassed and got only one first down. Quarterback Winant early showed his talent by outkicking the New Yorkers. The final score was 77 to 0.

On the following Saturday Vermont fell before Eli in the Yale Bowl to the still more discouraging score of 89 to 0. After holding Yale 7 to 0 in the first quarter the Catamounts were forced to give way as man after man left the field with injuries. Twice Vermont held Yale on the Green and Gold two-yard line, gaining the ball on downs. This game was fatal to the Catamounts in regard to injuries. Al Sirois, veteran lineman, was severely injured and was unable to play for the rest of the season with the exception of a few minutes in the Union game. Jay also left the field with a dislocated bone in his knee that forced him out of the line-up for several weeks. Halligan, Blakeley and Berry were hurt as were nearly all of the others more or less severely. Vermont was doubly handicapped with a shortage of players.

The first Green and Gold score of the season came against Boston University, although the Terriers won 27 to 6. Segal was credited with the Vermont score when on a pass to him from Winant across the B. U. goal line Quarterback Polumbo interfered with the receiver.

First Victory Over Union

Returning for the first home game the Green and Gold gridsters triumphed over Union by the score of 13 to 7. Vermont scored in the second quarter and the half ended with the count 6 to 0. Again in the last quarter the Catamounts added seven more points, after which Union did likewise. Gardner made both the touchdowns for U. V. M., while the extra point was made on a pass to Allerton. Incidentally this was the first intercollegiate football victory for Vermont since November 12, 1927.

The Catamounts next met with disaster on Sabine Field against Norwich which won 20 to 0. This result upset all pre-game predictions and showed a disheartened Vermont team on the field. Long, accurate passes brought the ball over the line three times and with Waining starring for the Cadets the Vermonters were unable to score. Captain Levine could play only a few minutes because of an injury received in the Union game and his loss was felt keenly by the line.

The Connecticut Aggies followed up Norwich by defeating Vermont at Storrs, Conn. Five touchdowns were made while the Catamounts were held scoreless. The final result was a 34 to 0 loss for the Green and Gold.

Mrs. Carpenter Finds Much of Interest in Visit to Connecticut

Mansfield, the State Trade School in Hartford and the Children's Village of the Hartford Orphan Asylum.

Gives Addresses

On Armistice Day Mrs. Carpenter spoke to an audience of over 100 in the Centre School of Winsted. Wednesday and Thursday Mrs. Carpenter spent at the State Convention of the Connecticut League of Women Voters at the Hotel Bond in Hartford. The following day Mrs. Carpenter attended the Round Table of Education, at which were discussed many problems common to both Connecticut and Vermont. She also had a conference with the State Chairman of Immigration and found that Connecticut is also discontented with the new deportation laws and has asked the National League of Women Voters to see if this matter cannot come up in the next Congress.

Thursday morning Mrs. Carpenter spoke at an International Relations Breakfast, telling of the increasing interest in Vermont and of the Half-hour Reading Plan of the Vermont Joint Council on International Relations. Later in the day she met with the secretary of the Connecticut Joint Council to go over plans more in detail.

On her return to Vermont Friday night Mrs. Carpenter spoke at the new Eldred School in South Burlington, telling of her trip to Connecticut and of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers and the State branch of which they are a member. Many from the Plains School were also there as well as other interested citizens. Harold W. Slocum of the Vermont Tuberculosis Association also gave a health talk at this meeting and showed his moving pictures, much to the entertainment of the children and their parents.

Wherein the Question of Who Gets All the Scholarships

"A scholarship equivalent to full tuition of $300 is given to each member of the winning team. Then each one on the losing team is given the equivalent in tuition charges of $150.

"This is certainly worth working for. Do you give any others?"

"Yes," said Mr. Bruce, "we also award high school oratorical scholarships. These are valued as follows: The winner of first place receives $150, the second winner $100, and the person receiving third place receives $75."

"How are the awards made?" he was asked.

"Well, let me see; the State is divided into three districts and a committee consisting of prominent educators in the State regulates the contest and decides upon the winners. Then the University awards the scholarships at their appointment."

"They say the field of amateur journalism is also included. Is that right, Mr. Bruce?"

"Quite so. we also give high school editorial scholarships. You'd better see Professor Crockett about them. He is editor of university publications, you know."

Mr. Crockett on the Stand

The busy reporter hurried to catch Professor Crockett before he went to dinner.

"We do offer three scholarships to members of editorial boards of Vermont high school publications," replied Mr. Crockett upon being questioned, "but no winners are enrolled at the University this year."

"What is the value of these and how are the winners determined?"

"The first is valued at $175 and goes to the editor or business manager of the high school paper in the first group. The second, of $150, to a representative of the second group. And $125 for the best effort made by a school paper in the third group.

"How are the school papers classified?"

"Well, a committee of prominent newspaper men within the State, divides the schools into three groups according to the number of students enrolled. And then if a paper shows special merit it is promoted to a higher group, while others may be demoted.

"There is also a conference, is there not?"

"Yes, each fall the high school editors meet at the University to study their problems, exchange ideas and receive instruction and advice from persons experienced in writing and journalism."

"That is very interesting. Thanks a lot for the information. Good-bye!"

"Come again!"

Spirited Singing at Majestic Theater

tickets to the house judged second best.

Interfraternity "sings" are a popular part of campus competition in many colleges throughout the country. In fact Amherst is holding its fourth annual contest of this nature this year. Seeing the lack of such an event at Vermont, the Majestic Theater, in conjunction with Ex Converse, proprietor of the Cynic's Boarding House Beach, is putting on the Green and Gold's first contest of this nature.

CYNIC ARGUES FOR "PHI BETE" HOUSE PARTIES

Should Phi Beta Kappa hold house parties? This momentous question confronts the members of this august honorary society but without doubt they can easily decide it.

Why was the idea of "Phi Bete" house parties brought up? Surely they would afford an excellent opportunity for the intellectual aristocracy of our campus to gain a little relaxation from the strain of long hours spent in the company of books. We are told that one learns about the life not only from books but also from experience. Thus might not house parties give a different slant on life for our budding geniuses?

Then too the members of the fair sex are known to act as an inspiration for attaining higher goals. Consider the wars fought, the songs composed and the poems written—all to please the "lady love." Who knows but that a "Phi Bete" house party might spur one of the boys on to surpass Einstein?"

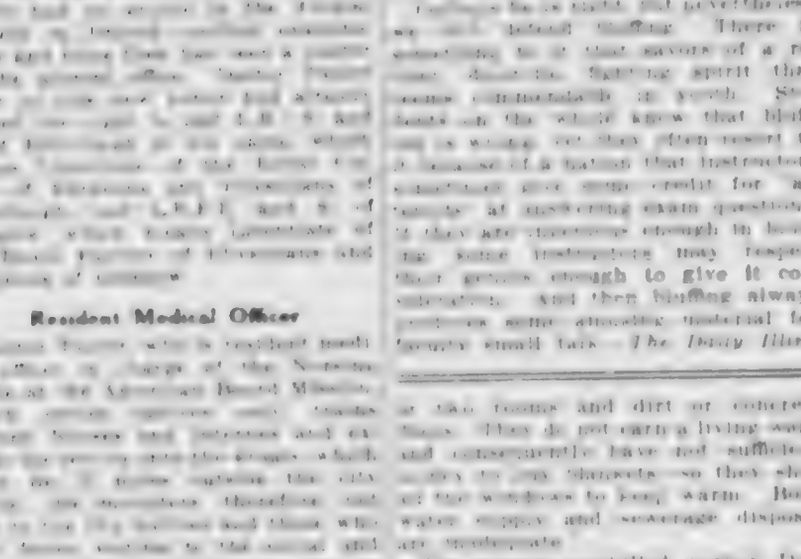
Already the president of the society has received a solicitation from a nearby orchestra booking agency for consideration when a band is to be engaged. Best orchestras can be furnished at very reasonable rates. Fraternities and sororities previously served by this agency can give good recommendations. In fact, "they claim that the music rendered was even better than they had anticipated."

Luckily, prospective "Phi Betes" have been organized so that the Phi Society may be relied upon to furnish some of its members to help prepare for the revelry. They are just the ones to do the thousand and one jobs a party entails.

How long before we will be shown the way to "make whoopee" a la "Phi Bete?"—Colgate Maroon.

The Unholy Three

Horophobia, procrastination and rationalization are the three [illegible] sins of college undergraduates according to Asst. Prof. Ernest M. [illegible] the speaker at the first Sunday [illegible] service at Union College in [illegible]tady.



The sermon began with an announcement that the speaker would endeavor to give his explanation why college students make [illegible] out of their college years [illegible] their visions of high hope and [illegible] achievement held at matriculation. In Professor Ligon's opinion the [illegible] deadly sins of undergraduates are [illegible] wine, women and song, but [illegible]bia, procrastination and rationalization.

Horophobia can best be defined as the insane fear of the grin of a cheshire cat—it is the fear of traditions and customs and current attitudes.

The second sin the speaker defined as procrastination, meaning that the tendency to put off until tomorrow what ought to be done today or choosing to do one thing rather than another which needs to be done.

Rationalization, the third of the three great sins of college undergraduates, in its general nature is the tendency common to everyone to do what one wants to and then find a good reason for having done so. We began it at an early age when a threatening parent demanded a good reason for some forbidden conduct on our part.

"It is common parlance among college students that good grades rarely indicate success in life. And rarely are there low-grade men who cannot quote you at least one case of a high-grade failure and a low-grade of success.

DOCTORS AND HYGIENISTS TO SPEAK BEFORE CO-EDS

Dr. Jenne, Dean of the College of Medicine, and the heads of Physical Education department for women, have nearly completed their plans for a series of ten or twelve health and hygiene lectures for freshman women. Each talk will be given by a doctor or a specialist representing his own line of work.

The first of these lectures will be given by Mr. Harold Slocum of the Vermont Tuberculosis Association, on the prevention and treatment of tuberculosis. The death list for this disease, although on the decrease, is still very high and the lecture should prove a most beneficial one.

Among others who will lecture are Professor Gifford of the Philosophy department of the University; Dr. Dalton of the Vermont State Board of Health; and Prof. Bertha M. Terrill, head of the Home Economics department. Others will be announced later.

INTERFRATERNITY SONG CONTEST FINALS WILL BE HELD NEXT MONDAY

Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Phi Delta Theta to Compete—Professors Dean, Meredith and Ewert to Judge

The First Annual Interfraternity Singing Contest will be brought to a close during the second performance at the Majestic Theatre, Monday, December 9. Sigma Alpha Epsilon, winners of last Monday night's contest, and Phi Delta Theta, who captured the judges' decision on Tuesday night, will compete for the permanent possession of the handsome silver loving cup to be donated by the Majestic Theatre. The second best group will receive tickets good to any one performance at the theatre. Each fraternity will sing two songs and the same judges as officiated on the two previous nights—Professors Dean, Meredith and Ewert—will hand down the decision at the finals.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon was declared the winning fraternity on the initial night of the contest. Their song "Violets," was said to be one of the prettiest ever sung on the campus. "The A. T. O. Girl," sung by Alpha Tau Omega, also went over well, while the Owls, singing "Crambambruli," showed how to put a rousing song across.

Phi Delta Theta Wins

Phi Delta Theta won on the second night of the contest with their "Phi Yell Song," better known as "Come Sing Your Praises." Kappa Sigma's "Come Gather All Ye Merry Men," with Rodney May singing part as a solo, scored with the crowd.

Although by no means all the fraternities competed in the first competition of its kind ever to be held at Vermont, those who appeared more than made up for the stay-at-homes. It is a regrettable fact that some of the fraternities on the hill do not, or did not previous to the contest, possess any house song.

Sorority Nights

Before starting any definite plans for Sorority Nights, the management of the Majestic will communicate with each sorority to ascertain their wishes in the matter. Unless most of the sororities desire to compete the contest will not be held.

The program for the finals will be:

1. Phi Delta Theta—"Phi Delt Bungalow" or "In Eighteen Hundred and Forty-eight."
2. Sigma Alpha Epsilon—" Friends."
3. Phi Delta Theta—"Phi Yell Song."
4. Sigma Alpha Epsilon—"Violets."

The decision will be announced immediately after the close of the contest.

SIX SENIORS NAMED TO PHI BETA KAPPA

Bundy, Dean, Howard, Macomber, Rich and Waddell Gain Membership in Honorary Scholastic Society

ALL RANK AT THE TOP IN SCHOLASTIC STANDING

Everett O. Bundy, Alice Dean, Susan Howard, Herrick M. Macomber, Frank V. Rich and Mary Waddell, all members of the Senior class, will gain formal admittance into the Phi Beta Kappa Society at the semi-annual initiation next Thursday evening, as a result of the action taken at the pre winter election last Wednesday, by the local chapter of the scholastic fraternity.

All Outstanding Students

All are outstanding in their studies. The election of six students so early in the year indicating a general high scholastic average. All six have appeared, semester after semester, on the President's honor list and on the Dean's roll. And, in addition, several have been prominent in campus activities. It is interesting to note that, of the six, four are graduates of Burlington High School; another, Macomber, although a graduate of Phillips Exeter Academy, studied two years at Burlington; the sixth, Bundy, who comes from Sutton, is a graduate of Lyndon Institute. Bundy and Waddell held honor scholarships.

Bundy is a member of Sigma Delta Fraternity. Last year he was elected manager of Athletic Eligibility, and he also holds membership in Eta Sigma Phi. Alice Dean, devoting her time largely to her studies, has shown interest in few college organizations.

ARIEL ART DEPARTMENT ANNOUNCES RULES FOR '31 YEARBOOK CONTEST

Open Competition to All Students —Editors Close Photographic Sections Before Christmas

In accordance with the decision of the art editors, Suzanne Rutledge and Winston Brasor, the Ariel, junior yearbook, has opened its annual art contest to the four college classes. The editors seek drawings from which to prepare cuts for the various departments of the Ariel and offer three prizes, of five, three, and two, dollars to the winning artists. The contest is now open to every student at the University, without any restriction on the number of drawings to be submitted by any one contestant.

Class headings should be in the same style and preferably by the same person. Besides these four class headings, drawings may be submitted for any one of the following divisions: Administration, Advertisements, Caught by the Camera, Education, Forensics, Fraternities, Kake Walk, Military, Minor Sports, Sororities, Women's Athletics and Women's Organizations.

Announce Simple Rules

The drawings should be made on ordinary drawing paper in size four by six inches, or of similar proportion, and should include the printed title of the division. Any one drawing should be in the same medium.

Even if a drawing is not awarded a prize, it may still be accepted for inclusion in the year book. Students are urged to submit their work to the editors as soon as possible.

Work in all departments of the Ariel is progressing favorably under the editorial direction of George R. Brush. Both he and his department heads, however, are hampered a great deal because of the non-cooperation of the junior class. A photographer who came to Burlington especially for the Ariel pictures, succeeded in photographing only a very few of the juniors, officers, or college organizations, considerably hindering the progress of the staff.

RECORDS REVEAL EIGHT SENIOR WOMEN TAKING HONORS COURSES HERE

Enroll in German, French, Psychology and Music—Number Exceeds Last Year's by Five

Five students, all women, are this year enrolled in honors courses at the University, enrollment in which carries with it privileges such as are accorded in few colleges and which, at Vermont, is open only to seniors. Two this year are taking honors in German, one in French, one in psychology, and one in music.

This number is slightly higher than that of those enrolled last year. At Commencement last June the number of students completing honor courses was three—one in chemistry, one in French, and one in government. In 1928 the number was six—one in zoology, one in mathematics, two in Latin and two in English. Within recent years the number was greatest in 1927 when nine students worked for special honors. That year there were three in French, two in psychology, two in mathematics, one in economics, and one in history.

System Young at Vermont

The system of allowing a student with sufficiently high standing to take special courses in the field in which he has particular interest, has been in operation at Vermont for comparatively few years. Many colleges have a similar system. At Harvard students are allowed to work for honors in their major subject. It is known that 35 percent of the men at Harvard try for honors, and 66 percent of those who do apply complete their courses.

At Vermont a student who, at the end of his junior year, has an average of B or above for the work of the preceding three years and lacks not more than two courses to complete his group requirements, may apply for special honors in a particular subject and be enrolled in honor courses. If he elects to take such courses, he enrolls during his senior year in not more than twelve honors, in addition to his thesis, six which are at the disposal of the head of the department in which honors are sought.

A student who is a candidate for honors is expected to prepare a thesis upon some topic designated or accepted by the head of the department in which he is seeking honors, and this thesis he must present to the Committee on Honors not later than May 10 of his senior year. Upon approval of the Committee of his thesis, the student will be expected to pass an oral examination conducted by the head of the department.

Award Five Fellowships

In addition five research fellows are enrolled this year who are completing their work for their master's degrees at Vermont. Two women are among those enrolled—one in art and one in physics. Then there are three men, one in zoology, one in mathematics, and one in English. There are also two men, one in English and one in history, and two women, one in Greek and one in pathology, who are here for their first year in preparation for their master's degree.

The University fellowships are for the purpose of assisting students whose undergraduate record and personal qualities give promise of success, either in research or in the profession of teaching. There are seven fellowships of $700 each the first year and $800 each the second fear, with exemption from tuition charges.

A holder of a fellowship is expect-

WESTERFIELD TELLS OF STOCK EXCHANGE

Publicity Director of New York Financial Center Explains Methods of World's Big Business Mart

THREE MOTION PICTURE REELS FEATURE TALK

To a crowd that taxed the capacity of the University Gymnasium, Mr. Jason Westerfield last Wednesday night, under the auspices of the Commerce and Economics Department of the University, played the part of an omniscient, all-seeing interpreter of the world's greatest business center—New York's Stock Exchange. Following three reels of movies on the Exchange, Mr. Westerfield divided his interpretation into two parts—that concerning the machinery of the Exchange and that concerning the employees of the nation's market-place.

Machinery of Stock Exchange

The first reel run off showed the intricacies of the machinery of the Exchange from its opening, at eight o'clock in the morning until its close at three in the afternoon. Only members and employees have access to the Exchange. As was explained in greater length by Mr. Westerfield, stocks are partnership shares in the industries of the nation.

The various steps which the Exchange takes in any purchase of stock were then shown. For example, if a buyer anywhere in the country wishes to buy some stock, two hundred shares of Mountain High for instance, he orders his broker to buy the shares. Instantly the broker relays the order to a telegraph operator on the Exchange who immediately telephones the clerk on the first floor of the Exchange. The telephone clerk by flashing on the wall the number of the stock broker's representative at once summons the representative to personally receive the order. While these various steps are

BENNETT PLANS BUSY YEAR FOR GLEE CLUBS, ORCHESTRA AND CHOIR

Program Includes Christmas and Easter Concerts, Glee Club Recitals and Opera Production in April

A busy program, extending from December to May, has been outlined for the music organizations of the University by Professor H. G. Bennett, head of the department of music, the full program, as planned to date, follows.

December 15—The choir and the University Orchestra will present the greater part of the first act of Handel's oratorio, "The Messiah." This is the annual Christmas concert and is scheduled for a Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Ira Allen Chapel.

January 10 (Friday evening, University gymnasium)—The women's Glee Club will appear in yet another perennial event. In previous years there has been an admission charge for this concert, but this year, through the courtesy of the administration, admission will be free.

Compete in Intercollegiate Event

February 28—The men's Glee Club will travel to Springfield, Mass., to participate in the New England Intercollegiate Glee Club Contest.

No date has yet been set for the Lenten Easter concert, which is presented each year in the Spring. The program will probably be modeled after those of past years.

In the latter part of April, the Glee Clubs will combine for the presentation of the opera, a feature of the past few musical seasons. Although no selection has as yet been made, it is, however, understood that the music department is considering the presentation of grand opera this spring.

Student recitals will mark the rest of the season, extending through the month of May. Organ recitals will also feature the Sunday vespers throughout the year.

THANKS!

The streets were lined with cars. The road in back of the Old Mill looked like the parking space at Champlain Valley Exposition. We entered the hall at ten minutes to eight. It was crowded—crammed to suffocation. A kind usher found us a seat. He must have used a shoe horn. The gentlemen in charge set up more seats—they were rapidly filled and still more seats were set up. A process almost as puzzling as the operations of the stock market itself.

But that's it. The Stock Market Lecture. Stock market terms. Not Mr. Jason Westerfield not a pedantic seeker, not a prophet appointed to tell what the New York Stock Exchange has to offer.

Mr. Westerfield left that to the Wall Street Journal and the financial sections of the New York Times. He came merely as enlightener, a knowledge disseminator. He came to tell a capacity audience what the stock market means to society. He came to tell an enthusiastic audience how stock transactions are consummated how the Big Man in New York City buys and sells investments, securities, and the like, how the Little Man in Peasnuk Center, Nebraska is able to do the same—and why socially economically.

For it is the audience knows what a tremendous part the stock market plays in American society before eight o'clock on Wednesday night. Two hours later most of those present—well to use a slang expression—"knew what it was all about." We enjoyed Mr. Westerfield's talk and his moving pictures. We know that you did.

To the Commerce and Economics Department of the University we say what we said to the speaker of the evening—Thanks.

VITAL QUALIFICATIONS

In an address before the Engineers' Society recently, Eugene G. Grace of the Bethlehem Steel Company outlined the qualities necessary to make a business executive. Among other things he mentioned were the following.

"There is one quality which in the last analysis, is determining as to whether any man shall achieve material success in this world—at any rate—that quality is sound judgment.

What is the basis for sound judgment and what makes a man able to judge soundly? Is this ability capable of development and training?

It seems to me that we generally find that the man who judges soundly is usually the man who has observed accurately in the first place. He has seen and analyzed correctly that which has passed before him. He has examined and re-examined the relationships of things which he has seen. He has noticed the effects which have followed from causes which have come under his own observation and so has seen some things straight. And this is the most difficult thing in the world to do.

"There is another thing a thing which has an economic aspect and there is always a question as to whether or not a thing should be built which cannot possibly be economically justified. The question of whether it should be built in a manner to serve the purpose required. It is so often necessary to determine whether the expense of engineering plans promises to be a profitable employment of time. And another way of stating the question of whether or not it is going the necessary money will be forthcoming with which to pay for it.

These are very practical questions calling clearly for the exercise of common sense and sound judgment. And there is no magical or legendary wherein we may acquire these qualities. They can only grow out of experience, and a man very often with the most restricted environment can through accurate observation acquire a knowledge of a subject and a sound reasoning its meaning which will equip him for superior attainments as a business executive.

"The law that a human being has a soul and other beings have none is comparatively modern and even now is far from universal."

Fersorenius Looks Into Bornese Culture

Leoninus Fersorenius has been often reproached with being far too imaginative in his interpretation of his discoveries in the still horribly obscure field of the prehistoric culture and witskey of the Japhetic races, with having drawn far fetched conclusions from their volksongs, legendae, animalcultae and religiose costumes. He is certainly the vortex of much controversy in the sktientific world.

Perhaps some items of the rich store of verlunds in heidttunshift knowledge he has obtained from the apparently wild hunting ground of Borneo. But this happened to such great men as Frolingsingbleiter and Gesungsundschafel, which could not diminish the value of their great work.

This year has seen the completion of his "Egerleverebtenstone Ergertalertalerteile" with the publication of Volume CXVII, "Monumenta Memorabilia Borneensa," and volume CXVIII, "Monumenta Terrabilium," both published by the Associacietitsin-Druckinzinkei of Zalckenfurt. Both sum up the conclusions of the previous volumes, which besides describing the psychic development of the Cro-Magnon and Neanderthal men, western Borneo, points out as well the spiritual metemphilio clositautis of an Arabian mathematician. The preceding volumes have been treated in detail as they deserved. We have attempted to remonstrate the extreme significance of Ferzorenius' classification of his discoveries into threo cultural groups, Hearts, Clubs, Diamonds and Spades.

One must admire the persistence with which Ferzorenius pursues the long-obscured psychic and philanthropical relations between the various Bornese worlds—the artistry with which he welds his etenographic and geologic material into one solid mass of mock-turtle soup.

Some one has just raised the question in communication with the writer, "For what especial scientific or non-scientific reasons does he pursue this study?" The answer is that the all-powerful and war-ruling Deity single, unaccompanied, sole, alone, has any cognizance of a correct response to that inquiry. In short, God only knows; I don't.

THE FORUM

Condemning four years of college as a background for business, a New York banker of considerable note, wealth and ability, said recently through the columns of The Daily Princetonian: "The most formative period of the average college man's life is spent in a place where he acquires lazy habits of thinking. A university cannot produce in men the drive that business gives them." The author of these remarks is Floyd L. Carlisle, head of the banking firm which bears his name, president of the St. Regis Paper Company, former head of the Northeastern Power Company, and a graduate of Cornell.

It is not hard to guess the kind of life Mr. Carlisle leads. Awakening with thoughts of efficiency, he reads his mail enroute to the office, shouts letters into a dictaphone between conferences, carries a huge mass of details in his head the better to reach million dollar decisions instantly, and by his personal example of dynamic energy instills that drive into his associates which will mean dividends for the stockholders. For recreation he probably talks shop with his associates between bridge hands or chip shots. The wonder of it is how the Princetonian reporter got the interview, and the pity of it is that by a strange warp in our civilization this is called success.

Sinclair Lewis has painted the outlines of Mr. Carlisle's portrait, but it is doubtful if Babbitt's crassness can approach the absorption of the modern business tycoon in the highly competitive art of making a million. And with the dollar upon so high and revered a pedestal, we have small cause to wonder that a mere college education looms trifling in the eyes of a money magnet. Colleges, as yet praise God, have not utterly forsaken mellow culture for that minute specialization, high-geared efficiency, and hundred per cent. Rotarianism whose mastery spells the modern version of "success" and whose key letters spell "drive" and "push."

What Mr. Carlisle says anent lazy habits of thinking, while it goes but an infinitesimal distance toward justifying his condemnation of colleges, is nevertheless a fair indictment of today's college methods. In defending themselves against this charge, our colleges, with their low standards of admission, huge enrollments, "pipe" courses, and easy degrees have no leg upon which to stand. But the whole theory and value of education is not vitiated, and the day must soon come when our education will awake to the sloth of their students and eject the imposter who sleeps instead of prays at the shrine of knowledge and culture.—Michigan Daily.

Campus Comment

A New Social Code

To the Editor:

Students at the University of Vermont are developing a new [illegible] Dissatisfied with the corrupt principles of courtesy and politeness which have been the mark of good [illegible] for centuries, they have decided to formulate a new code of ethics that much more practicable, less [illegible] enact, and allows their [illegible] brutish nature to come into [illegible] Why try to be what we are not, they say. Why it's hypocritical and hypocrisy we aim to eliminate completely.

The new policy which is making strong headway, especially among the male students, was amply illustrated in the Old Mill the other day. In fact one can find it illustrated almost any day in the Old Mill or on the campus. One lone protagonist of the worn-out doctrine of courtesy and respect for the female sex was about to leave the east door of North College, when a fellow member of the freshman class happened along, also intent on leaving by the east door. Opening the door for the antiquated doctrinaire held it open for the young lady in his most polite and respectful manner, or, in terminology of up-to-date Vermonters, he behaved in a humorous, somewhat pathetic, and asinine manner. At this point there arrived on the scene a disciple of the new and idealistic school of ethics. Taking the situation in at a glance he decided to illustrate the high-minded principles of the new code. Whereupon, he gave a sharp push to the old-fashioned gallant, saying, 'G'wan, what are you waiting for?" Bravo lad! Excellent exponent of the improved ethical code! Illustrious illustrator of Vermont's superior ethics.

Or another example if you wish. The fad is spreading fast. At the Christian Associations' dance recently given free for the benefit of the students, the neo-Brutes turned out in force to illustrate en masse the superiority of the modern method over the old. At the end of every dance each member took it upon himself to see that he deprived some lady of her seat. It worked wonderfully! Many many members of the gentler sex had a splendid opportunity to stand up and grow tall. And the exclusive Four Hundred wore a triumphant air of "I told you so!"

Who says that Vermont is conservative? Who says that Vermont is not progressive? Who says that Vermont is backward and clings to old ideas and well-formed habits of simple courtesy and politeness? Let no man deceive you. Such is not the truth, and all students who have not joined the ranks of the bold and courageous clan that has broken away from worn-out ideals, had better do so before the membership grows so excessive that it will be necessary to limit the number joining.

Montreal A. A. A. Opens Basketball Card For Catamount Quintet Tomorrow Night

CANADIANS BRINGING OLD LINE-UP TO BURLINGTON

Vermont basketball fans will have their first chance to see the Green and Gold five in action tomorrow night when the Catamounts clash with the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association in their annual battle. For quite a few years the Montrealers have opened the Vermont card and in every contest the Cats have come out victorious, although never by any great margin. The Canadians always bring down a bunch that is very nearly as good as the Catamounts if not as good, but they have never been able to come through with those deciding points that mean victory. However in this year's contest the M. A. A. A. quintet expects to have its greatest chance. They will face a team weakened considerably in reserve material by loss of men through injury and ineligibility. Sargeant, the long-legged center of last year's varsity is sure of lasting the greatest part of the game. "Sarge" has a good eye and is a good defensive man but he is handicapped by lack of speed. In the forward berths, Tupper, one of last year's Kittens is pretty sure of occupying one of the positions, pairing up with Capt. "Tim" Halligan, main stay of the outfit.

In the backcourt positions Phil Manning, another veteran will be able to put in his appearance. Manning is one of the best guards left in the State and should be a decided asset to the quintet, but injuries received last year make it doubtful as to whether he will last or not. He has a knee that may stay under him for the entire game and then again it may give out on the first play. However, he will be able to start tomorrow. The other backcourt position will be held down by "Dink" Bernstein, speedy forward on the 1928-1929 quintet. His defensive ability, and long shot accuracy make him valuable as a guard, so he has been shifted to that berth.

The Canadians will present practically the same team as the one which tasted defeat here last year.

INTERPRETATION CONFAB TOMORROW AFTERNOON

Freshman Squad to Play Demonstration Game—Meeting at 2.30 p.m.—Frosh Team Developing Rapidly

Because of the general success of last year's basketball rules interpretation meeting there will be another similar one tomorrow afternoon in the gymnasium at 2.30 o'clock under the auspices of the Vermont State Board of Approved Basketball Officials. Harold O'Brien of Rutland is in charge of affairs. An invitation is issued to all who are interested in basketball. The Board is to have its regular annual business meeting at 1.30 p.m. and the interpretation confab will come off at 2.30 p.m.

New rules are to be explained and a short demonstration game will be held between two freshman teams. In the evening the visiting coaches and officials will be guests of the Athletic Council at the Vermont-Montreal A. A. A. game. This gives everyone interested in basketball an admirable chance to get a look in on the latest developments in basketball rules and a chance to profit by attending the meeting.

During the past week Coach Prentice has been giving his Kitten squad, now reduced to 20, plenty of hard work in preparation for the opening game scheduled for a week from tomorrow in the University gymnasium.

From all indications the frosh team this year is going to be one of the best to represent the institution for several years. McGowan and Mahoney both look good at the guard position. Talbert is an ideal pivot man, possessing both height and a good eye, while in Collins and Grant Coach Prentice has two of the cleverest forwards seen on the local court for some time. Others who have shown up well in practice are Chiolino and Marvin at guard, Valerio and Cohen at forward, and Farwell at center.

In view of the fact that the yearlings will be used in the demonstration game they will not have a game tomorrow evening. They will have another week to brush up before meeting a regularly scheduled opponent.

CAT'S MEOW

Sporting Editor

After the first two weeks of varsity basketball practice things look bad—worse. Now with four veterans expected to start tomorrow night it's not too bad. But reserve power is lacking very unfortunately.

Tobin, DeRose, Winant and Mace are good basketball players but they lack experience in fast, varsity company.

The interpretation meeting should attract the attention of all those interested in basketball. If you've never attended one now's your chance they're good!

At the same time a first peek at the freshman team will be afforded in the scrimmage with the varsity Wednesday afternoon it looked very promising.

PHIL MANNING

A letterman for two years, will be ... of the mainstays during the coming campaign.

No more fitting and deserved an honor could have been bestowed upon Leo Segal than his recent election as captain of the 1930 football team. He certainly rose to unexpected heights on innumerable occasions during the past two years on the gridiron. It's a well-earned victory. Leo learned football as a freshman at Vermont. Some progress!

Interclass basketball will be revived next week after a lapse of several years. An excellent idea growing out of the new intramural program directed by Archie Post.

Faculty gym classes start on Monday next. They will be held Mondays and Thursdays at 5.00 p.m. in the auxiliary gym. Instructors in the Physical Education Department will conduct the sessions.

Many N. Y. U. students shed tears last Friday on their way to chemistry quiz sections. Investigations revealed that Mr. O. Ho. F. Steinback was simply experimenting with tear bombs on easy victims.

SEGAL TO CAPTAIN 1930 CATAMOUNTS

Plucky End for Past Two Seasons Wins Much Deserved Captaincy—Craig to Manage Next Year's Team

Leo Segal, '31, of Dorchester, Mass., was chosen captain of the 1930 Catamount eleven by the lettermen of this year's team. For the past two years Segal has shone consistently on the left wing of the line and was the high spot of this year's Vermont forward wall.

Segal was chosen almost invariably the past two years as all Vermont end by Vermont, Middlebury and Norwich coaches.

Besides starring on the gridiron Segal has been the mainstay of the ice sextet, having been elected captain of the hockey team for the coming winter season. He is a member of the Phi [illegible] Delta Fraternity.

football. Craig has been prominent in campus activities and is a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity. Adams, Delta Psi, was a member of Gold Key and is Key and Serpent this year.

The assistant managers elected at the time were A. O. Eaton, '32, Sigma Phi, Worcester, Mass.; R. A. Philbin, '32, Alpha Tau Omega, Clinton, Mass.; P. E. Westin, '32, Delta Psi, Proctor, Vt.

At a meeting of the Athletic Council of the University of Vermont 23 members of the football squad, including the captain and manager, were awarded their letter for participation in the fall sport as follows: Mgr. H. M. Macomber, '30; Capt. H. B. Levine, '30; O. W. Jay, '32, R. M. Huey, '31; C. H. Mace, Jr., '30, R. J. Maynes, '31, L. Segal, '31, A. G. Sirois, '30, E. C. Thorne, M.'32; C. W. Tilley, '32, E. M. For tackles, Perry of Middlebury and Tansey of Norwich are selected. Both played strong games against Vermont and they have the weight, endurance and speed to carry on to the end. A team with two such tackles to pillow up the line would cause any coach to spend more restful nights as he began to think of his defensive combinations. As guards, Hasseltine and Rierdon are selected. With these two, flanked by the tackles named above, the line would be well fortified defensively and offensively.

Each of the state teams was blessed with a good center. Levine's case was stated above and the selection narrows down to Fuller or Nelson. In the contest that the writer witnessed, Fuller played a spectacular game. Against Vermont he made a great percentage of the tackles made by his team. He passed the ball well and played a good game on defense. Nelson of Middlebury was perhaps as good. His work in feeding the ball to his backs was impressive and he played a rugged game on defense. There is little to choose between the two men but on the basis of the one-game comparison Fuller is selected.

Waining of Norwich is selected as quarterback. He has experience, is a good passer and end runner and a fine pass receiver. Give him Winant of Vermont to do the punting, aid in passing and skirting the ends, Guarnaccia and McLeod of Middlebury to slice and cut back off-tackle and to plunge the line, and a backfield would be created that could and would do everything. Winant of Vermont could do everything asked of him. He could punt, pass, run and tackle. He was the best exponent of the triple threat in the State. In Guarnaccia, Middlebury had one of the greatest running backs in any section. Give him a fast and heavy line and he would run as and as hard as his brother did for Harvard. McLeod played a consistent, hard-running game and deserves all-state honors for the work he did in the games he played against Norwich and Vermont.

Forward Pass Is Boomerang Play of Football This Year as in Other Years

Capt. Rattan Gives Impressions of Notre Dame-Army Game—Calls Forward Pass Boomerang Play Which Decided Game

By CAPT. W. V. RATTAN, Coach, University of Vermont Football Team

Again the boomerang play of football decided one of the greatest games of any year last Saturday at the Yankee Stadium in New York City when speedy Jack Elder of Notre Dame intercepted a forward pass from Cagle of the Army and raced 98 yards for the only score of the game and a national championship for his team.

Except for the winning play by Elder, the Army outplayed the Irishmen from South Bend but failed to capitalize upon their opportunity. Three times the Cadets stormed at the Notre Dame goal line but a rugged first-line defense against the Army passes turned back the Cadet offense that appeared to be centered too much along the line of power without deception to aid in making the plays go. Many teams have found during the last decade that it is no child's task to overpower the Rockne Ramblers.

It does appear that the Army might have added more deception to their offense when they were in a position to score, especially late in the contest when they had all to gain and nothing to lose. It is a football axiom that a team may as well be beaten 14-0 as 7-0, if by using chance plays they may either make a score to tie the game at seven all, or may give the other team an additional score to make the final tally 14-0.

The game was played on a biting cold day that no doubt slowed up the running of Elder, the Notre Dame speed boy, and caused Cagle to slip and slide on his cutback plays and probably to overshoot with two forward passes when the Army receivers were in the clear. Both lines played a great game. The Army ends were consistent in their plays all during the contest. Cagle made two runs, once returning a punt for 45 yards and almost getting loose to score. Cannon, the giant Notre Dame guard, gave the greatest exhibition of line playing seen in the East this year. Murrell, the Army fullback, was a great line plunger and Caderia, the Notre Dame quarterback, ran his team in a manner that would have brought praise from the most exacting critic.

The cold wind failed to freeze the pep and spirit of the capacity crowd of 87,000 persons who jammed the stadium to witness the gridiron masterpiece and the three-score or more football coaches from all sections of the country who witnessed the game will return to their respective school still facing the impossible problem of preventing a defensive team from taking a pass out of the air and aided by interference and speed sending the interceptor away for a long run.

Truly the forward pass has in the season of 1929 proved the boomerang play of football as it has in all past seasons since the play was introduced into our popular autumn sport.—Burlington Daily News.

THE MUSE CONVERSES

"How to reform the college," is a problem that is annoying many magazine editors. Special feature writers have found the small college and university fair prey for sensational human interest stories. Learned men have written weighty tomes on the demoralization, evils, vices, disinterest and other faults of the college students. The latest of these, E. C. Wilm, offers his solution in a current issue of the Nation. Briefly listed his remedies are:

1. Stiffen the entrance requirements, admitting only such students who are qualified in intelligence and purpose to profit from a thorough college training
2. Advance salaries of professors
3. Abolish intercollegiate athletics and foster additional intramural athletics.
4. Abolish fraternities.
5. Avoid duplication of courses.
6. Reduce free election to a minimum.
7. Abolish the traditional unit and marking system.
8. Abolish honorary degrees.

In commenting upon the article the Ohio State Lantern says:

"By taking these actions, we are led to believe that the college will be reformed to a perfect standard. The writer does have some good ideas but it is unlikely that many of the leading educators of the country would agree that he has a perfect solution for the problems the colleges of the country are supposed to be facing.

"Most sensible leaders in the educational field will agree that the problems of the college today are not as grave as they have been painted by these numerous magazine items. We are of the opinion that a majority of these stories do not present a true picture of the colleges. These articles do not have a great amount of affect on the average college student, but wrong impressions are often gained by those persons outside of the college circle."

Our neighbor, the C. C. N. Y. Campus says that Mr. Wilm's brief is simple and straightforward. It labels him a pocket edition of Sinclair Lewis because of his enthusiasm at banging away with the gusto of a true martyr towards social uplift.

The Campus among other things says:

"Showing no partiality, Mr. Wilm hits the general faculty square in the midriff with accusation of Rotarianism, drabness, slender intellectual background, pettiness and general pliability to an undesirable pattern. The text-books produced during the past decade he charges "with almost complete absence of real intellectual distinction or of any superiority of taste or style." He deplores the amount of time placed on studies as negligible. The colleges have been turned into vast Main Street producing Babbitts by the thousands. The lecture method and the elective system are cited as the most pregnant causes for this condition.

"In the very present, however, Mr. Wilm strikes a convincing note when he writes that a large 'student mass of inert mediocrity' is hindering the development of those good students who see beyond trivial and non-scholastic enjoyments. To be known as a scholar or a conscientious student is often a matter for reproach. It is this condition existing widely which should prompt immediate action in improving or eliminating the large portion of the student body. But its appearance is limited if we consider, for instance, conditions here in our own College. And the educational plans of the future are being designed to meet even such conditions."—N. Y. U. Daily News.

We hear so much these days concerning freedom in education, scholastic initiative and honors work, that one begins to wonder why we do not have more to show for our words. Is it too much to hope that some day there will arise a college which will be courageous enough to take a chance on its students? A college which will not be afraid to allow its students a little time to explore the realm of books, poetry, art, music, drama, and life. A college which will forever forsake the type of education which judges its success by the number of hours out of the twenty-four it keeps its students grinding. A college which realizes that this frantic rush of studies and activities is not producing educated men and women.

Some day, perhaps, one may be able to walk in the rain or watch a sunset without a guilty feeling that one "ought to be doing French."—Oberlin Review.

The co-eds of Maryland are becoming quite original in their treatment of life. When one of them was asked what part of her body she loved with, she immediately replied, "With all my heart." Over there, they say they like hockey, because it is a lot easier than an eighteen-day diet. Such is life.

ADD VOLUMINOUSLY TO LIBRARY OF VERMONT CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

Several new books have been added to the Vermont Christian Association library and students may secure these to read by dropping in any day upon Mr Powers, secretary of the Vermont Christian Association, in his office, in the V. C. A rooms in the Old Mill

Many students are not aware that the Association possesses a library Since there are many worthwhile books and magazines in the V. C. A. collection, it will be well for everyone to become acquainted with this library at once.

Among the new books and other publications which have recently been added to the library are the following:

"A Preface to Morals"..W. Lippmann
"All Quiet On the Western Front"
Erich Maria Remarque
"The Choice of a Life Work"
J. L. Murray
"Men, Women and God"..A. H Gray
"Sex and Youth".....Sherwood Eddy
"Facing Student Problems"
Bruce Curry
"Facing the Crisis"...Sherwood Eddy
"The Manhood of the Master"
Harry Emerson Fosdick
"Students and the Religion of Today"
B. Curry, R. Niebuhr, G. Kennedy
"Dollars and World Peace"
Kirby Page
"What is Industrial Democracy?"
Norman Thomas
"Military Training"...Winthrop Lane

No Charge

All books may be taken out for two weeks and there is no charge made for the use of the books The Association uses the library for no other purpose than to assist students to settle their own personal problems Of the above books, the Association recommends especially Remarque's, "All Quiet On the Western Front," and Sherwood Eddy's "Sex and Youth."

FACULTY MUSIC RECITAL SUNDAY PLEASES MANY

A large audience gathered Sunday afternoon at the Ira Allen chapel for the recital given by Miriam Natilee Marston, organist, and Charlotte de Volt, violinist, members of the music faculty of the University. "It was like a benediction fell the waves of sound," said one reviewer, "and troubled hearts and weary minds were lifted up, refreshed. Music majestic and modest, melodies, religious and romantic, and harmonies compelling and ethereal were interspersed in the hour of soul refreshing sound, and left the listener satisfied and exalted."

Miss Marston is an organist of sincere and earnest musicianship. She plays with imagination and vision, and draws upon the vast resources of a pipe organ to express her dreams There is something stirring and gripping in the full organ, and this Miss Marston displayed at times very effectively The "Priere a Notre Dame" from the Suite Gothique abounded in religious fervor. Both the Dubois numbers were particularly enjoyable The "Fiat Lux" was a beautiful sound picture of the journey from dimness to light. The "Marche des Trois Mages" was played with an especially beautiful combination under the high tone representing the Star which led In fact the whole final group on the organ evoked the Holy Christmas spirit.

Miss deVolt plays the violin with skill and a fine sensitiveness Her tone quality is most pleasing and the lovely legato of her solos made a magic thread of beauty. Her playing is smooth and at all times artistic Miss deVolt has much poise and graciousness of manner which add to the listener's delight From the plaintive appeal in the "Southern Melody" to the sweetness of "To a Wild Rose" and the triumph of "Adoration" is a wide range of interpretative feeling, but Miss deVolt compassed them all.

Throughout it was a performance of merit and beauty, and again one feels indebted to the music department of the University for a musical treat.

Organize Women's Indoor Program

The women's indoor gymnasium program is well under way now The sophomore class is spending one period a week learning marching tactics, ball games, and corrective exercises, and one period a week in learning basketball

The freshman classes spend two periods a week doing Danish exercises, and one period in aesthetic dancing.

Multi-colored pajamas were displayed in the annual night-shirt parade at the University of Kansas. The Chamber of Commerce treated the marchers to a big soiree and then two more houses opened a free door to the Kansas studes.

Alumni Weekly Features Comment of Press On University Graduates

Papers in many cities have for some time been featuring alumni of the University of Vermont in their news columns. Leon Dean, editor of the Alumni Weekly, has collected a dozen of these stories in the last few issues of his magazine, and of these the Cynic now reprints a few of those that have roused more than usual interest

President of N. Y. Life Insurance Co.

Of Darwin P. Kingsley, of the class of '81, we read:

People who think that Vermonters always dicker should know how Calvin Coolidge and Darwin P. Kingsley do business

A week from Wednesday, on the eighth of May to be exact, our ex president will be elected to the board of directors of New York Life Insurance Company. How much dickering preceded this transaction? Two notes and an interview between the ex president and a vice-president of the company. Trust the president of the New York Life to know how to do business with a fellow Vermonter'

Last year he wrote Mr. Coolidge a holograph note, casting his bread upon the waters, you might say The president's secretary acknowledged the receipt of the note, and there the matter rested until the twenty-third of February, when Mr. Coolidge himself replied to Mr. Kingsley, who was then spending a vacation in Arizona Mr. Kingsley got his vice-president on long distance and the ex-president and the vice-president closed the matter in one Vermontish little chat. Does anyone believe that a native of any other state, however estimable, could have dealt with Mr. Coolidge just like that?

Mr Kingsley has traveled a long way since his boyhood days on a farm in Alburg, when he worked his way through college "dreaming of a larger world." He was graduated from the University in 1881 and took his A M in '84. After his graduation, he went to a Wyoming ranch and at Christmas time in '81 he went to Denver, where he taught for a year. Then he went to Grand Junction, a frontier town in those days, where he soon bought a newspaper. He edited this paper himself until the first of January, 1887, when he went to the Capitol at Denver to serve two years as state auditor and superintendent of insurance.

Here he became interested in insurance, and decided to make it his life work

He went to Boston for the New York Life Insurance Company, and later (1892) came to New York, and became president of the company in 1907 In 1905, just before his election to the presidency, came the dark days for insurance, and it took the right kind of Vermonter to send the company on its upward way

The more you look at the company's new building (just completed), the more you appreciate the great things for which it stands. The building, like anything worth seeing in New York, has to be looked at more than once It presents a rare combination of beauty and power, and is worthy of the time and thought Mr. Kingsley devoted to its plans during the ten years preceding its erection

Mr. Kingsley is one of the fortunate men who not only achieve their ambitions, but enjoy them after they get them. But, as he says, almost any man would be satisfied with the presidency of the New York Life. He likes the new building even better than he expected, and can say the same of the presidency, which he has enjoyed for twenty-two years

Mr. Kingsley is the author of four volumes of addresses which have been published by New York Life—"The First Business Of The World," "Militant Life Insurance," "Let Us Have Peace," "Life Insurance Is Right" As the titles suggest, they deal largely with insurance, but they are by no means exclusively devoted to it

As president of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York Mr Kingsley was interested in everything pertaining to civic welfare. He had interested himself in politics since his days as a Colorado editor; as a golfer, he was and is interested in his pet game, and as a many-sided man, constantly growing, he was and is interested in almost everything worth while. So the addresses show a surprising variety of subjects

One of the best is on Ira Allen, the knightly youth "who founded a University and a State," delivered at the University when the statue given by Mr. James B. Wilbur was dedicated One of the most pleasing features of this address is the way Mr. Kingsley gives Ira Allen his due without snatching at any of his brother's laurels

The splendid memorial to John Purroy Mitchel, and the Minute on the Death of President Wilson, both adopted by the New York Chamber of Commerce, show that Mr. Kingsley can appreciate men with whom he doesn't agree. The jolly addresses, "Falstaff's Defense of Age" and "In Praise of Age," must have given much enjoyment to his fellow golfers The addresses, "The Japan Society," "Belgium" and "Shall We Pay the Innkeeper's Bill," show his interest in international affairs. "The Sin of the Church" shows him at home among churchmen while the tender little tribute, "My Mother" touches a responsive chord in every mother's heart and in the heart of every mother's son

In the preface to his last volume he says that he finds himself more happily situated than at thirty, and finds life even more interesting now than he did then. All who reach seventy have at least had a chance, he says Who will say that he hasn't pushed his chance?

Mr. Kingsley spends part of every August in Manchester and always attends Commencement at the University, unless he is out of the country He has been a trustee of the University for thirty-two years longer than any one now in service except Mr Roberts He received an LL.D from the University in 1904 and an L.H.D in 1916

Although the New York Life has been taken by Vermonters (there are five or six Vermont alumni beside the president and one son now at the home office) New Yorkers don't take the matter to heart. In fact, the Lotus Club gave Mr Kingsley a dinner last January. When you've been given a Lotus Club dinner, Little Old New York is yours

Mr. Kingsley is a life member of the Museum of Natural History and belongs to the New England and the Vermont societies, and to a dozen metropolitan clubs His diversity of interests keeps him young. Except for "Who's Who" and his own addresses, you'd never suspect his age His mother lived to ninety-two, and there seems to be every likelihood of his bettering the family record

A Reparation Expert

Featuring George P. Auld, '02

George Percival Auld thinks we have every reason to look for the success of the Reparations Conference On this conference our members face the unenviable task of getting the conflicting ideas of France and Germany into agreement. Naturally, France wants to be reimbursed as much as possible for her losses, while Germany is doing all she can to keep reparations at the lowest possible figure. The prestige of our members, who enjoy the confidence of Europe, gives great hope of their success. Mr. Owen D Young and Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan are especially well qualified for their task

As accountant-general of Interallied Reparation Commission from 1920-24, Mr Auld is well acquainted with his subject. He also possesses the enviable gift of being able to impart his knowledge to others. His speeches and writings are in constant demand No one else can prove so clearly and convincingly that Germany can and should meet her obligations. Mr Auld is a native of Rutland and a graduate of the University, class of 1902 He took his B.A. cum laude, with Phi Beta Kappa, but didn't let the fact weigh on him too heavily The list of his clubs, societies and honors would fill half a column. The most notable are the Navy Cross for distinguished service and the French Cross of the Legion of Honor

Mr Auld served in the United States Navy as an officer of the Pay Corps for eighteen years following his graduation. As supply and accounting officer he saw service afloat and ashore, not only at home but in European and Asiatic stations. When he resigned from the navy, in 1920, he held the rank of commander

For the next four years he was accountant-general of the Interallied Reparation Commission at Paris. He assisted Owen D. Young, first agent general for reparation payments, to install the Dawes plan in Paris and Berlin According to the Dawes plan, Germany was to pay $600,000,000 a year. But the number of payments was not specified. The present conference is undertaking to fix the exact amount of money to be paid. There has been much propaganda as to Germany's inability to meet her obligations With pitiless logic Mr. Auld proves that she not only can but should. His address, "The Mythical Transfer Problem," has been published in pamphlet form by the National Foreign Trade Council

Mr. Auld's work has taken him so far afield that he never spent two successive summers in the same place Three years ago he and his wife went to Underhill, stopping at the Shannon Farm They've been to Underhill every summer since, and are planning to go again this year. So the cottage idea has begun to look like an "Eventually, Why Not Now?" proposition Since 1924 Mr Auld has been associated with Haskins & Sells, certified public accountants of New York. He is enthusiastic over the possibilities of his profession. More and more big corporations are making a practice of having their books certified by public accountants. Accountancy is a comparatively new profession, but it has grown with big business, and gives great promise for the future.

"Where Vermont Men Meet"

Winnowings From Grey Friars

A few weeks ago Remarque's famous book "All Quiet On The Western Front" was reviewed by a member of Grey Friars and read before the society. The following lines are taken from the more significant parts of the review:

"All Quiet On The Western Front"

The simplicity of style in which this book is written contributes in large part to the effectiveness of the book. For the book is great for more than just pictorial effect, it is a history of the World War as the common soldier saw it. Erich Maria Remarque, the author of the book, declares that the incidents in his book are the accounts of either his experiences or those of his comrades. It is significant to note that Remarque has cast the main character in the book enlisted in the German army at the age of eighteen, and that at the close of the war he found himself alone in the entire world his friends, family, comrades, all slain and dead. The story is real and is not glossed over by a super-sensitive patriotism and false flag-waving. It is war as war.

Over the whole world, wherever the book has made its appearance, the book has sold. Millions of copies have been printed in many languages. It has become an international possession. It was feared by some that the book could not be sold in some places because it was written by a German. But the book does not give offense to any race.

Remarque writes in the beginning of the book that: "This book is to be neither an accusation nor a confession, and least of all an adventure, for death is not an adventure to those who stand face to face with it. It will try simply to tell of a generation of men who, even though they may have escaped its shells, were destroyed by the war." But the book has exceeded all of Remarque's expectation. It stands today as the one book which gives an accurate picture of the World War. It is the one noteworthy book to come out of the war, and it is to the credit of this country that it is one of the best sellers here at the present time.

There is only one regrettable feature about the book as it appears in the American edition, and that is that a certain section has been omitted from the original by the American publishers. This uncalled-for censorship might be explained by the fact that the published is a Boston publisher. It is not right to make "All Quiet On The Western Front" a drawing-room pastime. War is not a drawing-room proposition.

There is not one wise man in twenty that will praise himself.—WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE.

OFFER $200 FOR ESSAY PRIZES ON GOVERNMENT

Political Science Department to Award Large Prizes For Thesis on Arbitration and Free Government

Two awards, of one hundred dollars each, will be made this year by the Political Science Department to students submitting the best essays in the Bennett and Benedict competitions.

Open to All

Competition for the Philo S. Bennett prize is open to all students at the University and the prize will be awarded as the result of an examination on an essay "dealing with the principles of free government." The prize was last awarded three years ago, when Marshall Mower won it in his senior year. This was the first time in thirteen years for a student to take the prize, Cora Fairhurst earning the award in 1918.

The Robert D. Benedict prize is open only to the senior class. As in the case of the Bennett prize the award will be made on the basis of an oral examination conducted on the essay submitted. The theme of the thesis is "International Arbitration." Prof. E. C. Mower, of the Political Science Department, has this year extended the scope of the essay. When the prize fund was first established, arbitration meant merely the mediation of a neutral third party in a dispute between nations. The essay this year, however, is expected to discuss also such factors as the World Court and the Council of the League of Nations, as well as any other methods for the peaceful settlement of disputes that suggest themselves.

Originally $15-$20 Prizes

Neither prize originally amounted to one hundred dollars. The Bennett prize is based on a trust fund of four hundred dollars, the income from which amounts to twenty dollars annually. The Benedict prize, likewise was at first much smaller, amounting to only fifteen dollars, the income from a fund of three hundred dollars. Because of the lack of competition, however, the income has been accumulating each year until, this year, the total available for prizes has reached the sum of two hundred dollars.

Both prizes were established by prominent alumni of the University. Of Mr. Bennett, especially, residents of Burlington still remember much. He was the son of a prominent member of the Vermont faculty and editor of the Burlington Free Press. Mr. Bennett himself was a prominent New York lawyer, especially noted as an expert in admiralty cases.

JUNIORS NOMINATE FOR JUNIOR WEEK POSITIONS

At a meeting of the 1931 nominating committee last Friday afternoon the following men have been placed in nomination for chairman of Junior Week, H. D. Butterfield, Burlington, and R. M. Huey, Saylesville, R. I.; for financial manager, H. R. Mattison, Bennington, R. E. Tobin, Fairhaven, Mass.; and R. W. Worrell, Providence, R. I. These names will be voted on Thursday afternoon in the Old Mill Chapel at 4 o'clock.

VARSITY, YEARLINGS AND JUNIOR VARSITY TEAMS OF DEBATERS ARE BUSY

Freshmen to Debate Before the Grange, and With '33 Women —Varsity Preparing to Meet Chinese Team from Harvard

To give the freshman debaters a little practice this year, and at the same time to further progress of the Burlington Grange Organization of Vermont, a new experiment is to be tried, which, if successful, may lead to its continuation and its practice in other nearby Granges. On Saturday night, December 14, at the meeting of the local Grange in the K. of P. hall in Burlington, three freshman debaters and Donald Frazier, who this year debated with the sophomores and the second varsity debating team, is staging a debate on the question, "Resolved: That woman's place is in the home," or as it is more technically and euphoniously worded, "Resolved: That the emergence of the woman from the home is a circumstance to be regretted." Donald Frazier, '32 and Edward Bigelow, '33 will take the affirmative, while Reardon Donaghey, '33 and Russell Colburn, '33 will dispute their arguments. George R. Nelson, '31 of the varsity, will act as chairman, and his ready wit is expected to lighten the more serious aspect of the question.

The debaters and the chairman will be the guests of the Grange at a chicken supper. If all goes well, similar programs may be presented at other nearby Granges.

Freshmen-Women Debate

The freshman men-women debate on the same question as mentioned above for the Grange debate will take place in the Old Mill Chapel on the eve of the nineteenth. The women, Laura M. Johnson of Wallingford, Caroline B. Taft of Wallingford, and Sylvia C. Boyd of West Newton, Mass., with Marion A. Kiel of South Orange, N. J., as alternate, who were selected after two try-outs several weeks ago, will uphold the affirmative side of the proposition. The men, Edward Bigelow of Fair Haven, Reardon Donaghey of Northfield, and Russell L. Colburn of Burlington will uphold the negative; they have no alternate.

Professor Dean, Chairman

Prof. L. W. Dean of the English Department will preside as chairman. The first year men's team is the

HOLD PHI BETA KAPPA INITIATION THURSDAY

Formal initiation of the six new members of the local chapter of Phi Beta Kappa will be held Thursday evening at the Ethan Allen Club. Following the initiation there will be a banquet in their honor. The gathering will have the pleasure of listening to President Paul D. Moody of Middlebury College, who is to be the speaker of the evening. His subject, though it has not yet been announced, is sure to be of supreme interest to those desiring to attain new ideas on higher education, and everyone is invited to attend President Moody's address, which will begin at a quarter of eight, immediately after the banquet. This meeting will observe the one hundred and fifty-third national anniversary of the founding of the scholastic fraternity. Members of Sigma Xi, honor society, will be present at the banquet as guests. Professor J. E. Colburn will be the presiding officer, and accommodations have been made for approximately fifty-five people altogether.

APPOINT 1930 KAKE WALK COMMITTEES

F. Stanley Smith, '31, and Rodney J. Maynes, '31, to Automatically Become Directors Next Year

MOST APPOINTED MEN ARE PROMINENT ON HILL

Directors of the 1930 Kake Walk activities, Rollin G. Hawley and James C. Puffer, have appointed their committees for the festival. F. Stanley Smith, '31 of Adams, Mass. and Rodney J. Maynes, '31 of Woodstock, are the two members of the junior class selected to assist the directors. They will automatically become directors next year. Smith is a member of the Sigma Phi Fraternity, is an assistant manager of baseball, a member of Key and Serpent, and an assistant business manager of the CYNIC. Maynes is a member of Sigma Nu, was on the varsity football squad and is interested in winter sports.

TALKS AND READING OF PAPERS FEATURE GREY FRIARS' SUNDAY MEETING

Nelson and Lisman Speak, While Parker, Stewart and Carter Read Manuscripts at Well-attended Meeting

Grey Friars met Sunday evening at the suite of the president in Converse Hall.

George R. Nelson gave a special talk on advertising, presenting its good and bad points and its trends, and let the society draw its own conclusions. Both sets by arguments were especially strong and clear, as well as decidedly humorous.

Louis Lisman also presented a discussion on the "Expressionism," showing that while it has been extensively used, its meaning is not understood. "It is a process of obscuring reality. It is extensively used in Germany and France and has even invaded America in Carl Sandburg's poetry and in art, architecture, music and literature."

Wilmond Parker read a piece of blank-verse on a moonlight landscape.

Robert Stewart made a lengthy discussion of the qualities of the educated college student. In answer to the question "Are college students educated?" he affirmed, "in the light of present-day facts the college graduate is not educated."

Joseph Carter presented a humorous, yet scathingly sarcastic criticism of several prominent campus events, activities and institutions.

The following girls were in charge of the Practice House last week: Helen Allbee, '30, hostess; Rosena Allen, '30, assistant hostess; Agnes Shaw, '31, household manager; Edith Pritchard, '31, cook; Helen LeBaron, '32, waitress and Isabel Torrens, '33, freshman member.

DECEMBER 15 IS DATE OF CHRISTMAS CONCERT

On Sunday afternoon, December 15 at four o'clock the annual Christmas Concert by the University Choir will be presented in the Ira Allen Chapel under the direction of Professor H. G. Bennett. The choir will be assisted by Miss Charlotte deVolt, concert master, and Miss Miriam Nattlee Marston, organist. The Rev. Dr. Isaac Chipman Smart will read from the scriptures.

The choir will present most of the first part of Handel's "Messiah," the part which celebrates the nativity of Christ. The soloists will be Hazel Ladd, Dorothy Fowler, Matilla Putnam, Marion Baldwin, R. H. Allbee, and H. E. Goddard. The public is cordially invited.

LONG DELAYED STUDENT SENATE ELECTIONS ARE SURPRISE PARTY TO ALL

Purposely Held Without Advance Notice—Boulder Sponsors Elections Held Last Friday

Elections to Student Senate, long postponed, took place last Friday in the Old Mill under the direction of Boulder Society. The election was a complete surprise to most of the college men. It was purposely meant to be so in an effort to thwart any fraternity combine operation. In this respect, it was believed to be successful.

Nominations were made by a committee composed of the president of Student Senate and the president of each of the three upper classes. The president of each of the four classes is automatically a member of Student Senate, and their names are not voted upon.

The Members

The senior class members are R. P. Billings, New Haven, Conn.; W. H. Burr, Barre; L. O. Clayton, Bennington; T. J. Halligan, Montpelier; R. A. Lawrence, West Lebanon, N. H.; H. M. Macomber (president), Burlington; J. C. Puffer, St. Johnsbury; and A. G. Sirois, Andover, Mass.. Junior class members are H. W. Adams, Rutland; G. R. Brush (president), Arlington; F. A. McBride, New York City; R. J. Maynes, Woodstock, W. M. Sargent, Morrisville; R. E. Tobin, Fairhaven, Mass.; and C. W. Walker, Belmont, Mass. Representatives from the sophomore class are P. F. Armstrong (president), North Attleboro, Mass.; P. E. Westin, Proctor; G. E. Wilder, Petersham, Mass.; and E. M. Winant, Bronx, N. Y. The president of the freshman class, B. D. Brink, Huntington, N. Y., is its only representative.

FIVE WOMEN PLACED UPON CYNIC BOARD

Gladys Press, Mildred Gile, Helen LeBaron, Margaret Mower and Rosetta Harlowe Gain the Coveted Honor

NEW ELECTIONS RESULT OF CAREFUL GRADING

At a meeting of the women's board of the CYNIC, held at Redstone, Monday afternoon, December 9, five new members were formally initiated into the coveted board membership. They were Gladys Press, '31 of St. Albans; Mildred Gile, '32, of Burlington; Helen LeBaron, '32, of Morrisville; Margaret Mower, '32, of Burlington; and Rosetta Harlowe, '32, of Randolph.

These women were chosen after a six weeks' work-out as scrubs, and were selected from fifty-two others because of their faithfulness and promptness in turning in assignments and for the quality of their work. The try-outs were held on a numerical basis as the only truly fair method, each scrub being given about three organizations to cover completely for a two week period. All news stories were carefully read by the women's editor, and each one received a numerical grade as it came into the of

TO PRESENT "DEAR BRUTUS" THURSDAY

Vouchers Now on Sale—Difficult Character Interpretations to Tax the Ability of Even More Veteran Actors

PROFESSOR METCALF IS ABLE DIRECTOR OF PLAY

Thursday night of this week marks one of the big nights of the college year, for on that night the University players will present an unusual production, "Dear Brutus," by Sir James Barrie. For over a month the eleven members of the cast and Professor J. T. Metcalf, their able director, have been striving to make this play an extraordinary production, and it is certain now the time between the rising of the curtain at 8 p.m. in the Strong Theatre and the last words of Act Three will show that their efforts have been crowned with success.

Vouchers are now on sale and may be procured from the University Store or Wood's. They are priced at one dollar and a half and one dollar, the better seats in the orchestra and the first row in the balcony selling for the former price. The vouchers will be exchanged for tickets at any time on Thursday afternoon at the Strong Theatre.

Hard Task for Characters

Barrie writes with so much meaning in his plays that it requires all the resourcefulness of the members of the cast and their director to present the character delineations as Barrie intended. The charm of the play, to many lovers of the works of the author, lies in the fact that there are so many original interpretations possible. Thursday night the college will know more about the talent of its actors.

The play itself is really a poem. It is a story of illusion and disillusion. Lob, an original character, gathers a number of people, different in their outward characteristics, at his house on Midsummer Eve. Each one of the crowd feels, like many of us all, that if he had but chosen differently at

PRESENT TEN BLANKETS AT THE FOOTBALL HOP

Dance Begins After Nine Due to Basketball Game—Big Crowd in Attendance to Witness Presentation

Ten football blankets were awarded last Saturday night by the Key and Serpent Society to those seniors who had made their letters in football. This presentation was the feature of the annual Sophomore Football Hop held in the Burlington High School gym under the chairmanship of Jack E. Willis. Capt. W. V. Rattan, Capt. and Mrs. K. L. Berry were the chaperones; and the music was furnished by "Joe" Lechnyr and his Vermonters.

The dance was scheduled to begin at nine o'clock but the crowd didn't start to come in until after the basketball game. Once couples began to arrive, however, the hall filled rapidly and by ten o'clock the gym was full of dancing couples. Peppy music, a happy crowd, and a good floor all combined to make this Football Hop one of the best dances of the season.

Green and gold balloons, strung across the gym over the heads of the dancers, added color to the affair. The rest of the decorations consisted of large Vermont banners, hung around the hall, and two large V's in green and gold crepe paper at the front of the gym. These colors combined with the bright dresses of the coeds and dark suits of their escorts, made the scene one of the rapidly shifting hues.

Presentation of Blankets

At intermission, the usual exodus was lacking for all of the dancers stayed in to see the big event, the presentation of the blankets. Captain Rattan did the honors and made appropriate remarks as he gave a green and gold blanket to each of the foot-

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

Dear Doctor Converse

For some weeks I have been troubled with a severe cough. I do not want to be a nuisance to my doctor so I have come to you for advice. Will be glad to hear from you soon.

Very truly yours,
Cora Lemon

My Dear Miss Lemon:

Your coming physician must have a warm feeling toward you. However I suppose that is not an added duty of your physician's. Apparent Measles. Quit it.

Ex-Converse, M.D.

Dear Doctor Converse

I should like my system to run down very much. I would like to put on weight, but this would be doubtful for me. I am a complete wreck during a long Vacation. I have no time for this.

However next Monday is my birthday and I guess I shall take a few days off. What would you advise?

Very truly, yours,
Very Peeved

My Dear Miss Peeved:

Why of course take a few days off for such a worthy cause. Birthday. Must get to sleep early. Two or three years.

Ex-Converse, M.D.

Dear Doctor Converse

Ever since my last date I have not been feeling well. Please advise me.

Pitifully yours,
Brave Orsey

My Dear Mr. Orsey:

If you will enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope and give me full particulars about your case I shall be able to advise you more correctly.

Ex-Converse, M.D.

Dear Doctor Converse

What causes my heart to go pitter patter whenever a girl passes?

Wonderingly,
S'Nalbans

My Dear Mr. S'Nalbans

The girl.

Ex-Converse, M.D.

Dear Doctor Converse

What causes headaches?

Inquisitively,

Five Women Placed Upon Cynic Board

At the end of each two-week period those scrubs who had been doing careless slipshod work were dropped from the list, and so the competition grew keener and keener among the survivors.

Carefully Graded

At the end of the entire try-out period the women's editor went over the grades of all of the assignments of the scrubs under consideration, and selected the names of those having a high B or an A grade, regardless of how many there might prove to be or of what class they were in college. Then she presented that list to her board where it was thoroughly discussed and elections took place. Many women did excellent work but it was not quite good enough to make the grade with such an unusually large number of scrubs.

JEANETTE BEECHER IN DRAMATIC CLUB TALK

Stresses Need of Courage to Win Stage Fame in Speech Before Masque and Sandal—Reports Read

"Courage is needed—a lot of it, for work on the stage," said Jeanette Beecher, ex-'30, speaker at the Masque and Sandal meeting held Thursday afternoon, at the Kappa Alpha Theta House, "and personal appearance, of course, and money, and pull," she added. Miss Beecher discussed dramatic schools as a whole, and the subjects one is required to take in preparation for dramatic work.

Courses are given in voice, make-up, diction, dancing and fencing; there are courses teaching one how to walk and sit—in fact there are courses upon courses, and then after all, it comes most down to whether one really likes the work well enough to struggle and starve until one gets there, and one may never get there unless one gets a break.

With a few notable exceptions, the people I have met through my work have not been particularly worth the meeting, the speaker continued. "I think that after all, that kind of work is at its best in college." There are thousands of actors and actresses out of work today, and the available positions are few and far between. The thing seems to be not how well you can act, but whether you can sell your personality to the man who is putting on the play. And all too often comes the quick reply, "You are not the type." This typecasting is one of the greatest evils of the present stage. And the answer will be, "better educated managers."

The property manager for the coming fall play, Elizabeth Coply, '31, reported on her work at the regular business meeting preceding the talk. Estabel Perelman, '30 was chairman pro tem of the meeting in the absence of Mabel Freeman, '30, president, who is attending the National Convention for College Dramatics at New Jersey State Women's College.

To Present "Dear Brutus" Thursday

some point in his career, his position in life would be a better one.

In the second act they are shown as they would have been if they had chosen another course. All of these courses but one are poorer than their original ones. This act, the humor act of the play, if poorly presented, ruins the play, for it is a sort of burlesque exaggeration of the principal characteristics of each person in his new rôle.

In the concluding act the characters are made to realize how little they have made of their respective chances. This is an act of disillusion, just as the first was one of illusion. These words, quoted from "Caesar," give the theme of the play better than any prose can.

"The fault, dear Brutus, is not in our stars, but in ourselves, that we are underlings."

The Cast

The characters, most of whom are familiar to University playgoers, are as follows, in the order of their appearance:

Alice Dearth	Kay Rauh
Joanna Trout	Annette Rosenberg
Mrs. Coade	Doris Kibbe
Mabel Purdie	Margaret Martin
Lady Caroline Laney	Beverly Householder
Matey	Robert Aiken
Lob	Robert Jenks
Purdie	Harvey Butterfield

Vermonters will this year again have the opportunity of hearing an unusual debate. Some time after mid-winter, no exact date has as yet been set, the Chinese Debating Society's team from Harvard, will appear here in a debate with the Vermont varsity on the question, Resolved, That the Chinese philosophy of life is more conducive to happiness than the American. The debate will be a modern style affair and a very interesting discussion will no doubt take place.

Vermont Represented at Oxford, Ohio

Franklin A. Sears, '30, manager of debate and senior member of the strong Vermont debating team arrived in town yesterday from Miami University of Oxford, Ohio. He went out to Ohio on the fourth, in the interest of Middlebury's representative, V. Kline, to attend the national convention of Tau Kappa Alpha, national debating society. He stated that debate conditions in the West are only a little different than those here. This is the first time in some years, that the Vermont team has had a representative at the convention.

International Club Hears About China

between China and Russia over the Chinese Eastern Railway. By the terms of the treaty of 1896, a Russo-Chinese bank was to be chartered for the express purpose of dealing with matters relating to the railroad. In this treaty also was a provision that eighty years after the beginning of operation, the railroad would revert to China without cost. Moreover, at the end of 36 years, China could buy the railroad if she wished. The railroad began operation in 1903, and since then has been financed, constructed, and controlled most of the time by Russia. Most of the money was borrowed from France and the Russo-Chinese was the medium through which the finances were carried on. Russia took over this bank in 1918 along with her other nationalization projects.

In 1924 a treaty was drawn up between Russia and China dealing with this problem of the railroad. A board of ten members was provided for, five to be Russian, and five to be Chinese. The chairman was to be a Chinese. There was also provided for a general manager of the road who should be a Russian. There were propaganda provisions in this treaty in which each agreed not to carry on propaganda in the other's territory. The quorum was to be seven, but since the Russian members stayed away from the meetings, the road was entirely under the management of the general manager.

On May 27, 1929, the Chinese raided the offices of the Russian consulate at Harbin, where a meeting of the Third Internationale was being held. There, documents were found which the Chinese claim show proof that the Russians had been carrying on extensive propaganda through the offices of this road. Therefore she proceeded to oust all officials. Russia sent a three day ultimatum to which China replied that Russia had broken the provisions of the 1924 treaty. Russia asserted the note of China to be unsatisfactory and broke off relations with her.

Since then press reports have carried stories of border raids contested by both China and Russia, and several attempts toward peace negotiations have broken down. It is impossible to prophecy the outcome of these events.

Interclass Hoop Tourney Begins Tomorrow Evening

Seniors and Juniors Clash in First Game of Series—Tournament to Be Completed this Week

OLD CUSTOM REVIVED BY DIRECTOR A. T. POST

A. T. Post, recently elected director of intramural athletics at Vermont, has planned an interclass basketball tournament to begin tomorrow evening. Although this has been done in many colleges, the idea is an innovation at Vermont.

It is certain that the series will be carried through successfuly just as the football was with the wholehearted cooperation of the student body.

The Seniors meet the Junior class tomorrow at 6.30 p.m. in the gym. Many good men have signified their intentions of reporting for the game which should prove very interesting.

The schedule is as follows:
Seniors versus Juniors, Wednesday, December 11, at 6.30 p.m.
Sophomores versus Freshmen, Friday, December 13, at 6.30 p.m.
Finals Saturday, December 14, at 2 p.m.

The practice hours follow:
Monday to 2.00 p.m., every day
Tuesday 4.00 p.m., Friday.
Wednesday to 12.30 a.m., Saturday.

ELIGIBILITY RULES

1. Members of varsity squad and those who have made varsity basketball letters at Vermont or any other college are ineligible.
2. Members of freshman first squad are ineligible
3. (a) All members of academic colleges are eligible.
(b) Those medical students who are candidates for bachelors' degrees in June, 1930, are eligible for the Senior team.

ATHLETIC COUNCIL OF UNIVERSITY APPOINTS BASKETBALL MANAGER

Nelson Gray, '30, has been appointed manager of the varsity basketball team by the Athletic Council in place of Warren Burr, resigned. The freshman team is being run by the varsity assistant managers, although Manager Gray made out the freshman schedule and is still manager in fact. The assistants work in rotation, each taking care of the freshman for a week. Gray is a member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

GLEE CLUB REHEARSING FOR ANNUAL CONTEST

More than thirty singers are regularly rehearsing for the Intercollegiate Glee Club Contest to be held at Springfield, Mass., in February. Rehearsals will be held every Wednesday and Thursday evening at seven o'clock from now until the Christmas holidays.

This year the Prize Song has been selected to be "Hark, Jolly Shepherds," a sixteenth century madrigal by Morley. This selection is much longer and more difficult than the song used last year. Vermont's choice song will be an eighteenth century "glee" by Arne, "To All You Ladies Now On Land." The club will sing for its collection a new arrangement of "Lullaby" by Professor H. G. Bennett.

Drake University Wants Fifteen Million

University has just started a drive for $1,000,000, the first part of a proposed $15,000,000 fund to be raised in a period of fifteen years. Millions and among Drake's needs will be used for the enlargement of the campus, erection of new buildings and the maintenance of a million permanent endowment fund.

MISS BLANCHARD HOLDS A TALK ON BASKETBALL

Is First Lecture of Series on Teaching That Sport—Mainly for Juniors and Seniors—Fouls and Floor Space Discussed

Miss Alice Blanchard of the Physical Education Department conducted the first of a series of lectures on methods of teaching basketball on Friday afternoon, December 6 at 4.00 p.m in 23 South College. The course, which is mainly for junior and senior girls who expect to coach basketball in their future high school work, will consist of a study of rules, equipment, differences between girls and boys, rules officiating, refereeing, and coaching.

Miss Blanchard suggested as a guide, the following bibliography: Spaulding's "Official Basketball Guide," for whatever year is being coached, "Basketball for Women" by Alice Freimer, "Basketball for Women" by Anderson, and Frost and Wardlaw's "Basketball and Indoor Baseball for Women."

In the first lecture on Friday some time was spent on the discussion of equipment. The maximum floor space should be 100 ft. x 50 ft. In a high school, the floor space should be 75 ft. x 35 ft. to be divided into three courts, and for a two-court floor 60 ft. x 35 ft. All of the lines should be two inches wide and there should be twelve inches between the double lines which is neutral territory. The back board must be six by four feet, and should be made of glass or wood or anything which won't give when the ball hits it. The basket should be placed on the board so there will be three feet above it, three feet on either side of it, and one foot below it. The baskets should hang ten feet above the floor. Balls should be from thirty to thirty-two inches in circumference and should weigh twenty to twenty-three ounces; care being taken to keep them away from radiators, so that they won't change their shape.

In the first class there was given a list of fouls, both technical and personal, with penalties for each and also a list of violations.

It was announced that classes will be held every Friday at 4.00 p.m. in 23 South College.

Opportunities for coaching and refereeing in the freshman and sophomore basketball practice during the gym periods will be given to the girls taking this course.

OUTING CLUB DESIRES ATHLETIC DEPARTMENT ASSISTANCE IN PLANS

A meeting of the executive council of the Vermont Outing Club was held Wednesday morning in the Billings Library to discuss plans for the winter activities of the club.

President Bragg suggested that winter sports at Vermont would be upon a firmer footing were the Athletic Department to take over many of the activities which the Outing Club has hitherto supervised. It is believed that under the Athletic Department winter sports might receive an impetus in this University, there would be greater interest in it, and better coaching apportunities for those actively engaged in it. An investigation will be made into the matter at once.

The Interfraternity Winter Sports Meet will probably be the first winter sports event to be run off this year. Like last year, the varsity winter sports aggregation will engage in out-of-town competitions, it is now believed.

Winter sports is recognized as a minor sport at Vermont and letters are awarded. Last year, physical training credit was given to those who were active in winter sports activities. The varsity winter sports outfit took several trips last year, one of them to Dartmouth and another earlier in the season to Lake Placid. Buxton and Thoms of last year's varsity team are not in college this year, but several good men remain.

CAT'S MEOW

—SPORTING EDITOR—

The varsity basketball team looked pretty fair in spots against Montreal A. A. A., Saturday. If a little more passing was done much more would be accomplished.

Foul shooting was one of the weakest points. Bernstein scored the only free try out of the nine which the team had. Montreal got six out of seventeen, which is also poor.

Captain Godsell showed poor sportsmanship by making an attempt to score on a technical foul shot immediately after Captain Halligan threw the sphere at the backboard with intentions of wasting the shot on a similar technical.

Dartmouth tomorrow is one of the big games of the season. Vermont has a job on hand to take the Indians into camp so early in the season.

Interclass basketball tournament starts tomorrow with the two upper classes playing.

Basketball at Norwich received a severe blow when Clifton Teachout, regular right guard was ordered by Coach Graham to abandon the game temporarily in order to devote more time to his academic work. Harold Lipsey, forward, has also quit the sport due to the necessity of an operation.

"Bump" Levine was named utility linesman by "Jimmy" Dincolo, outstanding player and acting captain of the B. U. football team in his selection of an all-opponent team.

"Albie" Booth, after a strenuous season on the gridiron, has reported to the Yale basketball squad. "Albie" captained the frosh team last year and was a sensation. However, the Eli have a veteran quintet and it is doubtful whether he can can beat out one of the seasoned men.

STATION WCAX SENDS OUT A VARIED PROGRAM

University Possesses Only Broadcasting Station in State—Last Program One of Series

Station WCAX, University of Vermont radio station, broadcast the following program Friday, December 6.

7.40 p.m., talk, "4-H Leaders and Leadership" by E. L. Ingalls, State Club Leader, Extension Service.

7.50 p.m., talk, "Christmas Suggestions," Mrs. Charlotte P. Brooks, Home Demonstration Agent, Extension Service.

8.00 p.m., violin recital, Miss Charlotte deVolt, instructor in violin, accompanied by Professor H. G. Bennett, head of the department of music.

One of a Series

This program was one of the series to be broadcast during the coming months over WCAX. The list of programs to be broadcast by WCAX includes numbers by various musical organizations about the University, features by the Extension Service and other items of interest to the people of Vermont.

WCAX is the only active broadcasting station in the state, and it is hoped that the people of Vermont will appreciate and acknowledge its programs.

The Conn. Aggie football squad usually spend their Monday afternoons playing bridge. No doubt the "dummy" reverts his talk to football.

CATS AND BIG GREEN TO CLASH AT HANOVER

Line-up Which Started Against Montreal Will Open First Road Game

Traveling to Hanover tomorrow morning the varsity basketball team will be on its way to tackle what should be one of the best basketball teams in the East this year—Dartmouth the home of Tully and the land of the Big Green Indians.

Practically a veteran team is left at the New Hampshire school. At least there are enough substitutes who made letters last year to fill in the cracks this year. Speaking of cracks Dartmouth will have to watch "Tim" Halligan, Green and Gold captain and crack forward who gave such a spectacular exhibition of aggressiveness, accuracy, defense, and passing against Montreal.

Tupper will cast his even—we mean eagle—eye at the basket from the left side. Tobin will be at center until Sargent's ankle straightens out. "Dink" Bernstein and "Phil" Manning will guard the Vermont hoops.

VARSITY AND FRESHMAN CROSS-COUNTRY AWARDS

Cross-country letters and numerals were awarded to varsity and freshman harriers, respectively, by the Athletic Council of the University, as follows:

Varsity: Captain Wilder, Varney, Leach, Bachl.

Freshman: Captain Colburn, Hadley, Sanborn, Brooks.

Present Ten Blankets at the Football Hop ball veterans. Those who were given blankets were: "Tony" Gardner, "Ed" Thorne, "Al" Sirois, "Burny" Burstein, "Charley" DeRose, "Johnny" Carrigan, "Tim" Halligan, "Charley" Mace, and Manager Macomber. Last but not least was Capt. "Bump" Levine, who Captain Rattan said, should have received four blankets, one for each of the four years that he had been out on the field fighting for Vermont.

After the awards, the dance was resumed amid a shower of balloons, and for a few minutes there was a continual popping of bursting balloons.

The committees responsible for the success of the dance were: Jack E. Willis, general chairman. Music committee, Stewart Manning, chairman, Joanna Tewksbury. Decorating committee, Edward Meehan, chairman, Christine Bliss, Carolyn Beggs, Alice Brooks, Lillian Mount, W. A. Mace. Refreshment committee, Raymond A. Philbin, chairman, R. W. Masten, Olive Fields, Cherolyn Barber, Vivian Hubbard.

CATS HAVE GOOD LEAD UNTIL FINAL MINUTES

LYN FOSTER

Opening the season with a green team, the University of Vermont defeated the Montreal A. A. A. basketball five in the local Gym last Saturday night by the score of 27 to 26. Despite the close count, the game was relatively slow and uninteresting. Captain Halligan and Manning were the only two veteran men to play through the entire game for Vermont, while Tupper, Mace, and Tilley all saw action in their first varsity game. Tupper was the outstanding shooting artist of the contest and was very dexterous in getting points with overhead shots. Captain Halligan, on the other hand, contented himself by dazzling the opponents with his bursts of speed and getting the ball in position to play for the basket. Captain Godsell and Carson were the most dangerous men on the offensive for Montreal and made the game interesting for the Vermont guards. Stegmaier was a stellar defensive player for the visitors.

Except for a few moments the game failed to arouse enthusiasm of the fans. Vermont got off to an early lead, which was lost only once after the score was tied, 9 to 9, in the first half. On Manning's foul Godsell added a point that put the Canadians ahead for the last time during the contest. At the half the score was Vermont 15, Montreal 10. In the last frame Montreal worked much better and had the edge over Vermont. Captain Godsell and Carson, who had been having difficulty in locating the basket, now caged three field goals apiece besides a foul shot by the former. In this half of the game the visitors outpointed the Catamounts 16 to 12, but fell short by one point of overcoming the lead made in the first half.

First Half

The game began rather dully until Tupper started the scoring on a rebound shot. Shortly after this Captain Godsell tallied for Montreal on a foul shot. The visitors then took the lead temporarily when Kyle slipped in their first field goal. Bernstein, who started the game as a guard, put Vermont ahead with a clean foul shot. Tupper followed by tossing in a twin counter over his head. Play was slow and interrupted. Captain Godsell was the next to get a field goal for Montreal on a long side shot. Captain Halligan then cut in and dropped in a counter from under the basket. On Tupper's foul Captain Godsell added one more point and as Vermont called time out the score was 8 to 6 in favor of the Green and Gold. Each side then got a point from the charity line and Kyle tied the score with a side shot. At this time Bernstein was yanked for no good reason at all. He had been playing an excellent game in all departments. His defensive work was especially outstanding when he took the ball out of the hands of opponents and off the backboard. He looked better at guard than he did all last year at forward, and that's a great deal. He

MUSICAL QUARTET PRESENTS PROGRAM

Liebeslieder Ensemble Scores Triumphs—Dale and Althouse Outstanding in Second University Program of Season

CAPACITY AUDIENCE IN AN APPRECIATIVE MOOD

Althouse and Dale Take First Honors

There was no question but that Paul Althouse and Esther Dale took first honors as vocalists. Althouse has a sympathetic voice of great power, yet with an interpretation which makes his singing a delight.

Esther Dale sang delightfully a group of songs. Particular mention must be made of her singing of Erlkonig. She gave it a sympathetic treatment which lifted it far above its average power to arouse emotion.

Jerome Swinford in his rich baritone voice sang "Bois Epais," and "quand la flamme de l'Amour," from "La Jolie Fille de Perth" by Bezet. In response to the audience's demand he gave as his encore, "No Candle, No Fire Was There."

Sanford Schimessel, the accompanist, deserves praise for his playing that night. His understanding and sympathetic work on the piano ranks as an outstanding accompanist.

Liebeslieder Waltzes Climax Program

The singing of the "Liebeslieder, Opus 52" was the extremely delightful climax of the program. These "Love Song Waltzes" of Johannes Brahms offered a chance to the distinguished personnel to show their quality as artists.

Of all the works of Johannes Brahms the "Love Song Waltzes" was the first of his compositions to establish his popularity outside his own country.

Brahms Has Homeric Simplicity

The musical compositions of Johannes Brahms convey the sense of satisfying poise, self-control and sanity. Others excel him in particular qualities. Grieg is more delicate and intimate, Dvorak warmer and clearer in color, Saint Saens is more meteoric, Frank more recondite and subtle, and Tschaikowsky more empassioned; but Brahms alone his Homeric simplicity, the primeval health of the well-balanced man.

was easily the fastest man on the floor and his presence probably would have made a big difference when Montreal crept up in the final minutes of the contest. Mace played in his position for the rest of the game and gave a steady exhibition.

Montreal again took the lead on Carson's foul shot, but Tupper followed with an overhead shot on a pass from Manning. Before the half ended Tupper sank two more baskets from difficult positions, bringing his total of field goals for this period up to five. Score, Vermont 15, Montreal A. A. A. 10.

Second Half

Tobin started the second half of the game by pushing in two baskets in succession. Then on a play from Manning to Halligan to Tupper the latter added two more points with his special tricky overhead shot. Godsell caged a field goal for Montreal and then Halligan slipped in a twin-counter on a well-timed pass from Mace. On Tobin's foul one more point was made for the visitors leaving the score 23 to 13 for the Cats. The Canadians then started a rally that pepped up the game considerably. In rapid succession Carson shot two baskets and Kyle one. For several minutes Montreal had the ball most of the time until finally Halligan slipped through to tally again for Vermont. Shortly afterward, Manning broke up a play and on passes to Tupper to Halligan the Catamounts got their last points. At this time Tobin was hurt and Tilley replaced him at center. The score was then Vermont 27, Montreal 19. Captain Godsell added a point from the foul line, and Carson followed with a field goal. By fast play Godsell got two more twin-counters, the ball dropping through the basket for the second as the game ended.

LAYERS PRESENT PLEASING COMEDY

ramatic Societies Stage Barrie's "Dear Brutus" Before Appreciative Audience

LEVEN PARTICIPATE IN SEASONAL PRODUCTION

Well cast, well acted, well costumed is a concise summary of the st performance of the University dra- ub which last night, at the ng Theatre, presented Sir John rrie's well-known play "Dear Bru- . The performance ran smoothly m beginning to end, holding fast interest and attention of a large appreciative audience. The per- mance was deserving of great ise in every respect. The entire mpany maintained a commendable tandard of acting; and throughout ccessfully interpreted the mood of play which was one subtly com- ing the plausible and the fantastic. The performance throughout won admiration of the audience. The ors never for a moment lost the ds of their rôles and were ex- mely happy in bringing out the ap- ling humor in the play.

Difficult to Present

This play is by no means an easy ask but the presentation of last ht approved the courage of the ors in undertaking it. The story a combination of fact and fancy, wing into its mesh moments of tragedy and of delicate humor, d in the process of unravelment in- ducing a scene of subtle transition m the fantastic to the real that ght test the skill of any actor to mplish with ease and conviction. The story centers about a group of ple gathered together at the home an eccentric character, Lob, who s invited them because they have, known to themselves, something in mmon. They are impressed by the es he has laid upon their visiting during Midsummer's Week, for re is a legend that on Midsum- r's Eve a magic forest appears in neighborhood of Lob's house. ANOTHER PROMINENT ALUMNUS PASSES AWAY

Vermont suffered another reduction in its list of prominent alumni when Henry Whalen Hill, late of Buffalo, N. Y., passed away. Mr. Hill was very prominent as a senator in the New York State Senate, and was also a well known attorney in and around Buffalo, and a reliable authority on waterways, especially canals. Although not a well known author Mr. Hill has written an authoritative book on the history of Lake Champlain.

SOPHOMORES METE OUT DIRE PUNISHMENT UPON HEADS OF WICKED '33'S

"Ain't Misbehavin'" is Theme Song of Women's Judgment Day—Insolent, Conceited, Obstinate and High-Hat Reformed

Before an august and awe-inspiring group of sophomores, a trembling crowd of fearful freshwomen gathered on Tuesday evening in the Medical building to await their annual rightful Judgment, in accordance with the ancient and honorable traditions of old U. V. M. The Crier announced with much pomp the opening of court, and the Right Honorable Judge was ushered in, followed by her black-robed jury.

The first complaint was lodged against one who has made herself obnoxious by her overwhelming conceit. At one time she was heard to remark, "Each year a certain men's fraternity choses one freshman to rush. This year I'm the freshman." This young lady was herewith commanded to approach the judgment stand in order that the upper classmen present might have the benefit of her magnetic personality for a few minutes. She was further commanded to talk for three minutes on the subject, "Who is the Most Conceited Girl at U. V. M. and Why Am I?" The three minutes were filled with repetitions, stammering, and general stupidity on the part of the victim, and at the end of her talk, if one might call it such, she was requested to sing "I'm the Sweetheart of ——————."

The next to be brought up was one lowly frosh who considers herself too exalted for such things as wearing hats and armbands. To lower her a bit, the judge commanded her to sit under the table indefinitely. She was also commanded to drag a tin can on a string after her to classes on Wednesday.

Ravings on "Marvelous Man"

Permission was given to one freshman to rave for three whole minutes on her "marvelous man," of whom Vermont has been hearing since the appearance of this particular frosh on our campus. Her fairy-like gestures, as she lost herself in the maze of her emotions on the subject, proved almost fatal to her safety, but her punishment was held within the ample bounds of the sophomores' mercy, and her only sentence was that she should wear her hair in braids down her back all day Wednesday.

A sweet and simple little baby girl was asked to talk baby talk for a few minutes and also to sing something in imitation of Helen Kane whom she has been said to resemble to a great degree. "Do, Do Something" was the song of her choice, and she favored her audience with a dance to accompany it. A poor sport, who has broken all rules, been insolent, and sarcastic to sophomores and generally shown herself ill-mannered, was asked to take down her golden curls, which she has usually worn clinging around her neck, in an extremely childlike and uncollegiate manner. She was commanded to appear on Wednesday with these same curls in white rags, showing the exact technique of their development.

A high-hat little frosh who, it appears, has had the misfortune, and the ill-breeding to take the rules of her superiors altogether too lightly, had the distinct honor of shining the shoes of the entire committee. It is hoped that this particular victim appreciated the favor bestowed upon her, and will continue her way a little more observant of the rights of the upperclassmen.

Next to be called forth was an innocent, and would-be superior fresh-

MYRICK SPEAKS AT PHILOSOPHERS' CLUB

To Address John Dewey Club on Elements of Determinism in Literary Schools

HIVVOLITE TIAME TO BE SUBJECT OF ADDRESS

"Hivvolite Tiame" will be the subject of Professor A. B. Myrick's talk before the John Dewey Club next Tuesday evening. The meeting will open at eight o'clock and will be held at the Vermonters' Club house on Summit Street.

Professor Myrick's talk will touch upon positiveness and literary criticism, and some phases of Compte's philosophy will be discussed. It is Professor Myrick's especial aim to show the influence of determinism, Compte and Tiame, upon the realistic and the naturalistic schools of literature.

Considerable interest has been manifested in the activities of the John Dewey Club this year. A large number of interested students have attended the meetings of this organization thus far. The John Dewey Club is the psychology and philosophy club of the University and anyone taking courses in these fields is especially invited to membership.

DALTON TO SPEAK ON COMMUNICABLE DISEASES

Dr. Dalton of the Vermont State Board of Health will deliver the Hygiene lecture to freshman women today. His talk will cover communicable diseases, their prevention, symptoms, and control. The lecture will include a discussion of the common cold which is so prevalent at this season of the year.

There will be no hygiene lecture on the last Friday before Christmas vacation, December 20.

FRESHMAN MEN DEBATE WOMEN HERE TUESDAY IN NOVEL ENGAGEMENT

Will Clash in Old Mill Chapel on the Question of Women's Emergence From Home

A debate between the freshman men and the freshman women will be held in the Old Mill Chapel Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

The question for debate is the same as that between Vermont and Middlebury in the no-decision debate a few weeks ago. "Resolved, that the emergence of woman from the home is a regrettable feature of modern life."

The men, in this debate, will uphold the affirmative side of the question, and the women, the negative, in an engagement which is expected to create a great deal of interest. This question is one of the most popular of the debating subjects in American colleges this year.

The negative side will be upheld by Laura Johnson of Wallingford, Caroline Taft of Wallingford and Sylvia Boyce of West Newton, Mass., with Marion Kiel of South Orange, N. J., as alternate. The affirmative team will be made up of Edward Bigelow of Fair Haven, Reardon Donaghy of Northfield, and Russell Colburn of Burlington.

The style of debate will be the traditional American, each debater having eight minutes of presentation and five minutes of rebuttal.

S. A. E. WINS FINALS OF SINGING CONTEST

Defeats Phi Delta Theta to Win Silver Loving Cup Donated by Majestic Theatre

ANOTHER COLLEGE NIGHT COMES AFTER VACATION

Sigma Alpha Epsilon was declared the winning fraternity at the finals of the First Annual Interfraternity Singing Contest held at the Majestic Theatre, Monday night, December 9. Manager Carroll presented "Mac" Gloria, representing his house, with a handsome silver loving cup. Towne, representing Phi Delta Theta, the runners up, received a number of theatre tickets.

Singing to a packed house, the winners of each of the two preceding semi final nights created an excellent impression upon an audience composed of college students and townspeople. Loud applause greeted their efforts, which must be classed better than the "average."

Each Fraternity Sings Two Songs

Each fraternity sang two songs, Phi Delta Theta opening the contest with "Phi Delt Bungalow." S. A. E. replied with "Friends," and the openers then scored with "Come Sing Your Praises." "Violets" by Sigma Alpha Epsilon closed the competition.

The judges, Professors Dean, Ewert and Meredith, then handed down the decision in favor of Sigma Alpha Epsilon and the awards were made immediately.

Another College Night

Ex-Converse has drawn up plans for another big College Night to be held at the Majestic Theatre directly after Christmas vacation. Freddie Lynch's all-singing orchestra, with Rod May as soloist, will furnish the main attraction of the evening.

They will introduce a new song, "My Little Co-ed," the music for which was written by Freddie Lynch and the words by Ex-Converse. "Art" Brown will render several selections on the organ, playing some songs with trick words by the aforementioned "Ex." The date of these college nights will be announced later.

Librarian Continues His Exploration of the Library System at Billings

By THE LIBRARIAN
II

Jack and Jill, true to their word, presented themselves on the following morning at the Library, where they were met by the same courteous and smiling gentleman who had made the journey of the previous day so interesting.

"Good morning," he greeted them, with a look of genuine gladness on his face. "I see you are here right on time."

"Yes, sir, and we are just as eager, if not more so, than we were yesterday."

"That's fine. Let's see, we left off with the second alcove on the left, didn't we?"

"Yes, sir. We just finished that one as we had to leave."

"Well, then, here we are at the third. This, and the following alcove are the lairs of that group of students commonly known as 'commerce an' neckers.' Here both capitalists and the working man compete for places. Banks and Money fall under the reference number of 332, and Finance is 336. These are the capitalist's Garden of Eden. On the other hand, our champion of the laboring man and his rights saturates himself with the books under 333, 334, and 335. The first deals with Land and Ownership, the second with Cooperation, and the third with Socialism and Communism.

"Great Scott," ejaculated Jill, "do they have books on those frightful subjects of Socialism and Communism in this Library? Why, I shouldn't think the authorities would allow such a thing. What if the students should get to reading such revolutionary books?"

No Cause For Worry

"I guess there isn't any great cause for worry," laughed the guide. "Reading books doesn't always convert one to the policy described, though I'll admit that sometimes it does shake one's opinions, which I think is a very healthful act. But let's go on."

Occasionally one cannot find a reference number in the place where it should be. In such a case, there is usually a notice posted near the spot that the number or numbers should be found, saying that those numbers are to be found in another portion of the Library, frequently the Stackroom, which is downstairs. This is especially true of various numbers throughout the series of 100-700. In such cases it is better to ask the Librarian the exact place where the references are to be found.

"Here in alcove number 4," continued the guide, "are more books for the 'Ec.' students to absorb. The Democrats and Republicans can find material for debate on the subject of tariff under 337, which deals with Protection and Free Trade. Production is taken up in detail under 338.

Beginning with 340, we strike a little different trend in subject matter. Here we find Law. International Law and Constitutional Law are taken up in 341 and 342 respectively, while 351 treats the matter of Civil Service. Now, let us enter the Arsenal."

"The Arsenal!" exclaimed Jack and Jill simultaneously.

"Why, yes, didn't you know that the Military Office had an extension in the Library?"

"Oh, no, we didn't know that," answered Jack. "Just what do you mean?"

"Well, you see, in this alcove are mostly books along a militaristic line. The general subject of Military Science begins with 355, and the following consecutive numbers take up the subjects of Infantry, Cavalry, Artillery, and Naval Science. These books are well thumbed by those students taking the advanced course in Military Tactics. Pacifists in the University never go near this alcove, while advo

ONE VIEW OF EDUCATION

A questionnaire completed by Brooklyn Central Evening School students has brought to light interesting facts.

The 1,0 men who returned the questionnaire ranged in age from 16 to 60, the average age being 28. One hundred and nineteen were married and had from one to five dependents each. The 431 single men naturally had a smaller proportion of dependents, but one reported six.

The men had left school at ages varying from 8 to 35, their average being 16. One had never been to school, two had gone as far as the second grade, while thirty-two were college men, twenty-two holding bachelor's and professional degrees. The average last year was second year of high school.

The question as to why they left school brought out a number of interesting replies, on the reactions of young America to the sacrifices of the depression. Here are some of their reasons stated in their own words: "For fun." "No good reason." "I thought I had enough education." "Hated the sight of books and couldn't study after school." Some were more serious. "Too big." "Wanted to earn money so I could get married." "Got an opening in a good firm." "Father died and I had to support the family."

The men in vocations ranging in average pay—$7,750 a year, the maximum being $12,000 and the minimum $3,000. The types of work varied according to the salaries received. The maximum in their last year's earnings was $800 while some received salaries running into four consecutive figures, a fifty thousand dollar income being reported by a patent agent who is an officer in several corporations and a partner in an engineering firm. Other students were manual workers, retail merchants, professional engineers, clerks, salesmen, engineers, plumbers and auto mechanics. The ages of colleges that assures responsibility for and help of unemployed students. The average present income of the students was $1,147.

Two hundred and forty-five of the men reported their employers generally in favor of their night school work. Six of these employers expressed their approval by paying an unreported part of the tuition. Three paid half, while fourteen agreed the job cost. One student was out because he reported that his employer opposed his attendance at night school.

"One more proof of what we are pressing that it is never too late or otherwise impossible to avail themselves of the privileges and opportunities of an adequate education.

REPRESENT UNIVERSITY AT A. S. M. E. MEETING

Prof. V. L. Yates of the Engineering College, and senior of the Cynic staff, attended the fall meeting of the Atlantic Section of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers which was held yesterday in New York City. Two student delegates, L. C. Powell, '30, and J. W. Webber, '30, also represented the junior student branch of the A. S. M. E. at the meeting.

The program of the week consisted of professional meetings and inspection trips. The Americus hosted visits of the plant power plants of New York and one of these trips was the largest public in the world and the largest steam unit with which it is connected. This was at the Hell Gate Station where some of the principal engineering work in bridges now at the present time. The students were guests of the Society at a special inspection of some of the well-known radio broadcasting stations and to the Wright Aeronautic Plant.

Inspiration seldom comes with the first severe shock of misfortune.—Charles Dickens.

We believe it was Dean Briggs who once said although probably in more recent English that the athlete should not be discriminated against. Because a boy can play football or baseball it is no worse in other respects he should not be ineligible to receive from a college or from an individual the financial assistance which is freely granted to boys who do not excel on athletic fields. But the award should not be made on the ground of athletic achievement or promise. Who shall decide in the instance what is the controlling influence in the boy's mind in the college selection?

Rules do little good. The only remedy we believe is the creation of an enlightened public opinion among college men and young people. Only then will there be worse things than failure in athletics.—The Harvard Crimson Bulletin.

A big time was had at the University of Illinois when the school of agriculture held its annual fiesta. The students and faculty members got together and made a night of it when 50 pounds of peanuts, 50 gallons of cider and 5 bushels of apples were eaten.

Sophomores Mete Out Dire Punishment

man who was asked to sing for the entertainment of her classmates 'Old Vermont' or Ever Victorious. Cries of disgust and scorn were uttered from all sides of the hall at her announcement as to her inability to sing and she was henceforth compelled to eat under the table. After her came one of different caliber. A freshman [illegible] mick and mild is better than one insolent and conceited but still a happy medium is preferable. 'How to Obtain a Dynamic Personality' was the subject of her talk about which it appeared that she knew nothing whatever. However she may learn, if her four years at U. V. M. do not go for naught.

A chorus dance was the next item on the program of the evening, in which four girls who have persisted in not wearing hats, neglecting arm bands and acting in a manner too sophisticated for youngsters in their position in life participated.

Absolutely Refuses to Sing a Note

An obstinate victim was the next, who refused to sing at the request and urgent commands of her superiors. She took her turn under the table, played leapfrog with other of her freshman playmates, and stood at the command of the sophomores for the rest of the evening. One offensive member of the class of 1933 was severely reprimanded for the wearing of too much lipstick, and another for using altogether too much powder and rouge. The former was requested as a special and unexpected treat to sing for her classmates her version of "High O'er the Waters of Lake Champlain." The song, as she sang it, voiced in an extremely independent manner her opinions of the sophomores. The author was hooted to her seat by indignant upper classmen.

A quasi opera singer and dancer cocked beautifully for her audience, while another sang "Little by Little." The latter being only a freshman, and perhaps not yet well enough along in years to be able to stand and walk in the accustomed manner, fell over several of her classmates in her desperate effort to reach high C. There after several of the jurymen were appointed to hold her in an upright position while the entertainment continued.

A lively pep rally was next held. Cheers were given for the sophomores in the ragged, freshman manner, but the spirit made up for what the form lacked, and the Mighty Ones thought a little more leniently of the frosh from that time on because of the glimmer of real college spirit which they attempted to manifest.

What Makes a Girl Popular at U. V. M. and Why I'm Not," was the next topic under discussion by one of 1933's prominent members. Her hesitancy and apparent ignorance in the matter led the judge to call two offenders down from the rear of the hall to help her out by offering suggestions. The only and by far the best course offered was that of following in the footsteps of some worthy sophomore.

Aha! A Scandal Monger!

The scandal monger of the freshman class has been discovered and was revealed Tuesday night. The freshman who has gained this title was asked to elucidate on some of the recent dirt around campus. Whether her modesty forbade her to mention her amazing discoveries or whether the upperclassmen awed her to too great an extent we do not know. Her only revelation seemed to be concerning some of Vermont's sons who at some time or other were feeling pretty good. When asked to be explicit she evaded the issue and proved a complete disappointment, unworthy of bearing the time honored title of scandal monger.

The judge in adjourning the court, thundered out the following portentous words: "You are the worst freshman class in the history of the college. You have broken all of the rules, been poor sports, and shown yourself almost entirely lacking in college spirit. You are self-satisfied, rude, ill-bred, and completely thoughtless of others. You are worse than spoiled children, for you are old enough to have some realization of what is fitting and proper. You are a disgrace to your college, and pretty poor representatives of the schools that have sent you here. In the future try to make yourselves less obnoxious. Now get out!"

Librarian Continues His Exploration of the Library

[illegible] at the compulsory military training system find ample material [illegible] assembled in a book by Russell called Military Education in the United States which is found [illegible].

"I think I shall have to take a look at that book," commented Jack. "It sounds interesting."

"There are a few books on Commerce, domestic and foreign, in the second alcove. They are numbered 380 and 381, respectively," our guide continued to explain.

More On Commerce

In the sixth alcove are more books dealing with various phases of Commerce. Post office, Railroad, Express, Canals and Highways, Rivers and Harbors and Weights and Measures. Customs connecting with 300, there is a passage to a treatment of Costumes and Customs. Books dealing with Birth, Home and Sex are found at 392. Here is an excellent book on "The History of Human Marriage" by Westermarck, while followers of the recent doctrine of companionate marriage will be interested in Judge Lindsay's interesting book on that very subject. The co-eds will be interested in running through the books arranged under 396, which deal with their own fair sex."

"In the seventh alcove," resumed our guide, "are found books dealing largely with the subject of philology. The field covered is wide, including French, English, German, Spanish, Italian, Latin, Greek and minor languages which are grouped under the call of 400's. Here also begins the books with Science as the leading topic. Mathematics, Arithmetic, Algebra, Geometry, Trigonometry, Descriptive Geometry, Analytical Geometry, Calculus, Probabilities and Astronomy are all fully discussed. The eighth alcove continues this scientific trend and deals with Physics, Biology and Zoology. For those interested in delving into the mysteries of relativity, Einstein's Relativity may be found at 531."

"One certainly can find anything he wants to know in the scientific line in these alcoves," remarked Jill. "I don't think I know where to begin if I were to start in the study of some one of these subjects. There are so many worthwhile books on each subject."

"It is rather difficult to know where to start in," admitted our guide, "and it is for that reason that it is well to know where the books are found, for by browsing around one often comes across just what one wants. However, let us finish our inside and we'll call it enough for one day. The ninth alcove contains books from 600-625, and the tenth alcove which takes the references from 626 to 629, are known as the 'overhead paradise.' Engineering of all kinds, descriptions and uses is taken up in detail, and the would-be bridge builder or highway constructionist can find plenty of material over which to burn the midnight oil in these two alcoves. I guess that will be sufficient for one day."

"It's O. K. with us," said Jill, "but where do these stairs lead up to from this tenth alcove?"

"They take you up to the West Gallery, where are located a continuation of the 600's and where are located all of the 200's. As I told you before we'll take those up a little more thoroughly later. Oh, yes, the 100's are found up in the East Gallery and we shall leave those until a little later also.

"Well, good-bye. We won't be able to make it until day after tomorrow I guess."

"All right. I'll see you then. Good-bye."

SENIORS BEAT JUNIORS IN INTERCLASS CONTEST

Scutakes Shines With Winning Shot—Frosh-Sophs Today—Final Game Tomorrow Afternoon

[illegible] and reviewing the interclass basketball tourney Wednesday night in the University gym, the seniors upset the dope and crashed through to beat the juniors 22 to 20 in an extra time game. In man to man competition the seniors could not match the juniors but their superior team pass work and shooting enabled them to come out on the heavy end of the score. Scutakes won the game with a long shot at the end of the overtime session.

The seniors got off to a fast start and surprised the juniors by running up a seven point lead before the '31 men broke into the scoring column. Allerton Corbin and Aiken replaced Axel Heaton and Dinniman, and the team snapped out of it and began to work things up. Allerton slipped through twice and made good for four points. Durfee, adding two more. Allerton and Park scored again for the seniors. The half ended 13 to 10 for the seniors.

Early in the second half the juniors got the lead for the first time during the game. It did not last long, however, as the lead see-sawed from one side to the other. The play was fast and guarding close the whole second half as both teams were fighting hard. Allerton sank three more and was the most dangerous scorer for the juniors. Near the end of the second half with a basket by Chadwick and a bunch of foul shots the seniors got a two-point lead.

The juniors opened a barrage of long shots and managed to tie the count as the whistle blew.

In the overtime period an exhibition of poor foul shooting was put on as Scutakes and Park missed two apiece.

Heaton missed a couple of easy step shots and Scutakes dropped a long shot from the center of the floor, the ball being in the air as the whistle blew to give the seniors a 22 to 20 edge.

Durfee and Allerton starred for the juniors while Corbin's passing accounted for several of their baskets; Park got the jump at center every time. For the Seniors Scutakes, Chadwick and Beer were outstanding.

Today at 6.30 p.m. the sophomores face the freshmen for the honor of meeting the seniors in the final which will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

FACULTY BODY RULES ON PRE-VACATION ABSENCES

Sets Monday as Dead-line for All Applications in Necessary Cases

With the approach of the Christmas recess, the Faculty Council again reminds students of the rules governing extension of the vacation in individual cases. The rules, publicly announced by Dean J. L. Hills, secretary of the Council, are five in number:

1. Applications should be made in writing, should indicate the applicant's Burlington mail address, should set forth reasons in full and be filed with the dean of the college in which the student is enrolled (men) or with the dean of women (women), not later than Monday, December 16 at Noon. The responsibility lies with the student in this matter. Belated applications will not be considered.

2. Railway mail service.—Each applicant will file with his excuse request a statement from the officer to whom he expects to report, giving date when, time of day when and place where he is to report. This signed statement and his personal request should be filed as indicated above under (1). So be it the applicant's collegiate record justifies favorable action, excuse will be granted, effective at such time as will enable the applicant to reach his destination at the time indicated. Failure to file papers in full on Monday, December 16, at noon may result in denial of the petition.

3. Lake Placid Club.—Arrangements will be made with the management of the Lake Placid Club who will file with the writer full lists of those whom they propose to employ. If collegiate records warrant, excuses will be issued to all applicants without direct application on their part.

4. Other Work.—Each applicant will file with his excuse request a statement in writing from his proposed employer on the employer's letterhead, giving date when, time of day when and place where he is to report, setting forth the nature of the work to be done and the need of reporting prior to Saturday, December 21. This signed statement and his personal request should be filed as indicated above under (1). So be it the applicant's collegiate record justifies favorable action, excuse will be granted, effective at such time as will enable the applicant to reach his destination at the time indicated. Failure to file papers in full on Monday, December 16, at noon may result in denial of the petition.

5. Excuses will be granted to men by vote of the Council; to women in the discretion of the Dean of Women.

We live in a state of perpetual variation, and, according as we are changed for the better or the worse, we are called happy or unhappy.—SPINOZA.

GOOD FRESHMAN TEAM WITHOUT A SCHEDULE

By LYN FOSTER

Tomorrow night the University of Vermont basketball quintet will play its second home game of the season when the McGill squad from Montreal appears on the local gym court. Returning from the strenuous Dartmouth fray, the Catamounts ought to find this next contest much easier. However, last year witnessed a close battle between the teams and the result was a scant 28-26 victory for the Green and Gold. It is reported that the McGill squad has been practicing steadily for over a month and that Coach Van Wagner has developed a good team. The truth of this will soon be tested for Middlebury as well as Vermont, was included on this week's schedule for the Canadians.

For Vermont, Coach Berry will probably start the same line-up that has been used in the two previous contests. Tobin will be at center if Sargent's ankle is not in condition. Captain Halligan and Tupper is the combination that will be the chief offensive power of the Cats and they are expected to cause a great deal of trouble for all the opposing guards this season. With Captain Halligan leading the attack by his general fast floor work and with Tupper's overhead shots, the Green and Gold quintet has dangerous potential scoring power. For the guards Coach Berry can use Manning, a valuable veteran of last season, and Bernstein, who has been made over into a guard. The latter was a star forward last year.

The McGill quintet is placing real importance on tomorrow's game as they are anxious to vindicate their close defeat at the hands of the Catamounts by only a two-point margin last season. Coach Van Wagner has had a bunch of material from which to choose his team. Young, a veteran, is favored to start at center.

Faulkner and Smaill will start as forwards, while Peiker and Rice do the defensive work.

McGill, in its first start, defeated Montreal Central Y. M. C. A. 26 to 22 last Saturday, and looked impressive. The McGill Daily has the following comment on the game:

"It was due largely to the stellar shooting of George Faulkner, left forward of the McGill team, that the collegians came out on top over the formidable Central Y men. Faulkner, was captain of the squad last year, counted sixteen of his team's twenty-six points, and proved by far the most valuable man on the floor. The work of Peiker and Rice, the Red team's guards, was effective."

When this issue of the CYNIC went to press it was unknown whether there would be a preliminary game or not. No game for the freshmen had been secured by Thursday so it seemed unlikely that such a contest would be staged unless two freshman teams played an exhibition game. Material for the freshman outfit is excellent and Coach Prentice has shaped a crack aggregation without games to use it in.

CAT'S MEOW

SPORTING EDITOR

Vermont has not been defeated in basketball by any team whatsoever by such a score as Dartmouth piled up Wednesday night, for years and years. Perhaps never.

The Cats certainly are getting their taste of large scores this year.

We hope that a few changes by next year will remedy this situation, that we may cease to rest in permanent humiliation.

McGill was good last year and is good this year. Vermont was good last year and beat McGill by two points. This year Vermont beat Montreal A. A. A. by one point and Dartmouth well, just the same we like Vermont for tomorrow night.

And the frosh we've heard a lot about their great team this year and we'd like to see them in action.

Hockey outlook is quite favorable. Veterans and all. Excellent schedule. More about the sextet later.

Lou Little, head coach of football at Georgetown has accepted a one-year contract as chief of gridironistic activities at Columbia. Little, after matriculating at Worcester Academy entered U. V. M. in 1913, where he played three sports until the end of his sophomore year when he shifted to Penn. Columbia is indeed lucky to secure his services.

Rogers Hornsby was voted the most valuable member of the National Baseball League last week. He is the first man in either big league to received this honor twice. His playing undoubtedly brought the National League pennant to Chicago this year.

INDIANS SCALP CATS AT HANOVER 62-13

Superior Dartmouth Aggregation Runs Rough Shod Over Vermonters

OFFENSE AND DEFENSE OF GREEN EQUALLY GOOD

Coach Berry's Green and Gold five went down to its first defeat of the season when it was conquered by a powerful Dartmouth team to the overwhelming score of 62-13. The Big Green machine did not have much opposition from the Vermonters. They had a whirlwind attack that easily broke through the Catamounts guard and their defensive play was almost as good as they held the Vermonters to three field goals during the entire evening.

Grey Magee of Dartmouth was the big shot of the evening, leading the scoring column with five field goals and three free trys. On the whole the Hanover quintet played good basketball during the whole game, but the looseness that was noticeable during the first half game was entirely lacking in the second. Lewin, a veteran of last year's team was back at his old position at center and he was a decided asset. Burch and Kramer, both sophomores showed up pretty well in their first varsity appearance.

The Catamounts put up the best showing that they could but they were easily outclassed. The Dartmouth quintet is a polished outfit and that can hardly be said of the Vermonters at the present time, although it looks as though they would become a smoothly working machine before the end of the season.

Relates Environment to Beliefs, in Chapel Talk

We do not stand apart from our surroundings said the Rev E C Boynton of the Rutland Congregational Church Rutland, speaking at the chapel service last Wednesday morning. Two hundred students were present at the service.

The speaker gave an illustration of the effect of one's material environment on character, and then went on to say that the same principle applied in spiritual realms. Our beliefs become a part of us. The indifferentism of Bertrand Russell, he claimed, is due largely to his Cambridge environment.

Reverend Boynton lamented the atheistic doctrine that is always found on the college campus and declared that to believe in nothing was no compliment to our powers of discovery.

Jesus has the last word to say. He is saturated with the spiritual background of the Heavenly Father's love, and finds no place for indifference or atheistic doctrines. Through our spiritual background, we will taste the best things of life.

NOTICES

Dramatic Club will hold a social meeting at the home of Lilian S Cohen, '30, 82 Grant Street, Tuesday evening, December 17, at 8.30. LIGHTNING HAS LONG BEEN A COSTLY RAIDER OF POWER LINES

Wild lightning meets his master . . .

REMEMBER how you used to sit on the porch during a thunderstorm and shudder just a little at the forces that seemed to tear open the sky and shake the hills? Electrical men have often shuddered in grave seriousness over those same forces. For lightning has been a costly raider of power lines.

Now, however, many means of defense are available, and many more are being developed. Science has been studying lightning, and experimenting with it. Down in the mountains of Tennessee a group of Westinghouse men have been making photographic records of the voltages developed by lightning, with the cathode-ray oscillograph and the klydonograph. Guided by their findings, another group in New Jersey is enabled to reproduce lightning artificially, and study its effects on a high-tension line. And in East Pittsburgh, with a generator that will produce lightning strokes equivalent to 35,000,000 horse-power and with a laboratory that duplicates power line conditions, others are learning new facts about the behavior of protective devices.

Much of this work is carried on by young men recently out of college. Their achievements will save millions for power companies, and eliminate many hazards to life in substation operation.

Lightning jumps the gap between these Westinghouse arcing horns, and spares the insulators.

ENTER CLAIM IN WILBUR ESTATE FOR $100,000 GIFT

President Guy W. Bailey was in Manchester last week to attend a hearing on the claim of the University against the estate of James B. Wilbur for the provisional gift of an endowment for a museum to be built at the University. The hearing was adjourned for three weeks.

Warren R. Austin of Burlington, who is also a trustee of the University, appeared with President Bailey to represent the University's claim. Former Governor W. W. Stickney, former Attorney-General John G. Sargent and Judge Edward Griffith of Manchester appeared for the estate.

The claim to the Wilbur bequest was filed early in October by President Bailey. It is based on the offer of $100,000 made about a year ago by Mr. Wilbur, who died last spring, with the provision that the University raise an additional $200,000 to build a museum. President Bailey declares that the provisions of the agreement made with Mr. Wilbur before his death have been complied with. It was understood that the president should have until October 10 to raise the additional $200,000, and this was accomplished before the claim was filed early in October.

Mr. Wilbur's death, which occurred before the provisions of the gift were completed, necessitates the litigation which is under way. The gift, however, affects in no way the trust fund Mr. Wilbur created in behalf of the University and which was announced early in the summer.

HONOR DEBATE SOCIETY MAKES STRICTER RULES FOR FUTURE ADMISSION

Tau Kappa Alpha Raises Eligibility Standards—Sears Represents Vermont at National Convention

Participation in at least two intercollegiate debates, or in one intercollegiate and in one intra-mural engagement, will henceforth be a requirement for admission into Tau Kappa Alpha, national honorary forensic fraternity, according to a decision of the national convention, which met in Oxford, Ohio, at Miami College, last week. The Vermont chapter was represented for the first time in many years, with Franklin A. Sears, debate manager and senior member of the varsity debating team, in attendance.

Called to order Friday by the national president, John Q. Adams, of Baton Rouge, La., the convention, after the preliminaries incidental to the opening of the meeting, settled down to business as C. N. Shutt, Dean of Beren College, Berea, Ky., presented "The Forensic Program in the Small College." Miss Idah White, of the Western State Teachers' College, Kalamazoo, Mich., led the discussion on "Sponsorship of High School Public Speaking Competition." "The International Debate" was presented by H. H. Higgins of Miami, and the afternoon's program closed with the topic "Forensic Promotional Work in Large City Institutions," presented by Miss Evelyn Hellerstein of the University of Denver.

Model Debate

At the close of the evening's banquet, the program called for a debate, the subject of an experiment with three systems of judging with a view to ascertaining variations among the various systems. The methods used were: Decision by the audience, with balloting before and after the arguments; decisions by a board of three judges; and decision by eight experts. The subject of debate was, "Resolved, that trial by jury should be abolished." The affirmative was upheld by Wittenberg College and the negative by the University of Cincinnati.

NAME GEORGINA HUBERT MANAGER OF BOWLING

Georgina Hubert, '31, has been elected campus manager of bowling.

About forty girls attended the first bowling practice for the season. A record will be kept of the scores during the season. High scorer for this week was Helen Drugg, '31, with a score of 77. Ruth Strong, '30, Sylvia Holden, '32, and Florence Huntley, '33, were other high scorers, each having a score of 69.

ELECT CHAIRMEN OF 1930 JUNIOR WEEK

Junior Class Puts Harvey Butterfield in General Charge and Names Hugh Mattison Financial Manager

TO NAME COMMITTEES JUST BEFORE VACATION

Harvey Butterfield is chairman of Junior Week for 1930, and Hugh Mattison is Financial Manager, as a result of the Junior Week elections last Thursday afternoon.

The new chairman-elect is a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity. Since his freshman year, when he served as president of his class, he has been prominent in both class and college activities. His work in dramatics which made him a member of Wig and Buskin, includes parts in most of the college plays that have been presented since he entered college. He scored his most recent success last Thursday night in "Dear Brutus." Butterfield has also been active in Y. C. A. work, at present holding the presidency of the organization.

Hugh Mattison, the new financial manager, is business manager of the 1931 Ariel. He is also an assistant editor of the Cynic and is a member of Pi Delta Rho. He was editor of the Freshman Handbook, is a varsity debater, has been a Gold Key man and is an assistant manager of track. His fraternity is Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

The full list of Junior Week committees will be announced just before the Christmas vacation.

MIDDLEBURY PRESIDENT HOLDS DEGREE-SEEKING IS NOT TRUE EDUCATION

Speaking Before Vermont Phi Beta Kappa, Dr. Moody Insists Only Self-Education is Worthwhile

"Self-education, if once begun, never ceases. If education ceases after the student has received his college diploma, then it is doubtful if it ever began." So spoke Dr. Paul D. Moody, president of Middlebury College, addressing the Phi Beta Kappa society of the University of Vermont at an initiation banquet at the Ethan Allen Club house last Thursday evening. Dr. Moody insisted that there are too many college students who obtain diplomas but fail to gain an education.

Dr. Moody's address followed the initiation banquet. Preceding the dinner a meeting and initiation was held for six new members. Those who were initiated are all seniors at the University and all have averages above 90 percent. They were: Everett C. Bundy of Sutton, Miss Alice W. Dean, Miss Susan Howard, Herrick M. Macomber, Frank V. Rich and Miss Mary E. Waddell, all of Burlington.

President Moody decried the lack of absorption of knowledge by students during their four years at college. He declared that many work for degrees but not for a real education.

Degree—Does Not Mean Education

"A college degree does not always mean an education and an education does not always mean a college degree," the speaker said.

Colleges and universities are criticized, explained President Moody, because many of their graduates fail to make use of their opportunities in ob...

BASKETBALL TEACHING CLASS DISCUSS RULES

Miss Blanchard's second class in methods of teaching basketball met last Friday with a good attendance. In a discussion of the game that followed, four points were especially noted:

1. Rules for a two and three court game and the number of players in each.
2. Duties of officials, namely, referee, umpire, two time-keepers, and two score-keepers.
3. Rules governing out-of-bounds.
4. Personal fouls.

MUSIC UNITS DOMINATE WCAX RADIO PROGRAM

WCAX, the University broadcasting station, again presented a program with the choir and orchestra dominating last Friday night. On the program were:

Forestry in Vermont—Perry H. Merrill, commissioner of forestry, Montpelier. "Winter Bouquets"—Mrs. Florence L. Wright, home demonstration agent, Burlington. Christmas Music—groups from University Choir and Orchestra and soloists. "Adeste Fideles"—members of Choir. "In duiet jubilo"—members of Choir. Selections from "Messiah"—Handel. "Pastoral Symphony"—members of orchestra. "O Thou That Tellest Good Tidings of Zion"—Miss Matilda Putnam, soprano with violin obligato, Miss Charlotte deVolt. "He Shall Feed His Flock"—Miss Marion Baldwin, contralto. "Come Unto Him"—Hazel Ladd, soprano. "Silent Night"—Women's voices.

BLUESTOCKINGS SOCIETY ADMITS TEN WOMEN TO MEMBERSHIP IN TRIALS

Honorary Literary Organization Names Women From Every Class After Spirited Competition

Bluestockings, women's honorary literary society, announces the election to membership of ten women at a special meeting last Friday afternoon. The ten were selected from fifty-eight contestants because of the literary merit of their work. The students accorded the honor are: Lelia Bates, '30; Lillian Cohen, '30; Irene Rooney, '30; Julia Housley, '31; Justine Rogers, '31; Suzanne Rutledge, '31; Mildred Gile, '32; Marion Berry, '32, Marion Kiel, '33, and Evelyn Mann, '33.

Lelia Bates submitted "Improvement," a poem. Lillian Cohen, who is president of Dramatic Club, submitted "A Short Story." An essay entitled "Artistry" was Irene Rooney's contribution.

Mildred Gile, who has recently been initiated into membership on the Cynic board, prepared an essay, "A Rainy Night." "Reverie," a poem, was Suzanne Rutledge's contribution. Marion Kiel wrote an essay called "Belinda." "Ski-jumper" was the title of Julia Housley's story. Justine Rogers prepared a story called "The Point of Departure." Marion Berry submitted a poem entitled "Fantasy."

DEBATING TEAM IS GUEST OF GRANGE

Emergence of Woman From the Home Is Again Thrashed Out by Junior Varsity Debaters

NELSON CHAIRMAN OF THE INFORMAL AFFAIR

Two junior varsity debating teams clashed on the subject of the emergence of women from the home, before a meeting of the Champlain District of the Vermont Grange at their club rooms Saturday evening. The affirmative, maintaining that woman's emergence from the home is a regrettable feature of modern life, was represented by R. Reardon Donaghy and Russell Colburn. The negative team consisted of Donald H. Frazier and James E. Bigelow. George R. Nelson of the varsity team, proved a very clever and witty chairman. His humorous comments made a hit with the audience.

The members of the Grange proved themselves to be one of the most enthusiastic and appreciative audience before which Vermont debaters have yet spoken. Loud applause greeted the efforts of each forensic participant.

Nelson, the chairman, followed the system of chairmanship made famous by such men as Will Rogers and our own Professor Dean. He seemed at home in the presiding officer's chair and his remarks were ever to the point and full of humor, as were those of each of the four debaters of the evening. And the audience was continually in laughter.

Donaghy, opening the debate for the affirmative according to the American plan, maintained that woman belongs in the home and should stay there. He went on to say that he would soon be at home with a loving mother, father, sister and cat, and he insisted that, since home means so much to people, women should stay there, where they belong.

Frazier, the first negative speaker, told the audience that woman was emerging from the home because of more leisure time than formerly, and he asked the audience why they would wall poor woman up in a cage rather than allow her to fly from the nest into business. He concluded his arguments by saying that bakers' food is as good, if not better, than that which grandmother baked.

Colburn rose to the situation and pointed out the many diseases caused from bakers' and modern brides' cooking. Among these are indigestion, blackheads, pimples, cancer, appen...

Study Reveals Surprising Uniformity of Thought in High School Students

Everett Perkins, Graduate in Class of 1905, Earns M. A. from Alma Mater With Thesis on Survey of Maine High School Students

Everett V. Perkins, U. V. M., '05, principal of Cony High School of Augusta, Me., last week passed the examinations for the degree of Master of Arts which will be awarded him at Commencement in June, 1930, with a thesis entitled: "What Recent Think."

It is in the form of data collected from a questionnaire filled out by members of the Senior class of 1929 in seventy-one Maine high schools. The state department of education, working with a committee representing the Maine Association of Principals of Secondary Schools, sought to find out first-hand something about the opinions, standards, and purposes of the boys and girls graduating this year from the high schools and academies of Maine.

The problem, he showed in the outline of the thesis, is (1) to find out what the boys and girls are thinking, (2) to adapt the schools to their needs. He quoted some of the recent discussions of modern youth, in which some criticize severely and others extol.

Conclusions

The study indicates: First. The ideas and ideals of Maine youth are sound, they have serious purposes in life and their judgment and tastes are commendable.

FROM CONVERSE HALL —NOISE AND ADVICE

As the clock slowly struck a quarter past eleven last Thursday night at Middle Converse, the hall was aroused by a fearful uproar. Doors were hammered upon, and Indian war cries resounded from floor to floor. Then—just as suddenly as it started—all was quiet once more.

It must have been the mental strain that studious frosh have been laboring under that caused them, for the moment, to act like a crowd of high school freshmen. For a short time, though, those doors certainly took a terrific beating.

"The freshman age is that in which the most important of life's characteristics and habits are being formed," says Abe Langworthy, janitor and counselor of Converse Hall. And to prove his contention he cites several examples of men with whom he has come in contact in his many years at the University that have failed in life through slovenly acquired habits, or, as he quaintly puts it, "smelling the cork too often."

HEY, YOU! GOT AN HOUR OR TWO TO SPARE?

And right on the top of the list of our activities comes a silly, pointless question, "what to do with that spare hour or two?" As if we had even a single moment to spare in this busy college year!

Come now! Granted that one cannot much time to yourself. The pressure may become too at times, and making an hour or two may seem a task at first. Perhaps cutting down on bull-sessions a bit might do the trick. Perhaps using the library for study and not for animated conversation with the girl or boy might prove profitable. Oh, yes, there are all kinds of ways of making a few extra moments.

And just what can have that much more time on your hands, what are you going to do with it?

The International Relations Club meets every other week to discuss international affairs. Prominent speakers tell you about China, Mexico, the reparations plans and a host of other subjects. The members must know their subjects, their knowledge of the topic in question being the basis of selection. They can thus give you in a short, interesting account an understanding of any particular situation, which understanding might take you or me months to arrive at. These lectures are food, but sugar-coated pills each to digest and sometimes one is necessary if the system is in a receptive mood.

In a country of such vast size as ours enough about the world we live in. The problems of Bolshevism or Vermont interest us because they are close at hand. But we know little and care less about what foreign nations are doing or how they are doing it. This state of affairs is really deplorable. Moreover it is downright ignorance. There is no such thing as complete independence today. Individuals depend upon each other every day of their lives and likewise countries depend upon each other every hour of the day. What that dependence and relationship is the International Club strives to bring out to its members.

Yet here's the peculiar angle. The club appears to be popular. Its meetings are well advertised, its speakers are prominent and capable, and the attendance is fine. Altogether too slim. The club is not kept that or exclusive. It does not cater to the whims and fancies of any particular set of students. It's part of the University and it's interesting for all University students.

Watch for the notice of the next meeting. Attend that meeting and you'll be willing to wager that you'll become a regular International Relations Club fan.

Working Through College

President Hutchins of Chicago University does well to puncture another venerable myth long cherished in American institutions of learning that there is something inherently splendid about working one's way through college. The high pressure salesmen may seldom have done their level best to validate this romance and it is generally held among the plain people. The belief is based mainly upon the ancient Carlylistic doctrine that in adversity there is victory; that the fine edge of character needs something hard for it to sharpen against.

So it is argued that the boy who goes to college with his pockets empty and has to shake furnace grates wash dishes peddle papers mow lawns sell candy and what not to eke out a meager living in some mysterious way emerges an improvement over what he was when he entered. What is more he has got more out of college than his none-working classmate because he has learned the value of the dollar learned "how to despise hard work and so forth.

The boy who is working inevitably finds that his work becomes his chief interest because that is what is more urgent more elemental more direct in its rewards. As the time goes on he finds himself not a student, doing a little work on the side, but a wage earner doing a little studying on the side. He reduces the time spent with his books to an absolute minimum because it is more comfortable to exchange an A in Latin for a D than it would be to risk starvation by losing his boarding house job.

Work deprives him utterly of leisure and leisure is the single ingredient of education which cannot be dispensed with. Any normal youth can go through the bare routine of collegiate assignments in a few hours a week but the very soul of education is the independent exploration the student does upon his own initiative.

True education is an absorption from within slow and fragrant mellowing. But this mellowing takes leisure and the working student from one end of the semester to the other never learns what leisure is.—The New Haven Journal-Courier.

Rev. H. Sumner Mitchell, pastor of the Unitarian Church of this city, will preach a Christmas sermon in chapel Wednesday.

Study Reveals Surprising Uniformity of Thought

Setting. The boys and girls feel that the influence of three important social agencies, the ministry, politics, and politics.

Trend. There is a great uniformity of thought among the youngsters of different parts of the state and among the boys and girls themselves.

Proposal. The schools should change their programs so that there would be more emphasis on required subjects, more work in vocational guidance, more courses dealing with civic problems of today and right evaluation of social and athletic affairs.

In the interpretation of the data he says: "The recognition of the mental attitudes as the key to the modern psychology of education and society. The aim of education is the development of right attitudes and interests."

The most striking fact he found is the uniformity of thought among the boys and girls. The distinctions between city-mindedness and country-mindedness have disappeared. The judgments and aspirations are about the same in boys as in girls.

He accounts for this similarity by the fact that they travel widely in automobiles and mingle with many of their own age. They see the same moving pictures, hear the same radio programs and use the same texts. Furthermore, these attitudes and purposes are sound.

We term that the three things most desired for themselves are health character and friends. The traits most admired in others (and so sought for themselves) are good manners, honor and scholarship.

Athletics is put in its proper place, and dancing is assigned a position below economy! The most important commandment is considered to be "Honor Thy Father and Thy Mother."

The most commendable trait in teachers they consider is clearness of explanation, fairness, and willingness to help make up work. "This," he says, "is evidence that the great majority come to school to learn."

There is a great diversity in books read. Those getting ten or more votes are the "Bible," "Lorna Doone," "Tales of Two Cities," and "We."

"Ben Hur" is the favorite picture, receiving 73 votes with "King of Kings," "The Singing Fool," "The Ten Commandments" and "Wings" also among the leaders.

The American Magazine had 105 votes. Lindbergh, the idol of American youth received 176 out of 400 votes.

Three Vocations are Taboo

Agriculture, the ministry, and politics, have fallen into disrepute in their minds. This is significant because these three vocations are of the greatest importance in the history and life of this nation.

If our educated youth continue to avoid agricultural occupations what sort of a future will the nation have?

Honor Debate Society Makes Stricter Rules for Admission

The affirmative won the debate, but the results were disappointing since the affirmative won by all the different systems except that of the eight experts.

No Freshmen to be Admitted

The next morning the convention adopted a number of constitutional amendments. One of primary interest provides that in order to be eligible to membership in Tau Kappa Alpha a student must have taken part in two intercollegiate debates, or in one intercollegiate and in one intramural contest. No freshmen may hereafter be taken into the society.

At the convention, the Vermont delegate was very much impressed with the active interest in debating through all the colleges as reflected at the convention. Fifty-five out of the seventy-seven chapters were represented. Vermont sending the delegate from farthest east, while the delegate traveling the longest distance came from Seattle Washington. Not only was the convention well attended but these delegates brought reports of an increasing interest in debating that is taking place throughout the country.

Bigelow, the giant negative supporter, came to the front and insisted that conditions have been improved since women have emerged, that there are more and better marriages and that in China children must scrape their finger nails off in order to earn six cents a day.

The Rebuttal

Though the air was filled with the smoke of battle up to this point, it was nothing to the atmospheric conditions now. War was declared in earnest, and each side seemed set upon vanquishing its opponents.

To start the rebuttal, Frazier, the sophomore ace, maintained that if women stay at home, they will become insane. He quoted statistics showing that a majority of insane people in this country are farmers' wives.

Donaghy replied that this is not true, that it is the modern flapper who is insane. He showed that conditions in Russia where women have emerged, are not what they might be.

Bigelow closed the arguments for his team with the remark that in a small woolen mill in the southern part of this state, men and women work together and cook their meals in ten minutes.

Colburn ended the debate by saying that it is not good for the women to emerge into business because they clubs. Also, the woman's career is must neglect their families and bridge making a home.

Votes Increase for Affirmative

A vote was taken before and after the contest, twenty-three declaring themselves opposed to woman's emergence while eighty were in favor of such a program. A vote taken after the debate showed that fifty-two were now opposed to emergence, a gain for the affirmative of twenty-nine votes.

The entire affair of the evening proved the popularity of witty, fast moving, forensic contests.

During the first period the game belonged to no one. It was a beautiful exhibition of speed and pass work on the part of the Cats. Time and again they took the ball away from the McGill five and with a pretty passing system worked the ball through their opponents rather weak defense for two points. The entire period was featured by fast play and the brilliant work of Halligan and Bernstein. Captain Halligan can apparently hold down any position on the floor. He was all over the floor breaking up plays and generally distinguishing himself in general. Bernstein was high scorer for the evening with four floor goals and two fouls for ten points. His defensive work and passing was par excellence. He and Halligan worked together like a machine.

McGill did not seem to be going so well. They were slower than the Catamounts and they were weak in all departments of the game. Their passing was poor and they missed shot after shot. Peiker, their right guard semed to be the only man that was going good.

During the second half, however, the Canadian five tightened up and gave the Green and Gold a run for their money. Although they never threatened after the end of the first period they played a much better game and Vermont had to extend themselves to keep in the lead.

All in all, it was a much improved team that took the floor for Vermont Saturday evening. Their passing game was improved especially under the basket when they snapped the ball back and forth and mixed their opponents up in general. It was noticeable that Coach Berry did not make a single substitution during the entire game. The team that took the floor was the best combination he had at his disposal and he evidently realized that fact. Halligan and Manning made a pair of guards that are hard to beat and Bernstein and Tupper made excellent showings in the forward berths. Manning put up a good guarding game. In the pivot position there was Bob Tobin. He got over his first game of unsteadiness and looked like a veteran. He is a fine defensive man and held Young, captain of the opposing five to one basket.

Faulkner opened the scoring of the game when he sank a free try from Halligan's foul, but Halligan retaliated with a field goal immediately after when Tobin shot a short pass to him from outside of the court. Bernstein then tossed a free try on Peiker's foul and immediately after the Cats worked the ball up the floor and Manning dropped in a twin counter. Bernstein tallied on another foul and after a long scrimmage added two more points. McGill then showed that it was about time to get busy and gathered three baskets in a row, two by Peiker and one by Moore. However the Cats could not be stopped. Bernstein hung one up and immediately after Tupper followed suit. Peiker then crashed through with two more points on fouls by Bernstein and Tupper. Halligan dropped in a goal from behind the basket and Young sent a long heave through the hoop for the Canadian's last score of the half. Tobin sank a free try from in under the basket and Manning sent another free try through the loop following with another which went through just a second ahead of the gun, making the score 18 to 12.

Bernstein opened hostilities in the second half when he took a nice pass from Halligan for two points, but was neutralized by Weldon who dropped in a goal from all the whole length of the floor. Bernstein and Halligan added a point apiece by free tries and Bernstein again sank a long heave. Young duplicated one of his overhead shots for two points, and Smaill did the same thing only not quite so spectacularly. Then the Green and Gold cut loose and rolled up seven points, two by Tobin, one by Manning and four by Halligan. Bernstein pulled a misdemeanor and Smaill collected twice. Tupper then got looping and sent a beauty through the hoop for two more points. Bernstein sank a long one through and Tupper collected once on a free try. Goals by Faulkner and Weldon ended the game.

The Freshmen also crashed into the winning column in their first game of the season when they humbled the Burlington Business College 26-17 as a preliminary. It was a somewhat slow game with the Frosh taking the lead in the beginning and keeping it throughout the entire game. The Frosh were so far ahead of their opponents that Coach "Bunny" Prentice took out his first team and sent in his second-string men. The Frosh made a good showing and it looks as though there is going to be some good material for the varsity next year. Collins and Grant are nice forwards and Talbert is making a good showing in center. Valerio is handicapped more or less by his size, otherwise he would be a crack forward. Both McGowan and Mahoney are good defensive men who played on the Cathedral High team of last year.

All in all it looks as though the yearling quintet would have a good season. With a few breaks they might run off with the freshman State title.

At a Christmas party Wednesday evening in honor of Professor Terrill's birthday, the guests included Miss Terrill, Miss Holbrook and the senior students in the department.

U. S. NAVAL TRAINING STATION QUINTET HERE

By Lyn Foster

With a revivifying McGill victory tucked under their belts the Catamounts will tackle the basketball quintet from the U. S. Naval Training Station tomorrow night on the gym floor. This will be the third home game of this season and the last contest until after the Christmas vacation. On the Saturday immediately following the return to classes after the holidays, Ithaca School of Physical Education will be in town to furnish the fourth home basketball game. Both of these teams are newcomers to a Vermont athletic schedule.

The strength and ability of the Naval Training Station quintet is unknown but will doubtless give the Green and Gold plenty of trouble. Last year the unknown U. S. Coast Guard Academy team came here and put a scare into the Vermont fans until Halligan slipped in a basket at the last minute to give the Green and Gold a narrow 28-27 victory. If the Training Station can bring an equally good squad, there will be a fast and interesting game tomorrow evening.

With more practice and team work the Catamount team should round into form and put up a real exhibition. Sargent will probably start at center for the first time this season. Otherwise the starting line-up for Vermont will be the same as usual.

HAL O'BRIEN INTERPRETS NEW BASKETBALL RULES

Under the auspices of the Vermont State Board of Approved Officials Harold O'Brien of Rutland, interpreted the new points of refereeing a basketball game a week ago at the annual interpretation meeting of that board in the University gymnasium.

This meeting is held for the purpose of bringing about a standard interpretation of the rules. This year there was a good sized crowd of interested spectators on hand to witness the demonstration. O'Brien has the reputation of being one of the strictest officials in the state and there is probably no keener student of the game anywhere in this part of the country. He gave a short talk before the scrimmage justifying his strict interpretation of the rules, and explaining the purpose of the meeting. "Bunny" Prentice, mentor of the freshman squad, then put two teams on the floor to scrimmage. The contest was interrupted from time to time to explain some of the technicalities, so from the standpoint of a basketball game it was uninteresting, but from the standpoint of rules it was more than worthwhile.

There are relatively few changes in the rules of last year, and these seem to be of minor importance. Essentially, the game is the same with not enough changes to cause any trouble. Probably the most important change was that involving the fouling of a man in the act of shooting. Last year a man fouled in this way had two free tries, and the ball went into play after the second shot, whether the shot was made from the floor was made or missed, but this year the rule reads that in case the man does not make the shot on which he was fouled the ball goes into play after the second free try, but if he does make it the ball is dead and goes back to center. There are two or three other minor changes that are relatively unimportant.

During February the Women's Physical Education classes will probably be held outdoors, as this plan proved very satisfactory last year.

SOPHOMORES TAKE INTERCLASS CROWN

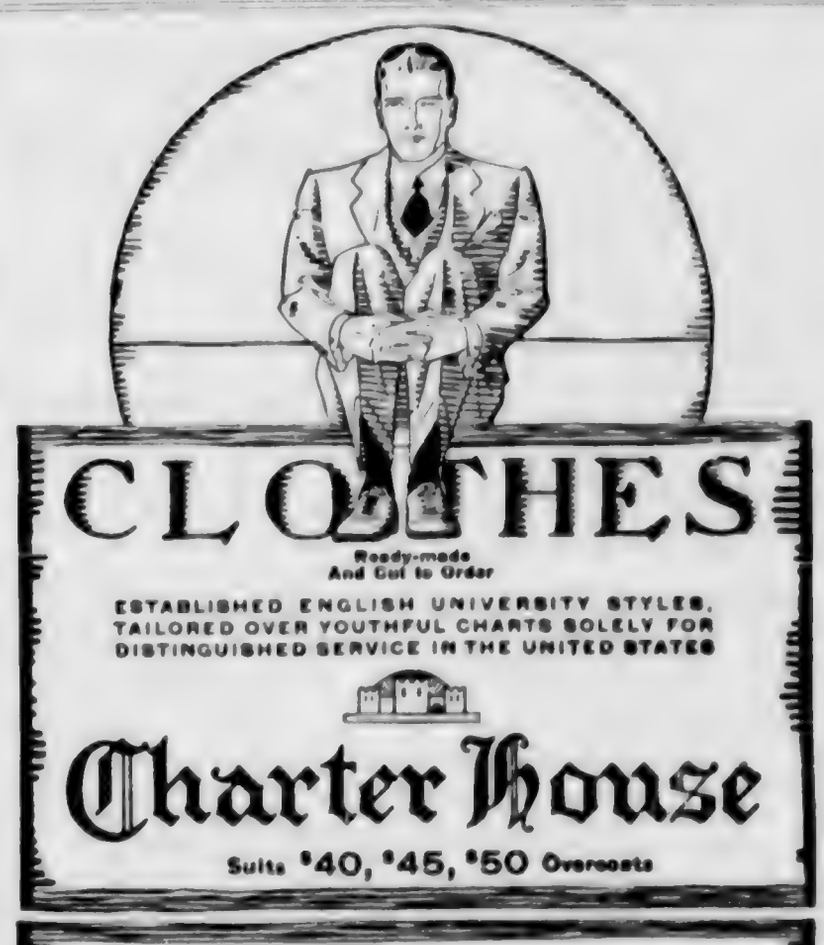
Bedell and Winant Star for Sophomores—Every Man Scores for Winning Team —Sophs Beat Frosh

Saturday, the final of the Interclass Basketball Tourney took place with the Sophomores gaining the supremacy of the court by defeating the Seniors 30 to 9.

The Sophomores with a wealth of strength on hand started off with a dash that was consistent throughout. In the first quarter Jay and Winant sank double-deckers with Bedell's foul shot to reinforce them, and for the Seniors Meehan and Rich came through, the former with a field goal and the latter with a foul shot making the score 7 to 3 in favor of the Sophs.

As the game continued on its second lap, the Seniors began to resort to their reserve. A wiry and evasive little chap, Elowitch was substituted for Beer and Scutaks for Rich. The Sophs were on a rampage of scoring and were to be stopped by no one. Winant also blessed with the spirit of the Sophs, sank two double talties and a foul shot. Newcomb added a long shot. Bedell tossed in a double decker and a free try, and Armstrong also ran. The Seniors had to be content without scoring during this period. The score at the half was 19 to 3, decidedly in favor of the Sophs.

At the opening of the second half, the underclassmen entered an altogether new team except for Winant who throughout the game displayed some expert handling of the sphere. The substitutes were Prouty, Riant, Baird and Bove.



A little after the beginning of the last voyage, after having added three more points, the Sophs entered their former aggregation in order to cut off the Seniors' scalp more cleanly. During this period the former added eighteen points to the Seniors' three.

ASSOCIATION SECRETARY AT CONFERENCE FRIDAY

M. D. Powers of the V. C. A. Represents Vermont at Three-Day Student-Teacher Conference

Marcus D. Powers representing the University and the Vermont Christian Association was present at the sessions of the student-teacher conference at Lyndon [illegible] Mass. December 13-15.

Many good has been expressed for a closer cooperation between student and teachers in an attempt to find the values needed for life in the modern world. The purpose of the conference was to face frankly the needs of modern life and to consider the place of religion in experience.

In view of the fact that there have been many clashes between theists and humanists representative men of both factions were invited to attend the sessions. The entire conference was pervaded with an atmosphere that would a closer relation between students and teachers, one more likely to develop on the campuses of eastern colleges.

Midd President Holds Degree-seeking is Not True Education

warning educations. But colleges cannot make stupid people clever nor can they make dull people bright, the speaker declared. "It is up to the student to educate himself."

"Thinking students may seem slow," said Dr Moody, "but they are the ones who are educating themselves and are not merely obtaining a diploma. Such students are sometimes unpopular with their teachers." Dr. Moody cited the instance of a student who took some courses two or three times even after he had successfully passed his examinations. The student did this because he was not satisfied that he knew enough about the various subjects he repeated even though his instructors had given him passing marks.

Referring to the teacher, Dr Moody held that many teachers, although well versed in their subjects, fail to impress their students and set them to thinking for themselves. The true teacher makes his student aware of his ignorance in such a way that he has a desire to learn. The really learned man is humble, declared the speaker, while the cocksure person is much the other way.

Dr. Moody concluded his address with the statement: "All true education is self-education; the rest is all a sham."

John E. Colburn, principal of the Edmunds High School and president of the Phi Beta Kappa society, presided at the banquet and introduced the speaker.

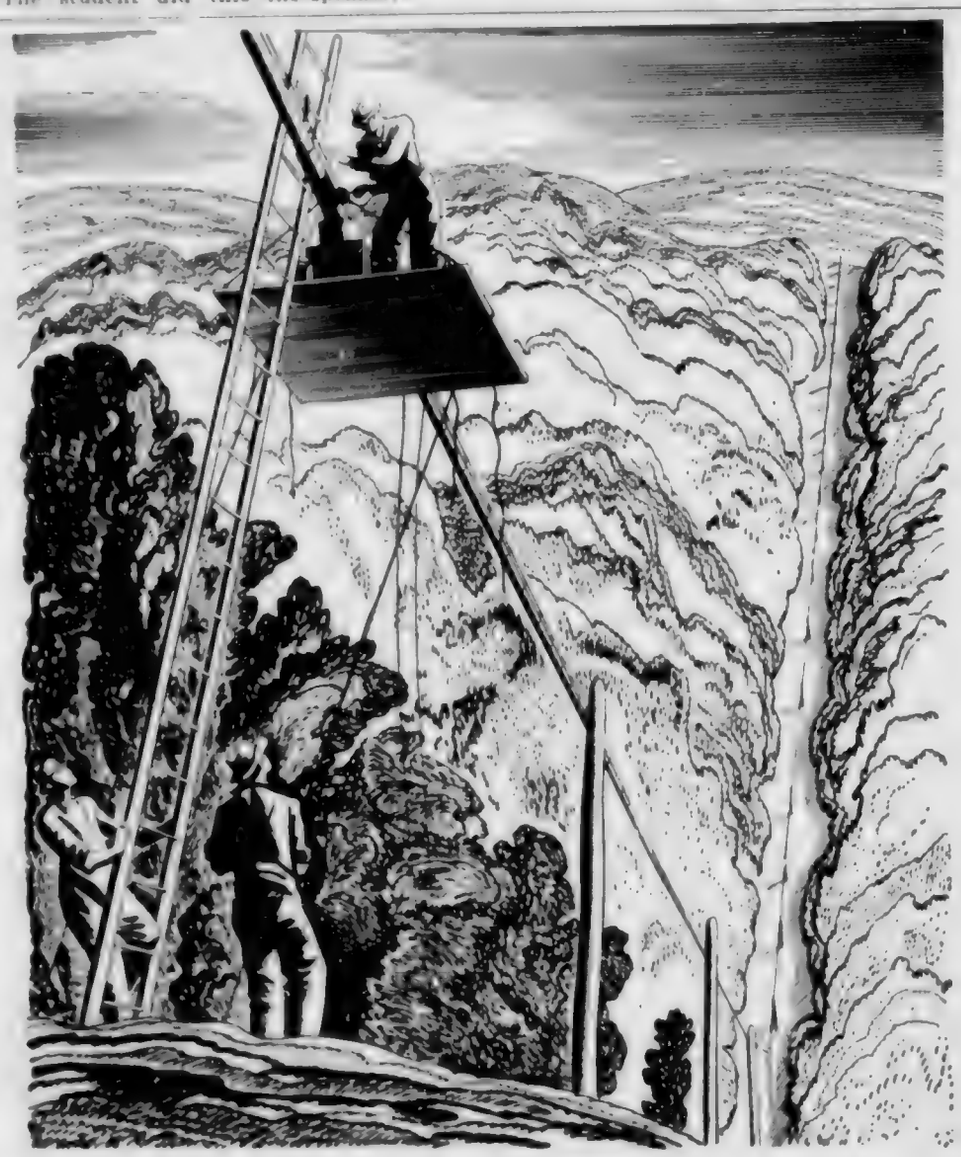
FACULTY BRUSHING UP ON PHYSICAL CONDITION

The faculty is hard at work in the gym getting into physical trim for [illegible] years with the help of Howard Prentice. The "boys" are not getting into shape in order to repulse attacks by their students, but it is felt that being in good shape physically they [illegible] and wield a red pencil too severely.

The class meets Wednesdays and Fridays. A group of twelve usually report for the fight against avoirdupois. They go through a rather stiff routine of setting up exercises, after warming up some with the medicine ball while the more talented try to throw a ball through the hoop. Possibly there will be interdepartment meets in the various sports. With such stalwarts as the German Department has it should win easily.

In between times Mr Prentice is trying to produce the perfect man. He is starting from the ground up this week, working on feet at present. Anyone in college with imperfect feet should report for corrective exercise if he so desires.

"MESSIAH" IS PLEASING XMAS CONCERT EVENT



Chimes and organ bursting [illegible] joyful strains of Bach's "In dulci jubilo" opened the Christmas [illegible] in the Ira Allen Chapel Sunday afternoon before a capacity audience faculty, students and townspeople [illegible] the first part of the "Messiah" Frederick Handel's oratorio [illegible] sented by the University [illegible] the student instrumental [illegible] under the direction of Prof [illegible] G Bennett.

The organ prelude and processional hymn "In dulci jubilo," the fourteenth century melody, was sung in the distance as the [illegible] carolers entered the chapel, and then proceeded, singing, down the aisle to the platform. Dr. Smart read from the Scripture of Isaiah's prophecy of the coming of the Messiah. The scripture and prayer were followed by a German harmony of Prætorius.

The overture that followed presented the world before the coming of the Messiah—now sad, now rejoicing after unattainable joy, the minor key contrasting with the major of "Comfort Ye, My People." Some say it represents Handel himself, despairing whether he can rise "to the height of this great argument," then summoning strength and courage.

Then followed the body of the oratorio with Roger Allbee, Mailla Putnam, Harrison Goddard, Hazel Ladd, Dorothy Fowler and Marion Baldwin singing the solo parts.

The program closed with Handel's familiar hymn "Joy to the World" in which the congregation joined in the singing. Prayer and benediction by the Rev. I. C. Smart, was followed by the response: "Silent Night" ("Stille Nacht,") by Gruber. The recessional "Adeste Fideles," by the choir and the Amen which was sung outside, as by heavenly hosts, brought the program to a fitting close.

Telephony knows no barriers

Telephone lines must cross natural barriers. This means construction methods must be flexible, readily varied to peculiar local conditions.

Special problems arise, too, in telephone laboratory, factory and central office. How to protect poles from insect attack? How to develop more compact equipment for use in manholes? How to assure a sufficient number of trained operators? How to build long distance business?

It takes resourcefulness to find the answers, to surmount the barriers. There is no stereotyped way.

NEWMAN CLUB PLANS AND DINES AT MEETING

A program for the winter season which will include the presentation of a Newman Club play, was formulated at a meeting of the club at a Sunday morning breakfast in the Cathedral High School gymnasium this week. The program also calls for a dance on January 11

The breakfast came as a surprise to the members and soon became a veritable Christmas gathering. A Santa Claus, impersonated by a member of the club, distributed gifts to the guests, whose enthusiastic reception of the entertainment was rewarded with the sight of a highly decorated Christmas tree.

The club this year is under the active direction of the president, F A. McBride, '31.

A. S. M. E. HEARS ABOUT INTERNAL GRINDER FROM SPRINGFIELD ENGINEER

Chief Engineer of Bryant Company Speaks Before Student Group on His Company's Product

Joseph Johnson, chief engineer of the Bryant Chucking Grinder Company of Springfield, Vt., addressed the Vermont branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers last Friday afternoon on the internal grinder, of which the Bryant Company is a large manufacturer.

Remarking on the rapid progress in all engineering and especially in Mechanical Engineering during and since the World War, Mr. Johnson noted how changing trend of times makes luxuries of today the necessities of tomorrow.

The age of aviation, which is about to dawn upon us, continued the speaker, is especially significant to mechanical engineers and incidentally to the manufacturer of grinders, because the grinders are the machine tools, or the master tools, of industry. The master tools are those which turn out other tools and southern Vermont is one of the largest manufacturing centers for machine tools in the world. In Springfield and in Windsor are large machine shops manufacturing such mechanical giants as the Gridley Automatic, the Cone Automatic and the Bryant Grinders.

Lessening of Waste

Mr. Johnson, then taking up internal grinding in detail, described the various kinds of grinding, telling how each is used and for what purposes Again he spoke of the enormous improvement in this connection during the last eight or ten years. One of the greatest improvements lies in the lessening of waste motion and in making the minimum hand labor produce the maximum results.

ORATORY, HUMOR IN FRESHMAN DEBATE

Women Defeat Men in Class Championship Debate, Orators Throwing Seriousness to the Winds

MEN CONTEND WOMAN'S PLACE IS IN THE HOME

The mental superiority of the co-ed, in the ratio of two to one over mere man, was decisively established Tuesday evening in the Old Mill Chapel, when the freshman women's debaters reduced the arguments advanced by the freshman men's debating team to ineffectual pleading. While Professor Leon Dean, traditional chairman and last-minute speaker did his best to preserve order, the question, "Resolved that woman's emergence from the home is a regrettable feature of modern life," was beaten to insensibility. In the rôle of arbiters of eloquence, Professors L. L. Briggs and K. J. Sheldon, of the University, and Mrs. Martin S. Vilas of Burlington standing up underneath the attacks of violent oratory and touching word paintings finally brought in the decision, two to one for the negative

The men, who insisted that woman's place is in the home, were Reardon Donaghy, Russell Colburn and Edward Bigelow. These men, despite their experience, their victory over the sophomores, and their sex, were not equal to the mental plane of the women. Laura Johnson, Sylvia Boyd, Caroline Taft and Marion Kiel, who served as alternate

The Debate Begins

With touching eloquence Reardon Donaghy proceeded to paint the picture of a happy home, with the finest cat in the world, the sister eagerly awaiting Santa Claus, and the great woman of America, the mother. Emergence from the home, he held, means the lowering of woman's social position; means, to the married, embarrassment for the husband.

Laura Johnson, quoting eminent essayists, defended grammar school education. It is obvious to any enlightened human being said she, that one natural result of emergence is improvement of marriage standards. Moreover, the woman earning her liv-

OWL DINNER-DANCE TO OCCUR AFTER VACATION

There is a vague air of mystery surrounding one of the fraternity houses on the campus. An annual event is in the offing and the Owls are preparing for their ninety-fourth annual dinner-dance. Social affairs come and go but there is always intense interest in this yearly social achievement of the oldest fraternity on the hill

It is said that several fair co-eds are already carefully planning gowns for this event Coming as it does after the Christmas holidays it starts the round of winter dances which mean so much to the students Easily voted the most elaborate of the house dances every year it behooves one to watch results with interest

TWENTY ALUMNI CLUBS IN TEN STATES ACTIVE IN BEHALF OF VERMONT

Are Well Organized, Especially in Massachusetts, Connecticut and New York State

"Sixteen alumni groups, three alumnae clubs, and one alumni medical club are functioning for a greater University of Vermont," explained Miss Margaret Patten, in answer to a Cynic reporter's inquiries the other day Miss Patten, a graduate in the class of 1919, is business manager of the Vermont Alumni Weekly, of which Prof. Leon W. Dean, '15 is editor

The alumni medical club has its headquarters in Northern New Jersey. The other sixteen alumni clubs admit both men and women graduates as members

The following are the locations and the present heads of the various clubs the Burlington Alumnae Association, of which Anna C. Smith, '18, is president; the Central Alumni Association of Boston, Thomas J. Mulcare, '09, president; the Western Massachusetts Alumni Association, Springfield, Mass., Albert L. Gutterson, '12, president, the Rhode Island Alumni Association, Harold I. Huey, '04, president, the Hartford, Conn., Alumni Association, James Naylor, '95, president, the Hartford, Conn., Alumnae Association, Charlotte Tooney, '24, president; the Waterbury, Conn., Alumni Association, Dr. Edwin H. Johnson, '88, president; the Connecticut State Alumni Association, Dr. James Naylor, '95, president.

The New York Alumni Association, James R. Jenning, 21, president, the New York Alumnae Association, Mrs Julia Rogers, '19, president, the Eastern New York Alumni Association headquarters in Schenectady, John Downer, '10, president; the Central New York Alumni Association, headquarters in Syracuse, Walter T. SEES POSITIVISM A LITERARY INFLUENCE

Discussing Positivist and Determinist Philosophies Before John Dewey Club, Myrick Notes Their Effect on Literature

TAINE AND COMTE ARE SUBJECTS OF ADDRESS

The determining influence in Taine's life was philosophical, said Professor A. B. Myrick, speaking on "Hippolyte Taine and the Influence of Positivism and Determinism on Modern Literature" at the John Dewey Philosophy Club meeting last Tuesday evening.

Two things are outstanding in a perusal of this subject asserted the speaker. First, there is a decided difference in the language used by philosophers, scientists and literary men. Secondly the fact of the relativity of literary movements is noteworthy. John Dewey's definition of Classicism and Romanticism, which he made at the recent Marsh lecture, does not seem to hold true in literature. The Classicists were quite far from the material worlds while the Romanticists could not shake off the material factor. In fact, when the higher enthusiasm of the romantic movement died away, sheer realism was left.

It should be remembered that there was a scientific revival about the same time, early in the 1800's

Three Stages of Thought

In the first quarter of the eighteenth century appeared Comte with his new philosophical system. The speaker proceeded to discuss Comte's system. All of our knowledge, maintained Comte, passes through three stages. First is the theological stage, wherein immediate volition and recourse to supernatural interpretations holds sway. Secondly comes the metaphysical stage, and here the abstract force is substituted for the divine. Thirdly is the positive stage, in which every phenomenon is related by succession or resemblance to some other phenomenon

Comte's social science was to be placed on a parity with the natural sciences. When the positivist theory is applied to the political events in the seventeenth century we find, first, the transferred divine rights; secondly, the sovereignty of the people; and thirdly, the evolution of a social group out of the complex situation

Hippolyte Taine, said Professor Myrick, had more influence on the historical and critical literature than any other man in the 19th century. From

MABEL FREEMAN TELLS OF PENN CONFERENCE

Mabel Freeman, reporting on the Mortar Board Conference at the University of Pennsylvania November 29, spoke on "The Phases of Mortar Board and What it Stands For," at a dinner given by Dean Marian Patterson to the Vermont active chapter, last Tuesday evening at Robinson Hall.

Among the guests were Professor Kathrina H. Storms of the English department, Miss Alice Blanchard, physical education instructor, Miss Eleanor S. Cummings, assistant physical education instructor, Miss Anna C. Smith, secretary to the president, Miss Alice E. Blundell, assistant professor of home economics, and Marion Baldwin, P. G.

Miss Freeman, discussing the work of the convention, explained the reports of the chapters represented: Cornell, Pennsylvania, Swarthmore, William and Mary, and Vermont. Among the topics debated were: Vocational Work, Campus Opinion of New Members, Scholarship versus Leadership, Faculty Committees and How to Use Them, Fall Tapping and Honorary Members, and Vocational Guidance.

EDUCATION

[illegible]

[illegible] 1870 high school attendance accounted for five and one-half percent of all children of high school age; by 1927 the proportion was [illegible]. Expansion in the field of higher education has followed a similar course although growth here has been more recent in point of time, centering chiefly since the close of the World War. The number of students in colleges, universities and professional schools of college grade in 1870 was 157,000. In 1926 the last year for which complete returns are available the million mark was passed. In 1890 one and one-half percent of the population of college age were enrolled in institutions of higher learning; in 1926 that percentage had risen to [illegible].

Many factors undoubtedly are responsible for this remarkable growth of college enrollment. Three of these are pointed out by Professor [illegible] of the University of Pennsylvania as follows:

1. The collegiate ethics is symptomatic of the prevailing spirit of conformity [illegible] is a gregarious age—analytical curiosity unfettered.

2. Collegiate enrollment may be interpreted as an index of the cultural prosperity, as significant in this respect as the increase in the number of automobiles.

3. The rapid increase is the increased recognition of the material value of a higher education both to the student and to society.

CAT'S MEOW

—SPORTING EDITOR—

Norwich lost to U. S. Coast Guard Academy 20 to 11 Monday night in a slow basketball game at New London Conn. Coast Guard will bring the same team here in February that almost took the Cats into camp last year.

Lowell Tech, coached by "Rusty" Yarnall, U. V. M. '26, has the five men who started against Vermont a year ago. They play their first game January 10, but expect a good team, despite the late start.

Many sports writers are already looking up to Providence and Dartmouth as leading eastern quintets for 1929-1930. Wineapple is Providence's only absentee. Dartmouth rolled up a 47 to 18 score against Brown last Saturday and held the Bruins to six floor baskets. Vermont could score only three from the floor. That Stark defense must be good, not to mention the offense. McGee, sub forward, scored 27 points in the first two contests.

From Hanover, N. H., the news comes that the Dartmouth Athletic Council has ratified the Green baseball schedule which includes a game with the Catamounts on May 30 to be held at Centennial Field. With Charlie Cummings on the mound we look forward to sending the Indians back a gloomy but just so much the wiser tribe.

Harvard, Dartmouth, McGill and Vermont are included in the Norwich fencing schedule of eight matches, announced by Col. F. B. Edwards, coach. The cadets will also enter the Provincial Tournaments and the Annual Intercollegiate Meet which will be held in Boston during the month of April.

Western Maryland, with a total of eleven wins and no losses leads the state of the nation's best in football. Thirteen other unbeaten teams trailed the Harlow eleven with records varying from nine straight triumphs of Ohio, Tulane, Pittsburgh and Notre Dame to six victories and four ties that comprised Southern Methodist's record for the season.

LEVINE ELIGIBILITY MANAGER FOR 1930

Shake-Up in Department Results in Appointment of Football Captain as its Head

IS ALREADY AT WORK WITH FOUR ASSISTANTS

Failure to function on the part of the department of Athletic Eligibility has resulted in a considerable shake up of the department, accompanied by the ousting of the acting manager, Professor D. B. Carroll, faculty sponsor of the work of the eligibility department, at whose instigation the changes were made, forthwith appointed H. B. "Bump" Levine head of the department, and the new manager, given a free hand, immediately set to work with the aid of his four assistant managers Stewart Corbin, Louis Eisman, Hugh Mattison and Truman Webster.

It is the task of the eligibility manager to keep track of the scholastic standing of all athletes, and, above all, to assist them either by tutoring or by procuring tutors for them whenever they go under warning or otherwise involve themselves in scholastic difficulties. As a sample of the department's work, of the ninety-five men on the varsity and freshman football and basketball squads and on the hockey squad, the eligibility department, in its most active year, kept track of the fifty-five outstanding men who, at any time, threatened to be involved in difficulties with their studies. Twenty-nine of them were freshmen and twenty-six upperclassmen, since the mortality rate among first-year men is much higher than that of the men in the other three classes. Reports on each man were drawn from the offices of the deans twice before mid-years and the grades of all men under warning were very carefully watched. Keeping the frosh up in their studies and getting upperclassmen on of warning occupied the attention of the eligibility department the greater part of the time.

A practice inaugurated by Manager Fogg two years ago of holding conferences between the faculty supervisor and leading athletes under warning will probably again be employed under the new administration. Letters of appreciation are sent to men who have assisted either in tutoring or coaching low men during the year.

The new manager is not only one of the outstanding athletes at Vermont, captaining last season's football team, but he has also had a faculty for keeping his grades well above par, last semester being the only athlete in his class to make the dean's list. "Bump" has his department well under way now and plans to issue a call for further scrubs to assist in his program immediately after the vacation.

MEETING OF RIFLE TEAM BRINGS OUT EIGHTEEN

The first meeting of those interested in the rifle team was held Friday in the University gymnasium.

Capt. Berry, who is at present coaching the basketball team, will also coach the rifle team. A. L. Wardell will captain the team this year and A. H. Roller is the manager.

Eighteen men were out Friday, but Capt. Berry would like a squad of about thirty to start with. The squad will not be definitely picked until after mid-years, so those who have any intention of trying out for the team are urged to do so at once.

The shooting gallery is open five days a week from 2.00 until 4.30 p.m. Anyone on the squad who wishes to practice during Christmas vacation may see Capt. Berry to make arrangements.

Declares Religion Has Something for All in Chapel Sermon

ligion, while the cultured and learned do not. To the latter it is only another theory to be expounded.

"With the Christmas legend religion makes a universal appeal to both the simple and the wise of all ages."

The Reverend Mitchell related the beautiful story told by Temple Bailey, "The Star in the Well."

A certain learned father had come to believe that the story of the birth of Christ was only pagan folk-lore. His little daughter, who had believed the story, when told this by her father, mourned over the fact that the star was lost. The father was concerned with her mental and physical life but cared little for her soul.

He fell ill and dreamed of his childhood and of his father's faith and the story of the "Well of the Magi." He visited his old home and became impelled by the spirit of a past that he could not understand. The little child led him to the "Well" where they both saw the star—she a simple believing child, and he a learned professor.

In conclusion the speaker said, "Shepherds and Magi met at the Cradle and both found the true spirit of Christmas and the meaning of religion. Each and all of us meet at Christmas and are led by its spirit to larger things of the soul."

JANUARY 4 IS DATE OF FIRST BASKETBALL GAME

By Doug Stewart

Basketball fans will not have to wait long after the opening of classes after the Christmas recess for the Green and Gold five are scheduled to meet the quintet from the Ithaca School of Physical Education on the home court, Saturday, January 4. This will be the first time that the future coaches have appeared on a Vermont basketball court, and the game should be something to look forward to. Ithaca always puts a good athletic team on the field in almost every game and it is doubtful that they will slip up this year. However, the Catamounts are steadily rounding into shape and perfecting their game and when the Ithacans invade the lair they won't find any pushover waiting for them. In the McGill game they showed what they could do. Their passing was good and their defense was impregnable. In spite of the two week lay off at Christmas they should be in prime shape for the battle. Sargent should be all ready to take the floor after a pause due to his bad ankle and that will be a big addition to the squad. It takes a good jumper to get the tap against the lanky college centers. Tobin, who has been occupying the pivot berth will probably once more be in his natural position at guard. Manning as usual will occupy his old berth in the backcourt, and between the two of them they should do a pretty good job at keeping their opponents from the basket. In the forward positions Capt. Halligan and Bernstein will probably hold sway and it will take good guarding to keep the two of them away from the goal. Halligan's eye and his dazzling bursts of speed are enough to bewilder any team, and this probably will hold true in the coming game. Bernstein's floor work is his forte and is a decided asset in steadying the attack.

A. S. M. E. Hears About Internal Grinder from Engineer

The origin, development and mechanism of the many types of Bryant Grinders each came in for its share of Mr. Johnson's attention. The speaker next called attention to the field of industry with which the grinder is most closely associated, that of the automobile. Likewise he prophesied that with the increased use of aeroplanes for commercial purposes grinders would be even more necessary. Here Mr. Johnson told how those parts of Colonel Lindbergh's aeroplane, "The Spirit of St. Louis," which were finished by internal grinding were all done in a machine turned out by the Bryant Company.

The speaker was introduced by Prof. V. R. Yates of the department of Mechanical Engineering.

National Student Federation Calls For Establishment of Honor System

A National Student Federation [illegible] interested in the extension of the honor system through the Uni[illegible] at the United States has issued a comprehensive statement on the subject in preparation for its annual meeting at Stanford University [illegible] Declared the committee in its report

Of all the problems that confront college leaders and college administrators that of student honesty in examination work and campus relations is probably the one that is first in importance and interest today When students meet this problem consumes a large part of the time given for discussion of student problems; when college administrators meet, this problem is widely discussed It is a perplexing problem it is an important one

Some colleges and universities attempt to solve this problem of student honesty by means of the honor system Under the honor system, broadly speaking the students are given absolute freedom from surveillance by faculty members or proctors. It is assumed that the students are honest, and they are dealt with on that basis. Their signature to papers, or in some instances to a special pledge, vouches for the fact that the work represented to be his own was done by the student himself, and by him alone. His word is his bond.

Those colleges which use the honor system as a rule, believe that it is efficacious in instilling into students a love and respect for honest dealings one with the other; that it is a vital force in the building of character in students; and that it inculcates into the college youth strong and lasting principles of good citizenship that will serve him well in after-college days, when he has left the protecting influence of college professors and fellow-students, and the wholesome deterrent effect of student disapproval of shady conduct

On the other hand, many colleges, in fact a majority of the colleges of the United States, do not favor the honor system. They see no advantages to be derived from it; they consider such a system to be a license to the students to cheat. They think that its advantages are greatly outweighed by its disadvantages; they consider that such matters are academic, and that they should be handled by paid faculty members rather than by students whose experience is comparatively limited and whose judgment is not fully developed.

Between the honor system, in which faculty control is nil, and the system of faculty espionage, in which student control is nil, are many intermediary systems. In some colleges the honor system is in force in certain departments; in some it applies to matters outside the classroom; but in most of them the honor system attempts primarily to regular honesty in scholastic work.

History of the Honor System

Four colleges claim the honor of having been the initiator of the honor system. William and Mary College claims to have begun the use of the system in 1779. South Carolina College (now the University of South Carolina) claims to have begun the use of the honor system at its founding in 1801. The University of Virginia claims to have initiated the system in 1842. Finally, Washington and Lee University puts forth claims to having been the originator of the honor system, their claim dating back to the administration of General Lee as president.

It is impossible to say exactly which of these colleges is in fact the mother of the honor system. Probably William and Mary College did have some kind of system under which the students were placed upon their honor, and under which an honor system prevailed in spirit. Perhaps the honor of the students was appealed to at South Carolina College from the time of its inception. But the preponderance of the evidence seems to show that the University of Virginia was the first institution to make definite plans for an honor system, to [illegible] upon honor code and to [illegible] into plan of legislation [illegible] system of penalties

Washington and Lee [illegible] back to the administration of Lee, following the Civil War fore, the University's claim [illegible] that of Washington and Lee [illegible] of years or more. However ington and Lee can indisputably claim to having the oldest student honor system in the States, for at that institution honor system embraces every student life.

The honor system originated South. It spread slowly at [illegible] cause it was a marked departure the Old World idea of govern[illegible] dents. It was a pioneer step [illegible] educational field, taken in a [illegible] period of a new country the [illegible] States—by pioneer spirits in the [illegible] of education and progress [illegible] significant fact that the system [illegible] nated in this new democratic country

After the Civil War the honor system spread faster. Many other southern colleges began to adopt the system, and many colleges in other sections of the United States began to recognize its values and to adopt it. From 1860 to 1890 the number of colleges using the system increased greatly. From 1890 to 1910 the number increased still faster In 1911 more colleges adopted the system than in any other year up to that time From 1911 to the present there has been a steady increase in the number of colleges that have adopted the honor system. At the present time approximately 39% of the colleges and universities of the United States have it.

Present Status of the Honor System

Eighteen months ago the present chairman of the Committee on the honor system for the N. S. F. A gathered extensive information concerning the prevalence of the honor system in American colleges and universities. The information gathered then is believed to be valuable; conditions have not changed materially since that time.

In reply to a general questionnaire containing questions pertinent to the honor system, 417 colleges sent information. One hundred and sixty more, or 39%, of these colleges operate under some kind of honor system. In 13[illegible] of them it is used wholly; in 31 of them it is used only partially [illegible] these 31, 21 use it only in certain select advance classes, seven employ it in certain departments only, while three have the system in handling matters that do not pertain to examinations (e.g., the handling of library books).

On the other hand, 251, or 61% of the colleges replying do not have the honor system. They operate under the faculty espionage or the proctor system, whereby the students are closely watched while they take their examinations, whereby no trust is placed in them, and whereby the shrewder man wins, be he the student or the instructor.

This survey shows that there are now 10% more colleges using the honor system than were shown by a similar survey to be using it in 1911. In that year 66% of the colleges using the system were colleges for men, 17% were colleges for women only, and 17% of them were co-educational. In 1928, 15% of those using it were for men, 35% were for women, and 50% were co-educational.

Of the 160 colleges using the system, 61, or 39%, are colleges whose student bodies range from [illegible] to 1,500 in number; 54, or 35%, have an enrollment of from 200 to 500; 18, or 11%, have an enrollment of less than 200; 13, or 8%, have an enrollment ranging from 1,500 to 3,000; and 9, or 5.5% of the colleges using the honor system have 3,000 students or more. Of the 160 honor system colleges, 41% are situated in the East, 36% of them are situated in the Northeast, 15% are in the North central section, and 8% are in the Western part of the United States.

Of all the colleges in the South replied, 60% use the honor system. Thirty-six percent of all the colleges in the Northeastern group that replied use the system. Twenty-three percent of the colleges of the North central group use it, while 35% of the colleges of the Western group that sent information have the honor system.

In several universities in the United States the honor system works especially well in the Law School. The students of law any more honorable than any other class of professional students or undergraduates? Professional ethics tend to cause students who would cheat and defraud in the School of Arts and Sciences to abandon abruptly such practices upon entering a professional school.

One university has the honor system only in its School of Speech, another has it in its School of Business Administration; another has it in its School of Veterinary; another has it in its School of Engineering, and still another university has the honor system in its School of Architecture.

Relics from the Orient! It is impossible to overestimate the importance of a school such as this. When [illegible] Western World and are walled away [illegible] and confinement. Above the door hangs a tapestry of satin and gold from a mosque in Damascus. Before you are shining ornaments of [illegible] Moslems were and treasure gems [illegible] the walls. Here is a scimitar such as Saracens might have wielded and seen prominent dangers [illegible] Beside it are shields and helmets of rosewood and hammered copper with detail that is infinite. On the same wall is the huge knife of a Dyak from Borneo. Its blade is painted with fine and twenty pegs of brass to which [illegible] and twenty human heads have fallen by that knife.

Whereas the conditions existing at the University of Vermont are undoubtedly laid an imposition upon him which [illegible] to engage for the high and lofty sole purpose of having a good time and

Whereas unless said conditions are immediately corrected without further delay the University of Vermont will surely cease to exist

We princes and lords of the mighty Converse Castle do herewith demand that the following resolutions be put into effect by January 1, 1930

1. That the childish ruling of compulsory attendance to classes be done away with in due recognition of the dignity and integrity of the students.

2. That afternoon classes become a thing of the past They are a vicious imposition upon the individual freedom of the student

3. That the abominable length of each class hour be reduced to a more [illegible] of thirty minutes. To make the student sit in boredom for fifty minutes is an attack upon his good will

4. That the practice of giving examinations is detestable unnecessary and places too much upon the student's time

5. That two hours be the maximum amount of time for class room exercises each day

6. That outside work in one's course drives one to drink This custom must simply cease to be No arguing permitted

7. That Saturday morning classes are entirely uncalled for and that this requirement is an excellent example of the exploitation of the most worthy students

8. That once a month a week of classes shall be cut down to two days in order that the hard working struggling students may catch up on the lengthy assignments that have been inconsiderately thrust upon them by the heartless professors

9. That the housing facilities be entirely made over New dormitories must be built that will house all of the students In these new dormitories must be suites of four rooms. Each suite will be entirely isolated from all others and the residents of each suite shall consist of one, young, instructor, two men, and one student.

10. That every dormitory shall have an adequate swimming pool, gymnasium and recreation room

11. That rents of the present facilities shall not be increased because of these added necessary features.

12. That there be constructed, preferably on the back campus, a Student Union Building, which shall contain facilities for the some odd fifty or [illegible] organizations existent on the campus, and the principal feature of which shall be a hall for recreation. Dancing, the presentation of plays, parties, etc.—all of these must be adequately taken care of in the new building

13. That the rules governing the conduct of the co-eds at the University are too strict, unfair, and unworthy of the fair members of the female sex. Rules should be abolished altogether.

14. That the University authorities appropriate a sum not less than $10,000 each year to hire athletes of worthy merit to attend the University. We students are very insistent upon this demand.

15. That any compulsory feature whatsoever possesses a degrading effect upon the expanding and budding personality of we who honor the University with our presence

15. Finally, that unless our demands are satisfied within the time stipulated, there shall be a mass revolt against the present system which will be extremely detrimental to the institution.

PROFESSOR F. TUPPER HEADS LANGUAGE ASSOC.

Professor Frederick Tupper, head of the English Department at the University of Vermont, has been elected president of the Modern Language Association of America at the meeting held in Cleveland, Ohio, the early part of this week, according to word which reached Burlington. Professor Tupper and Professor F. D. Carpenter of the Department of German at the University have been in attendance at the meeting.

The Modern Language Association of America is composed of professors of English, French, German, Spanish and Italian in the colleges of the United States and Canada. It has about 3,000 members, and to be elected head of the organization is considered quite an honor.

HIGH SCHOOLS AGAIN TO COMPETE FOR DEBATING AWARDS FROM VERMONT

First Debate to be Held Before February 22 and the Third Before March 15—Three New High Schools Enter Contest

Sponsored by the University of Vermont, who annually awards a full year's scholarship to the champions and a half year's scholarship to the losers, the Interscholastic Debating League of Vermont, through its secretary, J. A. Boyd, of Montpelier High School, has announced the question to be debated in the contest this season. "Resolved: That All Vermont Waterpower Projects Should be Owned and Operated by the State, Rather Than by Private Interests," is the question which has been chosen.

Three New Members

Middlebury, Northfield and Cathedral High Schools are listed in the schedule of the preliminary district debates to be held soon. The following high schools are also participating in the contest this year: Hardwick, Fair Haven, Montpelier, Waterbury, Bellows Falls, Windsor, Woodstock.

Former Champions

Wallingford High School debaters were champions in last year's contest on the abolition of the jury system. People's Academy of Morrisville were runners-up last year as well as 1929. Burlington High School were 1928 champions and runners-up in 1927. Bradford High School were the 1927 champions; and Brattleboro High were champions in 1925, and runners-up in 1926.

Schools in Three Groups

Except in Group 1, which has only three schools, each school will engage in three preliminary debates, meeting each of the other three schools in its group. The dates will be arranged by the schools themselves, but the first debate must be finished before February 1, the second before February 22 and the third before March 15. The winners in each group will compete for the state championship

In Group 1 are Middlebury, Fair Haven and Wallingford High, in Group

JUNIOR CLASS PHOTOGRAPHER BACK AGAIN FOR REST OF PICTURES

The business manager of the Ariel announces that the Ariel photographer from the White Studios of New York will be back in Burlington Friday noon to finish his work taking pictures for the Junior Year Book. Those who did not have their picture taken when the photographer was first here must do so at once. Those who want any retakes will also have an opportunity to get them at this time.

The results obtained from dealing with the White Studios this year have been very satisfactory. Many juniors have reordered pictures to send their friends.

MASS. STUDENTS MUST REGISTER CARS IN VT.

Pres. Guy W. Bailey recently received the following letter from the Massachusetts Department of Motor Vehicles:

Hon. Guy Bailey, President,
University of Vermont,
Burlington, Vt.

Dear Sir:

Under a recent decision of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, the Registrar of Motor Vehicles in Massachusetts is requiring Vermont students attending colleges and preparatory schools in that state to register their motor vehicles there. I was very sorry to learn of this from the Massachusetts department, as it has been my policy to permit students from Massachusetts to operate their motor vehicles bearing Massachusetts plates while they were in Vermont attending our schools

Under the Vermont reciprocity law, I can no longer extend this privilege, and I will appreciate your calling to the attention of any students in your institution whose residences are in Massachusetts the fact that if they have cars in Vermont in 1930 they must register them and carry Vermont plates thereon. It will also be necessary for Massachusetts residents to procure Vermont operators' licenses, if they are to operate motor vehicles in Vermont.

Please let it be understood that this letter applies only to Massachusetts residents and to Massachusetts cars and operators' licenses. I regret exceedingly to have to take this action, which is based entirely on the action taken by the Massachusetts Department of Public Works

Yours truly,
CHAS. T. PIERCE,
Commissioner.

Studies, Extra-Curricular Activities, Work, and Success

Col. R. I. Rees, assistant vice-president of The American Telephone and Telegraph Company, said most students spend their time in three ways study, extra-curricular activities, and working for at least part of their expenses.

The Bell system studied very carefully the relation between time spent on those three things and success after leaving college and found that good scholarship was most indicative of success.

WOMEN'S GLEE CLUB TO STAGE CANTATA FRIDAY

Under the direction of Prof Howard G Bennett, head of the music department of the University, the Women's Glee Club will stage the cantata entitled "Damozel" by Debussy next Friday night in the gymnasium at 8.15. It is free to the public

The choral composition will be assisted by an instrument ensemble consisting of Miss Charlotte deVolt interptor violin, Julia Waterman, violin Robert Jenks flutist, David Jenks, cellist, Roger Allbee, cornetist Katrina Munn, pianist, and Hazel Ladd and Cynthia Lynch, vocal soloists.

FACULTY MEMBERS ARE BUSY DURING VACATION AT DEPARTMENT TALKS

Department Heads and Members Journey to Various Parts of the Country to Speak and Listen

Several of the faculty members of the University of Vermont spent the latter part of the holiday vacation at the departmental meetings in various parts of the country. Professor Samuel E. Bassett, Professor Lester M. Prindle and Professor George V Kidder of the Greek and Latin departments went to Boston to attend the meeting of the American Classical Association. Professor G. G. Groat of the Economics department journeyed to Washington to attend a meeting of the American Economics Association Professor Frederick Tupper of the department of English and Professor F. D. Carpenter of the department of German attended the meeting of the American Modern Language Association at Cleveland, Ohio, at which Professor Tupper led a discussion on the relation of literature and philology Professor E. C. Jacobs of the department of Geology and Mineralogy has gone to Washington to attend a meeting of the Geological Society of America. Professor H. F. Perkins went to New York, where, according to his annual custom, he took a party of his students on a personally conducted tour of the American Natural History Museum. There were 16 students in this party.

VERMONT BROADCASTING STATION SENDS OUT AN INTERESTING PROGRAM

WCAX, University of Vermont and State Agricultural College broadcasting station, broadcast the following program Friday, January 3

7.50 p.m.—Talk, "Records That Talk," Martha E. Leighton, assistant state 4-H Club Leader, Extension Service.

8.00 p.m.—Talk, "Poultry Diseases and their Treatment," Lester M Greene, instructor in poultry, College of Agriculture.

8.15 p.m.—Piano recital, Miriam N Marston, instructor in music, U. V M.

"Scenes from an Imaginary Ballet" Coleridge-Taylor
"Ballade in A-flat" Chopin
"The Swan" Palmgren
"Seguidillas" (Castilian Dance) Albaniz
"Liebestraum Number 3" Liszt
"Concert March in D-flat," Hollaender

Station WCAX is operating on a frequency of 1200 kilocycles by authority of the Federal Radio Commission After several successful seasons in operation WCAX was silent during the year 1928-29. The people of Vermont whom WCAX has always made it a point to serve were greatly pleased with the resumption of the broadcastings this year. In all events the abundance of favorable reports from all parts of the state would seem to indicate that the efforts of WCAX are not in vain.

To Hold Dance

The Women's Glee Club will hold a dance at the Music Building, Friday, January 10. Prof. and Mrs H G Bennett will be the chaperones.

S. K. RATCLIFFE TO LECTURE HERE SOON

Noted Authority on English Affairs to Talk Upon "America—Russia—Britain, Three Rival Systems"

WILL DISCUSS WHICH IS THE GREATEST OF THEM

S. K Ratcliffe will appear here on January 14, as the next University lecturer. He will speak upon "America Russia Britain: Three Rival Systems: And the Greatest of These—?" As usual the lecture will be held in the gymnasium and will commence at eight in the evening

Mr. S. K Ratcliffe is a London journalist. He also holds editorial positions in India. For a time now he has been on the editorial staff of the New Statesman, the most influential of the London weekly reviews, and he is a regular contributor to the Observer, the leading English Sunday paper.

He is a scholar of history and is thoroughly familiar with current affairs. In his work he has had unusual opportunities of knowing the men of the hour and of following the course of public movements and events.

What Shaw Says

G. Bernard Shaw says of him: "He has been on the track of every leader of today from the telltale time when only a few obscure followers expected anything from them. He remembers everything that they have forgotten He knows everybody worth knowing; and not one of them can tell you anything about him, or where and how they met him. Though they know he is a journalist they give him inside information as a matter of course, just as they give it to Colonel House; and they can't tell why. As a public speaker he is heard easily by everyone in the audience; and the art with which he effects this is perfectly concealed."

Mr. S. K. Ratcliffe has been coming annually to the United States for fifteen years to address the American people. Every winter since 1914 he has appeared before the Institute of Arts and Sciences at Columbia University, and last season he addressed the League for Political Education in New York City.

Authority on English Affairs

Mr. S. K. Ratcliffe is an authority upon English affairs, is well versed in the great Imperial problem of India, understands Asia, and is a student of the mass influence of moving pictures The students at Vermont and the people of Burlington who attend the lecture to be given next week by Mr. S. K Ratcliffe will hear a man interested in the many pressing social problems of the present day and will undoubtedly learn much of contemporary affairs in three of the leading world powers, America—Russia Britain.

UNIVERSITY SPONSORS THIRD STATE CONTEST IN SCHOOL ORATORY

With Burlington Free Press Will Prepare Entrant for National Oratorical Contest in Washington

Vermont's Third Oratorical contest will again be sponsored by the University in collaboration with the Burlington Free Press. Only students in the preparatory schools of this state are qualified to enter. It is a part of the Seventh National Oratorical Contest, the finals of which are held in the nation's capital city, Washington

C. H. Dempsey, state commissioner of education, has continued his approval, and the contest will follow the same general lines as last year

The state will be divided into districts, each including six or eight schools. The winners in these district contests will compete in Burlington under the auspices of the University of Vermont for the oratorical championship of the state. The state winner will be entered by the Burlington Free Press in the National Oratorical Contest

The University of Vermont is offering scholarships of $150 for the winner, $100 for second place and $75 for

MORE ABOUT THE BLUE LAWS AND NEW YORK'S BLUE LAW OF 1801

[illegible] upon the part of the anti-sex advocates to foist upon the people statutes as stringent as existed a century or more ago brought to light what was the first blue law passed by the Legislature of the state upon the Revolution. It was entitled an "Act for Suppressing Immorality" and passed the Legislature March 20, 1801.

[illegible] which declared it prohibited the punishment by [illegible] the fine and various penalties provided.

[illegible] shall be on Sunday, upon hearing or watching [illegible] or shooting with any gun, rifle, shooting piece, fowling piece, hunting, shooting at, or frequenting of tippling houses, or any noise in imitation or pretense for any person or persons within the State on the first day of the week commonly called Sunday.

And that every person of the age of fourteen or upwards offending as in the foregoing shall for every such offence forfeit and pay to the use of the poor of the city or town, where such offence was committed the sum of [illegible] four cents.

It was also forbidden to sell anything on Sunday except "small [illegible] and milk with the before nine o'clock in the morning," he was liable to have his goods and wares seized and sold, the proceeds to be applied part to the overseer of the poor of the place for the support of the poor.

Another provision required every constable or person to stop every person who was caught fishing, sporting, horse racing, hunting, gunning, or going to or returning from any market or loading with carts, [illegible] and bring him unto the next day when the offender was to receive a fine instead of the penalty to be dealt with according to law.

But if the person could show that he was going to or returning from any church or place of worship within the distance of twenty miles, or going for a physician, surgeon or midwife, or carrying mail to or from the post office or going by express order of any public officer or was conveying his family or household furniture, provided the removal was not commenced on Sunday, he could go free.

Although numerous [illegible] efforts have been made for many years to exempt from the Sunday closing laws of today persons who observe Saturday as the Sabbath, the forefathers took cognizance of the right of Hebrews and Seventh Day Adventists in this exception.

"That if any person charged with having labored or worked on the first day of the week called Sunday shall prove to the satisfaction of the Justice of the Peace that he or she uniformly keeps the last day of the week as holy time and does not labor or work on that day, the [illegible] shall be discharged.

"Provided, always, that the work or labor with which he or she is charged has not disturbed other persons in the observance of the first day of the week as holy time."

What was probably the inspiration for the part of the late and amended statute law permitting guests of hotels to have intoxicants on Sunday is unmistakably contained in the section providing that no tavern keeper, ale or porter house keeper or inn keeper, or any person retailing strong or spirituous liquors, ale or porter, shall sell or dispose of his wares on Sunday. The exception was lodgers and travelers [illegible] by law. Conviction of this offence meant a fine of $2.50.

Drunkenness in public was to be punished by a fine of "thirty-seven and a half cents" and failure to pay meant the stocks.

To make certain that there could be no escape from conviction by appeal the act provided:

"And no conviction or adjudication by virtue of this act shall be liable to be removed by certiorari into the Supreme Court, but shall be deemed and taken to be final."

Justice moved quickly in that age and generation, though, as the act further required that the trial of a person so accused of any of the offences had to be tried within twenty days after the commission of the crime.

"History is the beginning and core of all sound philosophy and all great literature."—H. G. Wells.

Ithacans Overwhelm Vermont After the Green and Gold Starting Five is Broken Up

Halligan and Hutchinson, Rival Captains, and Olaf of Visitors Star—Sargent in Catamount Line-up for First Time This Year

NEW YORKERS HAVE ONE POINT MARGIN AT HALF

BY DOUG STEWART

[illegible] went down to another defeat [illegible] night when the Ithaca Physical Education rode [illegible] rough shod and rolled up [illegible] to Vermont's 19. The [illegible] were going strong, and the [illegible] could not stop them after [illegible] started. The closest they [illegible] team was at the end of the [illegible] when the score was 13-12 in [illegible] Ithacans. The Green and [illegible] much slower than they [illegible] game that they have ap[illegible]ar this season. This pass[illegible] the pep that it usually [illegible] too often the Blue and [illegible] dashed in front of the long [illegible] worked the ball up the [illegible] baskets. There is no getting [illegible] fact that Ithaca was the [illegible] but they should not have [illegible] so large a margin.

First Half Slow

The first half was slow with neither of the teams showing any marked [illegible] over the other and the score [illegible] to one for almost a quarter [illegible] the teams got working, and even then neither five could do anything startling. Halligan and Manning had their men in a cage so that neither Petras or Burbank gained a scoring point, and those two men were supposed to be the bright spots on the Ithaca quintet. Both of them were the aggressive forwards but they could not get away from the two Green and Gold guards long enough to get in a position to shoot. Olaf was the star of the first half. He found the basket early and kept heaving successfully from such a distance that de[illegible] [illegible]ting.

In the second period the visiting team brought out their bag of tricks and [illegible] away from the Vermonters. They rolled up twenty points while the Green and Gold had to be content with seven. Their defense was almost perfect while their offense was almost as good. After they once got started the home team didn't have a chance.

Ithacans Delay Cat Scores

Captain Hutchinson opened hostilities when he popped the ball through the hoop for a twin counter and immediately after Olaf followed suit with another field goal. Halligan soon broke into the scoring column with a free try but this was almost immediately offset by another two points by Olaf. The score remained at six to six for a long time with neither team able to get the ball any where near the basket, but at last Hutchinson broke the spell when he dropped in a free try. Vermont at last began to show signs of life and Sargent sent one through without touching the rim. Bernstein followed up with a shot from in under the basket. Olaf again crashed through from the side but Manning neutralized with another from the same position. Halligan collected one point on a foul, and that was followed by two points by Olaf from under the basket. Halligan at last got a range and sent a long heave through the hoop that swished through like [illegible] business. Baskets by Olaf and Sargent ended the half 13-12 in favor of the visitors.

Bernstein Out—Gap Widens

At the beginning of the second half it looked as though both teams had settled down as there was a long scrimmage with neither team able to pop one in. At last Bernstein dropped in a free try which was followed immediately by a field goal by Hutchinson. Olaf connected two free tries in a row on a foul by Manning and the latter by Sargent. The almighty Olaf then crashed through and Vermont sent Sargent out to let Tobin who was replacing Bernstein get acquainted. Sargent went up to his old position at center while Tobin teamed up with Manning in the back court. Up to this time Halligan had played a fine defensive game having held Olaf scoreless during the game. Tobin looked to be a somewhat poor replacement as Sargent dropped in a free counter almost at once. But Vermont's efforts were not to be stopped, Olaf sank two in quick succession and Petras immediately followed with another. Again the Vermont team called time out for substitution. Manning was taken out, Tobin moved into the pivot position and Scutakes went in as forward. Olaf again scored immediately, followed by a pretty one by Hutchinson and then there were still another substitution for Vermont. Bernstein again went into the game for Scutakes, and soon after he scored two points from the floor. Field goals by Petras, Olaf and Halligan finished the game.

Checkerboys Win Prelim

In the preliminary the Phi Delta Theta quintet was conquered by the Checkerboys, a team made up of local boys by the close score of 14-13. This was a somewhat faster game than the main event, but neither team had any luck at shooting the baskets and that will account for the low score. Prouty in center and Armstrong, a guard played good games for the Phi Delts, while Chase and Miles were the stars of the town team. In spite of the fact that the game was not marked by the brilliant work of either team, it was interesting because of the close score, and the game was not won at any minute until the final whistle.

Captain Halligan has always been good but this year his defensive work has improved remarkably. It is now nearly perfect being practically rid of fouling and sensationally airtight. Two men—Burbank and Edwards—were used by Ithaca in a vain attempt to lose "Tim."

Dartmouth is slipping. Her early splurge has been decisively squelched.

MERCURY CLUB TO PLAY FROSH TOMORROW NIGHT

Excellent and Only Game of the Evening Should Draw Large Crowd—Frosh Squad in Good Shape

Mercury Club, fast senior amateur team of Rutland, will appear on the U. V. M. gym floor tomorrow night in the second game of the season for the Vermont freshman quintet.

The visiting aggregation has played a difficult schedule this winter and is slated to clash with the smartest amateur teams in the State.

Coach Prentice renewed frosh court practice immediately after the year-end recess and has his squad in good form for this game which will be a real test of the yearling potentialities. This will be the only game of the evening.

The frosh will line up with Collins and Grant forwards, Talbert center, and McGowan and Mahoney guards.

SPORTING EDITOR—

In last Saturday's game when Bernstein left the floor with the score 19 to 13 in favor of Ithaca with about seven minutes to go a murmur of surprise came from the fans in all parts of the gymnasium.

Bernstein was in the shower room when he was called back by Coach Berry to reenter the game with the score 29 to 15 in favor of Ithaca with about three minutes to go. Thereafter the teams played on even terms again with Bernstein and Halligan scoring from the floor for Vermont and Olaf and Petras for Ithaca.

With so few substitutes as Vermont has on hand who are able to handle themselves well in a college game substitutions have to be made extremely judiciously.

The next event on "Archie" Post's intramural program is the interfraternity basketball tournament—the oldest and perhaps most interesting competition of the year.

Sargent made his first appearance of the year. A little conditioning and he should be right in there. There is a real scrap for center between him and Tobin. All the latter lacks is height.

GRAY AND GREEN FROSH PLAY IN PRELIMINARY

BY LYN FOSTER

On the Wednesday evening preceding the Christmas holidays the University of Vermont basketball team crashed through for the third victory out of four starts by defeating the U. S. Naval Training Station 39 to 23 on the local gym court. The fans were treated to a fast and exciting game that was interesting to watch. During the first half the teams were very evenly matched and the score was being tied continually as each counter made by one side was followed by one on the other side. With Captain Halligan leading the Catamounts' attack with five points Vermont was trailing closely at the end of the first half by the score of 12 to 11. In the second half the Green and Gold team played more smoothly and at once jumping into the lead was never headed.

...and a Telephone man brought them together

In the Bell System research and development are not confined to engineering laboratory. These methods are applied also to the commercial side of the business, to make telephone service more and more useful.

An example is the classified telephone directory, with its convenient listings by trade and profession, for quick and easy reference.

Or take this other use of the classified directory. Telephone men analyzed advertising and merchandising. They saw that prospective purchasers of advertised products often did not know where to buy them. They developed a plan for listing these dealers under their brand name in local "Where to Buy It" directories—a genuine service to buyer and seller alike.

PRESS CLUB IS DOING EXCELLENT PUBLICITY WORK FOR UNIVERSITY

Connecticut Editor Commends Women's Organization—Plan Feature Work for Year

Press Club, a University organization whose function it is to disseminate information in the press concerning activities at Vermont, received unusual commendation recently from a prominent Hartford journal, which described its service as the best of all college publicity organizations, with the possible exception of Smith's. Similar commendation has come not infrequently in the past to the women who compose the membership of the Press Club.

The organization, although it calls for considerable work from its members, is nevertheless a popular one. Each year women, mostly freshmen, come out for it and are put through long and strenuous tryouts. This year alone some forty scrubs are working for Press Club. The limited membership of the club which is only twenty at present, evidently increases the honor of making it.

Try-outs are not over yet. No cuts have been made at all, and none will be, until the general elections in about a week and a half.

For officers, Florence McKenzie, '30, serves as president; Eleanor Koenig, '31, is secretary; and Hope Ranslow, '32, is chairman of the social committee.

Meets Twice Monthly

The club holds regular business meetings twice monthly, and social meetings once each month.

Every time a student is elected to an office, appointed to a committee, makes a team or receives any other honor, the Press Club sends a notice to the home town paper. Occasionally, when the student is from Vermont, a notice is also sent to his high school paper. This year the club is starting on a series of feature stories, covering all the students from a particular town in a single story, and is sending it to the home town paper.

Press Club members work every day in the office of the director of publications, or with Professor L. W. Dean, faculty adviser to the club.

BOULDER TO SPONSOR LAST DANCE OF SEASON

Boulder Society will sponsor the last pre-midyear's social event with the second Boulder dance of the year tomorrow evening at the Burlington High School gymnasium. Dancing will last from 8.30 to 12.00.

Boulder dances have always been among the most popular social events of the year, and this year is proving no exception. The fall dance was held in connection with Boulder Week, on the evening of the first home football game, and was one of the most successful affairs of the season. The members of the senior honorary are working to make the dance tomorrow night even better.

Preparations are being made to take care of a large crowd because this dance is the last one until after the midyear examinations, and is always well attended. The orchestra, under Freddie Lynch and Harry Caisse, is one of the best known on the hill, and can be counted on for an evening of hot, tuneful syncopation. The dance floor is the best that can be obtained. Professor and Mrs. G. V. Kidder and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Braun will be the chaperones.

GLEE CLUB RENDERS CONCERT TOMORROW

Women's Music Organization Presents Annual Concert in Gymnasium Tomorrow Evening Free to Public

FEATURES EXCELLENT NUMBERS IN PROGRAM

Debussy's cantata, "The Blessed Damozel," Brahms' "Lullaby" and Schumann's "Gypsy Life" will figure prominently in the program of the annual concert of the Women's Glee Club, to be rendered tomorrow evening at 8.15 in the University gymnasium. Through the courtesy of the administration, the concert this year will be free to the public.

"The Blessed Damozel" will be rendered by the Glee Club, with Hazel Ladd, '30, and Cynthia Lynch, '31, as soloists. The composition will be accompanied by a special instrumental ensemble consisting of Miss Charlotte deVolt, Julia Waterman, '30, Katrina Munn, '32, Robert Jenks, '32, Roger Allbee, M '31, and David Jenks.

Brahms' "Lullaby" will be sung by the sextet of the Women's Glee Club, which is composed of Hazel Ladd, Eleanor Eggleston, '33, Barbara Douglass, '31, Irene Marcotte, '30, Elizabeth Mandigo, '32, and Genevieve Petze, '33. They will be accompanied by a string ensemble made up of Julia Waterman, Faire Divoll, '31, Priscilla Perry, '33, and Esther Wheeler, '31

Hazel Ladd and Cynthia Lynch will again be the soloists in the rendition of Schumann's "Gipsy Life."

TWO OF "DEAR BRUTUS" CAST ARE INITIATES OF HONOR DRAMATIC CLUB

Masque and Sandal Admits Doris Kibbe and Isabelle Holmes to Membership in Honorary Society

Doris Kibbe, '30, and Isabelle Holmes, '32, were initiated into Masque and Sandal, women's honorary dramatic society at the Kappa Alpha Theta house last Thursday afternoon. After the initiation and banquet at the Golden Pheasant Tea Room, Mabel Freeman, '30, and Caroline Whitney, '31, reported on the Ninth Intercollegiate Dramatic Association Conference recently held at the New Jersey College for Women.

Doris Kibbe is a member of Pi Beta Phi, and has been active in athletics throughout her college course. During her freshman year she was class representative of W. A. A., song leader and class tennis champion, and when a sophomore was a member of the Student Union Council, played varsity baseball, and acted as publicity manager of W. A. A. Isabelle Holmes is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta fraternity. Both took important parts in the fall play, James Barrie's "Dear Brutus."

After a delightful dinner, matters concerning the affairs of the society and its progress were brought up for an open forum discussion. All seven members of the junior society were present: G. R. Brush, H. W. Adams, F. A. McBride, F. S. Smith, R. E. Tobin and C. W. Walker.

RATCLIFFE, WHO SPEAKS HERE SOON, PROMINENT IN ENGLISH LIBERALISM

University Lecturer, Noted as a Journalist, is Also Keen Exponent of Liberal Thought

Samuel Kerkham Ratcliffe, who speaks here next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the University gymnasium on "America, Russia, Britain, Three Rival Systems, and the Greatest of These—?," is a prominent English Liberal.

By profession Mr. Ratcliffe is a journalist and holds a leading place in that field. He has held numerous editorial positions of note in England and in India. He has been the English representative of The New Republic, was at one time acting editor of The Statesman in Calcutta, editor of the Sociological Review, and of The Echo. In 1920-21 he was the American representative of The Manchester Guardian. He has been a constant contributor to magazines.

Believes in MacDonald

From his magazine writings it is easy to learn his views regarding world problems and world leaders. In the May, 1927, issue of the Survey he pays the following high tribute to Ramsay MacDonald, world-peace advocate and leading English statesman.

Ramsay MacDonald has "it in his power to decide the destiny of Britain. He has a fine endowment of political and intellectual gifts, of personality, of eloquence. His party is the party of tomorrow. In the world of European affairs there is today no more interesting and important personal question than the one that concerns his future."

At the time of the silly monkey trial in Tennessee, S. K. Ratcliffe with a host of other intelligent Europeans, was amazed at the rise of American fundamentalism. Writing in the Contemporary Review for September, 1925, he makes the following interesting statement on American fundamen

JOSHI, BRILLIANT INDIAN EDUCATOR, SPEAKS HERE

Doctor Samuel L. Joshi of Dartmouth College will speak in the Ira Allen Chapel Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Doctor Joshi, who spoke here last March on the International Institute Program, holds the chair of Comparative Religion at Dartmouth.

He is fascinating and compelling in his manner and speech, is brilliantly educated, and has a polished and delightfully clever personality. He descended from good Brahman stock in western India, was partly educated in India and partly in the United States. He is an alumnus of Columbia University and has traveled extensively on three continents. He has acquired a wide knowledge of men and events and has developed an international mind. His appointment to the Comparative Religion department at Dartmouth College evoked favorable comments from the American Press as well as from the press of Great Britain and India. He is constantly in touch with the stream of current affairs in Asia, Europe, and America. His broad cultural outlook, resulting from the combination of Hindoo philosophy and Christian traditions, qualifies him to speak with complete self-confidence, and in chaste and classic English, of some of the vital issues that are coming to the forefront in the relations of the American nation with the races of Asia.

CAPACITY CROWDS AT COLLEGE NIGHTS

Lynch's Orchestra to Play—"Red" Dower and "Rod" May Sing, and Two Black-Face Acts Get Laughs

PLAN TO HOLD OTHERS AFTER MIDYEAR EXAMS

Two bigger and better College Nights, staged by Ex-Converse, were presented at the Majestic Theatre on Monday and Tuesday evenings, January 6 and 7. Three acts of vaudeville, recruited from the University, and two wise-crack songs by Ex-Converse contributed a merry college spirit, while "Sweetie," a real college picture, was entirely appropriate to the occasion.

The first act on the bill Monday night was Freddie Lynch's red-hot band. This team proceeded to do much damage to the roof of the Majestic and to the edge of the theatre seats, on which they kept their audience. Their rendition of "Tiger Rag" was especially good.

Then a black-face team from one of the fraternity houses put on a mammy act which was extremely well received. This was followed by two songs, the words of which were written by Ex-Converse, which were thrown on the screen and accompanied by "Art" Brown.

The soloists of the evening were "Red" Dower who sang "I'm a Dreamer" with Lynch's orchestra and Rod May who contributed two good numbers.

The Second Night

At the second presentation on Tuesday night, a new black-face comedian went on in the double act and also sang "If I Had a Talking Picture of You." The orchestra closed the bill that night. Both performances were played to capacity houses, indicating the popularity of College Nights.

To Be Held More Often

It is planned to hold such shows more often. Four acts for presentation some time after midyears have already been arranged. This occasion will be known as Happy Midyear College Nights.

GERMAN CLUB REVIVES AFTER LENGTHY LAPSE

Members Vote for Fortnightly Meetings and No Regular Officers

Reviving after a lapse of over a year, the "Deutsche Verein," German Club, met last Tuesday afternoon at the home of Professor F. D. Carpenter to discuss the advisability of continuing the organization on an already over-organized campus. Every member present enthusiastically voted in the affirmative. One feature suggested for the club this year, however, was to conduct it without the aid of officers. It was suggested that a rotating committee be formed to carry on the meetings from one time to another. Wednesday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock was the time set for these meetings, which will be held every two weeks.

With business of the meeting over, Professor Carpenter, lapsing into the spoken German, gave a very interesting talk on the German theater, basing his talk on his experiences in Germany during the past year. He described the theater in regard to its architectural appearance, and then told how one went about the business of procuring tickets for a performance, a process somewhat more complicated in that country than in our own.

The next meeting will be held on Wednesday afternoon, January 15, at 4:00 p.m. Annette Rosenberg, Elizabeth Clark and Mary Waddell, all of the class of 1930, will form the committee for this meeting.

THE BRUSHING UP PERIOD

[illegible] mid-year exams will be upon us. Those who have taken them know that as a rule they are quite difficult. The incoming class will be given a ready opportunity to form their own opinions in this matter.

One thing is certain. They do require careful preparation. Now careful preparation is a very elastic term. Some construe it to mean many hours of conscientious study. Others feel that it implies merely a few hours of intensive cramming. Whatever is the correct interpretation of the term, we have found from past experience that it is extremely difficult to prepare adequately for a three-hour examination in the short interval given such preparation at mid-year time. To really get a course down cold one must have the facts pretty well in mind before finally reviewing it.

It behooves us, then, to pause in our busy university life and give a thought to a little topic known as "brushing up." Many professors have been advising such a policy right along; pursuance of their advice at this time would not be amiss.

What is brushing up? It is simply a process of gradual but continuous review of a subject, going back over a course, picking up the loose ends, gathering all the facts together and attempting to see them in their totality. Brushing up is nothing more or less than fitting a great deal's eye view of a course.

Almost every professor has been cautioning almost every class to follow such a policy. The wiser students have done so, the rest of us all wish we had.

Again the old plea of lack of time arises. True enough. Readily granted that what the American college needs most of all is a longer day and in pursuance of that proposal many have advocated changing the present calendar. Yet the fact remains that if we are forced to deplore our lack of time now when events are not exceptionally pressing, what will be our sad plight when exams fall heavily upon us? It often happens that a student has three exams on three successive days. You can draw your own worried conclusions from this state of existing affairs. Thus, while the question of time is ever present, it should not act as a serious deterrent during the few preparation days to come.

And then there's that little matter of attitude of mind while brushing up on your work. One can't sit with a book in one's lap and reason:

"Oh, well, I've plenty of time before I take this exam. I'll just take it easy now."

For altogether too soon he finds that his "plenty of time" period has vanished, leaving him but empty, wasted hours to look back upon for consolation. One must learn to appreciate the fact that what he is doing must be done, and done well, now if ever. He must concentrate, apply himself diligently to the subject in hand, try to get as clear an understanding of the work as possible.

Like all timely bits of advice, this will be entirely ignored by a large number of students. To them do we repeat the words of a once popular song: "Someday, You're Going to be Sorry—."

NOW IS THE TIME

There is an old catch phrase which runs thusly: "Now is the time for every good man to come to the aid of his party." We may paraphrase that to read: "Now is the time for every good man to come to the aid of his fraternity." You see, we feel that every fraternity on the campus should be represented and well represented on the Cynic. At the present time most of them are. All of them should be.

Certainly, each house has one or two good men fellows who can write news out of contests or any other material that goes to make up a paper. It matters little whether or not a man thinks he has no ability to write. He may be a bit reticent, a bit lazy, or he may not realize his own abilities. At all events, the thing is worth a try. Let's see plenty of new faces around the office soon.

THE BOARDING HOUSE REACH

By Ex-Converse Hall

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

My dear Mr. Converse,

Though I do not attend the University of Vermont I frequently read your helpful column, and I now venture to ask you a question. You see I am a—well to be frank, I am an elderly spinster. Now if you were I, which would you prefer in a husband: wealth, position or appearance?

Ageedly yours,
NOVA HITCHUP

My dear Miss Hitchup

If I were you I should demand appearance by all means and the sooner the appearance the better.

Heartlessly yours,
EX-CONVERSE.

Dear Ex

My girl friend says that there's something dove-like about me. Should I believe her?

Skeptically,
HARPO

My dear Harpo,

Of course you should believe her. She probably means you're pigeon toed.

Observantly,
EX-CONVERSE.

My dear Mr. Converse,

Do you believe in the marginal productivity of labor theory?

Economically,
PHIBETA LE CLASSE.

My dear Miss Le Classe,

No, I do not. Sooner or later it's bound to break up the home.

Truthfully,
EX-CONVERSE.

My dear Mr. Converse,

Knowing that you have access to all social registers, I am writing to you to ascertain whether S'Nalbans is one of the landed gentry.

Socially yours,
INQUA SITIVE

My dear Miss Sitive,

S'Nalbans is not yet one of the landed gentry. On the contrary he is trying to dodge becoming such, but his chances are small.

Brightly,
EX-CONVERSE.

Oh my dear Ex,

Can you please tell me if girls should use dumbbells to get color on their cheeks?

Winsomely,
A BLOND FRESHWOMAN.

My dear Miss Freshwoman,

It is much easier to use color on your cheeks to get dumbbells.

Sweetly,
EX-CONVERSE.

My dear Mr. Converse,

I am writing to you because I am worried about my poor girl friend. She—she gee, she had her [illegible] broken in three (3) different places. What would you advise?

Worriedly yours,
SADDAN BLUE.

My dear Mr. Blue,

I would advise her to keep out of those places in the future.

Hurriedly yours,
EX-CONVERSE.

There is no education in reading a required passage in Green's History of England; the value of the assignment is only in its enticement to further study. The working student however, has no time for this independent study; his education becomes largely a matter of patchwork, hasty memorization, machine-made mental patterns.

OWL'S ANNUAL DINNER DANCE PROVES SUCCESS

Last Friday night saw the Ninety-fourth Anniversary Dinner Dance of the Eumelsia Iota Society. Always a big occasion in the Owl House this dance was bigger and better than ever. The reception room was decorated in a style unique in Burlington. The whole ceiling was canopied with heavy black drapes, the side walls were covered with huge checkers of orange and black and the dining tables were concealed in black draped booths.

As one entered the room his gaze was suddenly attracted to a miniature stage in the center of the room. On this stage was set of fans working in opposite directions. The blades of the fans covered with some glistening material made a most interesting effect of shadows and light on the rainbow background.

During the dinner the favors were given out. At last something new in the line of favors has been seen at the University. Charming black and silver make-up boxes, the bases being of black glass and having recessions for powder, rouge, lip stick and eyebrow pencils, the silver lids were surmounted by silver greyhounds and engraved with the fraternity Greek letters. One sweet co-ed has remarked that she never believed before that favors at fraternity dances could be good looking and useful at the same time. These favors were certainly a credit to the enterprising committee which unearthed them.

About twenty-five couples danced to the music of Freddy Lynch's Orchestra until the all-too-soon hour of one o'clock. Doctor and Mrs. Braun and Mr. and Mrs. Hartwell were the chaperones.

KAPPA OF TAU EPSILON PHI HOLDS INITIATION

Kappa Chapter of Tau Epsilon Phi Fraternity is pleased to announce the initiation on December 19 of Harold J. Greenblatt, '33, New Britain, Conn.; Arthur A. Maisien, '32, Hartford, Conn.; and Gerald Price, '33, Brookline, Mass.

A banquet was given at the chapter house after the initiation in honor of the initiates. Toasts were given by Dr. Harold M. Levin, M'27; A. David Poverman, M'32; Samuel Alpert, Theta, and Arthur A. Maisien, '32. Harold I. Schechtman was toastmaster.

Rural Survey Now in Its Second Year

tion problems are somewhat unique in Vermont. Proximity to the Canadian border, the fact that a large part of the eastern boundary and much of the western are navigable waters, the presence of a considerable range, the Green Mountains, down its long axis with "gulfs" partly enclosed by mountain spurs, have played a large part in the makeup of the communities, particularly affecting the more sparsely settled ones. Infiltrations of foreign stocks, especially French Canadian, as well as the persistence or migrations of the colonial stock demand consideration.

An investigator with training, experience and natural ability is spending a year in this study. Samplings of farm families are being made and a half dozen widely separated areas and one large area are included in the program.

The committee on the Rural Home and Country Life, which is dealing with problems upon which light may be thrown by the appraisement of living standards and whose work is directly in line with population studies, is considering the home life and the community life of rural areas in Vermont. Schedules are being followed in a study of the extent to which the home is supplied with "necessities," "conveniences," and "luxuries." The purpose is to ascertain what the rural home has to offer, especially to the young people in compensation for, or equivalent to, the attractions of the city.

It is believed that offering greater advantages will not only tend to check the tendency of the farm boys and girls to leave their homes but will improve the quality of those who remain by developing higher ideals of citizenship and a truer spirit of co-operation.

Survey Ends in '31

The three years of active work which is provided for will be ended by a State-wide gathering in the summer of 1931. The several cooperating organizations will presumably publish their own reports of the work in Vermont and each of the 16 committees of the Vermont Commission will present a full statement of findings and recommendations. These will be compiled for the report of the commission.

OFFER NEW COURSE IN ADVANCED PHILOSOPHY

"Intellectual Background of Modern Life" is Elective for Seniors Second Semester

COURSE UNDER DYKHUIZEN

A new three-hour elective for seniors will be offered the second semester by Professor Dykhuizen. The course is called "Intellectual background of Modern Life" and is based upon Randall's "Making of the Modern Mind."

Professor Dykhuizen has given a similar course in the Summer School for three years and during the current semester has given the course on a graduate basis as Philosophy 31. All resident candidates for the Master's Degree have been taking the course as part of the required course in general readings.

Randall's book, the basic text, has as its subtitle, "A Survey of the Intellectual Background of the Present Age." This is subdivided into chapters bearing the following captions: (1) The Mediaeval Christendom; (2) The New World of the Renaissance; (3) The Order of Nature (17th and 18th Centuries); (4) The Growing Edge of Thought and Aspiration in the Last Hundred Years. This fourth part surveys such topics as: "Conflict of Social Ideals"; "Evolution and Western Progress"; "Human Nature and the Moral and Religious Interests of Modern Man."

The book gives a more adequate survey of viewpoints, theories, methods and tendencies in the sciences, philosophy and religion, than any other single volume at present available.

The course will begin with a study of the world-views of Plato and Aristotle. It will undertake to present the various pictures of the world which have been influential in determining the world-view of today. Special emphasis will be placed upon the part played by philosophy, science and religion as determining factors in the life of today.

NAME STAFF FOR WEEK AT THE PRACTICE HOUSE

The following are at Practice House this week: Seniors, Helen Peabody hostess, and Florence Whitcomb assistant hostess; juniors, Barbara Le Baron, cook, and Nathalie Hawley house manager; sophomores, Alice Brooks, waitress; and freshmen, Muriel Wheatley.

INTERESTING EXERCISES IN PHYS. EDUC. CLASSES

The physical education classes in dancing and posture are being marked this week. The other classes will be marked next week. Many new and interesting exercises are being taken up in these classes such as cartwheels, head-stands and forward-rolls.

NINETEEN CHOSEN FOR WOMEN'S RIFLE TEAM

After a long period of competitive practice on the shooting range, nineteen women have succeeded in demonstrating their prowess as "sharp shooters to such an extent that they have been elected members of the women's rifle team. The practice started in October with eighty women trying out, the number which, by a system of cutting according to relative scores, has been reduced to the comparatively small group which composes the team. The following are members of the rifle team: Dorothy Gurney, '30, Frances Layton, '30, Elizabeth Robelen, '30, Nellie Chase, '31, Elizabeth Clark, '31, Alice Dodge, '31, Frances Hazen, '30, Georgina Hubert, '31, Edith Pritchard, Lucile Ross, '31, Rebecca Seaver, '31, Evelyn Slayton, '31, Harriet Wright, '31, Margaret Mower, '32, Hope Rowlee, '32, Hildur Wilde, '32, Ethel Bishop, '33, Frances Thomas, '33, Zelda Walker, '33.

Women's rifle team is the only women's varsity club which actually competes with other colleges. Intercollegiate matches will begin in February in which the members of the team will shoot for high scores and prizes.

All men wishing to scrub the eligibility membership should see Manager Levine or Sabin Abell, graduate manager of the gym.

Freshmen may sign up with Mr. Post for the regular weekly practice

CAT'S MEOW

—SPORTING EDITOR—

Capt. "Tim" Halligan and "Dink" Bernstein, star guard and forward, respectively were left behind when the varsity quintet boarded the New York sleeper last night. Halligan alone makes up the Catamount hospital list at present. Bernstein cannot take the time from his medical studies

It's going to be a case of just too bad against the Crescent A. C. tonight With all the outstanding ex-college stars in and around New York the athletic club will have things its own way.

The Cats should have a chance against Rensselaer, but it will be very slim.

The Vermont basketball fans are awaiting with interest the traditional rivalry between the Cats and the St. Mike's quintet. The contest promises to boil down to a duel between Captain Slattery, the Winooski scoring ace and Capt. "Tim" Halligan, Vermont's air-tight defense man. We like "Tim."

The hockey squad has been working out in the gym, trying to get into good physical condition. There's nothing like cold weather, plenty of ice, and rough and tumble scrimmage to put a hockey team in trim.

With today's game postponed the first contest will be with Middlebury next Saturday. That, at least, is a break in that Middlebury has no more ice than the Cats. It would be quite impossible to play an "ice-box team" which has had plenty of practice and played a few games. The difference in speed and ruggedness would be marked.

Coach Abrahams has sent an order in for tank suits to accommodate the hockey team. Vermont at last boasts an outdoor swimming pool.

In cooperation with the Department of Physical Education, sponsor of the Interclass Basketball Tournament held before the Christmas recess and won by the sophomore class, we announce the following official all-class teams:

MERCURY CLUB WINS OVER FROSH QUINTET

Visitors Hold Early Lead Throughout Contest—Japponi High Scorer

GRANT AND VALERIO STAR WITH 23 OF 29 POINTS

BY LYN FOSTER

In a hard-fought but loosely played game the Freshman basketball team was defeated Wednesday night on the U. V. M. gym floor by the Mercury Club of Rutland by the score of 36 to 29. The weak point in the Frosh team was the defensive work and was enough to spell defeat. Grant and Valerio were shining lights in the Frosh attack and together got nearly all of the points

In the first half the teams were quite evenly matched and the score at the end of this period was 19 to 15 in favor of the visitors. Then, in the last frame the Rutland quintet drew away from the Frosh until a last-minute spurt put the Green and Gold within striking distance again As the game ended the Kittens were in a rally that was beginning to look bad for their opponents but the gun cut them off short in their efforts.

Mercury got the first points in the game but the Frosh countered immediately, and the teams continued to play evenly. The visitors tried long shorts, but, as a whole, were unsuccessful. Valerio and Grant each got four field goals for Vermont besides a foul shot by the latter. For a few minutes things looked good for the Frosh but soon Mercury began having better luck in locating the basket. Soon Vermont fell behind in the scoring and never took the lead

At the opening of the second half with the score 19 to 15 against them, the Vermonters began half-heartedly and allowed the opponents to get a still greater lead. By the time the Frosh were getting two field goals and two fouls the Rutland team had gathered 17 points, making the score 36 to 21. Then the Kittens got into action and got four field goals in rapid succession. While in this last rally the game ended with the final score—Mercury 36, Frosh 29.

RIFLE TEAM GETS TRIP TO MCGILL—MEETING OF CANDIDATES MONDAY

All candidates for the rifle team are urged to report to either Coach Berry, Captain Wardwell, or Manager Roller between the hours of 2 to 5 every afternoon at the rifle range where practice will be held. A meeting of all candidates is to be held on Monday afternoon in the rifle range. An added incentive has been provided for the first time in the annals of the sport at the University when a meet with McGill was arranged for March 15. With the expert knowledge of Coach Berry, who is himself a crack shot and the Canadian trip as a goal, it is expected that a large group of candidates will turn out and avail themselves of this splendid opportunity.

PHYZZ. ED. NOTES

Make-up classes for students having excess cuts in physical training classes are now being held.

The department is planning a winter sports meet for a later date

Wrestling and possibly boxing teams are also being planned. The formal organization will take place after mid years.

CATAMOUNTS HAVE A DIFFICULT TASK ON HAND

Wednesday night the Catamounts set out on their second trip of the season when they went to New York on a three game trip. Last night they met the 7th Regiment, tonight they will meet the Crescent A. C. and tomorrow night they will encounter the R. P. I. quintet. The first two games are home's and the boys are going to have a big job on their hands

Both the soldiers and the Athletic Club have fine teams and they have the advantage of continual practice through the recent holidays. However the Rensselear game doesn't look so bad. The Trojans have never been famed for their basketball teams, and probably this season's five will be no exception

Nevertheless the Catamounts will be a badly crippled team when they enter these three games. Halligan the backbone of the defense and a mighty factor in the offense will be unable to play because of a minor operation, and that is the most severe blow that the Green and Gold five have had to suffer so far this year. With Halligan out, it means that a vital cog in the Vermont machine is lost. Bernstein will also be unable to appear in uniform for the contest. He is a speedy forward and his absence from the line-up will be keenly felt. Sargent is fast rounding into shape and will be a potent addition to the fighting strength of the Cats. In the back court there will be Manning and Tobin, two natural guards who boost the strength of the quintet considerably. The probable line-up for the game will be Tupper and Scutakos, forwards; Sargent, center and Manning and Tobin, guards.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY TO BE REVIVED IN FUTURE

Walter H. Crockett to Direct Re-establishment of Burlington Society

The Burlington Historical Society [illegible] several years back for the purpose of preserving the early records of Burlington and vicinity is to take on new forms of life according to Walter H. Crockett instructor in Vermont history. Mr. Crockett plans to call a meeting of the society within a short time and at which time it will be determined whether or not the members of the organization wish to continue it.

Much of Historical Interest

There is much of historical interest in and about Burlington which should be preserved, declared Mr. Crockett today. "Much of this will be lost forever unless we are able to preserve it."

I am planning to call this meeting within a short time and the members of the association will have the chance to decide whether or not they wish to continue it."

Mr. Crockett stated that a paper relating to the early history of this section will probably be given at the meeting which is to be called. The society was founded in 1927 in connection with the celebration of the centenary of Senator Edmunds. There is a considerable membership in Burlington and surrounding towns.

It is the aspiration of the American people that the world should have peace.—Herbert Hoover.

WHAT YOUNGER COLLEGE MEN ARE DOING WITH WESTINGHOUSE

The Westinghouse equipped oil-electric locomotives of the Canadian National are the most powerful in the world.

The steam locomotive has a new rival

ATTENTION in railway circles focuses this year on a spectacular undertaking by the Canadian National Railways — the electrification of certain trains on non-electrified lines.

One great oil-electric locomotive is already in service. The largest and most powerful of its type in the world, this giant electric locomotive that carries its own generating plant develops 2660 horsepower, uses only .43 lb. of fuel per horsepower-hour developed at full load.

Many interesting features are incorporated in its design. The speed and voltage of the engine-generators are automatically controlled by the power demands. The engine exhaust is directed through automatically regulated economizers that heat the coaches and serve as well as mufflers. Control is placed at both ends, to enable running in either direction. Only in a difference in gearing need the passenger type units differ from those adapted to freight service.

In the development of this locomotive Westinghouse engineers co-operated with the Railway's own engineers and leading locomotive manufacturers and frame builders. Every year hundreds of important jobs in which electricity is involved are delegated to Westinghouse, the clearing house for electrical development.

MANY PRIZE CONTESTS ARE OPEN TO AMBITIOUS AND LITERARY STUDENTS

Principal Among These Are the Percival Wood Clement Prizes for Thesis in Support of Constitution

Always in the spring of the year there appear on the official bulletin board in the Old Mill innumerable advertisements about different contests that concerns are holding open to different classes of college students. All of these are very much worth while and students of the University of Vermont usually get their share of the prizes. For the past two years the Percival Wood Clement Prize announcement has been seen and it is hoped that this year some of the students will take advantage of this opportunity and perhaps win a prize.

The Percival Wood Clement Prize is for the best thesis in support of the principles of the Constitution of the United States of America, as established March 4, 1789, and the first ten Amendments thereto.

The Rules of the Contest

This prize, established by the will of the late Gov. Percival Wood Clement of Rutland, Vt., is open to undergraduate men and women students of the junior and senior classes of the following New England colleges in curricula leading to the first academic degree: Amherst, Bates, Brown (including Pembroke College), Bowdoin, Wesleyan, Tufts (including Jackson College), Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Dartmouth, Middlebury, Harvard, (including Radcliffe College), Trinity, University of Vermont, Yale, Williams, Boston University, Norwich University, University of Maine.

1. For the years 1928-1929, 1929-1930, and 1930-1931, in accordance with the provisions of the will, the prize is to be awarded by a board of judges consisting of the Presidents of Amherst College, Bates College, and Brown University, or, if a majority of the board should fail to agree, by the President of Columbia University.

2. Essays should be of not over three thousand words in length, and competitors are advised to select some portion of the entire field to which they may do adequate justice within this limit.

3. Each essay must be neatly typewritten upon one side of 8½ x 11 sheets and the sheets should not be folded. The outside page should contain only the title, the date, and an assumed name, and each essay must be accompanied by a sealed envelope containing on its outside the title and assumed name and within the real name, college, and home address of the writer, together with a statement from the Registrar of his college that he is duly registered in the junior or senior class of one of its undergraduate curricula leading to a bachelor's degree.

4. All essays for consideration in 1929-1930 must be submitted to the chairman of the committee not later than April 1, 1930.

5. The prize for the year 1929-1930 will be five hundred dollars ($500), payment to be made by the State Trust Company of Rutland, Vt., Trustee of the fund. This company will report to each of the colleges above mentioned the name and college of the successful competitor.

MYRICK TO SPEAK AT I. R. C. MEETING

"Some Reminiscences of University Life in Europe" to be Subject of Romance Professor's Speech

CLUB JUSTLY PROUD OF PAST SEMESTER'S WORK

Professor A. B. Myrick, head of the Romance Languages Department, will speak at the last meeting this semester of the International Relations Club, which will be held in 3 North College next Thursday afternoon at 4.00 p.m. Professor Myrick, whose reputation as an interesting speaker is by no means small, will entertain the members of the organization, and all others who wish to come, with "Some Reminiscences of University Life in Europe."

Club Proud of Semester's Work

The International Relations Club views its first semester's work with some degree of pride. Outstanding among its activities was the International Week-end Conference, held early in October, of which a debate on Compulsory Military Training was one of the principal features.

The faculty has been the source of the majority of speakers during the first half year, and several very interesting talks have been contributed. Among the faculty members who helped make the meetings a success were Professors Groat, Mower, Carroll, and Mr. Hartwell.

New Books Received

Through its connection with the Carnegie Institute, the club received five new books this year, which are as follows:

"The Public International Conference," by Norman L. Hill.

"Labor and Internationalism," by Lewis L. Lorwin.

"Civic Training in Soviet Russia," by Samuel N. Harper.

"Problems of Peace, Lectures Delivered at the Geneva Institute of International Relations."

"The Old Savage in the New Civilization," by Raymond B. Fosdick.

These volumes can be found on the International Relations Club shelf in Billings Library, which is at the left just before one mounts the steps leading to the Apse.

The Club is very grateful to the Political Science Department for their endeavors to advertise the meetings of the organization. Their cooperation is much appreciated.

One of major interests of the organization during the coming half year is a League of Nations Model Assembly to be conducted at Yale University by New England colleges toward the last of April. It is the earnest hope of the International Relations Club that Vermont may be represented at this very important gathering. It is expected that at least 350 delegates will attend.

NEXT MEET OF FACULTY STUDENT GROUP, JAN. 15

The Faculty Student Council of the University will hold the third meeting of the current year, Wednesday, January 15. The council has previously held two meetings; the second of which was held a few days before Christmas vacation. At this meeting several problems relative to college affairs were discussed briefly. Chief among these were the question of the date of next year's Christmas vacation, the need of more connection socially between the faculty and the student body, the advisability of talks on various books given in conjunction with the University Store, and one or two other minor questions.

At the meeting to be held next Wednesday each member is expected to have some topic for discussion. A noticeable deficiency at the council meetings have been serious college problems. A cordial invitation has been extended to any member of the student body who may have some problem large or small which he thinks is in need of remedy to present it through his particular representative on the council at the meeting, and the body wishes to say to all in the University: "If you have such a problem, bring it to the attention of your class representative, forceably, if necessary; the Faculty Student Council will be willing and thankful to give it prompt attention."

CYNIC ELECTIONS TO BE HELD SATURDAY, JAN. 18

Cynic elections for all editorial positions will be held next Saturday, January 18. The men eligible for editor in-chief are the present news editors, George R. Brush, Louis Lisman and George R Nelson, all juniors. Those eligible for the three news editorships are the sophomore men assistant editors, on the editorial side of the Cynic, Allen O. Eaton, Alfred J. Morin, Raymond W. Cobb, Fred W. Householder, Jr., Edward J. Fitzgerald and Paul J LaCrosse

For sporting editor, two men are eligible, the assistant sporting editors, Lynford M. Foster and Douglas L. Stewart, both juniors

Election of scrubs to the board was held recently. After this election they will assume their duties and places on the masthead. Other scrubs will be elected at the time of the main election. Those eligible for the minor editorships will be announced at the meeting.

DORMITORY GIRLS HEAR AMY MAUD BURT TELL ABOUT NORTH CAROLINA

Worker in Appalachian School Among Highlands in Penland Tells of Her Experiences and the Life in These Regions

Dormitorly girls were recently treated to a notable instance of a graduate who comes back for the first time to college and tells of her work. On Wednesday evening, January 8, Amy Maud Burt, '00, spoke to the women students at Robinson Hall after dinner of her work in the Appalachian School among the Highlanders in Penland, North Carolina.

After graduating from college Miss Burt continued her work at Columbia and London Universities and then taught history in the Central Michigan Normal School. About ten years ago she went to North Carolina and started this social service school for the mountain people. At first the school was small but has gradually expanded; some of the students pay a little of their expenses but the main part is borne by the Episcopal Church which thus forms the bulwark of support. Those attending the school are of all ages; a baby, wrapped in a newspaper, was found in the road and was taken to the school as its youngest attendent.

Not "Poor Whites"

These mountain people of North Carolina are not "poor whites," they are of Anglo-Saxon origin and for an unknown period of time have formed an isolated community still keeping up many old English customs. Their mode of life is primitive in comparison with the accepted standards of today; the women still wash clothes in an outdoor spring and in addition do much manual labor, such as wood chopping and gardening. All garments are home-made from cloth woven in the village.

Marry Young

People marry when very young and have large families; the women, old before their time, die of overwork and weariness. Men, however immediately find consolation for their widowed state by remarrying almost immediately.

The coming of railroads and highways to this district has had the same effect on the mountain inhabitants as the coming of the white men had on the Indians. The young people, swarming to cities in order to escape the monotonous life, have lost all sense of restraint and have gone wild. They are too ignorant of society's conventions to live in moderation and civilization as a result, the criminal rate of these people is higher than that of the negroes. The unfortunate part of their downfall in city life is that they have excellent mentality, completely untrained thought it may be.

This community is dying out, not only because of the exodus of the young people, but because of the fact that the older people are trekking to the lowlands to work in the mills.

Foresight is that quality whereby we are enabled to blunder into success without looking surprised.

DEBATERS TO MEET SOUTHERN COLLEGES

Eight Debates Already Scheduled in Long Trip for Vermont Team—New Team to be Chosen Soon

VIRGINIA UNION COLLEGE SOUTHERNMOST DEBATE

Over the debating horizon shimmers and glistens the sunny southlands. Sometime in the month of March, Easter vacation, three college men and Coach of Debate Powers will be journeying southward. Eight debates have been scheduled and several more with leading eastern colleges, two especially, in New York, are pending. All plans are not yet complete, but Manager Franklin A. Sears is hard at work writing and waiting and wishing.

Varsity Tryouts Coming

The tryouts for the team which is to make this trip will be held directly after the semester examinations, early in February. As all men students of the University are eligible, the present members, George Nelson, Franklin Sears and Louis Lisman, are expected to need all their best tricks to hold their places. The freshmen this year, R. Peardon Donaghey, J. Edward Bigelow, and Russell F. Colburn, show unusual ability, and will give the old-timers a good fight. Besides these there are the sophomore debaters, some of whom may win a place

Colleges To Be Met

The debates at present scheduled and arranged are with Union College, Upsla College, George Washington University, Muhlenburg, and Virginia Union College. The trip will take in the colleges in that order, ending in Richmond, Va

Three questions will be used in these debates, questions that are not, in general, new to this team. They are. The advertisement question, "Resolved, That the modern trend in advertising is to be deplored." The disarmament question, "Resolved, That the nations should adopt a plan of complete disarmament, except for the exigencies of police forces." And the emergence question, "Resolved, That the emergence of women from the home is a regrettable feature of modern life." It is not definitely determined yet what question will be used in some of the debates.

INDUSTRIOUS STUDENTS GIVEN AID IN SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH AT COLLEGES

Bulletins from the nation's leading graduate schools of scientific research offering wonderful opportunities to truly industrious students, have just been received and posted by the University of Vermont Biological sciences, political science, government, advanced study in languages, studies of transportation problems, and history are but a few of the innumerable subjects that are being proffered to men and women of Vermont, as well as any other college, who are interested in, and have ability for graduate work

Yale University Prominent

Prominent among the graduate schools of the United States is that of Yale University. The important Memorial Fellowships created at Yale are: The Alexander Brown Coxe Fellowship of biological science, with individual stipends up to twenty-five hundred dollars a year the Strathcona Fellowship of Transportation which offers five fellowships of twelve hundred dollars each. This fellowship gives special reference to construction, equipment, and operation of railroads. It also investigates transportation by water, airways, or highways, taking in the legal and economic phases also; the Sterling Fellowships comprise one million dollars from the estate of J. W. Sterling for advanced study in all branches of knowledge. The individual stipends range from one thousand to twenty-five hundred dollars, and more for special occasions. Other prominent fellowships of the Yale Graduate School are the Cowles Fellowships in Government, the Bishop Museum Fellowship, and the Bessel

GENIUS AND INSANITY

In the Illinois Magazine, an Illinois State publication, Eugene Lovejoy Willard writes most entertainingly of the relation of genius and insanity. As he suggests we are all prone to say "he is crazy" if some fellow's mad hobby displays some eccentricity or deviates from the accepted general manner of acting or from the accepted custom of behavior.

Poet, statesman, he says has been stigmatized as insanity. Madame Aspasia was called a "drunk madman," and Oliver Goldsmith an imperial idiot.

Let us "look on mad" he says "that these eccentric causes are caused from developed in infancy, and are very often the halcyons of genius. But one to be a matter of outstanding fact give indications of a predisposition to abnormality, if undue excitements be administered to or encouraged in the [illegible] subject at present. We are unable to accuse the genius of Lord Dudley and of those unhappy spirits who was never a child to the Bishop of Llandaff without a very sympathy, especially with his fate and genuine regret for the mistakes made by his nature in forcing the germ of his intellect and as it were, stunting his growth. We may look with real pity too on many other great intellects of the past, withered with the so often fatal gift of genius in whose intellect not only began to grow but burst forth into luxuriance when on its organ was in the bud. In some, vitality was prolonged somewhat beyond the half century but melancholy had marked them for its own long before their course here on earth was finished. Such were Aristotle, Dante, Tasso, Alfieri, Pope, Collins, Cowper and Scott.

Among the immortals whose private life was just the reverse of what suggestion pictures them, are the following

Byron who at 25 drank so heavily and caroused so continually that his wife had him examined for insanity.

Lord Bacon elevated to the wool sack, systematically debauched with bribes all who sustained official relations with him. Sentenced to the Tower of London, his decease came in abject poverty and with scorn of all decent people.

John Dryden was lazy and dissolute the most profane of the young men of his time, a gypsy, a beggar, passing his time in riotous living and heaping curses upon the human race. Yet he wrote the greatest allegory of all ages.

Ben Johnson was the son of a lunatic and before his 20th birthday committed murder and was pronounced insane by a physician. A coward from birth he hated the dark. He was a tramp and a beggar but died as the greatest thinker and poet of the age.

The poet Keats was so unfamiliar with the world that he laughed when he should have wept and vice versa, yet at 16 he had written Endymion.

Jonathan Swift was dismissed from Dublin college at 18 because he was dull and inattentive, but his Gulliver's Travels has been translated into every language. He resorted to brazen deception, cruelly betrayed a number of young women and in his will decreed that his property be used to found an asylum for idiots and mad men.

Robert Burns, addicted to the excessive use of liquor and frequently in the clutches of the police is recognized as one of the world's great poets.

Shelley, before his 30th year had violated many laws and was known as "Mad Shelley" and died insane at 30.

William Cowper, the greatest of English home poets, was periodically insane and finally committed suicide.

Southey composed a drama at 8 and at 20 exiled from England for the composition of a satire and died insane at 69 years of age.

Coleridge was a wife deserter, victim of opium and died insane.

Voltaire the scoffer, turned scandal monger, was twice in the Bastile for defamation of character and lived a questionable private life.

Daniel Defoe, author of Robinson Crusoe, was often in prison for debt, was once sentenced to stand in the pillory, had his ears cut off and for six years was confined to a dark dungeon and died a pauper at 70.

Edgar Allen Poe was a confirmed alcoholic. And so on down the list through the great names of literature.

Similar traits are found among many of the greatest musicians. Mr Willard ends his article by quoting William M. Gemmillo, eminent Illinois jurist on the subject under discussion as follows:

"Man is great, not because of his likeness to the horse or hog, but because of his unlikeness to them. The world's greatest triumphs were not won by brute force, but by the mind and spirit of men working through religion, education, science, art and music toward a nobler estate. You cannot measure Alexander Pope by his physical deformities, but you must measure him by his 'Universal Prayer.' You cannot measure Robert Burns by his drunkenness, but you must measure him by the joy he has given the world in 'Tam O'Shanter' and the 'Mountain Daisy.'

"You cannot measure Milton and Handel and Bach by their blindness, but you must measure them by the millions of souls they have inspired to nobler ideals and nobler purposes."

THE BOARDING HOUSE REACH

SOUTHERN MAN AT VERMONT

The brightest sun that ever beamed,
The sweetest song of birds, it seemed,
The [illegible]
The balmy breeze and zephiest breeze—

Beneath two palms my hammock swayed,
Some dusky natives crooned and played—
The lazy palms heaved gentle sigh
I watched the fleecy clouds sail by

I saw the whitecaps out at sea,
Great waves came rolling in toward me,
They broke upon the sunny shore
In showers sprayed the white sands o'er

And all among the sandy beach
As far as human eye could reach
Everything was bright serene
Here I would lie in peace and dream

Then, sudden as the crack of doom,
Cigarette ashes filled the room!
I opened my eyes while Baby Ben
Hopped around like an angry hen

I woke The dawn was gray and chill;
Icicles hung from the window-sill,
The wind swept snow across the bed;
It drifted in about my head.

My ears were rigid things like steel;
My cheeks had lost the sense of feel;
One foot I saw exposed to air,
I hadn't even known t'was there.

There were my slippers just below,
Both frozen stiff and full of snow!
Dreading to touch that icy floor,
I just lay still and froze some more.

At last I rose and tried to smile;
I thought about that tropic isle—
The dancing snowflakes seemed to taunt.
"You're not at home! you're in Vermont!"

TO A FRESHMAN

Blessings on thee little man,
Cocky lad of lowly clan.
With thy airy world-wise pose,
And thy gay collegiate clothes,
With thy red lip, redder still
Kissed by co-eds from the hill.
With a grin upon thy face,
And thy frosh-cap's jaunty grace—
But get to cases: cut the bosh:
Who wants to be a lowly frosh?

JUDGMENT DAYS

About this time the profs all show
An air of expectation
"I never did like so and so
Oh my examination"

So freshmen take this sound advice;
I'm wise: since I came here.
To all the profs you must be nice,
At least till after mid-year.

—Uncle Bud.

RADIO STATION WCAX OF UNIVERSITY PRESENT ATTRACTIVE PROGRAM

Irene Marcotte '30 and Holbrook's Hawaiians Were Heard on the Air Last Friday Night, January 10

Station WCAX, University of Vermont station, broadcast the following program Friday, January 10

7:30 p.m. Piano Selection
Irene Marcotte '30

7:45 p.m. Glee Club Sextet—"Cradle Song" Brahms

8:00 p.m. Talk—Marjorie E. Luce, State Home Demonstration Leader Agricultural Extention Service

8:15 p.m. Talk—Mile C. Reynolds, Supervisor of Census: First Vermont District

As an added atttraction Friday WCAX also presented a special program by Holbrook's Hawaiians, a string ensemble composed of talent from the University and from Burlington. Several numbers by the Hawaiians heightened the degree of interest in the program materially

The policy of WCAX is one of service to the people of the State and the University. The fact that WCAX is the broadcasting station of the University of Vermont and the Vermont State Agricultural College immediately places it at arms-length from the so-called commercial stations both in purpose and in spirit. The service extended by WCAX is as nearly as possible without bias. Station WCAX is the aerial voice of the University of Vermont. Programs are always of the sort that the University is willing to be responsible for them. The station does not broadcast political, religious, or other propaganda. It broadcasts only special services which are reliable, and educational, and musical programs which are wholesome and beneficial to the people of the State and University. The programs have usually been confined to talks by members of the Extension Service and programs by various musical organizations about the University Station WCAX tries to present programs which are distinctive of a State University and of State Agricultural Extension Service. There is a wealth of worthwhile material about the U. V. M. campus which no amount of money could buy for a commercial station but which WCAX gives to its listeners without additional cost.

The policy of broadcasting station WCAX of the University of Vermont and the Vermont State Agricultural College is "Service and Enterprise."

The following night the Catamounts were again taken over the ropes by the Crescent A. C. by an even larger score, 55-21. The Green and Gold quintet was no match for the older and more experienced Athletic Club, and their defeat was assured before the opening whistle. They had a bunch of stars to meet and they did their best that they could, and at least gave the customers a fast, clean game to watch. At the opening of the game it did not look as though the Vermonters were going to do so bad for they started off with lots of pep. They showed a nice passing game for most of the first half and gave the Crescent quite a real race, but then the New Yorkers got under way and Simmons, the former Yale star, got going and succeeded to run away from them. Sargent and Manning put in some good work for the Catamounts, for although Sarge's man had twenty points to his credit, that is no reflection on Sargent. His man was just to good for him. He and Manning both gained six points each. Captain Halligan [illegible] appeared in the Vermont line-up [illegible] accounted for five of his team's points while his man could not get one from him. Halligan has been starring in some beautiful games at guard. He is fast and clean and no matter who plays opposite he has a tough job getting anywhere near the basket.

On Saturday night the Vermonters journeyed off at Troy to play the R. P. I. five and took its third beating of the week. The Trojans got off to an early start and led the Cats the rest of the game. For some reason or other the Green and Gold lost all of its pep in the defensive side of the game and the Engineers had no trouble in working the ball under the basket and shooting through. They had a 26-20 advantage during the half time and increased steadily further away from then on.

Sargent was again high scorer for the Green and Gold, collecting five baskets for a grand total of ten points. Manning ran him a close second with honors with nine points to his credit. This game was the last of eight starts this season and things are beginning to look bad unless the Cats can unearth some good substitutes after the mid-year exams are over. Just now it looks as though the Vermonters would not have a chance at the Green Mountain Conference title, but time will tell.

SHUMAN IS APPOINTED ASSISTANT OF FENCING

Hyman Shuman, '32, was recently appointed assistant fencing manager to replace R. L. Bigwood, '31, and L. J. Riani, '32, resigned. Shuman is a member of the Tau Epsilon Phi Fraternity. Last season he was the star of the freshman fencing team and is now making a strong bid for a varsity position.

PHYZZ. ED NOTES

Equitation classes will start again next spring. All future cowboys and girls can start dusting their chaps and lariats in preparation for a big season. The Physical Education Department has secured the kind cooperation of Terry F. Howe, owner of the horse stables.

"Terry" has just opened a new equine hotel opposite the Kappa Alpha Theta house and will be pleased to loan his horses to college students at one dollar per hour. Mr. Howe is a graduate of the "Berry School of Horsemanship," Pleasant Hill, Ohio, and will be glad to advise all prospective riders in the fine art of remaining on one's horse. "Terry" will assist Howard Prentice next spring. Future cowgirls please notify and consult Barbara Lowd at the Physical Education office.

The fifteen faculty members are still hard at it Wednesdays and Fridays. They will probably mark time (and papers) at mid-years. The "Profs" are becoming quite proficient in the various gymnastics and it has been rumored that one professor made three baskets in one game. However this rumor has not yet been verified.

The faculty coach refused to divulge the name of the star but experts claim that he is a member of the physics department. The military department is all agog, awaiting a challenge from the physics members. It is thought that a little quick shooting by the soldiers ought to win for them.

A rook from Eastern Oregon says that after three weeks of school he has learned the chief aim of college men. That is to save all the money possible every week—until Saturday night!

Dr. William Dehorn, head of the modern language department at Marquette University, recently witnessed his first football game. The professor came from Germany five years ago, and has taught also at the University of Minnesota.

CAT'S MEOW

—SPORTING EDITOR—

In the games against the 7th Regiment and the Crescent A. C. Vermont's defense was woefully weak. Both teams were much too fast for the Green Mountaineers.

Captain Halligan got out of a sick bed to make the trip. He did more than his share. Wonder what would have happened without him?

Bernstein was missed. His speed, passing, and scoring would have been a great help.

St. Michael's has a good record so far, although most of their opponents have been weak. Slattery is one of the leading scorers in the East but Halligan will take care of the sophomore tomorrow.

The frosh have a good opponent. Valerio will pair up well with Grant at forward as he did when he took Collins' place in the Mercury Club contest.

Middlebury beat Norwich 2 to 0 Saturday in a nip and tuck hockey tilt. Middlebury was very impressive.

Middlebury, Norwich and Vermont all have veteran sextets.

The Vermont-Middlebury hockey game scheduled for Saturday afternoon has been postponed until after mid-year exams. The U. V. M. rink is not in condition.

Yale is king pin in intercollegiate ice circles as a result of defeating Toronto 3-2. With Frank Luel, as chief scoring threat, the Eli have waltzed through the opposition with ease.

Yale won the annual Yale basketball tournament held in New Haven on January 1 and 2. In the first round Georgetown beat New York 31 to 27 and Yale defeated Holy Cross 28 to 20. In the final Yale nosed out Georgetown 26 to 23 after trailing most of the game. New York swamped Holy Cross 40 to 21 in the consolation contest.

Co-eds are outnumbered almost two to one by men at the University of Missouri, which has 4,035 students, its largest enrollment.

Freshmen at N. C. State, angered by the penalty imposed on a freshman football player for not wearing his cap, held a mob meeting for the purpose of burning their caps. The offender was sentenced by Student Council to wear a dress for 13 days as punishment.

FROSH VS. CHECKERBOYS IN PRELIMINARY GAME

City Five Composed of Former School Stars—Freshmen Have Difficult Task on Hand

Tomorrow night, as preliminary to the Vermont-St. Michael's contest, the Vermont Kittens will meet the Checkerboys of this city in their third game of the season. The game will begin at seven o'clock on the U. V. M. floor.

Both aggregations are almost evenly matched with the Checkerboys holding a slight edge over the Kittens by reason of their experience as a cooperating group. Nevertheless the latter element is not sufficient to prevent the freshmen from emerging as victors and the game certainly ought to be close and interesting.

So far this season the Vermont Frosh have had an even break—dropping one game to the Mercury Club of Rutland by a narrow margin and taking the Burlington Business School into camp.

"Bob" Grant and Valerio, both star forwards, should prove to be twin threats to the Checkerboys and with McGowan and Mahoney in their defensive berths the fast Checkerboys forwards ought to be hampered to quite a great extent. Farwell will be pivot man and good work may be expected from him.

Vosburgh, Morgan and Doyle will be in the line-up of the Checkerboys and according to past records they will show quite a bit of fight and expert handling of the ball.

The probable line-ups:

VERMONT FROSH	CHECKERBOYS
Grant, l.f.	l.f., Vosburgh
Valerio, r.f.	r.f., Whitmarsh
Farwell, c.	c., Morgan
Mahoney, l.g.	l.g., Doyle
McGowan, r.g.	r.g., Niles

GREAT RIVALRY EXISTS BETWEEN THE TEAMS

Returning from the strenuous New York trip, the Vermont basketball team will tackle the St. Michael's five on the U. V. M. gym floor tomorrow night in the last game before the mid-year examinations. This will be the first contest in the State series for the Cats and should be a thriller. With a veteran line-up the Purple has the best team it has had in a number of years and will give the Green and Gold a hard run. St. Michael's has a record of five consecutive victories some of which are very impressive, such as the 40 to 24 triumph over the last U. S. Destroyer Dupee team.

Vermont fans have reason to remember the series of thrilling contests with the Winooski quintet last year and the present Purple squad is probably better than ever before. Last season the Catamounts succeeded in winning the first game with St. Michael's by a 27 to 23 score, but in the return match the result was reversed 36 to 33. Then a play-off was arranged between the two teams and on a neutral floor the U. V. M. five extended themselves in an over-time period to win 33 to 29. Conditions are not much different this year and a fast battle may be expected tomorrow night.

Leading the St. Mike's quintet is Capt. Jack Slattery, a flashy forward who will be guarded by Vermont's star player, Capt. "Tim" Halligan. A more perfect combination of rivalry could not be imagined. Both men are fast and clever ball handlers and it will be a tussle from start to finish to see which will excel the other.

Along with Captain Slattery is the diminutive Shea, who is another veteran forward. These two men form a strong offensive power and it will be up to the Vermont team to stop them in order to produce a Green and Gold victory. The defensive part of the Purple team consists of Hugh O'Brien and Tierney with McGowan

BIG CROWD AT THE PEPPY BOULDER HOP

Burlington High Gymnasium Sways to Strains of Freddie Lynch's Orchestra—Mrs. C. E. Brown and Prof. and Mrs. G. V. Kidder Chaperones

SECOND BOULDER DANCE OF YEAR EXCELS FIRST

[illegible] of the largest crowds of the year [illegible] the Burlington High [illegible] gymnasium. All thoughts of [illegible] the coming midyears were banished as Freddie Lynch and Harry [illegible] and their orchestra gave a spell of the syncopated and dreamy rhythm [illegible] the galaxy. Professor and Mrs. [illegible] and Professor and Mrs. G. V. Kidder were the chaperones.

The dance provided a fitting climax to the social semester of the first semester. A large and enthusiastic number of students were there to enjoy the possession of a good floor and peppy music for the last time until after the examinations. The three hours and a half went all too quickly for everyone and when midnight arrived, the dancers could hardly believe that the evening had passed.

[illegible] the second of their dances was the [illegible] that this year's members of Boulder will host. The first one of the evening after the first home football game was one of the best dances of the fall season. Saturday's affair was up to this high standard, and will leave pleasant memories of this year's Boulder dances.

[illegible] people. Every winter since 1924 he has appeared before the Institute of Arts and Sciences at Columbia University and will appear to address the League for Political Education in New York City.

Excellent Speaker

Mr. Ratcliffe is famous not only because of what he has done but also for his ability as a speaker. Again George Bernard Shaw when speaking of him said: "As a public speaker he is, I need easily be overcome in the audience and the art with which he effects this is perfectly concealed. You may take it from me confidentially that S. K. Ratcliffe is a first-rate proposition as a lecturer." Another proof which is conclusive evidence of his brilliant oratory is that for fifteen years now he has been coming here to address American audiences and he is still in great demand everywhere. During his 1928-1929 season his management, William B. Feakins, Inc., of New York and San Francisco, received a host of requests for him which could not at the time be accepted.

Talks of Three Culture Systems

Tonight's lecture touches on three large and influential systems of culture. Those of America, Russia, Hungary and the man who is going to speak upon them is not pre-eminently qualified from his wide opportunities for observation to speak intelligently and knowingly about them and to give us some idea of the relative merits of each of the great cultures concerned.

Coach Berry will present his team at full strength. With Tupper and Bernstein as forwards the Vermont fans may be sure of strong scoring power backed by Captain Halligan who is a point getter as well as an air tight defense man. The lanky Sergent will be at his best Monday with the other guard with Captain Halligan and these two men can hold their own against strong opposition.

All in all the teams lineup evenly and there will be a fight from start to finish. This game will be a real test of Vermont's strength and a Green and Gold victory will mean a good start to bring the State championship once on the hill.

BRILLIANT SPEAKERS IN LECTURE SERIES

University Committee Brings Four, International Relations Club Five, and C. and E. Department One, to Vermont

INTERNATIONALLY NOTED FIGURES APPEAR HERE

It has been the privilege of Vermont students during the past semester to hear a number of world-famous thinkers, brought to Vermont in a series of University lectures, under the direction of Prof. A. R. Gifford. Besides these men a number of noted speakers were brought to the University by the International Relations Club during their Week-end Conference and one under the sponsorship of the department of commerce and economics.

Week-end Conference First

First came the Week-end Conference October 12 and 13, with its speakers Tucker P. Smith from Missouri, distinguished advocate of world peace; Major A. B. Simmons of the National Security League; Dr. Harry F. Ward, professor of Christian Ethics at Union Theological Seminary; Sunder Joshi, Hindu student at Harvard Law School, and Peter B. Kang, divinity student, graduate of the University of Nanking and of the Y. M. C. A. School of Theology.

Especial praise of the conference came from those who heard the debate on military training between Smith and Simmons. The debate caused considerable interest at the time eliciting much favorable comment for the International Relations Club.

Then came the first of the University lecturers, Bertrand Russell, world-famous philosopher, who spoke on the "Outlook For Civilization." Opportunities such as the one of hearing Russell are to be treasured in college life.

On October 24, Mr. Charles R. Knight, distinguished artist of the Chicago Field Museum, gave a lecture, illustrated with original slides, on "Life Through the Ages."

John Dewey at Vermont

Third in the series was a figure of international prominence, John Dewey, greatest of American philosophers. His subject was "Coleridge, Marsh, and the Spiritual Philosophy."

On December 4, Mr. Jason Westerfield, publicity director of the New York Stock Exchange, spoke before a record crowd at the University gym on the Stock Exchange. With him he brought three reels of movies, covering all aspects of the exchange. He appeared under the auspices of the commerce and economics department.

S. K. Ratcliffe appeared last Tuesday speaking on "America—Russia—England: Three Rival Systems; and the Greatest of These——?" Ratcliffe's lecture is the last such first semester event. Carl Sandburg, who speaks here February 25, will be the last lecturer in the University series.

PRESS CLUB TO WRITE FEATURES FOR PAPERS

Forty-three Women Assigned to Prepare Articles on Vermont Students for Home-town Papers

Novel assignments have been given forty-three candidates who survived the first Press Club cut, each candidate being assigned a whole town about which to write a feature story on the activities of its students at Vermont. The stories will go to home-town newspapers.

The assignments are as follows: [illegible] Harber, '32, Arlington; Alice [illegible] '31, Hardwick; Christine [illegible]barre; Charlotte Carpenter, [illegible]y; Verna Carrier, '32, St. [illegible] Vera Chadburn, '31, Plattsburg, N. Y.; Hazel Daniels, '32, St. Albans; Alice Dodge, '31, Bennington; Barbara Douglas, '31, Rutland; Helen [illegible], '31, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Marian Edwards, '32, Newport; Eleanor [illegible] Lyndonville; Helen Estelle, '32, Worcester, Mass.; Ruth Field, '31, Richmond; Mildred Gile, '32, Montpelier; Rose Harlowe, '32, Waterbury; Helen Goddard, '33, Stowe; Sylvia Holden, '32, Hyde Park; Isabel Holmes, '32, Northfield; Lucy Hope, '32, Winooski; Elizabeth Howe, '32, Vergennes; Pearl Jennings, '32, Grand Isle; Madeline Johnson, '32, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Caroline McGinnis, '31, Bristol; Orabelle Main, '32, Essex Junction; Janet Miller, '32, Lynn, Mass.; Jessie Minckler, '32, Hartford, Conn.; Margaret Mower, '32, South Ryegate; Lillian Mount, '32, Proctor; Ethelda Miller, '33, White River Junction; Emily Murray, '31, Boston, Mass.; Dorothy Nash, '31, Fairfax; Gladys Press, '31, Bradford; Luella Ross, '31, Bellows Falls; Elizabeth Samson, '31, Windsor; Hilda Smith, '31, Middlebury; Katherine Tolman, '33, Ludlow; Margaret Tynan, '33, Morrisville; Joanna Tewksbury, '32, Highgate; Pauline Willis, '31, Hinesburg; Theodora Wakefield, '32, Orleans; Vivian Hubbard, '32, Fitchburg, Mass.

GERMAN LITERATURE IN TRANSLATION GIVEN

German 10, a course omitted in the current catalogue, is offered for the second semester. In this course, which requires no knowledge of German, a survey is made of the development of German literature from the earliest times to the present and representative works are read. Particular emphasis is put on the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. There are discussions, lectures and reports on assigned readings. The course, which meets twice a week, is elective to juniors and seniors; to other students, by special permission of the instructor. All students desiring to take this course are requested to leave their hour plans with Professor Carpenter.

GLEE CLUB PREPARES FOR NEARING ANNUAL COLLEGE COMPETITION

Also Appear at Dairymen's Convention in Special Recital Wednesday Afternoon

Glee Club activities were formally concluded for this semester, so far as public appearances at least are concerned, when the Vermont singers appeared at the Dairymen's Convention last Wednesday afternoon in a public recital.

With the New England College Glee Club Contest at Springfield, Mass., only about a month away, the Men's Glee Club has begun to work in earnest. Preparations for the event, according to Prof. H. D. Bennett, must be undertaken with the complete cooperation of every Glee Club member, and the necessary cooperation lies in the regular attendance at the frequent rehearsals which must be held.

All activities of the Women's Glee Club and of the University Orchestra, including rehearsals, will be temporarily suspended until after midyears.

MILITARY DEPARTMENT MAKES PISTOL AWARDS

As a reward for their marksmanship with pistol and rifle, ten seniors were awarded appropriate insignia by the military department just prior to the Christmas vacation. Awards were made on the basis of trials at the R. O. T. C. camp, held during June and July of 1929 at Camp Devens, Mass.

E. H. Powell qualified as pistol sharpshooter, thereby gaining for himself the distinction of being the best pistol shot in the Vermont contingent. Awards for proficiency with both rifle and pistol went to E. C. Ball, F. J. Beckley, H. M. Macomber, O. A. Martinetti, P. M. Perry, F. J. Reed and D. J. Vignone. Awards for pistol marksmanship were made to A. Gioria and J. A. Eliot. In addition, two members of the class of 1929 qualified for marksmanship awards—C. C. Lyman and H. A. Hazen.

E. C. Ball, '30, was selected as a member of the R. O. T. C. rifle team to represent the First Corps Area in the national matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, during the first two weeks of September, 1929. Rifle teams from all points in the United States, Canada, Cuba, and Mexico compete at this time for first honors with the pistol and rifle.

GREY FRIARS HEAR PAPERS AND TALKS

Parker, Morin, Barker, Carter, Germain and Stewart Speak and Read at Fortnightly Meeting

CLUB PLANS BANQUET DURING EXAMINATIONS

Talks and manuscripts again enlivened the fortnightly meeting of Grey Friars last Sunday evening in the president's rooms, two talks and four manuscripts being included in the program.

A. J. Morin and W. W. Parker spoke. Morin, taking as his topic "The Evolution of Literature Through the Age," traced the history of speech and writing to illustrate the most ancient processes in the development of the art of expression. He concluded his discussion with a description of the beginning of literature.

Parker, speaking on "Letters of Ninety Years Ago; Relics of a Lost Art," read to the Grey Friars parts of letters of a nineteenth-century collection. The lives of the western pioneers and of their Vermont kinsmen were lived over again in these letters, very lengthy and carefully prepared documents.

Sam Barker read a short story based on "the industrious and the lazy apprentice" scheme, which appeared in the last issue of the Winnowings. Joseph Carter read a burlesque newspaper account, purporting to have been published in the twenty-first century, on the murder of the king in "Macbeth." Edmour Germain read an excellent piece of work, a tale of youthful love, which received especial praise for its treatment. Robert Stewart read the first part of a lengthy and complicated mystery tale, which roused considerable speculation concerning the best possible ending.

Prof. Frederick Tupper, honorary member of the society, who was in attendance at the meeting, assisted the members in their criticisms.

The club, at the same time, voted on Saturday evening, January 25, as the date of the semi-annual banquet and instructed Joseph Carter, chairman of entertainment, to arrange for the securing of speakers from outside of Burlington.

MAN'S SPIRITUAL VALUE CAN NOT BE EXPRESSED BY SCIENCE, SAYS JOSHI

Dartmouth Professor and Noted Authority on Religion Speaks at Vesper Services Sunday

"Science can weigh men and see no difference in their physical value, but their true spiritual value is expressed by art, philosophy and religion," declared Samuel L. Joshi, professor of comparative religion at Dartmouth College, who spoke Sunday afternoon in the Ira Allen Chapel. His address was centered about the words of the Apostle Paul: "The things that are seen are temporal, but the things that are unseen are eternal."

The symbolic sculptures and histories of religion throughout the ages indicate the universality of man's desire for absolute values in life.

The relative appraisal of modern science is on the basis of material values while all the great religious leaders have stood against all worldly mindedness.

The Mystical Conscience

Prof. William James says that psychology can analyze the mystical conscience only as far as the will, emotions, and intellect of man. There is a mystical conscience incapable of science or psychology, beyond our knowledge. The students in the colleges of all countries prefer to ignore the claims of religious conscience because modern applications of science have made life more attractive by its comforts.

The educational theory in the "Republic" of Plato was such that it stressed as its objects: First, to fit young men and women to take their places in society; second, to enable all youth to strive towards the attainment of ultimate realities and values.

The history of philosophical thought in India sets forth four different kinds of consciousness, said Doctor Joshi. There is first the consciousness of man when he is awake; second, the dream consciousness in which men experience certain imaginative sensations, but which upon awakening prove to be unreal; third, the consciousness of dreamless, uninterrupted sleep; and fourth, the superconsciousness of the realities of all ages. In this form the spirit is superlatively wide awake so that man is able to see the temporal things with that eternal vision of which Spinoza spoke.

This glimpse into ultimate reality, concluded the speaker, is the great idealism of all religions and philosophies. It teaches men to look at time in terms of eternity instead of in worldly terms.

ETA SIGMA PHI NAMES NOMINATING COMMITTEE

A nominating committee composed of Harriet Howard, Burlington; Hazel Ladd, Richmond Hills, N. Y.; and Truman Webster, Shelburne, was selected at a meeting of Eta Sigma Phi, honorary classical society, last Tuesday afternoon. Officers will be elected at the next meeting which will take place February 4.

APPOINT COMMITTEES FOR ANNUAL FORMAL, THE SOPHOMORE HOP

E. L. Meehan is Chairman of Event Scheduled For February 7 at B. H. S. Gym

First of post-midyear social events, the Sophomore Hop, scheduled for the evening of Friday, February 7, will this year be under the direction of Edward L. Meehan, according to a decision adopted by the sophomore class at a meeting last Tuesday. The hop will be formal and it is understood that the price of admission will this time be lower than it has been in previous years. The Burlington High School gymnasium will be secured for the event if it be at all possible to get it.

Committees in Charge

The committees directing the hop, as announced by P. F. Armstrong, president of the sophomore class, are:

Music and Hall: Chairman, Watson E. Morgan, Bristol; Kathryn Rauh, South Orange, N. J.; Isabel Holmes, St. Albans.

Refreshments: Chairman, Hyman Shuman, Fitchburg, Mass.; Olive Fields, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Decorating: Chairman, William A. Mace, Keeseville, N. Y.; James L. Riley, Worcester, Mass.; Carleton E. Wright, Essex Junction; Norma Freeman, Burlington; Lillian Mount, Burlington; Hope Ranslow, Montpelier.

Advertising: Chairman, Fletcher J. Proctor, Barton; Vivian Hubbard, Middletown Springs.

GERMAN CLUB BEGINS MOST ACTIVE SEASON

Functioning without officers, the recently revived German Club has planned an active season for the year, with fortnightly meetings to be held under the direction of committees appointed for two-weeks periods. The club will afford the opportunity for students of the German department to revive the German-speaking meetings so popular before the premature death of the organization a few years ago.

Present Interesting Program

At the second meeting of the year last Wednesday, the committee in charge presented a pleasant and well varied program. Mary Waddell, '30, spoke on "Current Events in Germany." This was followed by a joint reading of one of Arthur Schnitzler's skits by Mary Waddell, Lilian Cohen and Annette Rosenberg. German games concluded the meeting.

The third meeting of the club is scheduled for the earliest possible date after midyears.

WORLD HOPE LIES IN RUSSIA, AMERICA

Ratcliffe, in University Lecture, Stresses World Attitude Towards Rival Systems

DECLARES THE BRITISH TAKE POLITICAL LEAD

America's greatest contribution to civilization is not its political ideals, but rather its modern industrial development, represented by mass production and standardization, S. K. Ratcliffe, prominent English Liberal and writer, declared in a lecture at the University gymnasium last evening on the subject: "America—Russia—Britain: Three Rival Systems, and the Greatest of These?"

The greatest two popular developments in the world today, he said, are the communist movement in Russia, with the center of its power in Moscow, and the modern industrial movement in the United States, with the center of its power in Detroit.

Russia and America

And, while millions of people in Europe are looking hopefully toward Russia, where the mystical appeal of the Soviet idea is working out, there are other millions of Europeans who see in the United States of America their Promised Land of Industry, where the maximum of opportunity is offered to the worker. Nowhere else in the world is the laborer able to secure such wages and live in such comfort as in the United States, Mr Ratcliffe pointed out.

In the early part of his address, Mr Ratcliffe reviewed the progress of Soviet Russia to the point which it has reached today. He told how England recognized the Soviet government while Ramsay MacDonald was first premier, how negotiations were broken off when the Conservatives came back into power in England, and how recognition was again accorded the Soviets when Premier MacDonald came back into power.

The Soviets are now dominated by one man, Stalin, who is feeling his power sufficiently so that he and his followers are planning to extend Communism from industrial Russia to agricultural Russia, a very ambitious program, Mr. Ratcliffe declared.

Theory of Karl Marx

While the American and French revolutions were political and social, the revolution in Russia is economic, the speaker said. The Soviets got their doctrine from Karl Marx, who had no idea that it would be applied except in a state which was highly developed industrially. It would have seemed fantastic to him that his theories could ever have been successful in a country so thoroughly agricultural as Russia.

The reason that there was no serious conflict between the Soviets and the Russian peasantry, said Mr. Ratcliffe, was that the change in government gave the peasants ownership of their land, which they had not had before. But the question now arises whether Stalin can successfully extend the Soviet idea to the farms as has been done in the industries.

The extraordinary revelation of the power of Bolshevism in Russia proves that it is possible for a rigidly organized minority, which is able to exercise power in a ruthless fashion, to maintain itself in the name of the proletariat. All observers fear Soviet Russia because of the power which it exerts, and yet the ruthlessness of that power fascinates millions of people in other countries of Europe who are wondering if this type of government offers freedom and opportunity.

Britain Leads Politically

Pricking the bubble of America's contribution to the political ideals of other nations, Mr Ratcliffe said most Americans seem to have the feeling that their country has given the world an ideal of government. But history shows that, while other nations have undoubtedly been inspired by the American example, they have adopted the British form of government more often than the American. Since England democratized its House of Commons, it has made its form of government more responsive to popular demand than almost any other. And this has appealed to other peoples when seeking more freedom.

WHAT THEY THINK

We have often thought about giving you an idea of what other college men and women think about. And just as we were going about to begin a little discussion on the wide variety of subjects that exist, a fellow perpetrator handed us the following from the [illegible] Courier. We'll tell you our views some other time, but for now what do you think of this?

Like 10 Lacks being in print and released shows that a new type of literature is being sought by publishers and the reading public. These books are somewhat religious in nature but involve a personal note hitherto omitted from anything but secular writing. The new demand is explained by some as due to the desire of those religiously, or rather spiritually minded persons who find the services of any regular church depressing but who have a belief in the mystic aspects of life and who distinctly enjoy ritual and appeal to the sensible soul.

In a recent survey of religious services in New York City on one Sunday there were found 140 different kinds of cults, one-half of these being non-Christian. According to such signs we can be led to believe that religion in some form is universally desired but that no form can be assuredly regarded as the "one." This point seems rather difficult for most of us to realize.

THE FORUM

A host critic of student affairs and college administration has penned the statement that the college that winks at dishonesty in scholastic work and other student relations is doomed. Colleges must assume the responsibility of inculcating into the students firm principles of right dealing with their fellows.

But the problem is not to know what the weakness is but it is to determine how best to remedy this weakness. A large majority of the student representatives at the Fourth Annual Congress of the National Student Federation of America last December expressed confidence in the upbuilding power of the honor system. Therefore the N. S. F. A. recommends this system to colleges that do not have it and to colleges that do have it the N. S. F. A. expresses an intense desire that they exert every possible effort to make the system as efficient as possible.

But [illegible] Should every college attempt to institute the honor system? To do so would hardly display wisdom. There are some colleges in which the honor system is not needed e.g. institutions in which all the examinations are conducted orally. There are others in which certain local conditions militate against its successful operation. But in the vast majority of the state universities, denominational, privately endowed and teachers colleges as well as the normal schools there is opportunity for much development in this field.

However before any college attempts to adopt the system the field should be thoroughly prepared by faculty members and student leaders. There is reason to believe that this was done prior to its adoption at the University of Virginia, even in the summer of 1842. Even that institution where the honor system is certainly and swiftly and where there is a tradition against cheating that has existed for nearly a hundred years does not urge a college to adopt the system before the field has been thoroughly prepared. They say: "We have the amplest faith in the honor system and believe that with proper care it could be successfully introduced into almost every American university and would be a salutary influence; but before beginning its introduction, we urge thoughtful thorough and patient preparation of the field."

"1. By such general, pervasive conferences with the students as would produce practically unanimous conviction of the merit of the system in the minds of the student body.

"2. By the election to the honor committee of men and women who enjoy the amplest confidence of their fellow-students as to integrity, courage, sanity and sagacity.

"3. By agreement upon impartial and inevitable execution of such a uniform penalty for violation of the honor code as the honor committee shall impose with no mitigation, pardon, or suspension of sentence.

"4. By the rigorous exclusion from the purview of the committee of all offenses which are not true breaches of honor.

"5. By securing the unanimous consent of the president, professors, and officers of the University to cry hands off and leave the student body the whole responsibility for dealing with well-defined breaches of honor.

"To neglect any one of these five precautions will be, in our opinion to invite shipwreck" says this great institution.

The installation or administration of the honor system requires much work that is spiritual, inspirational and intangible. The students must be educated concerning principles of honor. It must be shown them that they are trusted and that if they abuse the trust they will surely be punished. The work of an honor committee should be educational instead of corrective; it should be their aim to prevent dishonesty, rather than to punish it.

One thing is beyond question. Before an honor system can function successfully, a spirit of honor must be inculcated into the students. An educational program extending probably over a period of three or four years will be necessary. A strong tradition in favor of the honor system is its greatest asset.

They Have Succeeded

By HOPE RANSLOW '32

"I never thought of submitting anything I ever wrote until after I took Mr. Dean's short Story Course in Summer School," said Miss Genevra Cook, when she was asked just when she began to write for publication.

The statement was not a testimonial of fact. Miss Cook took the course simply because it appealed to her and of course it gave her a point or two toward that Master's degree for which she is working. But the statement remains, and to it is added the fact that her first manuscript submitted was accepted. Take that for what it is worth. Indeed, very little material which she has ever sent out has failed to find a place in some editor's office.

Now for some information about the writer herself. Genevra Cook was graduated from Mount Holyoke College with an A. B. degree. While there, she was a member of all sorts of clubs. Glee Clubs, Debating Club, Ukelele Club and also belonged to the famous Holyoke choir. She was and is very much interested in dramatics—especially in the production end of the work. She wrote for the Monthly, and belonged to the Poetry Club and altogether seemed to have been rather given to the literary life, in spite of her negligence in attempting to publish outside of the college anything she wrote.

Little, and dark, with an alive, piquant face, she looks like an undergraduate in spite of her learning and in spite of her insistance upon calling herself a "relic" and an "antique." In the graduate department here, she is working for her Master's degree in English. Between classes she works in the library.

"And what do you write, and where do you send it, and—well, and everything?" I was bound to find out everything, somehow or other.

"Well" and she curled up in the corner of the davenport. "I send a great deal of my stuff to the McClure Syndicate. They seem to like what I write, and so they keep on getting it."

"And the McClure Syndicate is—?"

"A corporation which constantly accepts stories meeting its needs, sets them up in column form, and ships them out to newspapers demanding that sort of thing. The requirements include a demand for cheerfulness and lightness as do most syndicates of the kind. Nothing heavy, problematic, central or morbid will be of the least use to them. The happy ending is still enough in vogue to appeal to a great many people, and that is what McClures must have."

"And the length?"

The Question of Length

"As a rule must not exceed 900 words. The stories must be kept within the one column. And that reminds me: They may take a story which is longer, if it happens to be exceptionally good, but they will cut it to fit their particular needs, and it is far better to cut your own story than to have any editor do it. Why, in one story, I said that because of what the man was doing, the girl in the case was losing her respect for him and even her love, or something to that effect. In the editor's office it was cut, and came out, 'She cooled toward him.' Why, I was furious.

"Another thing: Don't ever sign your name to anything which you do not want the wide world to read. At least don't send it to a syndicate. Just the other day someone brought me a little country newspaper from somewhere in Vermont with a story in it which I had written and submitted to a syndicate months ago—certainly never expecting to see it up here.

"There are loads of people in the world who can write who do write, but just because they do not submit anything they have nothing published. I certainly never thought much about it until this summer—" and there she was back again with Mr. Dean and his Short Story Course.

"However, one is not considered a professional until he can say that he has thirty or forty manuscripts out, other than what he has had accepted. I never manage to have more than twelve or thirteen, so you see I have quite a way to go yet," and she laughed.

And I sighed. Writing evidently meant more than a few words a day. "Have you ever tried anything else? Sunday School stories, for instance?"

She laughed again. "Once," she said. "I thought I would try one of the Cook publications. There, the editors have a rather nice form of rejection slip. On it is a list of possible defects in your story which are checked, showing your particular faults. Mine came back marked 'too moral.' Of course it was moral. I thought that was what they wanted. Evidently even Sunday School magazines do not want that phase overdone."

St. Michael's Quintet Wins Opening State Series Game

Visitors Leading Catamounts at Half 11 to 8 Triumph by Final Score of 28 to 21—Tierney is High Scorer—Captain Halligan, Bernstein and Sargent Star for Vermont

CHECKERBOYS WIN IN PRELIMINARY CONTEST

Wednesday night the St. Michael's basketball team defeated Vermont on the U. V. M. gym floor in a hard-fought game by the score of 28 to 21. The Purple had a veteran team that worked well together and was able to keep in the lead throughout the game. At the half the score was 11 to 8 in favor of the visitors.

Sargent and Bernstein were the scoring leaders for Vermont but the work of the Catamounts' two forwards, Captain Halligan and Tierney, was noteworthy. With two stars such as Captain Slattery and Sargent to contend with, the Vermonters did well to keep the score down. The scoring for St. Mike's was thus divided mainly to Tierney and Connally. The noticeable weakness among the Catamounts was the lack of ability to shoot fouls and this feature was influential in the Cat's defeat.

First Half

The game started off fast with neither team able to tally until Bernstein finally broke away and got a field shot. Connally evened the score later when he got two points for St. Michael's from the charity line on Sargent's foul. Then the visitors jumped into the lead on Captain Slattery's counter taken on a rebound. Sargent added one more point for the Winooski team and this left the score 5 to 4 when time out was called after several minutes of hard play.

After resuming the game Manning sank a long center shot to raise Vermont's total number of points to four. Captain Slattery shot a foul and Connally did likewise. During this time Vermont had several chances to even the score from the free shot line but the Catamounts were unable to make good the opportunities. Tierney tallied and Bernstein followed immediately with a twin counter for Vermont to make the score 9 to 6 with the Green and Gold trailing. On Tierney's foul Bernstein got Vermont's first point from the charity stripe and Manning soon followed with another. Before the half ended Captain Slattery shot a foul and then Tierney. At this time St. Michael's made the first substitution of the game when Sears was sent in to replace Connally at center.

Second Half

With the score 11 to 8 against them the Catamounts began the last half of the game with a promising spurt. When the ball went up at center, Sargent got the tip-off and Winant tallied a twin counter in the first few seconds of play. However, St. Michael's followed with a field goal when O'Brien got a rebound shot. On Bernstein's foul Tierney added one more point for the Purple before Sargent pushed the ball in from the backboards. Then St. Michael's started a rally that left the Vermonters too

RIFLE TEAM MEETING BRIGHTENS PROSPECTS

Manager A. H. Roller held the second rifle team meeting in the range on Monday afternoon, January 13. Twenty-six men reported and heard a brief talk by Coach Berry on the different shooting positions and sight adjustments. After the preliminary instruction, Captain Berry said that more men are needed for the team and that all freshmen who obtained high scores while shooting in military classes should be trying out.

Any man taking Physical Education will be excused from one class a week if he attends rifle practice regularly. The men are practicing on the range between two and five o'clock every afternoon.

Manager Roller states that the team will take two trips for shoulder-to-shoulder matches—one to Norwich early in February and another to Montreal on March 15 to meet McGill. This is the first year that the team has had any trips. The first matches occur on February 8 when the team shoots against a number of other colleges.

Vermont has always had a good rifle team and this year bids fair to be no disappointment with a coach like Captain Berry and veteran marksmen like Captain Wardwell, E. C. Ball, and G. M. Donaldson, all of whom made such good records this summer.

The other men out are: D. H. Thomas, '31; S. H. Beaman, '31; M. L. Joslyn, '31; W. F. Burns, '32; R. A. Hyde, '32; H. Leach, '32; M. B. Morrill, '32; L. S. Wright, '32; C. V. Primpas, '32. R. Cross, M. D. Eddy, L. M. Preedom, J. S. Fox, W. C. Perry, J. E. Munsey, K. C. Miner, R. Brook, W. MacDonald, M. K. Dunsmore, H. J. Sheldon, L. R. Dunham, J. E. Bigelow, C. Watson, O. O. Sunderland, E. E. Whitney, all of the class of '33.

Captain Wardwell and Manager Roller have a surprise announcement which they will make through the CYNIC after mid-years at which time Abe Roller will also have the revised schedule ready.

STATE BOARD EXAMINES APPLICANTS TOMORROW

All men desiring to become members of the Vermont State Board of Approved Basketball Officials will be given the opportunity of taking the preliminary written examination tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock in the gym.

J. L. Lambert, president of the Vermont State Board, and H. B. Levine, secretary, will be in charge. This will be the last examination of the season. Floor tests will be given to those passing, at a later date.

ARMY IS OPPONENT IN HOCKEY OPENER

Vermont Goes to West Point to Meet Cadets on February 1 —First Game After Mid-years

GOOD MATERIAL ON HAND FOR COACH ABRAHAM

On Friday, January 31, the varsity hockey team will depart for West point where they will contend with the Army sextet on the following day, opening the slate for the present season.

Although Jack Frost has been rather neglectful of the hockey rink on the back campus, Captain Leo Segal and his warriors were not without spirit and could be found on any patch of ice available, shaping themselves into condition for the approaching campaign.

Captain Leo Segal, star veteran of last year's sextet and a formidable threat of this year's, has been adapting himself anew to his defensive berth along with his co-defender, Lawrence, and both show a wealth of resistive power. Collins is another who can hold down a defensive berth. He is quite effective in this position and very seldom does he allow an opponent to "get through."

Bob Hendrick, star goaler of last year's group, will again be ready to hold down his former position. Bob is one of the valuable men on the squad and is always ready to resist the flying puck or the advances of an energetic opponent. At present he is in better condition than he ever was and is sure to give a good exhibition.

Mercier and Thompson are two men in whom our offensive power is placed. Both have showed themselves worthy of great accomplishments in former contests and nothing now seems to bar their way from continuing the good work. Swain and Howard are also keen on the puck and exceptionally good defenders will be necessary to withstand their attack.

Rapuano will probably see action in the pivot position for Vermont. He is very effective in the face-off and a good shot. Wood also has the fight in him that is necessary for a start-off man.

Marvin and Priner both can be depended on in a crucial moment and great deeds are expected from them this season.

Although mid-year exams are now setting in, nevertheless these undaunted rinksters will surely find time to tune up for the Army game. As this is the first trip of any accountable length that the hockey team has ever taken in recent years, they certainly would like to create an impression and we wouldn't be at all surprised if they returned with the Army mule.

Lindquist, Goodrich and Tapping, according to past records, will prove quite threatening to Coach Abraham's boys and certainly will give a fight to the finish.

The probable line-ups follow:

VERMONT		ARMY
Mercier, l.w.	r.w.	Goodrich
Rapuano, c.	c.	Lindquist
Thompson, r.w.	l.w.	Rothschild
Lawrence, l.d.	r.d.	Tapping
Segal (Capt.), r.d.	l.d.	Cotter
Hendrick, g.	g.	Waters

CAT'S MEOW

—SPORTING EDITOR—

Vermont has another chance to defeat the clever St. Michael's five in the first game after mid-years. The Cats will journey to Winooski Park February 6.

St. Michael's is always at its best on its home court. Captain Slattery knows every inch of the floor and backboard and will probably have better luck with his one-handed lefty shots than he had at the U. V. M. gym. He has his whole team tossing them with one arm in the bucket.

The finest piece of work in Wednesday's game was the defense of Capt "Tim" Halligan. The great Slattery was practically powerless for a change. The few points he did manage to get were due in no way to laxity on "Tim's" part, but extremely clever handling of the ball.

Having recently left a sick bed Halligan was unable to get his eye on the basket.

After the exam period rest the Green and Gold should be in better physical condition than it is now.

Winant did a good job for his first game. Shooting from under the basket is Ed's weakness. He passes cleverly.

Long Connally was acrobating on several occasions when he leaned out over the side lines, while standing off balance on one foot, to recover bad passes.

Hockey material is better this year than it has ever been in the several years of its presence on the Vermont campus.

It is going to be difficult to pick a starting offensive line, with seven or eight good men to choose from. Coach Abraham will be able to use two equally potent scoring trios.

A wealth of experienced frosh has bolstered prospects. Then again, Hendrick is looking good in the cage. Toward the end of last year he was guarding a consistently airtight goal and is continuing this season.

The Middlebury hockey game scheduled for tomorrow afternoon has been postponed. According to the Vermont law of averages it will either rain or snow tomorrow. Let this be a warning to those who would brave the elements to watch the hockey game that it is not necessary to don the bathing suit and carry the snowshoes to the new rink.

All junior questionnaires and snapshots of individuals must be returned in before the end of mid-years.

HOCKEY IS POPULAR MAY BECOME MAJOR

Winter Sport Increasing in Importance in Colleges Throughout Country—Vermont Team Progressing

FIFTH MAJOR SPORT POSSIBLE NEXT YEAR

Winter is here, but it doesn't seem to mean much to the hockey squad as the ice cannot seem to make up its mind whether to stay here or not. Alternating days of cold and warmth do not go to make a good rink, and the sextet has been unable to put in any real practice this season.

This is especially discouraging to the team this year, as it has been the fond dream of the ice stars to put hockey on a plane with the other sports and unless a good, well-trained team is put on the ice it is practically impossible. Hockey has steadily been growing in importance throughout the East and it is worthy of the attention that is being paid to it, for it is one of the fastest and most exciting games that is known to the sporting world. Already it is a major sport in many of the eastern colleges, and now it appears that there is a movement afoot at Vermont to raise it to the level of the four major sports.

This rise in importance will depend a great deal on the results of this season. If the hockeyists crash through and turn in a fairly successful season, it may be accomplished, but if they don't, the sport may sink back into the limbo for another four or five years. Hockey is a great sport and there is no reason at all why it should not be recognized, so all we can do is hope that the rinksters will come out on top and earn their just rewards.

VARSITY FENCING AND FROSH HOOP CARDS OUT

Fencing Schedule Shows Vast Improvement Over Those of Previous Years—Frosh to Make Three-game Basketball Trip

Varsity fencing and freshman basketball have at last been prepared and announced by the coaches. Fencing has grown in importance in the last year or so and this season it has a real hard card scheduled. There are seven meets, each one requiring a tentative overnight journey to New York where they will meet the swordsmen from N Y U and C C N Y.

The frosh basketball five also has a good season ahead of it. They have already played two games and broke even. They take a victory over Huntington Business College to their credit and a defeat at the hands of the Montpelier Club at Rutland. The Montpelier boys make a later appearance on the schedule so the Kittens will have their chance to retaliate. A three-game trip to Clark School, Dartmouth and Montpelier Seminary features the schedule.

far behind to catch up with the leaders. Vermont got a field goal on a long shot and Shea followed with two counters. When half Vermont called time out the score was 20 to 15 against the Green and Gold. Then Tierney got two more points with a shot under the basket before Sargent added one point for Vermont from the foul line. One more field goal for St. Mike's and the score was 24 to 21 in favor of the visitors. On a pass from Halligan Sargent got a corker shot but the Catamounts were now too far behind to hope of winning. Tupper at this time went into the game to replace Wyman who nevertheless had put up a good exhibition. Vermont played hard and reckless but the tide could not be changed. Tierney got a difficult shot from a corner and later fouled Tupper who added the point on the free try. Tupper finally came through with a field goal and then Captain Halligan made another. Captain Slattery retaliated for St. Michael's by dribbling down the floor and making a good shot. Before the game ended Connally was sent to the showers via the foul route to be replaced by Sears and Sargent made the foul shot good. The final score was St. Michael's 28—Vermont 21.

Checkerboys Win Preliminary

In the preliminary game the Checkerboys defeated Coach Prentice's freshman quintet by the score of 14 to 10. Throughout the contest the frosh were unable to overcome the superior work of their opponents who kept in the lead all the way. Both teams had difficulty in locating the basket and the Checkerboys were especially unsuccessful with their long shots. At the end of the half the score was 6 to 3 with the freshmen trailing. This is the second defeat of the season for the Kittens in three starts. A much better brand of basketball was shown in the last half than in the previous period. Most of the time the Checkerboys were content in keeping the ball away from the frosh and their skill or luck in doing this was sometimes astonishing.

Research Shows Junior Week Events Began as Gala 1904 Celebration

With the embryonic plans for the twenty-fifth Junior Week activities already completed, delvers into Vermont research recall to mind the events preceding and following its inception as one of the gala celebrations of the 1904 college year. In that year there was a minor celebration made up of the Junior Promenade, a Glee Club concert, the Cottillion Club dance and the season's first baseball game. It was not until the next year, however, after much agitation in the editorial columns of the Cynic, and on the campus, that a real Junior Week was assured.

1905 Junior Week a Great Success

In 1905 the affair was scheduled for the last week in April. On the Tuesday before there was a large and very enthusiastic meeting in the Old Mill, at which arrangements were made for the following week. Professor Goodrich was there with a talk on Founder's Day, as were representatives of the Glee Club, Ariel, and the Histrionics Club. The committee was made up of Wood, Carlton, Burrowes, Skinner, Bunker, and Cutting, with Wood as chairman. Chairman Wood set forth the plans and work and asked the hearty cooperation of all students that Junior Week might become an annual affair. He also handed out tasty programs bound in green and gold. This year it was a great success, and attained the great popularity with the students which it has held ever since.

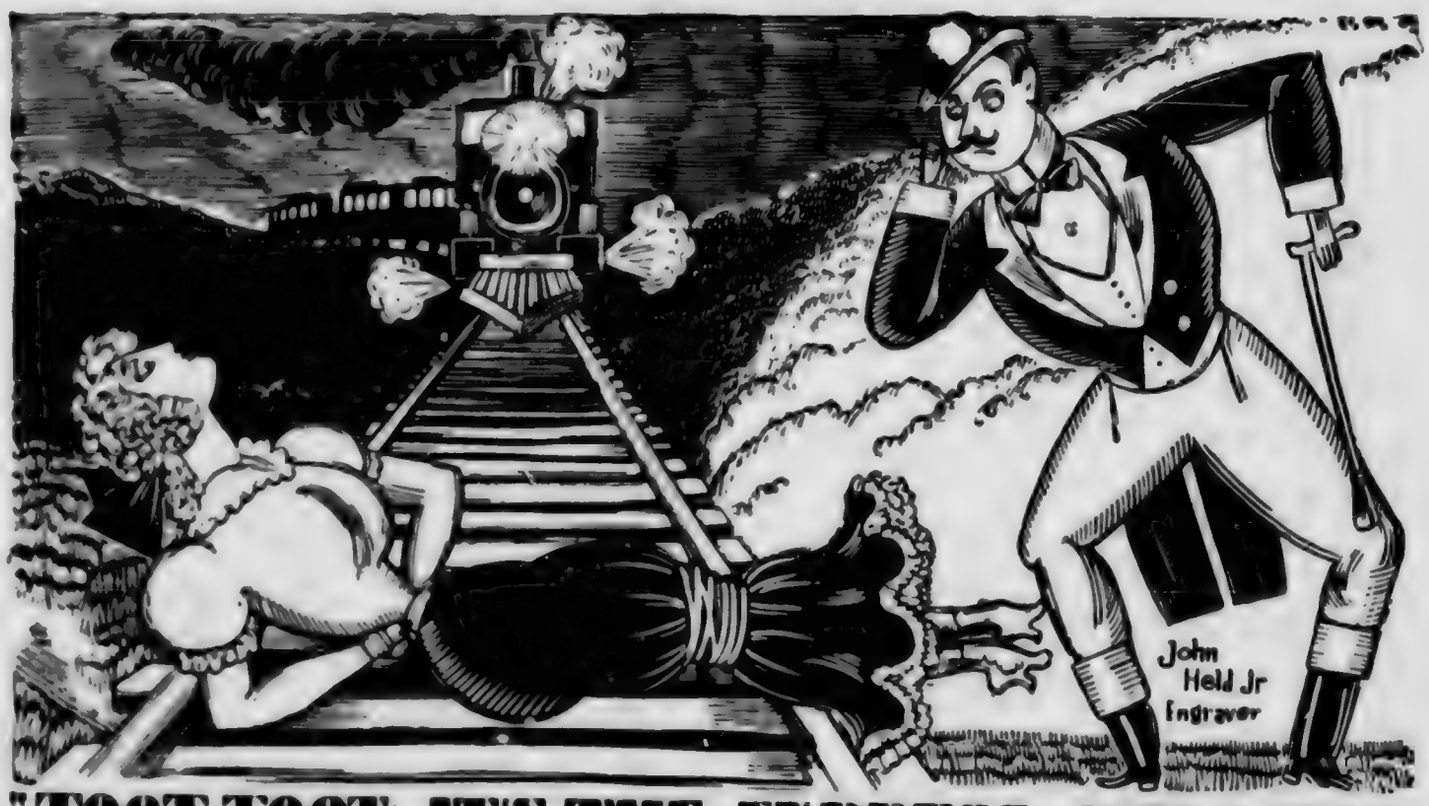
The next year brought forth essentially the same events, except that a class supper was added and an interclass track meet while in 1908 we find a Junior class banquet being given. The following year brought the Junior Week play into being, along with the Peerade to advertise it.

Student Writes Junior Week Play

From the first the Histrionics Club had staged a series of one act plays and farces for Junior Week audiences, but it was not until 1909 that a real play was put on. In that year Wig and Buskin produced "William Warren's Welcome," a farce-comedy in three acts by Roger G. Amsdell, then a senior at the University. The production was brisk. Its feature was a maze of mistaken identities, the unravelling of the plot was "cleverly contrived," as the Cynic termed it. The play was greatly applauded. It is said that there was not a weak spot in the cast, which included G. P. Harris, E. W. Chaffee, G. P. [illegible], D. W. Eipper, H. A. Gross, H. Ramsdell, C. F. Macrae, W. [illegible], Elias Lyman, and G. E. Scott.

Class of '09 Features Peerade

A Peerade had been held the previous year to advertise the coming play, but in that year it was made a feature of Junior Week. Signs were posted on the Campus and notices were inserted in the Cynic urging everyone to turn out. The Peerade was a monstrous affair, with a very large proportion of the student body taking part and wearing highly original costumes. It made its way down Pearl to Church Street, down Church to Main, and back to college. In 1914 Wig and Buskin offered a small cup for individuals, a large cup for the most elaborate float, and another small cup for the most original float.



Intercollegiate News

When sacred school traditions are broken by freshmen at Gonzaga University, a group of upperclassmen known as vigilantes mete out punishment to the offenders.

Students at the University of California earned more than a million dollars last year while taking the regular college courses.

According to President Lowell of Harvard University the younger a boy is when he goes to college the less likely he is to be influenced by the immoral and harmful conditions he may find there.

The Illinois court ruled recently that fraternities are charitable institutions and therefore exempt from taxes.

"TOOT! TOOT! IT'S THE EXPRESS. WILL YOU YIELD OR BE GROUND BENEATH THE WHEELS?" ROARED INGLESBY

"Never!" cried Our Nell, bound to the rails, her eyes blazing with defiance. "Death is preferable to a life with such as you."

"How do you make that out?" he purred.

"A rasping voice such as yours would make life a living hell," she answered him. "Unbind me, change to OLD GOLDS and maybe I'll listen to reason."

The neglect of her native authors [illegible] led to the assertions [illegible] that Vermont has no literary [illegible] moment, was the contention [illegible] Arthur W. Literature Sociologically Interpreted [illegible] has a sociological interpretation declared Professor Peach. [illegible] of literature in the world [illegible] is small. The literature that shows the times out of which it comes is the finest mirror for the [illegible] the inner life of the region. This is true as well of Vermont literature Professor Peach held that there has been too much of a scientific approach in literature. Science should not branch into the field of spiritual and literary values.

In speaking of the early ballads of Vermont during the progress of the state, the speaker explained that Vermont has not been a good environment for the creative mind. The early families in the State discouraged poetry and the appreciation of beauty of nature and thought, because they found it incompatible with tilling the soil and earning a living. But these environmental conditions, held Professor Peach, are improving.

Small town life follows rigid lines that are depressing to young writers. This has sometimes been called the best state in which to write, but it has not been so thus far. The state is superbly beautiful but no major poet has yet arisen. Nor has this suppression been due to outside influence

KAKE WALK DIRECTORS OFFER SEVEN CUPS TO ENLIVEN 1930 EVENTS

Traditional Cups Will Again Reward Successful Entrants—Directors Set all Final Dates

First reverberation of the thirty-third annual Kake Walk were heard last week when the directors of the 1930 event announced that seven cups will be awarded this year to those organizations who make the finest showing in the peerade, stunts and kake walking.

The traditional Briggs cup will again be first place award in the stunts, with the Southwick cup going to the fraternity placing second, and the Boulder cup to the fraternity ranking highest in the kake walking. The cups, offered for the first time last year, will again be presented on the evening of the second day: The Student Senate cup for second place in the kake walking, the Hayes and Carney cup for first place in the Grand Peerade, the Preston cup for second place in the peerade, and the cup for the best individual entry in the peerade.

The Rules

The following arrangements have been made as to stunts:

1. Drawings for places for order of stunts and rehearsals will be made at the A. T. O. house Saturday, February 8, at 1.15 p.m.
2. Rehearsals will be of two hours' duration on either February 18 or 19, starting at 6.00 p.m.
3. Dress rehearsals will be held on Thursday, February 20, beginning at 7.00 o'clock, in the presence of tryout judges. Six stunts will be chosen

PROFS ARE PROMINENT IN BIRD-BOTANY CLUBS

The Karl Pember collection of falcon and other birds' eggs, recently acquired by the University, was the subject of a paper read by Prof. H. F. Perkins, of the zoology department, at a joint meeting of the Vermont Botanical and Bird Clubs in the Williams Science Hall last Thursday morning. At the same meeting Prof. E. J. Dole, of the botany department, was elected secretary-treasurer of both clubs, while Professor Gershoy, also of the botany department, was chosen editor and librarian. The meetings, which opened Wednesday, stretched over two days.

Professor Perkins illustrated his lecture with lantern slides and films and exhibited the collection of eggs and nests, the gift of Karl Pember, of Woodstock, state ornithologist, who died three years ago. Professor Dole also described another collection recently presented to the University—the Dutton Herbarium, a collection of plants consisting of some 3,400 specimens of mosses, 1,800 liverworts, 4,000 lichens and 2,500 ferns and seed plants, given to the University by D. Lewis Dutton, of Brandon, who died last fall.

Among the papers presented were three read by Professor Dole. On Tuesday he presented a discussion by

Louis Lisman Becomes Editor-in-chief of the Cynic; S. S. Corbin to Head Business Board; Hilda Smith Will Act as Women's Editor

Nelson and Brush Will Serve as Managing Editors—Nathanson is Re-elected Sports Editor with Foster as Associate—Cobb, Eaton and Householder Become News Editors

James C. Puffer, Business Manager of the CYNIC during 1929-30

TWENTY-ONE PROMOTED IN FOUR DEPARTMENTS

Louis Lisman, '31, of Burlington, today assumes the duties of editor in chief of the VERMONT CYNIC and will continue to serve throughout the year 1930-31, as a result of the annual mid-year elections. At subsequent meetings it was announced that Stuart S. Corbin, '31 of Burlington, will serve as business manager during the same period, while Hilda Smith, '31, of Easthampton, Mass., will act as women's editor. Seymour I. Nathanson, '30, of Fitchburg, Mass., will again head the sports department, serving as sports editor until next June.

The New Board

Further results show that in the news department, George R. Brush, '31, of Arlington, and George R. Nelson, '31, of Stamford, Conn., will act as managing editors. News editorships went to Raymond W. Cobb, '32, of Bennington, Allen O. Eaton, '32, of Worcester, Mass., and Fred W. Householder, '32, of Burlington. E. A. Rogermain, '31, of Burlington, and R. L. Stewart, '30, of Hardwick, will continue to serve as feature editors. C. N. Crockett, '31, of Burlington, was elected intercollegiate editor, and E. J. Fitzgerald, '32, of Brooklyn, N. Y., was chosen dramatic editor.

In the sports department Lynford M. Foster, '31, of Evansville, was elected associate editor. The new assistant editors are J. S. Levin, '32, of Brookline, Mass., A. A. Maislen, '32, of Hartford, Conn., and F. Tupper, '32, of Burlington.

The associate women's editor is Luella Ross, '31, of Wallingford. Harriet Wright, '31, of Essex Junction, was again chosen women's athletic editor. Gladys Press, '31, of St. Albans, will serve as women's intercollegiate editor.

F. Stanley Smith, '31, of Adams, Mass., was chosen advertising manager by the outgoing business board. The assistant business managers are E. G. Hurlburt, '32, of Bridgeport, Conn., J. E. Tracy, '32, of Bristol, Pa., and G. E. Wilder, '32, of Petersham, Mass.

Journalists All

The new board brings to the Cynic a variety of journalistic experience. Lisman, the new editor, is serving his third year on the Cynic board and acted as news editor throughout the past year. He is a member of Pi Delta Rho, honorary journalistic society and is Kake Walk editor of the [illegible]. He is also a member of Grey Friars, honorary literary society, and of Tau Kappa Alpha, honorary debating society. He is a varsity debater of three years' standing, holds two debating prizes, and has placed twice in the Kingsley prize speaking. At present, he is serving on a Junior Week committee and is assistant manager of eligibility. Lisman has made the honor roll consistently and is a member of Phi Sigma Delta.

Stuart Corbin, the new business manager, served during the past year as assistant manager. He was business manager of the Freshman Handbook and is a member of Pi Delta Rho. Corbin is an assistant manager of baseball and is also assistant manager of eligibility. He holds a Junior Week committeeship and belongs to Delta Psi.

The new women's editor, Hilda Smith, is a member of the Kappa Delta Fraternity. She belongs to Bluestockings and has served on class committees.

Nathanson was chosen to continue in the sports editorship in recognition of his work during the past year. Hereafter, the sporting editor will serve a year and a half, holding office as associate editor from January to June of his junior year and automatically assuming the duties of sports editor the following September. Nathanson is a member of Pi Delta Rho, belongs to Tau Epsilon Phi and has served on class committees.

N. Y. U. Honors Prof. Tupper

Senate of New York University Names Vermont Professor Elector to Hall of Fame

HONOR GOES TO 107 PROMINENT CITIZENS

Chosen out of thousands of the most prominent men and women in the United States, Prof. Frederick Tupper, many years head of the English department at the University, will serve as one of the 107 in the College of Electors of the Hall of Fame for the 1930 election, according to an announcement made last week by the senate of New York University.

The Colonnade which serves as the Hall of Fame was built and is maintained by a gift of $250,000 from Mrs. Finley J. Shepard, the former Helen Gould. It is situated on the campus of New York University on University Heights and overlooks the Palisades and the Hudson and Harlem River valleys.

The College of Electors makes the choice of men and women whose memory will be observed by bronze tablets in the Hall from nominations submitted by the press and public. Only men and women who died before October 1, 1905, and Americans or men and women identified with the United States, may be considered. The final list of proposed candidates will be sent to the electors on June 1, and they will have until October 1 to consider it at leisure, comparing notes as they wish and securing supplementary information from experts.

Hall May Be Filled In 2000

Space is provided in the Hall for 150 bronze tablets. It was first planned to inscribe 50 names in 1900 and five additional names at the close of every five years thereafter, provided the number was approved at each election. Under this arrangement the Hall would be filled by 2000 A. D.

More than a thousand names were selected for the first election, but only 29 of these received the necessary votes. In 1905 five names were added; in 1910, eight; in 1915, eight; in 1920, six; and in 1925, two. The names of seven women who had been elected were placed in 1922, when all discriminations as to sex was abolished. A total of 65 tablets have been placed and the quota for the present election, including vacancies, is 15.

From time to time appropriate organizations or individuals are invited to present bronze busts of the persons who have been elected to the Hall of Fame. These busts surmount the

REHEARSALS PREPARE GLEEMEN FOR CONTEST

In preparation for the New England Glee Club Contest on February 28 in Springfield, Mass., the U. V. M. Men's Glee Club will hold regular rehearsals on Wednesdays and Thursdays at 7.00 p.m. during the month of February, with extra rehearsals to be announced. There is still an opportunity for a few good singers to enter the club, provided that they learn the music and attend the required minimum of fourteen rehearsals.

The rehearsals of the University orchestra will be resumed this week: string rehearsals on Tuesdays at 4.00 p.m. and general rehearsals on Thursdays at 4.00 p.m. Work on the Lenten-Easter concert and on the spring opera will also begin.

The Women's Glee Club will resume rehearsals on Thursday at 7.15 p.m. to begin work on the spring opera.

Try-outs for solo parts in the annual spring opera will be held in the Music Building on Friday from 3.30 to 4.25 p.m. Detailed announcements will be made at the rehearsals of the Men's and Women's Glee Clubs and Choir.

SUPERIOR MENTALITY IN FOREIGN STUDENTS IS A FACT, DECLARES MYRICK

French Professor Describes Surprising Mental Agility of European Students to International Club

"There is a universality of learning and an agility of mind, wit, and talent among foreign students which is probably due to a severe process of selection in foreign universities," declared Prof. A. B. Myrick in a review of "Some personal reminiscences of university life in Europe," before a meeting of the International Relations Club in the Old Mill January 16.

The speaker suggested that international amity would be greatly enhanced if the international exchange of scholars were to be further promoted.

Professor Myrick was the third educator from an English-speaking nation to teach in an Italian university, when he began teaching English philology and early English literature in the University of Milan. The completeness of the students' knowledge of English literature astounded him at first. The facility with which they spoke, read, and wrote three or four languages astonished him equally as much.

On questioning the students, he found that they gained their knowledge of languages in the public schools. In addition, they seized every opportunity to converse with foreigners, and during vacations, frequently took a little trip into a neighboring country. They labored hard and constantly on their studies.

Student Poverty

The student in Europe, said the speaker, rarely takes his meals in the house in which he lives. He goes to cafés and restaurants, and there he indulges in heated debate with his fellow students on literary movements and the like. He does not always go to the same café each day, but often wanders about, picking up bargains in meals, since the average student, especially in France and Italy, is very poor. He also combs the streets for bargains in rooms. The foreign student will expose himself to hardships unknown to the average American student in order to get an education.

The amount of reading and writing required in a foreign university is so great that the student has no time to work for a living along with his studying. He must sustain himself as best he can, and if necessary he will live in an extremely cold attic room and will half starve himself.

There is no bachelor's degree in French and Italian universities, only the doctor's degree. Very few foreign

EXTRA CURRICULAR

Among all the disillusionments which follow commencement day, the saddest is the discovery that the very alumni who have shouted the loudest regarding the value of outside activities are often the least inclined to take care of the men who have, as the saying is, made good on the campus. The moral is an obvious one. Don't go out for extra curricular activities. Life is not like a football game and one cannot prepare for life by playing football. Nor is the hopeful young college grad with the rosiest glow of commencement day not far taxed from his books called upon by an expectant world to do that mysterious thing known as "handing out" and the alumnus who has urged the student into campus positions of responsibility as a training for success in life, has been deceiving the innocent victim of his enthusiasm.

This and much more to the same effect, the reader will find elsewhere on this page in an abstract of an article appearing in the current press. But dozens of a dozen magazines might have carried it. Dozens of dozens of writers might have penned it. Such articles are designed to do no more than to shock or surprise and frequently the press on the campus long alternates with attacks on the classroom grind. Like the youngster and the mid-year examination, the critic of the extra-curricular activity is always with us.

In the days of wooden bicycles and the mandolin quartet the extra curricular activity as we have it today, in all its multiplicity and semi-organization, was a thing unknown. A certain amount of a snap and reads athletics a considerable amount of purely intellectual activity and a goodly amount of unadulterated devilry, served as an outlet for youthful spirits outside of the classroom. With the spread of the liberalized curriculum and the system of free electives, however other concepts of as radical a nature intruded into the sanctums of the American university and not the least of them was that of the importance of extra curricular activity.

Outside activities were long an unmitigated blessing for the student who each day found time hanging heavy on his hands. They provided a legitimate outlet for the craving for action and frequently aided in the development of the student. Then it was that some bright and enterprising spirit conceived the idea of rewarding the able and exceptional. From that day to this, honor societies have been springing up with increasing rapidity from year to year on every college campus. Keys, diplomas, pins, certificates and emblems of every sort have been their stock in trade. Legitimate in purpose and almost invariably recognizing the exceptional and able they have, however, been the cause for the breeding of a comparatively new and illegitimate variety of activity man, the honor grabber, whose goal is neither perfection in his work, nor the lessons to be gained therefrom, but the honors that await him at the end. By hook or by crook he must have those honors. Must he work for them? So be it. But not one finger will he lift save to that end. Is there any other way of gaining them? Then that way it shall be, even if it mean the rewarding of mediocrity. It is against such men that the attack should be directed. To direct it against the legitimate activity man is to confound cause and effect.

The honor grabber we have pictured is an envious creature, who desires for himself the laurels that others deserve. He is parasitic, for he lives off the work and honors of others. But after all, there is no difference between him and the sort of students whose sole aim in four years of university life is either a degree or a Phi Beta Kappa key. Neither studies for the sake of study, neither gains anything really worth while from his university, and neither will ever turn his learning to account for the benefit of mankind. Neither is there any difference between the honor grabber and the professional athlete in college sport, for if one works solely for a little gold emblem, the other works for gold alone. It is fortunate that the honor grabber, the grind and the professional athlete never quite succeed in drowning the legitimate activity man, the true student and the true athlete. Success does not always lie in a desire for rewards. Ability and the industry born of love of one's work frequently win out.

One has little respect for the professional in college sports and little for the grind. Deep down, one has none at all for the man who seeks campus honors, yet offers to his college nothing in return, who will play just long enough to win his letter, work just hard enough to earn his key and, if fortune and fraternities be with him, dispense with work altogether. It is not surprising that such men should not succeed after the ceremony of dispensing the sheepskins is over with. The grind may be endowed with patience and persistence. The campus hang-on of the illegitimate variety has neither patience nor persistence. He is endowed with neither industry nor ability. A certain amount of cunning and a certain degree of determination he does possess. But, in the absence of more solid qualities, it would be surprising if he succeeded indeed.

Ten Timely Topics

I heard one of the boys say the other day that he went to the Holly [illegible] when the Orpheum shows a picture [illegible] instead of one [illegible]

A member of the administration has [illegible] suggested the possibility of the honor system. It [illegible] would be worth thinking over both by the students and by the [illegible] for the present system is an [illegible] and, as an [illegible] both student and instructor.

Isn't it at Princeton where the students are forbidden to drive cars? I sometimes think that that is the only solution of the traffic problem on the local campus. Unless the administration should see fit to put in sidewalks. With from 10 to 20 percent of the students living on Colchester Avenue, Mansfield Avenue, Nash Place, etc., and with a much larger number going to Rand's for meals, it is a case of "the pedestrian be rammed" if he tries to walk from the Science Hall to the old Hash House.

And speaking of Princeton, unless my memory deceives me, they have no fraternities either. Wonder what that would seem like. Different, at any rate.

I wonder how many remember the tragedy that occurred a year ago, when the college was shocked by the news of the death of one of the most outstanding men who has ever studied within her walls. When a man of brilliance, who in spite of almost insurmountable difficulties attains the highest scholastic honors that his alma mater can bestow on him, is taken from this world in the prime of his youth it is an irreparable loss to the world. Few colleges have ever been proud of such a son as John Medlar.

Sometimes I think that this college doesn't do justice to some types of men. A lot of men who are unable successfully to meet the combination of mathematics and language which is required of them, have the ability to make good in their own field of history, political science, economics, philosophy and literature. And, after all, are these not as much the elements of an education, are these not the earmarks of culture as surely as trigonometry, Latin syntax, and French grammar? The only course which is offered to meet this difficulty is the highly specialized C and E, which hardly does justice to a man who is after a general education.

The Book-a-Week Club invites your attention. For this week let me inquire if you have ever happened to read "Maria Chapdelaine," by Louis Hemon. It was translated from the French a half a dozen years ago or more and you can get it now in the dollar series. I hope you won't miss reading a real human story of French-Canadian frontier life.

Unless my memory deceives me, it was just about a year ago that a student committee at N. Y. U. recommended that, inasmuch as most college students don't belong in college anyway, all but a very few of the most promising be given an honorable discharge at the end of their sophomore year and be saved further expense and worry. Not such a bad idea, either, although I have not heard yet of its being acted upon.

Now that exam time is over, and the smoke is beginning to clear away, I wonder what it all amounts to, anyway. The average student crams for exams in five or six wholly distinct and unrelated subjects, passes (or fails to pass) his examination, and promptly forgets it all. Why not a system of comprehensive examinations at the end of the senior year, either in place of, or in addition to the present plan? These would be based perhaps 40-30 percent on one's major subject, 20-30 percent on the related minor, and 20-30 percent on general culture gleaned from the four years.

Of course, bridge is the national pastime, but I wonder how many students play chess. It is too good a game to fall into disuse. Why not a chess tournament played, for example, at the Vermonters' Club House if your roommate is too funny to let you clutter up the house with such nonsense?

Campus Comment

To the Editor of the Cynic:

The month of June is only eight months away. I wish he said, that you would write something on a piece of paper and put it away safely for ten years, then look at it and see if you don't think John was right after all. Just write: I am a little impatient.

I am a little impatient—well—maybe. What's the odds? I wish I were more so. What a future for any man, to be a third rate teacher in some third rate college, pouring over the dry-as-dust facts of the world gone past. Why don't we make history? Alexander Napoleon—they made his marks when they were young. Yet here we sit smoking puerile cigarettes and foolish pipes concerned with nothing at all that can possibly interest or affect the world at large.

Young men for shame. You have betrayed the trust which the world has put in you for centuries; you have tamely surrendered your mission. Young men no longer rule the earth. This is an old man's world. Grey-haired asses debate aimlessly about things in which they long ago lost interest, while the blood of the world stagnates in colleges, in factories, in offices—in short, in all the places where it can do no good.

Where are the young men of 1848? Where are the young men of 1830? Where are the young men of the French Revolution? Where are the young men of the world? No Schiller, writing a masterpiece at twenty; no De Musset, making his début at nineteen; no Napoleon, no Alexander sighing for more worlds to conquer.

Young men, what are you doing worth while in this world? What are you doing to justify the torture with which you were brought into life? What are you doing to make history? You waste your splendid youth in football, in dancing, and all those things, well enough in themselves, yet God knows how empty when they become the whole of life. Alexander at the wine table, Alexander gaming, Alexander in any sort of a debauch—yes; but never Alexander with no wider scope for his ambition than the football field, the dance floor, the roadside stand, and the motor car. Napoleon erratic enough—yes; but never Napoleon erratically writing theses, solving problems, filling prescriptions, punching a typewriter.

Youth has sold its birthright for a mess of pottage; for security, and ease, and insurance against the benefits of a little occasional rashness, youth has bound itself to a decade or even two decades—of "preparation," two decades when there can be alike no hopes and no accomplishment, two decades of the best of life dedicated to barrenness, that once the zest of youth is past it may then embrace the tasks of the world for which it has lost all desire.

Youth—come back! Redeem yourself! The world again shall ring with your renown if you but strive for it. Leave this barren world to which you have attached yourself, and fill yourselves once more with the fire of conquest, and the zest of accomplishment, and you shall rule the earth.

I think I am just a little impatient—in fact I know it, without John to tell me, and I thank God for it. Forward, youth, and the world will be ours.

—Son of Vermont.

ODDS AND ENDS

The greatest need of American education, according to the youthful president of Chicago University, Robert Maynard Hutchins, is more money for faculty members to "make education respectable and to enable colleges and universities to compete with business for the nation's best minds." His plan is to spend $100,000,000 on three "key universities," one in the East, one in the middle-West, and one on the Pacific coast, and thereby to develop "pace-makers that will revitalize American education."

CAMPUS KINGS

"The great majority of the Campus Kings have what is usually called personality." Henry F. Pringle in the February College Humor they follow, with diligence and a small degree of skill, a path proved by generations of alumni. The important thing about success, as we have been told, is success on the campus. It was well enough for the prospective teacher to make America's standard of culture the man who planned some day must concentrate on more important things. Student success, that most dim and forbidding of all places, the outside world. The business manager of a college paper knows how to run an office. He knows, the alumni whisper, 'how to handle men.' The athlete of a varsity team has learned how to fight. Life, it is set forth, is very much like a football game. Adopt this system, learn as an undergraduate has been advised, and the path to success lies smooth before him.

"So, too, the Campus Queens. These enchanting girls, after whom the skyline edged farther and farther into the center of the dance floor, return to Emporia or Middletown or Henderson and marry the village Rotarian. There they are bored or neurotic as they settle down into their middle-aged spread, wistfully unhappy as they dream of the days when men clustered on the porch of the sorority house.

"Among all the disillusionments which follow commencement day the saddest is the discovery that the very alumni who have shouted the loudest regarding the value of outside activities are often the least inclined to take care of the men who have, as the saying is, made good on the campus. They share with other business men a coldly practical point of view. To an increasing degree they are beginning to make inquiries regarding the scholastic records of the men they hire. It often dawns on the Campus King too late that the accomplishments which meant so much at school were but parlor tricks after all. Why learn to run an office by being business manager of the paper? He could have found out more by working in an office for six months.

"It may be excellent practice to boss compets and thereby handle men. But the new graduate discovers that no one asks him to handle men."

THESE EXAMS USED TO KILL THEM OFF EASILY

Groans have been heard from various sources over three-hour exams. It is fortunate that these "groans" are not Chinese, for under the old Imperial government in China, the exams often lasted for three days and nights. According to Ray Six of Oklahoma these exams sometimes resulted in the death of the student. It is easily believable.

The Imperial University at Nanking could accommodate 10,000 students at the same time. They wrote all their exams at one sitting, wielding a brush instead of a pen, seated in a small stall with a board on which to write on. The winners of these endurance tests were given offices in the Imperial Government.—Detroit Daily.

CAT'S MEOW

SPORTING EDITOR—

Revenge!—Not as Beat Norwich! or Bury Middlebury! but an exact expression of the [illegible] among the members of the Catamount hoop squad.

Thursday presents a good chance for that revenge at Winooski Park at the expense of the cocky Purple and gold quintet coached by the illustrious and colorful Owen Murphy.

Ex-captain Spooner of Middlebury is returning to school this semester and will take over his old guard position. That gives Middlebury four veterans and a crack outfit.

Two or three frosh are now eligible and capable of making the varsity team for the remainder of the season.

Coach "Bunny" Prentice's Freshman squad will play the Waterbury Town team tomorrow in the well-known Vermont municipality. Waterbury was scheduled to appear here earlier in the season, but poor traveling conditions resulting in a late arrival and the game had to be called off.

Norwich upset the dope by defeating Middlebury, Saturday, in a fast game at Rutland. The score was 35 to 33. Panos and Hartford starred for Norwich and Johnson for Middlebury.

Middlebury now has a game which complicates the situation in the state championship race.

Several weeks ago the Boston University News carried the following editorial entitled "A N. E. Conference":

When a college football team wins only three out of the nine games on its schedule, there are any number of people ready to complain, but only a few prepared to offer practical suggestions.

The fundamental weakness of the Terrier grid teams has been the lack of enough material to withstand the attack of their more formidable rivals. It is apparent that the University officials will not stoop to the process of buying athletes' to bolster up this institution's athletic stock.

Why then should Boston University not be content to meet grid teams within its own class? Let it be made clear that Boston University and its 12,000 students actually only draws C. B. A. and former C. B. A. men at the School of Law. An eligible athlete from any other department is as rare as the dodo.

With all this in mind why does the Athletic Council insist on putting the Terriers almost on alternate Saturdays with West Point, Dartmouth, Holy Cross and Boston College. Although the Athletic Council has not announced the 1930 schedule, indications are that all four of the aforementioned colleges will work out against the Terriers next fall.

The News proposes that Boston University invite such New England colleges as Springfield, Tufts, New Hampshire University, Vermont University, Norwich, Middlebury, and such others as are in no definite league, to form a New England Football Conference. Let the jurisdiction of the Conference be such that each member college be permitted to have on intersectional game and possibly one game with a high-powered opponent.

The News does not pretend to name opponents for the football schedule but it does suggest that the Athletic Council consider the formation of a New England Conference for the [illegible] season."

We hesitate to agree with or advocate [illegible] but do sympathize with Boston University. The difficulty mentioned in the editorial exists on the Vermont campus and has been mentioned in these columns before. Although the local situation has been improved slightly for 1930, it is expected that [illegible] will see "everybody happy."

The B. U. proposal presents too many complicated conditions. In the first place the calibre of football varies to a great extent from one another. An outfit too strong for the proposed conference would be too superior the next. For example we cite Tufts, which although not inferior in recent years have been much too strong for most of the teams on the schedule. Of course, these teams are [illegible] but that's the way they turn out undoubtedly. In addition, too many controversies in the scheduling of a game with the schools would arise. Who wants another So-and-so University high-powered two years in succession?

Football has really been conservative in discussion.

Catamounts Meet St. Mike's Five at Winooski Thursday

First Game After Mid-years for Varsity—Green and Gold Seeking Revenge for Stinging Defeat Administered by Purple and Gold Last Month

AT WINOOSKI PARK THURSDAY

Bernstein, r.f.	l.g., Tierney
Tupper, l.f.	r.g., O'Brien
Sargent, c.	c., Connally
Halligan, r.g.	l.f., Slattery
Manning, l.g.	r.f., Shea

STARTING LINE-UPS SAME AS PREVIOUS CONTEST

For the first game of the second semester the Vermont basketball team will journey over to Winooski Park where the Catamounts will contend with St. Michael's Thursday night on the latter's home floor. The game should prove very exciting because of the keen rivalry existing between the contestants and besides the Cats are out to rectify the defeat suffered at the hands of the St. Mike's a few weeks ago. This will be an opportunity for the Vermont boys to place themselves once more on the safe side of the state series.

Leading the St. Mike's quintet is Capt. Jack Slattery, a flashy forward who will be guarded by Vermont's star player, Capt. "Tim" Halligan. During the first game with St. Michael's, Halligan, who had just recovered from an illness, certainly did show his determination and spirit when he appeared on the floor in fighting array. Because of existing handicaps he was rather impeded from doing his best but nevertheless, Slattery, St. Mike's mainstay, could get through his defense for only a few points. However, with everyone on his toes and in best condition, no alibis will be considered and a fight throughout will be expected.

In combination with Slattery is the diminutive Shea, who is another dependable forward. Both Slattery and Shea have been doing quite a bit of scoring this year and according to previous experience should prove dangerous Thursday night. The defense of the Purple will consist of Hugh O'Brien and Tierney with McGowan and Mahoney as reserve material. These four men have all shown their mettle to Vermont fans and are known to be smooth and skillful players. Connally as usual will jump center.

With mid year exams over and with worries set aside for a while at least—the Vermont boys should appear at full strength. Bernstein, who has been playing consistently well this year for Vermont, will appear in his forward berth reinforced by Tupper, another fast forward. Both men have been doing some strong scoring backed by Captain Halligan, who is very effective in the offensive in spite of the fact he can play as an air tight defense man. The lanky Sargent will hold down the pivot position and ought to serve the tap to the Vermont forwards quite advantageously. Manning will be the other guard with Captain Halligan and is just the man to complete the defense.

After hibernating for about two weeks the Cats are ready to go and the game should prove the most exciting contest of the year.

Army Wins 7 to 2; Cats Minus Segal

Mercier and Wood Score Vermont Goals—Team Looks Impressive in First Game of Season

Army defeated Vermont at West Point Saturday afternoon, 7-2, in the Catamounts' first engagement of the current campaign. The first period was a thriller, but after that the Green and Gold could not offer much against the experienced Cadets' sextet until in the closing minutes of play when the Catamounts let fire a real attack with Mercier and Wood denting the Army net for goals. The Cadet defense was in fine form throughout the game, while they generally excelled in stickwork and shooting. Darcy and Lindquist led the soldiers' attack, the formers three goals being enough to defeat the Vermonters. Coach Abraham of the Vermont team used four freshmen in his line-up. Wood, at center ice; McVetti and Palmer, wings; and Swain, defense.

The absence of Captain Leo Segal was conspicuous in the Vermont defense. Segal is the backbone of the team with the defense and much of the offense centering around him. On account of illness he was unable to accompany the squad. His play would undoubtedly kept the margin of victory much smaller.

The line-up:

VERMONT		ARMY
Wood, c.	c.,	Lindquist

INTERFRAT TOURNAMENT PLANS ARE COMPLETED

Under Direction of Physical Education Department—Rules Announced—Faculty Entertained

Next Monday evening will see the opening of the annual interfraternity basketball tournament which will be run this winter under the direction of the Physical Education Department for the first time. As in the past the Key and Serpent Society will present a cup to the winning organization. An innovation is the entrance of the faculty team, probably made up from members of the faculty gym class.

The teams are divided into two leagues of eight and seven outfits respectively. Two semi-finals are preliminary to varsity state series and the championship game is scheduled as a preliminary to the Holy Cross game March 1.

The schedule will be printed in Friday's CYNIC.

Rules governing contests.

1. Officials and balls furnished by Physical Education Department.

2. Preliminary and semi-final games shall consist of four ten-minute periods.

The final game shall consist of two twenty-minute periods.

3. (a) Evening games shall start not later than six-thirty (6.30) unless otherwise designated on the schedule. Any team not ready to start at this time shall forfeit the game.

(b) The same rule applies to afternoon games which shall start at the exact time designated on the schedule.

4. Cup for winner to be furnished by Key and Serpent Society.

5. (a) A man who has received a varsity basketball letter at Vermont or at any other college or university, who has participated in a varsity basketball contest, or who is now one of the first ten men on the varsity basketball squad, shall not compete.

(b) All other bona fide undergraduate fraternity men are eligible to compete.

6. Entrance fee of one dollar ($1.00) due and payable from each fraternity before team enters tournament. Make checks payable to George R. Brush, treasurer, Key and Serpent Society.

Frosh Quint Plays Waterbury Team

First Out of Town Game for Yearlings—Grant, Valerio, Farwell, McGowan and Collins to Start

Tomorrow night the Vermont Freshman basketball team journeys to Waterbury to tackle the town team there. This will be the first game away from home for Coach "Bunny" Prentice's charges, who have only one more contest scheduled to take place in Burlington. Fraternity games will be the preliminaries for certain home varsity contests hereafter.

The Frosh quintet has played three games and won one so far this season. The Mercury Club of Rutland and the Checkerboys have both defeated the Kittens, while the Burlington Business College fell a victim to the Green and Gold. Coach Prentice has been developing a creditable team which should be in good condition for tomorrow night's game after a two weeks rest.

In the forward line the Frosh have two fast-scoring players in Grant and Valerio. Both have shown consistently good work in their past performances. Farwell will be at the pivot position with Fowler ready to do substitute work. McGowan and Collins will take care of the defense side of the game and may be expected to do their share to bring a second victory of the season for the Freshmen.

FRESHMAN FOOTBALL SCHEDULE ANNOUNCED

Through the office of the Graduate Manager of Athletics the football schedule for the 1934 freshman team of next fall has been announced.

The freshmen will have a five-game schedule instead of the usual six. In order that the squad may be well trained and in good physical condition before attempting what is expected to be the most difficult schedule since the one played by the 1930 team four years ago.

Vermont Academy is first on the card in a game at Saxtons River. Montpelier Seminary opens the Green and Gold's home season. Middlebury and Norwich frosh follow and Clark School entertains the yearlings in the last game.

Frontiers of telephony—old and new

Yesterday the natural course of telephone expansion was to penetrate the nation's frontiers, building new lines and adding new subscribers.

Today finds many new "frontiers" for telephone expansion — among them the homes of present subscribers. Upstairs and downstairs, wherever needed, additional telephones are being installed. People are learning that there is added utility in convenient communication.

This new field of activity was conceived by commercial development men of the Bell System. Just another example of forward planning to make telephone service more valuable.

The Palisades are a line of trapwork

New York City. They are a great

Giant's Causeway in Ireland.
many years contractors blasted away to secure crushed stone for New York City. Agitation went on years to stop this destruction. A Women's Club in Englewood, N. J., finally importuned the governor of the state, until he agreed to appoint a commission to recommend what could be done. The result was the creation of the Palisades Interstate Park Commission in which each state has an equal voice. The ten commissioners are appointed by the governors of both states, five from New York and five from New Jersey. They are all wealthy men, who serve without compensation. Recognizing the values of their services, the governors, regardless of politics, reappoint the commissioners whenever their five-year terms expire. Mr. Baker's fourth commission from the State of New York, now hanging in his office, is signed by Alfred E Smith.

Roosevelt Picks His Man

Theodore Roosevelt, with his genius for picking the right man for a job, induced the late George W. Perkins to serve on the first commission. Mr.
Perkins was elected president of the board, and did notable service in that capacity. Over $20,000,000 has been invested in the park. A large part of this sum came as gifts from private benefactors. At one time the commission received a check for $1,000,000 from the Rockefeller Foundation. "We passed it around," said Mr. Baker, "so that each of us commissioners could match it."

The most notable gift was from Mrs.
Mary Harriman, widow of E. H. Har riman. In 1910 she offered to give $1,000,000 and 10,000 acres of land at Bear Mountain if certain other funds were provided by the two states.
These conditions were promptly met. The park has been growing ever since.
Philanthropic societies in New York and New Jersey lease summer camping grounds from the commission.
Many five thousand children enjoyed vacations in these camps last year.
The Boy Scouts and the Girl Scouts are among the organizations that use the camps. Thousands of families from the neighboring cities spend many week-ends here. The total number of visitors to the park is now over 3,000,000 a year. Among the attractions of the park is a zoo at Bear Mountain that draws throngs of delighted visitors. During the winter the park maintains its popularity as a scene of winter sports. Finding the weather unreliable, the commissioners have made a rink with artificial ice. Artificial ice sounds expensive, but it is no longer an article of luxury in New York. Nine-tenths of the ice now used in the city is of the manufacturer variety. The police force of the park is its heaviest expense, but this is supplied by the two

Mr. Baker has always kept in close touch with his native state. He is a frequent visitor to his old home in Vermont, where his mother still resides. Among his treasures is a notable collection of early histories of Vermont. He comes rightly by his interest for he is descended from Remember Baker, famous hero of the Green Mountain Boys. Mr. Baker was greatly impressed with Vermont's quick recovery from her great disaster of November 1927. He spoke especially of the good condition of the roads in the northern part of the state. He thought this truly remarkable, in view of the many bridges that had been removed. He sees no limit to Vermont's possibilities as a summer resort.

And speaking of Fred B. Wright, who graduated from Vermont in 1905:
Shortly after the Western Electric Company was organized in 1869 by
Gardiner M Barton and Elisha Gray there were forty-nine men on the payroll, as indicated by the picture on Mr Wright's wall taken in 1873. At present there are 62,000 employes. In 1893 the sales first exceeded $5,000,000. Last year they totaled $287,931,000, almost a million for every working day in the year.

Doing his part toward this great growth is a Vermonter, Fred B Wright. Mr. Wright is a graduate of the University, class of 1905. He was one of the founders of the Boulder Society, wrote the words and music of the Old Mill Song, and is permanent president of his class. He has been active in alumni associations in both Washington and New York, and has been nominated for alumni trustee.

After his graduation, Mr. Wright went to Schenectady to work for the General Electric Company, and took the students' course in the testing department. He was then called back to the faculty of the University, where he served for three and a half years. He enjoyed this work and might be there yet, could he have afforded time for the post-graduate work he needed to make him the kind of teacher he wanted to be. So, in January, 1910, he went to the Western Electric Company. He was transferred to the Western Union Telegraph Company in the nearly six years. Then he went back fall of 1910 and served as assistant to the superintendent of supplies for rations in St. Albans.

In 1918 he caught the war fever, and took charge of the manufacturing supplies at the United States government arsenal at Watervliet, N. Y. His commission as captain was on the way when the armistice was signed. It was February, 1919, however, before he could leave with the approval of his New England conscience.

Wright and Western Electric

He returned to Western Electric, and in 1923 was appointed manager of the distributing house in Washington, D. C. Four years later he became manager of the distributing house in Chicago. In September, 1928, he became program-planning manager of the Western Electric Company at their headquarters in New York.

Western Electric acts as manufacturers and purchasing and supply agents for the entire Bell telephone system. They supply everything from central office switchboards to poles, wires, tumblers, pins and even first aid kits.

They have a large factory in Chicago, another in Kearny, N. J., and are building a third very large one in Baltimore. Aside from things of their own manufacture, they buy for telephone companies all the other materials that they need, which are classed as "telephone supplies." The sale of these items alone amounted to over $88,000,000 last year.

Among his other duties Mr. Wright has direct charge of telephone supplies, and determines the requirements. He advises the purchasing department what to buy, sets up manufacturing schedules and supervises the orders from the distributing houses.

The orders last year for lead-covered cable amounted to thirty-eight and one-half billion conductor feet, which keeps a man thinking in large figures. Nearly a million and a half telephones were shipped from the factory last year.

Sales are by no means a matter of figures only. Obsolescence is a leading factor these days. The research department at the Bell Telephone laboratories is constantly at work on new developments and improvements. Any day they may make a discovery that will start a lot of perfectly good things toward the scrap heap. And Western Electric doesn't want to be loaded with a lot of obsolescent stuff.

Among the interesting and somewhat unrelated devices discovered in the course of the research work have been the Orthophonic Victrola, the Movietone, and the Vitaphone. Western Electric manufactures sound picture apparatus at the Chicago factory and sells it through the Electrical Research Products Company, Inc.

Mr. Wright's brother, J. S. Wright, was graduated from Vermont in 1903. He has been abroad for the past eighteen years, and is now vice-president of the International Standard Electric Company, with headquarters in Paris. Mr. Wright spent twelve days with him last year, during which time they motored 1,000 miles, saw the French battlefields, old chateaux and cathedrals and a lot of other leading sights, which seems to prove that even in his playtime Mr. Wright is an efficient man.

He loves his work, and imbues his co-workers with something of his own buoyant spirit. Always in his work he has been surrounded by eager and loyal helpers.

A group of students at the University of Denver has established a "woman hater" club, and the members of this organization must never be seen conversing with the fair sex except for necessary business, and all dates with the women students are out of the question.

SUPERIOR MENTALITY IN FOREIGN STUDENTS FACT

French Professor Describes Surprising Mental Agility of European Students

students, however, actually take their degree, because the requirements are so severe. It is interesting to note that the professorship in Europe is very much looked up to, and jokes on the "absent-minded professor" have no meaning for the foreign student.

The number of government positions open to university graduates, who all strive for them, is very restricted. The competition, consequently, is ferocious, and the process of selection is severe. This probably accounts for the brilliance of the students who actually earn their degrees since only the most likely of success are permitted to complete their course.

The Need For Mutual Understanding

Professor Myrick considers the greatest obstacle to international amity and cooperation to be the universal mutual lack of knowledge of the peoples and attitudes of other nations. Politicians who know no French can not hope to come to a very complete understanding with the French. We can send scholars to foreign countries, but foreign countries are too poor to send many students here. International exchange of instructors is helpful to a small degree, but usually the instructor is so taken up with the newness of his life that he can not take the time to make the proper associations or to acquire the language as he should.

At Oberlin there is an annual picnic-hike given the freshmen by members of the junior class.

EXTENSION LABORATORY TESTS OVER 28,000 BIRDS

Prof. A W Lohman, of the agricultural extension service, reports that 28,036 breeding birds were tested at the extension service laboratory in 1929 for pullorum disease, formerly known as bacillary white diarrhea. Three percent of these birds showed infection.

In 1928 there were 17,943 birds tested, with 5 percent infection; in 1927, 8,555 birds, with 7 percent infection; in 1926, 4,207 birds with 8 percent infection, in 1925, 1,568 birds, with 23 percent infection; in 1924, 2,482 birds, with 34 percent infection, in 1923, 1,327 birds, with 17 percent infection.

The largest flock tested this past year had 2,100 birds. The three highest counties testing were Addison with 7,200 birds, Windsor with 5,100, and Washington with 3,700. Birds were tested in every county except Grand Isle.

PROF. DICKINSON ATTENDS ENGINEERS' CONVENTION

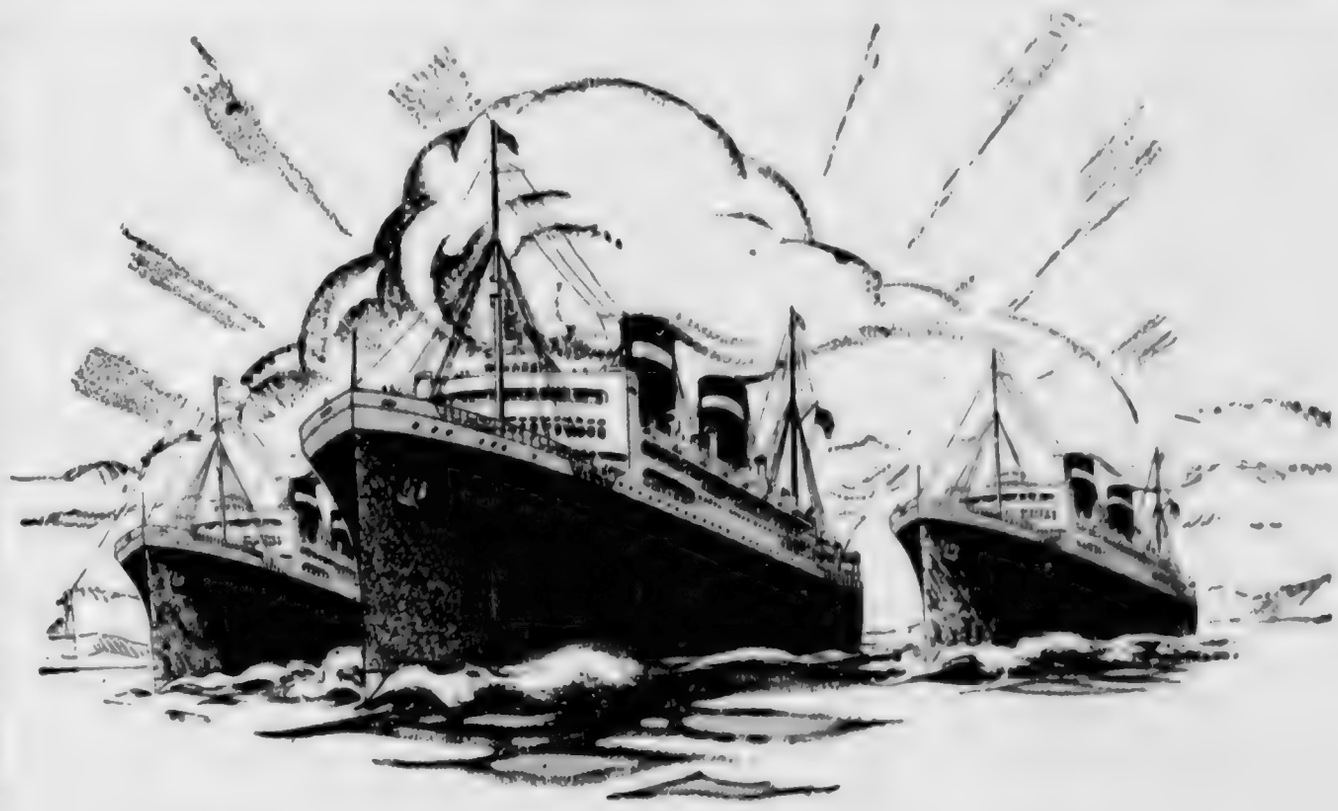
Prof. L. P. Dickinson, head of the department of electrical engineering, was in attendance at the convention of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers in New York last week.

Professor Dickinson has in the past been active in this organization, before whom he has frequently read papers relating to various phases of electrical engineering. He is chairman of the Vermont branch of the A. I. E. E.

One of the sororities at the University of Indiana decided to refrain from the use of cosmetics until Indiana wins a game, while another group lent their support to the No Shave Club by refusing dates with beardless campus sheiks.

PROFESSORS SEEK TO PRESERVE TRADITIONS

Tupper and Crockett Work With Committee Attempting to Conserve Vermont Traditions and Ideals



Prof. Frederick Tupper and Walter H Crockett, director of publicity for the University and professor of Vermont history, attended a meeting in Rutland, January 28, on the conservation of Vermont traditions and ideals.

The committee, of which Prof. Arthur W. Peach of Norwich is chairman, is organized under the Rural Survey. The other members of the committee are: Mrs. Dorothy Canfield Fisher of Arlington; Mrs. Zephine Humphrey Fahnestock of Dorset, executive secretary; Miss Sarah Cleghorn of Manchester; Walter J. Coates of North Montpelier; the Rev. J. D Shannon of Bennington, and Mrs Helen Hartness Flanders of Springfield. About three meetings are planned for the coming year, at which the committee expects to formulate a definite program.

Spiritual independence, love of liberty, individual resources, interest in religion and idealism and inarticulate love of beauty were pointed to as Vermont characteristics.

Because they violated the rule against "paddling," two pep organizations at the University of Oklahoma were abolished by the board of regents.

The scholastic standing of organized men at Illinois is larger than that of unorganized men, while the unorganized women have a better average than the organized.

Over the Horizon

HERE they come—the nucleus of an all-electric merchant marine. Yesterday, they were a dream. To-day, they are well over the horizon, linking the ports of the east and west coasts with fortnightly service. The goal of the Panama Pacific Line is to build three more turbine-electric ships, thus enabling weekly New York-Frisco sailings.

Even now, the three liners, California, Virginia, and Pennsylvania, constitute the largest fleet of turbine-electric commercial ships in the world.

Besides propelling these ships, electricity hoists freight, raises anchors, mans pumps, turns rudders, drives winches, and warps the vessels into their berths. It lights lamps, spins fans, operates elevators, cools and cooks food. Its magic touch is apparent on every deck.

All electric equipment, above and below deck, is a product of General Electric.

The planning, production, and distribution of such equipment has been largely the responsibility of college-trained men who are working with General Electric and who have aided in bringing these ships over the horizon.

MACOMBER NOMINATED TO HEAD ETA SIGMA PHI

Eta Sigma Phi, honorary classical fraternity, nominated the following officers for the second semester at a business meeting Tuesday evening: President, H. M. Macomber, '30; vice-president, Vernn Carrier, '32; treasurer, C. W. Knapp, '31; sergeant-at-arms, C. K. Bush, '32; reporter, Nathalie Carleton, '32. The election of officers will take place at the meeting of the society in March.

A new rule concerning membership was passed which requires a freshman to have an average of A in Greek for one semester or B for two semesters before he can be considered for election.

Herrick Macomber, the nominee for president, is prominent on campus. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa is president of the senior class, and is a member of Boulder. He belongs to Delta Psi Fraternity.

CO-ED LITERATI TAKE TEN INTO MEMBERSHIP IN HONORARY SOCIETY

Bluestockings Formally Initiates Winners of Annual Fall Competition at Meeting Monday

Bluestockings, women's honorary literary society, initiated ten into membership last Monday afternoon at a meeting at the Kappa Alpha Theta house. The new members, all of whom gained admittance during the try-outs last fall, are: Leila Bates, '30, Richmond, Marion Berry, '32, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Lillian Cohen, '30, Burlington; Julia Housley, '31, Wellesley, Mass.; Mildred Gile, '32, Burlington; Marion Kiel, '33, South Orange, N. J.; Evelyn Mann, '33, Watertown, Mass.; Justine Rogers, '31, Shoreham; and Irene Rooney, '30, St. Albans. Suzanne Rutledge, '31, will be formally accepted into membership at a later meeting.

Society Almost Eight Years Old

The society was founded almost eight years ago by Miss Helen Mitchell, a graduate of Welesley College, who first conceived the idea of a women's literary society at Vermont in 1922, and in the spring of that year gathered together five or six girls who were actively interested in creative writing. The first meeting was held around a fireplace in what is now known as the Practice House, and the name of the organization was simply "The Literary Club." Interest in it died, however, and the society languished until some five years ago, when at the suggestion of Professor Tupper, it was renamed Bluestockings, from the name given to a group of women who banded together in England during the eighteenth century in pursuit of literary interests. It is thought that they received their appellation from the common blue stockings which they wore in contrast to the more usual varied colors of the time.

"ON WITH THE DANCE" IS SOPH HOP SLOGAN

This evening, with the snappy, care-banishing strains of Joe Lechnyr's "Vermonters" settling down over the heads of joyous dancing couples, resplendent in tuxedos and evening gowns, made even more brilliant by the mellow glow of silvery lights, will be held the sophomore's own dance, the Sophomore Hop, which is to be staged at the Ethan Allen Club on College Street.

According to advance predictions, this dance of dances promises to be one of the biggest and most enjoyable social events of the year thus far. Another notable feature is the locus of the Hop, the Ethan Allen Club. Very few college dances are held there, and it is evident that the Sophomore Hop Committee is taking pains to make this affair different.

It is to be an inexpensive affair with refreshments served a la carte, and novelties during intermission to maintain the interest. This is the first formal college dance of the semester.

COUNCIL ASKS FRAT LECTURE SUPPORT

Faculty-student Group Seeks Fraternity Aid in Advertising University Lectures

FINDS ATTENDANCE IS INADEQUATE AT TIMES

Fraternities will cooperate in the advertising of University lectures, if a proposal of the Faculty-student Council meeting of January 15 is adopted. Because of the inadequate attendance at certain of the University series during the past season, the suggestion was advanced that more and better advertising of this kind might help to swell the size of the crowds. Fraternities, by talking over the lectures, it was pointed, would serve to stimulate interest among the student body.

Lecturers Notable

The lecturers are men outstanding in their fields. Bertrand Russell, Charles R. Knight, John Dewey and S. K. Ratcliffe have already spoken here, with Carl Sandburg due before the end of the month.

Another suggestion at the council meeting that dances after basketball games might serve a desirable end in increasing attendance at those events, was tabled after it was recalled that such a plan had once before failed of its purpose.

The next meeting of the Faculty-student Council will be held February 12.

Sorority Rushing Will End Feb. 20

Bids Will be Announced the Next Day—Panhellenic Council Reminds Sororities of Rushing Rules

Sorority rushing, now in full swing, will culminate on Thursday, February 20, when eligible freshmen and transfers will turn in their preference sheets to the office of the Dean of Women. Bids will be announced the morning of the following day.

Panhellenic Rules

These rules have been drawn up by the Panhellenic Council of the University to govern the rushing period:

1. Rushing will begin the first Monday after mid-years and will last three weeks. Neutral period begins Wednesday, February 19, at 10 p.m. and continues until Friday, February 21 at 4 p.m.
2. During neutral period there shall be no communication between fraternity women and any eligible student.
3. Each fraternity has one open house, a tea and a final party. The teas and final parties are invitation affairs.
4. No cars shall be used in conveying eligible students during rushing.
5. No fraternity woman may call on, accept or give food to, or entertain any eligible student in any way outside of the allowed parties.
6. All dancing at dormitories by fraternity women with eligible students shall be eliminated.

These rules pertain to the seven Vermont sororities: Kappa Alpha Theta, Delta Delta Delta, Pi Beta Phi, Alpha Xi Delta, Alpha Chi Omega, Kappa Delta and Sigma Gamma.

PRESS CLUB TRY-OUTS RESULTS IN ELECTIONS

Press Club announces the election of the following women to its staff as a result of try-outs held recently: Juniors—Alberta Berry, Vera Chadburn, Helen Drugg, Ruth Field, Pauline Willis, Dorothy Nash and Carolyn McGinnis; sophomores—Cherolyn Barber, Verna Carrier, Marian Edwards, Helen Eiselonis, Mildred Gile, Rosetta Harlow, Isabel Holmes, Lucy Hope, Elizabeth Howe, Vivian Hubbard, Pearl Jennings, Janet Miller, Jessie Minckler, Lillian Mount, Theodora Wakefield; freshmen—Hazel Daniels, Eleanor Eggleston, Etheida Miller, Margaret Tynan and Marguerite Sargent.

The social meeting of the organization will be held after rushing.

STUDENT UNION COUNCIL MODIFIES DORM RULES

At a regular meeting of the women's Student Union Council last Tuesday, in the Old Mill Chapel, these changes were made in the rules:

1. Lights in dormitories are to go out at 11.15 p.m. with absolute quiet after 10.30 p.m. Girls are requested to keep their doors closed, to wear slippers after 10.30 p.m. and not to visit in each other's rooms.
2. A girl with evening employment need not count those evenings as nights out. If there is a college function lasting until 12.00 or 1.00 o'clock, she may return from her work at that time and her employer must see that she reaches home safely. If there is no such function, she must be in the dormitory at 11.10 p.m. or the employer must make arrangements through the dean's office to keep her over night.

A memorandum of these rules will be posted each week in the dormitories. The privilege of having lights on until after eleven o'clock is on trial until Easter. If it proves unsuccessful, the old rule of lights out at 10.30 will be resumed.

GLEE CLUB COMPETES IN THIRD ANNUAL TRY FOR N. E. CHAMPIONSHIP

Thirty go to Springfield February 28 to Contest for Musical Honors for Third Successive Time

Vying for sectional honors with a dozen of the leading college organizations in the East, the University of Vermont will send 30 members of the Men's Glee Club to Springfield, Mass., to compete in the fifth annual inter collegiate glee club contest for the New England championship on February 28.

This contest will be the third in which Vermont will have participated, the University having entered the third and fourth contests during the past two years.

Wesleyan won last year's contest, held in Boston, with Middlebury as runner-up. Amherst took first place two years ago. Amherst, Bowdoin, Clark, M. I. T., Northeastern, University of Vermont, Williams, Boston University and Worcester Polytechnic were among those represented in last year's competition.

The Glee Club has been holding rehearsals two nights a week since the first of the year under Professor Bennett's supervision, and will continue them through the month. Extra rehearsals are being held from time to time.

Jenks Led Last Year

The entrants in this contest are subject to certain definite requirements. Not more than 30 may represent any one college, and a student leader is required. Major Jenks filled that capacity last year. Jenks this year is manager of the Glee Club, and J. O.

STUDENTS WILL GO TO MID-WINTER MEETING

Through the delegates of the Vermont Christian Association, the University will this year be one of the score or so of New England colleges represented at the annual mid-winter student conference at Northfield, Mass., February 14, 15 and 16. The V. C. A. plans to send at least four or five delegates to the conference. Students interested in the prospect of attending the winter meeting should see Mr. Powers at once in the "Y" office. The Association expects to finance the greater part of the trip.

Some 25 colleges expect to send delegates to the conference. Altogether, about 125 students from the colleges of western New England will be in attendance.

The conference opens the evening of February 14. Throughout the next two days, lectures and student discussions will be the order of the day. The feature of this conference will be a discussion of the MacIntosh citizenship case, upon which considerable attention has been focused during the last few months.

Over 200 Work Their Way Here

V. C. A. Employment Bureau Provides Work for Scores of Students Each Year, Estimates Reveal

FRESHMAN BUREAU ALSO OFFERS JOBS TO OTHERS

Over two hundred students are earning a part or the whole of their expenses at Vermont in positions secured for them through the Employment Bureau of the V. C. A., of which Mr. M. D. Powers is executive secretary, according to an estimate recently prepared by the "Y" office. No estimate can be made of the total earnings of these students, however, since many work for board or room.

Gives Work to All

The Vermont Christian Association Employment Bureau is primarily for freshmen, but other students are at liberty to leave applications for work at any time. Every year, long before the beginning of the college year, prospective freshmen send in their application for work. Mr. Powers finds work for them as soon as possible in order that when September comes they may be able to enter college under no handicap.

The "Y" is not only a college-year organization, but is a summer employment bureau as well. Last summer a number of students were placed in advantageous positions by the "Y." Already several have been placed for next summer. The Lake Placid Club, a winter and summer recreation mecca at Lake Placid, N. Y., furnishes employment to a large number of Vermont students during vacation periods.

Work is provided only on personal application, but provision is made for all potential applicants on the basis of inquiries on the enrollment card, on which all entering students indicate whether or not they expect to work any part of their way through college at any time during the coming four years. Such cards are filed in the "Y" office and when application finally arrives for work, the job is waiting.

SOPHOMORES ELECT; WARN ERRING FROSH

Gold Key Elects Barker, Eaton, Meehan and Wilder to Offices—Issues Formal Warning

A warning to erring freshmen and election of officers for this semester were in the order of business at a Gold Key meeting last night. S. B. Barker of Montclair, N. J., was elected president of the organization; A. O. Eaton of Worcester, Mass., vice-president; and E. L. Meehan of Fitchburg, Mass., secretary. The permanent office of treasurer is retained by G. E. Wilder of Petersham, Mass.

The Cynic prints the full text of a resolution adopted at that meeting:

> Just because they were fortunate enough to survive midyears does not mean that freshmen are now privileged to ignore and violate the Freshman Rules. A freshman remains as such until final examinations in June and will be subject to the rules and regulations until that time.
> Due to misunderstanding and neglect, the enforcement of the traditional rules has been lax in the past two months. At its meeting, Tuesday night, Gold Key took definite action and starting Monday, February 10, the rules will be rigidly enforced.
> These rules are not to be considered as attempts of the men of the other classes to make the frosh appear ridiculous. They are not! They are only the best and oldest of the college traditions chosen to be preserved when the rest of the freshman hazing was abolished. Starting Monday every freshman will be expected to live up to and to obey these few rules.

A NEW MASTHEAD

"I have seen eighteen summers," replied the female of doubtful complexion.

"And how many winters?" asked the tactful one.

You might say of the Cynic, for, despite the forty-odd years of existence that its masthead betrays, it is, in fact, still in its childhood days as a college journal.

In this land of heavy infant industries, of manufactures old in years but young in arms when tariff making time comes around, a two-and-forty-year-old infant should prove no startling phenomenon. But the Cynic, founded in our grandfathers' days, never, even in the boldest of its earlier years, dared to hope that some day it should proudly wear its head as "The official student newspaper of the University of Vermont. Published every Tuesday and Friday during the college year."

The Cynic of those days was that darling of the higher institutions of learning, the literary magazine. Sometimes literary, frequently dressing Quixote armor and sallying forth into the broad fields of affairs for chosen news and chronicles of student doings, occasionally shrinking in size from dearth of student support, and finally, by a battery of editorials unique almost as inspid as those of college papers of today, The Vermont Cynic continued to appear from year to year.

It was but a very few years ago that the Cynic shook off its literary traditions and turned to the field of college journalism. The transition at first was slow, but the marked increase in what passed for news soon caused the keener pride of the literary to emerge in full splendor of three columns of news on each of its several pages. Appearing at the end of lengthy periods, the news value of its offerings was but slight and it still catered to the pens of the student literati, but it had taken a step of the greatest importance in the history of student newspapers at Vermont by the mere changing of its policy.

It is still within the memory of many of our most recent alumni that the Cynic, after many years of experimentation after shifting from three to four columns and appearing successively as fortnightly and then weekly, finally adopted its present format and some three or four years ago, The Vermont Cynic "went" semi-weekly.

We have called the Cynic an infant in college journalism. Among college papers which still has been the college news for many and many a year, it is not a misuse of the term as years age goes. But it is a name with much less a spark of genius. Within the past half dozen years the Cynic has made pioneering strides. Within the past two years the Cynic has become one of a group that vie with the best in college journalism. Restricted by the lack of a large treasury such as is at the disposal of that army of college papers the daily hampered by the absence of traditions such as those which for years have served to guide the more puissant ones when the choice is held on which to draw for news and comment, with neither a school of journalism nor a group of active faculty advisors, the Cynic feels it has done well to have accomplished what it has in the space of so short a time.

Under the editorships of Lawrence Higgins and Spike Dean, before him the Cynic, from a third-class semi-weekly has risen to the top in its field. During the past year alone, the Cynic completely altered the style of its makeup and so has improved its appearance considerably. It has given greater prominence to stories dealing with non-athletic activity and by creating a sports page for all sporting news has not only improved its front page but has also created a sports page of high quality. And it has improved the quality of its stories to the point where they are actually readable and no longer sound like the outpourings of high school sophomores.

Clayton and his outgoing associates have reason to be proud of their work. May a succeeding editor some day be able to say as much for the present board.

Campus Comment

To the Editor of the Cynic:

In the interest of the Cynic, in the approaching Extra Curricular week, supposedly to the last issue of the old one, I am taking occasion to say a few words about extra-curricular activities.

For instance, the Editor did not say what would happen if the Army of extra-curricular activities were done away with. Just think! The Army officers would have little to say about the worthy workers if they could not mention a number of honorary societies connected with those dealing with men and women. Indeed! The town would be diminished to exactly half its normal size if one's honors could not appear in fact if there were no honors to mention and to print for the sake of better traffic every body should belong to as many honoraries as possible. Yes a dozen, of them at least.

The jewelry manufacturers would go bankrupt if they could not sell pretty pins to all the honorary honoraries of honorary societies. That would be a catastrophe! The Editor of the Cynic should have given some thought to this when he wrote his scathing editorial on Extra Curricular. It is a matter of great economic importance. He should have thought of the economic pressure that beats upon the matter.

Besides every up-to-date college just has to have at least 100 honorary societies etc. etc. etc. Its the sensible but old-fashioned college nowadays that has a minimum of honorary societies. Things would not be so bad if the honorary organizations actually did something. But they do nothing but wear pins.

There are some worth while campus organizations. There are a number of honorary societies, clubs, positions which the student body have a right to be proud of. But there are sure a mess of do-nothing honoraries and clubs, etc., etc.

MISTER X.

To the Editor of the Cynic:

I quite agree with the Son of Vermont when he says, "I think I am just a little impatient." His passionate outburst is an excellent example of emotion unfettered. I wonder just what mental conflict or conflicts are waging heatedly inside the brain of our impatient friend? Can it be that his emotional outflow is due to a defense mechanism built up in the realization of his own impotence? Or is our fervent exhorter to youth merely indulging in one of those moments — sometimes overcoming all of us—when reason is cast aside and we abandon ourselves exotically to every crazy idea or impulse that assumes the foreground of our consciousness?

Perhaps I am a little hard on the Son of Vermont. I laud his good intentions, but deplore the unreasonableness and emotionality of his exhortation to the youth of today. He does not take into consideration sufficiently the potency of the environment into which our youth is born.

From infant days upward, man is thrust this way and that way, harassed beyond measure, and his personality stunted or distorted for want of expression. Social conventions, social customs, social traditions—all twisting and turning this growing personality into fantastic Gorgonian knots. Freedom is indeed a myth.

The point I wish to emphasize is that man does not have a chance to blossom out into those distinctive individualities, the lack of which the Son of Vermont laments so poignantly. As man's plastic personality expands, it comes into contact with the standardized environment which is so characteristic of our present civilization. Do you not realize, my good friend, that it is not considered conventional to be radical, nor even liberal? And as for freedom of discussion, why that is the worst enemy of social conventions and customs. How can you expect youth to "overturn the world" when he is brought up on conservative fodder, eats it when he gets to college and continues lapping at it for the rest of his years?

So, after all, I am somewhat sympathetic with your viewpoint, Son of Vermont. But I do think you were a little unthoughtful in the irrationalities of your outburst. I, too, hope that the time may come when youth will again carry the banner of "Progress" on and on.

Review of "The Winnowings"

BY PROFESSOR P. D. CARLETON

(Like the "Winnowings" this review is rather tardy. But as from the pen of Professor Tupper is so eagerly welcomed that we make no apology for its late appearance.)

Winnowings from the Mill is far more fortunate in its inception than Stevenson's short-lived college magazine of which the first number was edited by four of us with prodigious gusto, the second fell principally into the hands of two, the third I edited alone, and it has long been a solemn question who it was that edited the fourth. The University of Vermont publication with its many editors and contributors displays that range of taste and form and style, attributed by a foreign critic of an English collection of essays to "that variegated gentleman Mr. Several Hands. Yet, despite such variety, there runs through this Christmas issue one dominant motive, one increasing purpose, which an older reader encounters with a mild surprise—restraint rather than exuberance, realism rather than romance.

On the bright cover holly berries wreathe holiday bells, but in the pages the joy of the season is not unconfined. The editorial, "Merry Christmas," reveals December students awaiting Yuletide with a seeming sadness that effectually masks any real satisfaction. In Janice Goodrich's well-written "Christmas Interlude" the lonely spinster of the squat brick farmhouse in the ravine finds a fleeting happiness with toys and tramp, but in spite of her own nature and against the angry protests of her world. "Eat, drink and be—not merry, but murderous," is the somewhat obvious moral of Sam[illegible] vacation story of the bad[illegible] the good, in which all is well [illegible] the natural dialogue, and [illegible] well with the less natural [illegible] is glad to see that Mary [illegible] happy mating of imagination [illegible] and word finds a transcendent [illegible] for Christmas that rises [illegible] mirth and idler sorrow.

Admirable in command [illegible] directness of narrative and [illegible] ness of manner is Mary Tar[illegible] story, "But We Are Like That" [illegible] its revelation that in her world [illegible] country dance and of conv[illegible] few have learned to enjoy w[illegible] cess. Lois Taylor's extra[illegible] the stone age, "It's An Ill Wind" [illegible] is clever and amusing, but the [illegible] modern touch here and there [illegible] from a critic one or two [illegible] that are not paleolithic. [illegible] Powers' "Little China," which [illegible] signed to arouse curiosity for [illegible] pose of balking it, would be [illegible] more effective if less actual [illegible] heightening of suspense. Edward Fitzgerald is never less alone than when alone in his "Lonely Cinder, a poem with a point"; and is seldom in doubtful company among the present-day authors whom he reviews with gusto. Margaret Rice lays as [illegible] asleep but awake and attentive in the lap of legends old. In two little poems offering unconscious contrast Elizabeth Hollis finds large compensa[illegible]

Vermont Ties Norwich 2 to 2

Overtime Period Fails to Change Score in First Game on Home Rink—Mercier and Swain Score Vermont's Goals,

CATS AT NORTHFIELD IN RETURN GAME TOMORROW

Wednesday afternoon, the Vermont [illegible] and the Norwich aggregations battled to a 2 to 2 overtime tie [illegible] during the first home [illegible] the season. This game marked [illegible] debut of the Catamounts into the [illegible] for the present season.

The first period started out well [illegible] the first couple of minutes both [illegible] were rather cautious. Gradually [illegible] continued to gather momentum with the climax being reached [illegible] "Frenchy" Mercier, assisted by [illegible] pass from Wood, shot the puck [illegible] the opponent's net in spite of the [illegible] attempts to prevent him.

The second period got off with a [illegible] start, but not so dazzling to [illegible] After about two minutes of [illegible] Waining of the Cadets, assisted [illegible] zizzaged down the rink and [illegible] the puck through Hendricks' [illegible] defense. A little later in the [illegible] Waining, again unassisted, [illegible] to break through the Ver[illegible] defense and succeeded in smuggling the puck across the goal for the [illegible] point.

Very little happened during the first [illegible] minutes of the last lap, as both [illegible] were looking for an opportunity. Suddenly Swain, star defense [illegible] of the Cats, screwed his way [illegible] one end of the rink through a [illegible] of wary opponents for the prettiest play of the game. This tied the [illegible] and the period ended.

Both teams opened up rather cautiously in the overtime period. Many [illegible] attempt was made by both [illegible] to break the tie, but to no [illegible] The game ended with both [illegible] still pressing hard and with the score 2 to 2.

The line-up:

VERMONT		NORWICH
Mercier (Mercier), w.		w., Waining ((Capt.)
Swain (Wood), c.		c., O'Byrne
Segal (Wood), (Marvin), w.		w., Youngerman
Wilson, d.		d., Martin
Burns, d.		d., Laythe
Hendricks, g.		g., Fullerton

Score: Vermont 2, Norwich 2.
First period: Vermont 1; Mercier, [illegible] from Wood.
Second period: Norwich 2; Waining both unassisted.
Third period: Vermont 1; Swain, [illegible] assisted.
Overtime: No score.
Penalties: Waining 6, Wood 2, Marvin 1, Palmer 1, Collins 1.
Time: Three 20-minute periods.
Referee: F. A. Winchenbach.

Tomorrow afternoon, the final game [illegible] home and home series with the Norwich hockey sextet will be played [illegible] the Horsemen's own rink. This [illegible] will be one of the events in the [illegible] winter carnival program and should afford the hockey fans present [illegible] spectacle, for both teams [illegible] on equal footing and both will be [illegible] for each other's scalp. Norwich has played three games so [illegible] season—defeating Middlebury [illegible] and playing a tie with [illegible] and Vermont. The Vermont [illegible] has played two matches [illegible] one to Army 7 to 2 and [illegible] Norwich.

The game Saturday should be much [illegible] for the Cats as there is a [illegible] that Captain Leo Segal [illegible] in the line-up. Otherwise [illegible] will be the same as in [illegible] contest.

[illegible] ckerboys and a fraternity [illegible] will probably play a preliminary [illegible] Coast Guard game tomorrow [illegible] P.M.

[illegible] basketball practice has begun [illegible] as there are only six [illegible] before the teams are [illegible] will be immediately after [illegible] The class teams in bowling [illegible] chosen very soon.

Due to the fact that the CYNIC went to press before the St. Michael's game was over, a report of that contest will appear in Tuesday's issue.

Mercier looked like a skating screw the way he wove circles around the Norwich defense Wednesday. Swain was also brilliant. Hendricks made some timely saves. Segal's presence would have made a difference.

Hockey at Norwich, basketball with the Navals, winter sports, and a rifle match are on tomorrow's sports program.

The inability of McVetty to play hockey this semester is a serious blow to the squad. He is a very promising frosh. Contrary to various newspaper reports and the line-up in last Tuesday's CYNIC, he did not play against Army at West Point on February 1.

The rifle management is attempting to arrange a match between the women's and men's teams. It is hardly fair with the women shooting at prone all the time.

Dartmouth College's Twentieth Annual Mid-winter Carnival is being held this week-end under the auspices of the Dartmouth Outing Club, the largest outdoor college organization in this country. This gala snow and ice festival attracts guests from all over the East and is considered one of the social events of New England's winter calendar.

In the interfraternity winter sports meet the Tuesday evening changes made the two-mile skate a one-mile event and added a one-half mile four-man skate relay. Ski proficiency was changed to Thursday at 4.00 P.M., from Saturday.

The ski jumping on tomorrow's schedule has been cancelled.

RIFLE TEAM TO FIRE FIRST MATCH TOMORROW

Following two weeks of inactivity due to midyears, the Green and Gold rifle team will again get into action tomorrow when the U. V. M. sharpshooters compete against Gettysburg, University of Tennessee, Washington University, Western Maryland, Davidson and the University of Wyoming in a series of telegraphic matches which promise to test the marksmanship of the Catamount aggregation. Practice was suspended due to the inadvisability of firing on the range during midyears but Captain Berry, varsity mentor, has put his charges through a week of intensive practice and reports his men to have regained the form which was shown prior to the examination period. From present indications it is expected that the team will be composed of A. E. Wardwell (captain), G. M. Donaldson, S. H. Beaman, M. L. Joslin, E. C. Ball and P. M. Perry. However, after the midterm marks have been issued it is hoped that all eligible men will respond and avail themselves of the excellent assistance of Captain Berry.

Interfrat Games Start Monday

Kappa Sigma and Zeta Chi Play in First Game of Interfraternity Basketball Tournament

EXCITEMENT PREVAILS OVER COMING CONTESTS

Interfraternity basketball starts Monday, February 10 with Kappa Sigma and Zeta Chi lining up when the whistle blows at 6.30 P.M. This is a League I game and will be followed on Tuesday by the League II opener between Alpha Tau Omega and Sigma Delta at the same hour by the clock.

This is one of the oldest and most interesting of the various interfraternity athletic competitions. Teams have been practicing faithfully and will surely provide the usual excitement as the tournament progresses.

Rules of the tourney were announced in Tuesday's issue.

Much Competition In Winter Sports

Zeta Chi, Sigma Nu and the Owls Are Leading in Interfraternity Meet

Interfraternity winter sports got under way on the back campus and hockey rink Tuesday afternoon and are being continued through today. Changes in the schedule are found in the Cat's Meow.

The last events are cross-country snowshoe at the West Annex and a four-man ski relay on the back campus today at 4.00 P.M.

Tuesday's results have been compiled by the Physical Education Department as follows:

220-yd. ski dash—1st, Maynes, Sigma Nu; 2nd, Hoyt, Lambda Iota; 3rd, Parker, Delta Psi; time, 1:03:02.

220-yd. snowshoe dash—1st, Chatterton, Lambda Iota; 2nd, Aiken, Sigma Nu; 3rd, Bigelow, Kappa Sigma; time, 1:10.

One-mile skating race—1st, Burns, Zeta Chi; 2nd, Stackpole, Zeta Chi; 3rd, Preedom, Phi Mu Delta; 4th, Miner, Delta Psi; time, 4:24. (Best time made by Stackpole in 2nd heat, 3:47.)

Half-mile four-man skate relay—1st, Zeta Chi (2:02:06): Burns, Demund, Romanos, Stackpole. 2nd, Sigma Nu (2:11:04): Aiken, Maynes, Benton, Phillips. 3rd, Delta Psi (2:14): Westin, Parker, Miner, Corbin.

Point scores: Zeta Chi, 11; Sigma Nu, 10; Lambda Iota, 8; Delta Psi, 3; Phi Mu Delta, 2; Kappa Sigma, 1.

Interfraternity indoor relays are being planned for the second and third weeks in March. Fraternities are advised by Mr. Post to keep this event in mind and start training. Training rules will soon be announced by the Physical Education Department.

The indoor track meet will be held March 22 as a grand finale to the relays.

Baseball schedule is A No. 1.

Hank Durfey has been declared eligible for participation in athletics, but a sprained ankle will hold his début over until next week, unless treatment brings him around in time to play tomorrow night.

CATAMOUNT BASEBALL SCHEDULE ANNOUNCED

Season Opens March 29 With Annual Southern Trip—New Schedule Includes 11 Home Games

According to the spring baseball schedule just announced through the Graduate Manager's office, the Vermont baseball team will begin the season March 29 in a game with the U. S. Marines at Quantico. This will be the first contest on the annual southern trip, which includes a series of ten games. There are several new teams appearing on the schedule and the Catamount nine will find a great deal of opposition. Among the newcomers are Princeton, Columbia, Yale and Niagara.

There are two two-game trips that are to be taken after returning from the South before any home game is played. The first home game comes May 10 when U. S. Naval Training Station appears here. This year there are to be two games with St. Michael's instead of one and both will be played on Centennial Field because of the lack of a proper diamond at St. Michael's. In the schedule below, one of the St. Mike games is stated to be played on Centennial Field and the reason for the distinction between the two is that this one is to be considered as St. Michael's home game.

The schedule is as follows:

March	29.	U. S. Marines at Quantico.
March	31.	U. S. Marines at Quantico.
April	1.	Georgetown at Washington.
April	2.	Navy at Annapolis.
April	3.	Gallaullet at Washington.
April	4.	Catholic University at Washington.
April	5.	Princeton at Princeton.
April	7.	St. Johns at Brooklyn.
April	8.	Columbia at New York.
April	9.	Army at West Point.
April	18.	Springfield at Springfield.
April	19.	Yale at New Haven.
May	2.	Holy Cross at Worcester.
May	3.	Conn. Aggies at Storrs.
May	8	Middlebury at Middlebury.
May	10.	U. S. Naval Training Station at Burlington.
May	14.	Norwich at Northfield.
May	16.	St. Michael's at Burlington.
May	17	Niagara at Burlington.
May	20	Norwich at Burlington.
May	23.	Springfield at Burlington.
May	24.	U. S. Marines at Burlington.
May	27.	Middlebury at Burlington.
May	30.	Dartmouth at Burlington.
June	7.	St. Michael's at Centennial Field.
June	13.	St. Lawrence at Burlington.
June	14.	Alumni at Burlington.

VERMONT RECORD FOR SEASON UNIMPRESSIVE

Tomorrow night the U. V. M. gymnasium will be the scene of another big basketball contest when the Catamounts tackle the U. S. Coast Guard quintet from Newport, R. I. This will be the first home game since the mid year examination recess and at this time of season the players should be at the best of condition. The St. Mike's game was just enough to put the team back in the stride again after a two weeks' idleness.

Last year the husky Coast Guard Academy team put a scare into Vermont fans in one of the most exciting games ever played on the gym floor. Just as the game ended Halligan slipped in a basket that gave the Green and Gold a narrow 28 to 27 victory. Such battles ought not to be missed and another thrilling one may be expected tomorrow night.

Coach Berry will probably start his regular line-up of Tupper and Bernstein, forwards; Sargent, center; and Captain Halligan and Manning, guards. This is a combination of players that is hard to beat when every man is on his toes. Every player has shown ability and if this is not enough their fighting spirit should carry them through for victory.

The Vermont record so far this season is not at all impressive but should not be taken too seriously in forecasting results of future games. Out of nine starts the Catamounts have been on the large end of the score only three times. Montreal A. A. A., McGill and U. S. Naval Training Station are the only teams that have been downed by Vermont while Dartmouth, Ithaca, Crescent A. C., Seventh Regiment, Rensselaer and St. Michael's have been conquerors of the Green and Gold. As the CYNIC goes to press the Vermont St. Michael's game at Winooski Park is incomplete and for this reason an account of this contest will appear in next Tuesday's issue.

In a closely contested fencing match at Montreal with the Montreal A. A. A. last Saturday, the Catamounts were beaten 13 to 12. It is the same as last year's score which Montreal ran up without the use of the best men. Montreal comes here later and will have difficulty in winning.

Norwich will conduct a triangular ski meet for Vermont, Middlebury and the Cadets tomorrow as part of the Annual Norwich Winter Carnival Week program. Ski proficiency, six mile cross-country, jumping, and a one mile down-hill race are the scheduled events.

GLEE CLUB COMPETES FOR N. E. CHAMPIONSHIP

Thirty Go to Springfield, February 28, to Compete for Musical Honors

Percival and R. H. Cowles are assistant managers.

The entire body must be composed of undergraduates.

Each college will sing three songs. One song, known as the prize song, must be sung by each college. This year the prize song is an old English madrigal entitled "Hark Jolly Shepherds" written by Morley. Madrigals are characteristic of the sixteenth and seventeenth century while the eighteenth century brought the music world the glee. Following the prize song, each college sings a choice song. Vermont's choice song is one written by Dr. Callcott, "To All You Ladies Now On Land." This is an eighteenth century glee, and incidentally Dr. Callcott was one of the members of the original London Glee Club. Each college then sings a college song for the third and final song. Vermont will sing her classic, "Champlain."

The winner is chosen on a percentage basis. The prize song counts 50 per cent, the choice song 30 per cent, and the college song 20 per cent. The value of the presentation of a song is based on five points of equal worth, pitch, ensemble, tone, interpretation and diction.

Winter sports are being substituted for the regular co-ed physical education classes until the middle of February. Outdoor sports include skating, snowshoeing, skiing and hiking. Riding is also a sport that may be chosen. The leaders and instructors are: Lillian Mount, '32; May Ward, '32; Dorothy Nash, '31; Nesbith Perelman, '33, Justine Rogers, '31; Leah Gowen, '33; Clarissa Peters, '30; Cornelia Baylis, '32; Cornelia Mould, '30; Nathalie Hawley, '31; Bertha Safford, '31; Eleanor Hubbard, '31; Christie McLeod, '31; and Dorothy Gurney, '30.

Prof. Frederick Tupper, who is head of the English department, and Prof. Leon Dean, affectionately known to the members of the society as the "Little Red Caboose," are honorary members of Grey Friars and attend the meetings regularly.

It is a ruling this year that all members of Grey Friars must give a 15-minute talk to the society upon some special phase of English or foreign literature.

Sophomores, juniors, and seniors, who are interested in joining Grey Friars are also invited to submit manuscripts at this time for approval and acceptance. All manuscripts should be submitted to one of the following members of Grey Friars: Robert Stewart, Herrick Macomber, Edmour Germain, Louis Lisman, George Nelson, Solam Segel, Sam Barker, Joseph Carter, Paul LaCrosse, Alfred Morin.

The students of North Carolina State College are required to pay a fine of 50 cents for each class they cut.

Editors Propose Purely Competitive Basis For Election of Cynic Staff

Attempt to Eliminate Fraternity Politics From Student Paper by Putting Into Effect Mechanical Plan to Govern Choice of Board

In an effort to eliminate fraternity politics from the CYNIC and to put the election of editors on a purely competitive basis, the board of assistant editors last week authorized the trial of a new plan of elections designed to bring about this end. The plan will come up for ratification by the whole board as soon as sufficient data on its operation are available.

The new plan, in brief, abolishes the old system of a self-perpetuating board and substitutes in its place, a mechanical method for the election of the news editors, the assistant sports editors, and all minor editors. Reporters will succeed to these editorships on the basis of the amount of their contributions to the paper, no other basis being considered.

Prof. Leon W. Dean, faculty adviser to the CYNIC and editor of the paper in his student days, strongly endorsed the scheme in a statement to the editor yesterday, commending it as a step in the right direction. Agreeing that fraternities have frequently dictated the policy of the student paper through control of the choice of the board of editors, he declared:

"The scope of the CYNIC is a wide one. It exerts a real influence throughout the state, as well as in other colleges, on the fashioning of opinion concerning the University. Incompetent editors, appointed on a basis other than their merits, exert a disastrous effect on the formation of such opinion."

Professor Dean did not hold the influence of fraternities to be an unmitigated evil but expressed the opinion that they have no place on a college paper. Discussing the possibility of faculty supervision, he recognized the curbing effects of such a plan, but opposed anything that might give to any faculty group control of CYNIC policy.

The details of the plan, as outlined at the last board meeting, assign full credit to a reporter for all of his material that appears in any issue of the paper. Provision is made for the deduction of credit for poorly-written, as well as for rewritten stories. Extra credit is given for original work, nor is the omission of a story for lack of space counted against the reporter.

Sub-Frosh Will See Kake Walk

Key and Serpent Again Will Act as Host to High School Guests at Vermont's Kake Walk

Key and Serpent will again entertain the sub-freshmen who come to the University on the invitation of the President to witness the Kake Walk February 21 and 22.

Each year Key and Serpent sponsors the entertainment of prospective freshmen from the preparatory schools of the state, to introduce to her future students the University of Vermont.

Letters are being sent to the principals of schools throughout the state asking for the names of seniors who will be able to come to Burlington during the Kake Walk period. When he has obtained the lists of prospective guests, the secretary will send circular letters to them, giving them details of expenses, transportation and entertainment.

Comps for All

Key and Serpent and Gold Key men meet the visitors at the station, take them to their rooms and show them the University buildings. The University furnishes lodging at Converse Hall and at the various fraternity houses. The sub-freshmen also receive complimentary tickets to the Kake Walk, so that the only necessary expenses are for meals and transportation.

On the Friday night before the Kake Walk, the University and Key and Serpent sponsor a banquet at the Hotel Van Ness. The speakers this year will be R. E. Tobin, president of the society last semester, with others to be announced later.

Plans and preparation for the thirty-third annual University of Vermont Kake Walk have been progressing merrily during the past few days. The cups to be awarded to the organizations who make the best showing in the peerade, stunts and kake walking have been purchased, and are now in the process of engraving. These are the traditional Briggs cup, awarded for first prize in stunts, the Southwick cup for second prize in stunts, the Boulder cup for first prize in kake walking, and the cups first awarded last year: The Student Senate cup for second prize in kake walking, the Hays and Carney cup for first prize in the grand peerade, the Preston cup for second prize in the peerade, and the cup to be awarded the best individual entry in the peerade. Student Senate will also award another cup this year.

The kakes to be awarded are the same as those awarded in previous years. A large kake is awarded to the first prize winner in stunts, and a small kake goes to the second place winner. The first prize winner in kake walking gets another large kake, while the best in the peerade gets a small one.

Oratory Contest Offers 7 Prizes

Intercollegiate Orators Will Speak on the Constitution in Annual Competition

Prizes totalling $5,000 will again go to the seven national finalists in the intercollegiate oratorical contest sponsored by the Better America Federation of California. Finalists will represent seven geographical districts of the United States and will compete in Los Angeles on June 19 for a first prize of $1,500, a second of $1,000, a third of $750, a fourth of $550, and for three other prizes of $400 each.

1,500 Word Limit

No time limits will be set this year to any oration, but a 1,500-word limit to the length of the composition must be observed instead. The questions in use this year will be: The Constitution of the United States, Constitutional Ideals, Constitutional Duties, Constitutional Aspirations, The Constitution and the Supreme Court, The Place of Constitutional Law in American Life, The Constitution and National Progress, The Constitution and Contemporary Executive Practices, The Constitution and American Economic Policies, Constitutional Incentives to Individual Initiative, Constitutional Guarantees to All American Citizens, The Constitution and International Affairs, American Youth and the Constitution, and The Constitution and its Founders.

All entries for the contest must be in by March 25. Vermont students who intend to enter the competition should see Mr. Powers in the "Y" office before that time, since all colleges must finish choosing their contestants by April 15. The zone contest will be held sometime between May 16 and May 30.

Last year Lex King Souter, of William Jewell College, took first place and the year before, Carl Albert, of the University of Oklahoma. Vermont has entered the contest a number of times in the past, and was represented by L. A. Hince, '28, in 1928 and by R. T. Krogh, '29, the following year. The 1928 New England champion placed last in the national contest. The 1929 winner placed fourth at Los Angeles.

Colleges represented in the 1929 finals were Oklahoma, Leland Stanford, Davidson, Bucknell, Loyola (Chicago), Princeton, and M. I. T. In 1929 the national finalists came from William Jewell, Wabash, Santa Clara, Wesleyan (Connecticut), St. John's (Brooklyn), North Carolina State, and Syracuse.

Prof. David Sneddon of Columbia University Teachers' College advocates three types of colleges: one for pre-professional students, one for coonskin coated students, and a third for the intellectually-minded.

EPISCOPAL BISHOP WILL ADDRESS STUDENTS WED.

[illegible] Samuel B. Booth, consecrated [illegible] Episcopal Diocese of the State of Vermont, will deliver the chapel address Wednesday morning.

Bishop Booth was a missionary in India from 1910 to 1914, and during the World War was a chaplain of the American forces. Since 1925 he has been bishop coadjutor of Vermont.

He is widely known throughout the country as the founder of the Older Boys' Institute and as instigator of many retreats and religious groups for students. This year Bishop Booth is chairman of religious work on the Vermont Survey.

GRAND OPERA TO SHARE SPRING MUSIC PROGRAM WITH USUAL OPERETTA

Music Units Will Combine to Present "Orpheus" in First Grand Opera Production at Vermont

Continuing the expansion of the activities of the musical organizations of the University, Prof. H. G. Bennett will this spring direct not only an operetta, the annual presentation of which has already grown into custom, but also Von Gluck's "Orpheus," world famous in grand opera.

During the past three years the Glee Clubs have presented successively Purcell's "Dido and Aeneas," "Gounod's Mock Doctor," and Gilbert and Sullivan's "Patience." "Orpheus," which will be presented the evening of April 24, is in marked contrast to these others.

Presented in 1762

"Orpheus," originally produced in Italian, was first presented in Vienna in 1762, and later in Paris with a French translation. It is the French version that will be used here.

The first act tells how Orpheus, singer of divine ability, learns from the God of Love that he may visit the underworld to supplicate the gods for the return of his wife, Eurydice. The gods, however, impose one condition, that, if the prayer of Orpheus be granted, he shall not look back at Eurydice, as she follows him, until they shall have returned to the upper regions.

The second act shows Orpheus in the underworld, his reception there, and his success in persuading the gods to permit Eurydice to return among the living.

In the third and last act, Orpheus, violating the condition imposed upon him by the gods, is cruelly punished when Eurydice is again spirited away to Hades. Gluck, however, created a happy ending to conclude his opera.

DISARMAMENT WILL INSPIRE DEBATERS

Will be Major Question on Season's Schedule — Harvard Chinese Will Debate Here

SOUTHERN TRIP BEGINS MARCH 21 AT UPSALA

"Resolved, that the nations should adopt a plan of complete disarmament, excepting such forces as are needed for police purposes," will be the major subject of controversy that the Vermont varsity debaters will use in their southern trip this year.

Harvard Chinese Here

The trip will come shortly after the feature engagement of the season, when Vermont will entertain the debaters of the Harvard Chinese Club here on March 4 to determine the opposing merits of the Chinese and American philosophies of life. Also before journeying to the southlands there are two more scheduled home debates, one with M. A. C., which is to take place in February or early March, and the other a state series debate with Middlebury College, scheduled for some time in March.

The Middlebury debate will witness the annual awarding of the Lawrence debating prizes. This group of prizes is offered to the three students participating in a joint debate between the University of Vermont and Middlebury College who, in the opinion of the judges, show the greatest proficiency in this debate. Twenty five dollars is the first prize, fifteen dollars the second, and ten dollars the third prize.

Other questions that will be used this year are: "Resolved, that the emergence of women from the home is a regrettable feature of modern life"; and "Resolved, that modern advertising is deplorable." Definitely scheduled on the southern invasion is a debate with Upsala College at South Orange, N. J., March 21, a debate with Lehigh University at Bethlehem, Pa., March 24, and two debates have been scheduled at Washington, D. C., March 25 and 26, the opponents to be Catholic University and George Washington University.

After the stay in Washington the debaters journey to Allentown, Pa., to engage the Muhlenberg trio. A debate at Richmond, Va., with Virginia Union College concludes the scheduled activities of Vermont's argumentative representatives. Other debates will be scheduled between Albany and Richmond.

On this trip both the Oxford and Oregon styles of debate will be used. The Oregon debate, which comprises direct cross-examination, is not often employed, but will furnish an interesting innovation.

Carl Sandburg, Prairie Poet, Will Lecture Here In University Series

Carl Sandburg, the "Prairie Poet" and American folk song recitalist, will come to the University, February [illegible] as a speaker in the University lecture series of which Prof. A. R. Gifford is chairman.

From a struggling boyhood in Illinois, Mr. Sandburg became in rapid succession, milk man, barber shop porter, theatre hand, bricklayer, potter, dishwasher, harvest hand, soldier, and college janitor. While in college he was captain of the basketball team and editor-in-chief of the monthly. After college his training and tastes made him turn towards journalism. He longed to write, and by means of his writing to improve social conditions.

The associate editorship of a business magazine and editorial work on the Chicago Daily News furnished the desired outlet. Meanwhile, he was writing poetry which, however, desired desired outlet. Meanwhile, he was writing poetry which, however, brought him little encouragement.

"Good Morning, America," which was read before the Howard Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, expresses this age and this country. It is inspired history, spanning the centuries and the continent; is full of startling contrasts, and contains in one spontaneous, sustained outburst all that is recognized as essentially characteristic of Carl Sandburg.

He is the American exponent of the expressionistic poetry and art that is impressing European literature. He is a pioneer in method, thought, and expression. In his poetry there are rough force and tragic irony, sincerity and rapture, spontaneity and a store of rich experiences.

Carl Sandburg is a grim realist of the stockyards, yet a dreamer among the stars. In his verse the casual reader discerns an absence of organized rhyme and meter, diction swinging from crashing tramp dialect to language of haunting delicacy, revelation of the beauty and beautality of life. There are quick sensitiveness to impression, power to express new ideas, and startling contrasts.

The Westminster Gazette has this to say of the Chicago poet:

"There is a fine courageous optimism about Carl Sandburg. Never is there the least trace of sentimentality. Work is good, for work's sake, and because man must live by the sweat of his brow. Nor does he ever suggest that the poor are unhappy because they work in sordid surroundings or that the rich are content because they have wealth and leisure. Only once is this idea touched upon, in a poem about the Overland Mail with its lighted restaurant cars aglow with roses and jonquils, while a railway man outside eats dry bread and sausage, as he gazes at the luxurious train and sees it safe passing."

VERMONTERS TRIUMPH OVER NORWICH 2 TO 1

Two-game Series Ends in Tie and Victory for Vermont—Captain Segal Enters Line-up

Saturday afternoon the Vermont hockey team topped the Norwich icemen at Northfield by a 2 to 1 score. The game was a part of the winter carnival and was played before a large crowd. In the first period the Cadets jumped to a one-point lead when Waining scored on a pass from O'Bryne. However, Palmer of Vermont came through fast in the second frame and tied the score. Then in the last period Wood scored to give the Green and Gold sextet the victory. The Catamounts were strengthened by Captain Segal, who was unable to play in the last Wednesday's game with Norwich which ended in a tie.

A. T. O. and Sigma Delta in Contest Tonight—Phi Mu Delta Versus Tau Epsilon Phi

Tonight and tomorrow evening at 6.30 will see a continuation of the interfrat basketball squabble. Tonight A. T. O. will try to wrest honors from Sigma Delta. These two teams have excellent prospects and will provide the spectators with plenty of thrills.

The pre-game dopesters have it that Mahoney, Gordon, Chiolino, Bond and Donnelly will represent A. T. O. against the Sigma Delts whose line-up is not yet known.

Tau Epsilon Phi will battle Phi Mu Delta for honors tomorrow night. This struggle will be interesting, because of the galaxy of stars on both teams. Tau Ep will have such stellar performers as Agel, Schechtman and Elowitch. This team will have at least three medics who hope to operate on the Phi Mu's, successfully. The rest of the team will be composed of Gourson, Merrill, Agel and Nathanson. The Phi Mus will counter with such stars as "Stew" Manning, Schurman, Stevens and Proctor, ably backed by Cronin and Stone. These men claim immunity to defeat and promise a great battle.

CAT'S MEOW

—SPORTING EDITOR—

And another week of sports rolled by at the University of Vermont with a single bright spot. Vermont beat Norwich in hockey 2 to 1.

We expect to have a similar statement to make next week. The basketball team is taking its defeats as a matter of fact. To quote Coach Berry after the St. Michael's game, "Don't take it to heart, boys, there are other games to play." But the spirit on the team is, "Don't take it to heart, boys, there are other games to lose."

We hope no one will say, after reading this, that it is the spirit that has caused the seven straight defeats in basketball to date. The individual ability of the men on the team is above that of the players on any college team Vermont has played this year. The boys have been fighting with all their ability—using all the knowledge of basketball they had when they came up to the varsity squad.

For three or four years the varsity has had no definite system of offense. Hit or miss is not college basketball. You really can't blame the players all the time.

There's the situation as the insider knows it. We all know the solution, but try and solve!

So much for that—now.

The Middlebury basketball game scheduled for February 25 here has been postponed to February 26.

NORWICH IS VICTORIOUS IN CARNIVAL EVENTS; VERMONT IN N. H. MEET

Norwich won the triangular winter sports meet at Northfield Saturday with a total of 19 points. Vermont was a close second with 17 credits, while Middlebury represented by nearly all freshmen, failed to place in any event. Maynes of Vermont was the high-point man making 11 of his team's 17 points. All four of the Vermont men who entered scored.

This week Vermont will be represented in the Ninth Annual Winter Sports Meet of the University of New Hampshire to be held at Durham, February 13, 14, and 15. The Green and Gold will have men entered in the slalom, ski downhill race, ski cross-country, ski jumping, 440-yard skating race, two-mile skating, and snowshoe race. Hoyt, Bragg and Bradish will participate in the skiing events, Stackpole and Freedom in skating, while Burns will probably be in the snowshoe race.

ZETA CHI WINS CUP IN WINTER SPORTS MEET

Winner Captures 32 Points While Sigma Nu Follows Closely With 31—Delta Psi is Third

One of the closest of interfraternity winter sport meets was brought to a close Friday resulting in Zeta Chi the winner by a margin of one point. Sigma Nu was second and Delta Psi followed in third place. In awarding credit for the best balanced team Sigma Nu received eight points, Delta Psi five and Zeta Chi one. A loving cup was presented to Zeta Chi between halves of the Vermont-Coast Guard basketball game Saturday night by Howard Prentice in behalf of the Department of Physical Education. Burns, Stackpole and Maynes were the outstanding contestants in the meet.

Zeta Chi by winning five first places, four seconds and a point for a well-balanced team made a total of 32 points. Sigma Nu was a close second with 31 credits made from four first positions, two seconds, two thirds and eight points for the best balanced team in the meet.

Final point scores—Zeta Chi, 32; Sigma Nu, 31; Delta Psi, 18; Lambda Iota, 10; Phi Mu Delta, 5; Independents, 5; Kappa Sigma, 1.

Clark School In Prelim Thursday

Frosh Expect Third Victory—Defeated Waterbury Last Wednesday 50 to 28—Grant Elected Captain

On Thursday evening, Coach Danny Prentice's Kittens meet the strong Clark School five in a preliminary to the Vermont-Lowell Textile game, and this promises to be as exciting a contest as the main attraction itself.

"Bob" Grant was elected captain of the Green and Gold yearlings previous to the victory of the latter over the Waterbury outfit 50 to 28 last Wednesday night at Waterbury. Grant's all around ability on the court as well as his leadership makes him the logical man for the honor.

NORWICH HAS BETTER RECORD THAN VERMONT

This afternoon the Vermont basketball team will journey to Northfield for the third game of the Green Mountain Conference series. Up to date the Green and Gold five have no enviable record, dropping both games of the series to St. Michael's besides losses to out of state quintets. The traditional rivalry which has continued for some time between Norwich and Vermont is sure to inspire the Catamounts to a greater performance in this game.

The Vermont varsity has been strengthened at the close of mid years by "Eddie" Winant, "Tona" Collins and "Skip" Bedell. With the old line-up which worked effectively before the Christmas holidays and these new additions Vermont should break its losing streak in the cadet game tonight.

Coach Berry has been using Captain Halligan at both forward and guard positions in the last few games. However, the team seems to work best when "Tim" is in the back court with Manning as his running mate, Sargent at center, and Burnstein at right forward. The other forward position is closely contended for by Winant, Tupper and Bedell.

The Norwich team, although getting off to a disastrous start in the opening games of its schedule, has improved remarkably in its recent contests due wholly to the addition of Fanos at center. The surprising upset over Middlebury, the close defeat at the hands of the Michaelmen and the recent win over Vermont's last opponent, the Coast Guard, will tend to place the cadets as favorites in tonight's clash.

Thursday night the Catamounts play Lowell Tech on the home floor and should give the fans the treat of another victory. The strength of the Tech team is not known here except what is indicated by the 33 to 24 defeat received at the hands of M. I. T. last Saturday, but a good battle is expected Thursday night. With the schedule over half completed it is hoped that Vermont will once more begin to register on the top side of the score.

Two-game Series Ends in Tie and Victory for Vermont—Captain Segal Enters Line-up

Saturday afternoon the Vermont hockey team topped the Norwich icemen at Northfield by a 2 to 1 score. The game was a part of the winter carnival and was played before a large crowd. In the first period the Cadets jumped to a one-point lead when Wainwood scored on a pass from O'Bryne. However, Palmer of Vermont came through fast in the second frame and tied the score. Then in the last period Wood scored to give the Green and Gold sextet the victory. The Catamounts were strengthened by Captain Segal, who was unable to play in the last Wednesday's game with Norwich which ended in a tie.

A. T. O. and Sigma Delta in Contest Tonight—Phi Mu Delta Versus Tau Epsilon Phi

Tonight and tomorrow evening at 6.30 will see a continuation of the interfrat basketball squabble. Tonight A. T. O. will try to wrest honors from Sigma Delta. These two teams have excellent prospects and will provide the spectators with plenty of thrills.

The pre-game dopesters have it that Mahoney, Gordon, Chiolino, Bond and Donnelly will represent A. T. O. against the Sigma Delts whose line-up is not yet known.

Tau Epsilon Phi will battle Phi Mu Delta for honors tomorrow night. This struggle will be interesting, because of the galaxy of stars on both teams. Tau Ep will have such stellar performers as Agel, Schechtman and Elowitch. This team will have at least three medics who hope to operate on the Phi Mu's, successfully. The rest of the team will be composed of Gourson, Merrill, Agel and Nathanson. The Phi Mus will counter with such stars as "Stew" Manning, Schurman, Stevens and Proctor, ably backed by Cronin and Stone. These men claim immunity to defeat and promise a great battle.

CAT'S MEOW

—SPORTING EDITOR—

And another week of sports rolled by at the University of Vermont with a single bright spot—Vermont beat Norwich in hockey 2 to 1.

We expect to have a similar statement to make next week. The basketball team is taking its defeats as a matter of fact. To quote Coach Berry after the St. Michael's game, "Don't take it to heart, boys, there are other games to play." But the spirit on the team is, "Don't take it to heart, boys, there are other games to lose."

We hope no one will say, after reading this, that it is the spirit that has caused the seven straight defeats in basketball to date. The individual ability of the men on the team is above that of the players on any college team Vermont has played this year. The boys have been fighting with all their ability using all the knowledge of basketball they had when they came up to the varsity squad.

For three or four years the varsity has had no definite system of offense. Hit or miss is not college basketball. You really can't blame the players all the time.

There's the situation as the insider knows it. We all know the solution, but try and solve!

So much for that—now.

The Middlebury basketball game scheduled for February 25 here has been postponed to February 26.

NORWICH IS VICTORIOUS IN CARNIVAL EVENTS; VERMONT IN N. H. MEET

Norwich won the triangular winter sports meet at Northfield Saturday with a total of 19 points. Vermont was a close second with 17 credits, while Middlebury represented by nearly all freshmen, failed to place in any event. Maynes of Vermont was the high-point man making 11 of his team's 17 points. All four of the Vermont men who entered scored.

This week Vermont will be represented in the Ninth Annual Winter Sports Meet of the University of New Hampshire to be held at Durham, February 13, 14, and 15. The Green and Gold will have men entered in the slalom, ski downhill race, ski cross-country, ski jumping, 440-yard skating race, two-mile skating, and snowshoe race. Hoyt, Bragg and Bradish will participate in the skiing events, Stackpole and Preedom in skating, while Burns will probably be in the snowshoe race

ZETA CHI WINS CUP IN WINTER SPORTS MEET

Winner Captures 32 Points While Sigma Nu Follows Closely With 31—Delta Psi is Third

One of the closest of interfraternity winter sport meets was brought to a close Friday resulting in Zeta Chi the winner by a margin of one point. Sigma Nu was second and Delta Psi followed in third place. In awarding credit for the best balanced team Sigma Nu received eight points, Delta Psi five and Zeta Chi one. A loving cup was presented to Zeta Chi between halves of the Vermont-Coast Guard basketball game Saturday night by Howard Prentice in behalf of the Department of Physical Education. Burns, Stackpole and Maynes were the outstanding contestants in the meet.

Zeta Chi by winning five first places, four seconds and a point for a well-balanced team made a total of 32 points. Sigma Nu was a close second with 31 credits made from four first positions, two seconds, two thirds and eight points for the best balanced team in the meet.

Final point scores—Zeta Chi, 32; Sigma Nu, 31; Delta Psi, 18; Lambda Iota, 10; Phi Mu Delta, 5; Independents, 5; Kappa Sigma, 1.

Clark School In Prelim Thursday

Frosh Expect Third Victory—Defeated Waterbury Last Wednesday 50 to 28—Grant Elected Captain

On Thursday evening, Coach "Bunny" Prentice's Kittens meet the strong Clark School five in a preliminary to the Vermont-Lowell Textile game, and this promises to be as exciting a contest as the main attraction itself.

"Bob" Grant was elected captain of the Green and Gold yearlings previous to the victory of the latter over the Waterbury outfit 50 to 28 last Wednesday night at Waterbury. Grant's all around ability on the court as well as his leadership makes him the logical man for the honor.

NORWICH HAS BETTER RECORD THAN VERMONT

This afternoon the Vermont basketball team will journey to Northfield for the third game of the Green Mountain Conference series. Up to date the Green and Gold five have no enviable record, dropping both games of the series to St. Michael's besides losses to out of state quintets. The traditional rivalry which has continued for some time between Norwich and Vermont is sure to inspire the Catamounts to a greater performance in this game.

The Vermont varsity has been strengthened at the close of mid-years by "Eddie" Winant, "Tom" Collins and "Skip" Bedell. With the old lineup which worked effectively before the Christmas holidays and these new additions Vermont should break its losing streak in the cadet game tonight.

Coach Berry has been using Captain Halligan at both forward and guard positions in the last few games. However, the team seems to work best when "Tim" is in the back court with Manning as his running mate, Sargent at center, and Burnstein at right forward. The other forward position is closely contended for by Winant, Tupper and Bedell.

The Norwich team, although getting off to a disastrous start in the opening games of its schedule, has improved remarkably in its recent contests due wholly to the addition of Fanos at center. The surprising upset over Middlebury, the close defeat at the hands of the Michaelmen and the recent win over Vermont's last opponent, the Coast Guard, will tend to place the cadets as favorites in tonight's clash.

Thursday night the Catamounts play Lowell Tech on the home floor and should give the fans the treat of another victory. The strength of the Tech team is not known here except what is indicated by the 33 to 24 defeat received at the hands of M. I. T. last Saturday, but a good battle is expected Thursday night. With the schedule over half completed it is hoped that Vermont will once more begin to register on the top side of the score.

We live in a state of perpetual variation, and, according as we are changed for the better or the worse, we are called happy or unhappy.

Trial by Jury Will Appear On Same Bill With Orpheus

Gilbert and Sullivan Operetta Will Go on the Boards April 24 Together with Gluck's Grand Opera—Marks First Double Operatic Bill

Trial By Jury, a comic opera of Gilbert and Sullivan vintage, will be presented by the combined Glee Clubs, under the director of Prof. H. H. Bennett, on the evening of April 24, at the Strong Theater, sharing a double bill with the grand opera Orpheus. The simultaneous production of two operas is unique in the annals of musical activities at the University.

Demand Large Casts

Both operas demand choruses of from thirty to forty singers, besides many soloists to fill the major parts. Professor Bennett will direct both the rehearsals and presentation in cooperation with Prof. T. T. Metcalf, who will serve as dramatic director. The scores will be rendered by the University Orchestra, whose playing will be essential to the success of the Orpheus, an opera which depends in great part on skilful accompaniment. Orpheus should take about an hour to present, while Trial By Jury can be presented in about forty-five minutes.

Professor Bennett has issued a call for all members of the men's and women's Glee Clubs and of the Choir to compete in the try-outs this afternoon in the Music Building, for solo parts of both operas. Musical rehearsals have begun already, but dramatic rehearsals will not begin until March.

Trial By Jury was one of the first markably successful comic operettas ever written. Its opening performance was given along with an opera of Offenbach's entitled La Perichole. It was intended merely to fill out the evening's entertainment, but turned out to be the more popular production.

The Plot

Briefly, the plot is as follows: The trial concerns a breach of promise suit. At the beginning the usher warns the jury that the trial must be entirely without bias of any kind, but from the beginning to end, all are in favor of the lady. The defendant even admits he is fickle, but argues that he is only following the laws of nature that are ever changing. After a number of solutions have been offered and turned down by the counsel, the judges settle the whole matter by marrying the plaintiff himself.

There are six rôles in Trial By Jury: The judge, baritone; defendant, tenor; plaintiff, soprano; counsel for plaintiff, tenor; the usher, baritone; and the foreman of the jury, also baritone. The rôles in Orpheus are: Orpheus, tenor or baritone; Euridice, soprano; Amor, soprano; leader of the chorus, alto or baritone; and O Blessed Spirit soprano.

Students who desire to try out for any of these parts should report at the Music Building this afternoon. Any further information regarding rehearsals will be posted on the bulletin board. Professor Bennett wishes to advise all interested that copies of the operas may be obtained from members of the music faculty.

TRY-OUTS WILL DECIDE OPERA PARTS TODAY

Professor Bennett will hold try-outs for all solo parts in "Orpheus," as well as for the comic opera, this afternoon, from four to five, in the Music Building.

Members of the Women's Glee Club who were unable to attend last night's rehearsal when the music for the different parts was distributed, and who wish to participate in the try-outs, have been instructed to secure copies of the operas from members of the music department this morning.

Love, dumbness and faulty intelligence are the reasons for freshmen flunking out of college, according to one of the deans at the University of Nebraska.

Theme Song Strains Remind of Kake Walk's Approach

Sounds of "Cotton Babes" Herald the Coming of Vermont's Thirty-third Annual Walkin' fo' de Kake, as Directors Rush Plans on to Final Completion

Strains of "Cotton Babes," first of all the theme songs, have again been heard at Vermont as for the thirty-third time in as many years, plans for Kake Walk, classic of the social season, rapidly go forward to completion.

Never, in recent years, have crowds failed to pack the gymnasium on both the Kake Walk nights, and never yet have they been disappointed in their expectations. As competition continued to increase from year to year, however, the Kake Walk directors, in order to relieve the tedium of too long an evening, were forced to limit the number of stunts to be presented, at the same time retaining those of highest quality. This year a group of faculty judges will eliminate two more of the eight stunts prepared for presentation the nights of Friday and Saturday, February 21 and 22, as well as the poorer of the kake walkers. Kake walking try-outs will take place in the gymnasium at four o'clock Monday afternoon. Try-outs for stunts have been set for Thursday evening.

The Judges

Four sets of judges have been selected by Directors Hawley and Puffer, one group each to decide in try-outs, peerade, stunts and kake walking.

Judges of try-outs are: Prof. D. H. Carroll of the political science department, Prof. L. W. Dean of the English department, and Prof. J. T. Metcalf of the psychology department.

Judges of the peerade are Lieut. Col. F. F. Black of the military department; H. D. Pearl, assistant superintendent of schools of Burlington; and D. W. Howe, manager of the Burlington Free Press Association.

Judges of stunts are: Dr. T. S. Brown, superintendent of the Mary Fletcher Hospital; S. R. Moulton, justice of the Vermont Supreme Court; Thomas Bradlee, director of the Agricultural Extension Service; G. D. Smith, librarian of the Fletcher Free Library; and Elijah Swift, acting dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

CREATIVE SCHOLARSHIP NECESSARY FOR GOOD TEACHING, SAYS JONES

Former Vermont Professor tells Research Club of Necessity for Productive Work in Colleges

"One who is not a productive scholar, who is not producing something in the field in which he is studying, cannot be a good teacher," declared Dr. L. R. Jones of the National Research Council, Washington, D. C., in a banquet address before the members of the University of Vermont Research Club last Saturday evening at the Hotel Vermont. The occasion was the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the club. The subject discussed by Doctor Jones was the place of research in the educational system of today.

Doctor Jones was professor of botany at the University for several years, resigning in 1910 to become head of the department of botany at the University of Wisconsin. At present he is chairman of the board of trustees of the Laboratory of Tropical Research and is on his way to Porto Rico to attend a meeting of that body.

"Spend More For Research"

Doctor Jones told of the meeting of college presidents held last year at Philadelphia, at which the question of research in universities was given considerable discussion. The conclusion drawn was that unless state universities spent more money to encourage research, they would soon fall behind the endowed universities in effectiveness. Both state universities and endowed universities are waking up to the fact in these days that too little money is being spent for research.

Doctor Jones told of the fund now available at Wisconsin contributed partly by the trustees and partly by the alumni, and administered by the alumni, with the dean of the graduate college as a member of the committee, and which is used as an emergency fund for members of the faculty doing research work. If money is needed to complete important experiments or

Military Makes Young Frosh Into Red-blooded Men, Says Col. Black

"Military training makes red-blooded men out of boys," affirmed Col. Frederick F. Black, R. O. T. C. commandant, when asked by a Cynic reporter why we should take military science in college.

"How?" we asked skeptically at the same time executing order arms with our notebook. The Colonel staggered slightly under the impact but soon regained consciousness.

"Military science makes men out of you physically, mentally and morally," continued the Colonel, taking another bite on his half-consumed cigar, and then bringing it down to present arms.

Being a bit presumptuous in regard to our manhood, we were inclined to doubt his statement. So we did inspection arms with the notebook and asked:

"How does it benefit us physically?"

The Colonel swung about face in the swivel chair and replied, "Military training, although a little theoretical at the University of Vermont, has a tendency to put young men's shoulders back where they belong. Isn't this a physical benefit?"

"Yes," we conceded, being slightly weakened by the verbal machine gun turned on us, "but how about mental benefits?"

"Certain young men," replied the commandant with a genial smile, "have ideas which need changing. I assure you that we do our best. You young men need to have some of those headstrong self-conscious feelings removed. I trust my assistant officers and myself will be successful in the effort."

Severely wounded, but still hostile and having the semblance of a combat unit we asked, "But of what benefit is military morally?"

The Colonel came to port arms with his favorite cigar and replied, "Only this morning we were teaching some of the men how to lead a clean life morally. The military department stresses the need of clean living in relation to all its activities."

Badly wounded, shell shocked and in a condition for transportation to the rear by the litter bearers, we still had sufficient strength to ask the Colonel what his opinion of military science is.

"I should advise every young man who has a drop of red blood in his veins to take military training," said Colonel Black. "I wish you could see some of the present graduates from the advanced course as they are today and compare them with the same men when they entered college as freshmen. The improvement is extraordinary. They are real American men now. Not diamonds in the rough but polished gems."

We arose to leave thanking the Colonel for the interview.

"No trouble at all," acknowledged the Colonel. "Come again some day. If you have any more objections just let me know."

"We will. Good bye."

UNIVERSITY OFFERS NINE GRADUATE FELLOWSHIPS

Will Also Award Ten Scholarships to Graduate Students Specializing in Advanced Courses

Nine fellowships, paying $700 each the first year and $800 the second year with exemption from tuition charges, are offered by the University of Vermont during the year 1930-31. In addition to the fellowship, the University will award ten scholarships of $300 each, the amount of full tuition, to students pursuing graduate courses. Preference will be given applicants not graduates of the University of Vermont in awarding five of the scholarships.

Applicants for these fellowships and scholarships must show superior proficiency in the subjects in which they wish to specialize and must be graduates of colleges and universities of advanced standing. The holder of a fellowship is expected to work for a Master's degree and to give a certain amount of assistance, not exceeding eight hours a week, to the department in which he holds the fellowship.

Assistance to students whose undergraduate record and personal qualities give promise of success either in research or in the profession of teaching is the purpose sought by the University in offering these fellowships and scholarships.

Applicants for fellowships and scholarships should file a transcript of their undergraduate work not later than March 15, 1930. Special consideration will be given to their record in major and minor subjects. Application blanks may be secured from Prof. George P. Burns.

VERMONT RIFLE TEAM IN FIRST COMPETITION

Last Saturday the Vermont rifle team was in the first match of the season with Gettysburg, Pittsburg, Tennessee, Washington, and Western Indiana as opponents. The scores made on the targets shot are compared by telegraph, or mail, and the results thus tabulated. The outcome of last Saturday's match has not yet been received. Tomorrow targets will be shot in competition with Kentucky, Rose Polytechnical Institute, Lafayette, DePauw and Rhode Island State.

PHYZZ. ED NOTES

After much sleuthing around and much cajoling, our own "Howie" Prentice decided to let me in on a little secret. The Phiz Ed Dept. is on the trail of Gus Sonnenberg's challenger. However, "How" refused to mention any names, but led me into the wrestling room. The capable "Bump" Levine was tying his students into knots and untying them again. Then the students went to work on each other with a ferocity that was dumbfounding. More sleuthing revealed the fact that sometime next March a wrestling tournament would be held and the winner, if still physically whole, will be given an award. Then he can go after the famous "Gus."

Nobody told me this secret, but I'm telling you. Hearken closely for a successor to Tunney has at last been found. In an expansive moment "Wink" Winchenbach told me that his proteges could lick anybody not in the hospital, meaning the nurses of course. He offered to let me try out his charges, but after noting the anticipatory gleam in their eyes I negatived and thanked "Wink" very kindly. It is rumored that unlike Tunney the new champ does not care for Shakspere but prefers Bacon, or is it ham? This led me to conclude that he might be an Aggie.

No sooner had the profs lifted the ban of midyears, than they terrorize us again with a new possibility, that of winning the interfraternity basketball tourney. This announcement created a furore among the sundry fraternities involved for fear that the cup may go to the museum instead of the hallowed trophy chest.

The roving reporter stepped into the Phiz Ed Department in hopes of getting a line upon the mystery team but met with startling unsuccess. "Howie" Prentice, their coach, refused to divulge any information, but after much wheedling and cajoling did let slip a few choice items. First, the triple X system will be used. This mysterious system involves the use of three complete teams, all five men of which can play basketball. Secondly, he divulged the names of the squad from which these men may be picked. These playboys are as follows: Carpenter, Ladd and Carlson of the Deutsche Verein; Smith, Campbell and VanAlstyne from the Aggies, and Captains Rattan, Berry and Lauer, the sharpshooters of the military department. In addition there will be Leonard and Singerman, who are connected with the poison gas section of the chemistry department. It is rumored that a few ringers from the laundry department will also be present. However, it will all come out in the wash.

Their first set-to will doubtless draw a large crowd of rooters and other wise.

The following are some special courses which will be offered by the Physical Education department until the Easter recess.

1. Basketball, track and field work under the direction of Mr. Post.
2. Wrestling under Mr. Levine. There is also a class in advanced wrestling in preparation for the Second Annual Intra-Mural Championships which will be held during the month of March.
3. Boxing. Classes are held Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 4 p.m. by Mr. Winchenbach.
4. Riding class. For information inquire of Mr. Prentice.
5. Foot correctives. Classes are conducted by Mr. Prentice on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 8.30, 9.30, 10.30 a.m. and 2.00 p.m. and on Mondays and Wednesdays at 3.00 p.m.
6. Fencing.
7. Skating and winter sports practice.

Any of the above courses can be taken to secure Physical Education credit.

We [illegible] ments in the last issue of the Cynic.

[illegible] except by an astronomical victory. But there still seems to be a trick left.

The Vermont situation in athletics is comparable to that in a mid-western state college which is getting much current newspaper publicity for the attempt of a remedy by a system of reorganization throughout the athletic department of that college.

Students brought the state of affairs to a head there, and there's no reason why the student body should not be considered in athletic affairs at the University of Vermont.

Unless we miss our guess things are about ready to break wide open say before the end of the semester.

We are sorry that lack of space and the fact that only time will bring new developments, prevent us from stating all we wish at the present time, but we expect to have something more in our columns in subsequent issues.

Springfield is not bringing as great a club tomorrow as we have been used to seeing from the "Y" school, but it is a good team just the same. The Springfield coaching system keeps fast new material coming along year after year.

Middlebury is supporting a crack hockey team this season. Beat Norwich 3 to 0. Vermont expects to give the Panther a close game, but if Mercier's injury holds out the Cats will be minus a clever scoring wing.

The interfrat basketball tourney ends its first round tomorrow. So far there are more championship-aspiring teams than ever. Competition in the second round will be keen.

SMITH WILL HEAD KEY AND SERPENT SOCIETY

F. Stanley Smith will head the Key and Serpent society during the second semester, and F. A. McBride will serve as vice-president during the same period, by vote of the junior society at the mid-year election. R. J. Maynes and G. R. Brush will continue to hold the positions of secretary and treasurer, respectively, for the rest of the year.

Stanley Smith was vice-president of Key and Serpent last semester. He is advertising manager of the Cynic, is circulation manager of the Ariel, assistant manager of baseball, is assistant Kake Walk director, and is sub chairman of the Junior Week committee this year. Smith is a member of Sigma Phi Fraternity and holds membership in Pi Delta Rho, honorary journalistic society. He replaces R. E. Tobin as president.

The following students of the home economics department are at Practice House this week: Seniors—Helen Allbee, hostess, and Frances Laythe, assistant hostess; juniors—Charlotte Gilmore, household manager, and Frances French, cook; Mailla Putnam, sophomore waitress; and Esther Leary, freshman assistant.

NORWICH FIVE DEFEATS CATS IN LISTLESS GAME

Hartford is High Scorer while Captain Halligan Leads for Vermont — Springfield Here Tomorrow

Tuesday night the Vermont basketball team once more suffered defeat this time at the hands of the Norwich players 36 to 16 on the latter's home floor. This victory placed the horsemen in second place in the race for the state title with two wins and one defeat. St. Michael's leads with three victories and one loss. During the first half the Cadets ran up 18 points to 5 for Vermont. They cut their pace after the rest period but continued to keep well ahead throughout the game. This is just another tally on the defeat column of the Vermont basketball team which seems to be increasing rather consistently.

Hartford, Norwich star left forward, was high man with 12 points. Fanos, at center for the Cadets, made nine. Halligan and Bernstein starred for Vermont the former piling up seven points and the latter four.

Tomorrow night, the University gym will again be the scene of the annual Vermont-Springfield basketball game. Although possessing some star veterans who had contributed much in defeating the Cats during both encounters last season, Springfield has had a number of setbacks and very few victories. A keen and exciting battle can be anticipated as both teams are long-time rivals and both seem to be in the same condition.

Vermont has been rather prominent on the defeat column, also possessing a number of star veterans as well as a number of potential stars. Due to their state, both combinations are anxious to break the so-called jinx, if it is a jinx, and the results should be rather interesting.

Dink" Bernstein and "Fred" Tupper will no doubt again appear in their forward berths reinforced by Capt. "Tim" Halligan and "Phil" Manning, sponsors of an air-tight defense. The lanky Sargent, who is just about hitting his stride, will be the pivot man.

The probable lineups:

VERMONT	SPRINGFIELD
Bernstein, l.f.	l.f., Cameron
Tupper, r.f.	r.f., Ackerman
Sargent, c.	c., Klein
Halligan, l.g.	l.g., Poten

MIDDLEBURY DEFEATED NORWICH PREVIOUSLY

Tomorrow afternoon Coach "Hy" Vaughan takes his Catamount sextet to Middlebury where will be decided the winner of the state hockey title. Prospects are bright for a Vermont celebration due to the confidency exuded by Captain Leo Segal and his mates when they chalked up a victory at the expense of the Norwich Cadets. Leo, one of the wiriest "Frenchy" Mercier, a veritable flash on defense is ready to go and should give the Blue and White guardian plenty of worry with his backhand shots. Wuest at center ice, is a vast improvement over what hockey fans have been seeing for past years on the hill and should prove to be the mainstay of the attack. Howard is veteran of the best defensive wing on the squad and his play has been bordering on the sensational. As a teammate on defensive Capt. Leo Segal has "Dick" Swain one of the real pick chasers on the squad. Dick's poke checking brings back reminiscences of Frank Nighbor, modern exponent of the art. Guarding the uprights is Bob Hendricks, a veteran goalie of many campaigns who has been sticking them out with regularity.

Middlebury presents an unimpressive record, having suffered a loss at the hands of the Princeton Tiger but defeating the Norwich aggregation. However, past records are to be forgotten when these rivals engage in combat.

During the past few years the number of American college publications has increased considerably. At present there are over 400 weeklies, 32 dailies, 35 semi weekly, and about 100 are bi-weekly.

Courses in Aviation at Carnegie include a degree course in Aeronautical Engineering and a course in Aviation Mechanics, neither of which include actual flight instruction. Any student desiring flight instruction must secure it in addition at a field approved by the Aeronautical Department.

As the last of the six stunts departs again the Lothario's handsomest will come into their own as Cotton Rahe's [illegible] fully in all its scintillating splendor and cake walkers stepping high, wide for de kake.

The rules of the competition require every fraternity competing in the stunts to enter one kake walking couple and others may enter if they so desire. Two minutes is all a single couple may have at the floor.

A violation of the rule permitting a fraternity only fifteen minutes for a stunt eliminates its stunt from consideration for a prize. Scoring for stunts will take into consideration both originality, teamwork, delivery and voice, quality of properties and apparatus, costumes, audience interest and time taken. Kake walking judges will consider the dancers ability, teamwork and smoothness, grace, costumes, audience interest and stunts.

Rehearsal Dates

Rehearsal periods have been set for Mondays and Tuesdays afternoons from six to the evening to two in the morning. Rehearsals are in charge of R. A. Lawrence.

WILLIAMS DEAN ONCE GREEK PROFESSOR HERE

Howes' Resignation from Deanship at Williams College Recalls His Former Connection with Vermont

George E. Howes professor of Greek at the University of Vermont from [illegible] to 1895 resigned as dean of Williams College after serving in that capacity for ten years according to a recent announcement of the Williamstown Council. Dean Howes whose appointment as dean of the college becomes [illegible] will leave on his sabbatical year during the next semester and will return in September to take up his duties in the ancient languages department.

Professor Howes who is Garfield professor of ancient languages, was graduated from Harvard University in the class of 1886 and received degrees of M A and Ph D in 1890 and 1895. He was with the United States Fuel Administration in 1918-19, and since 1920 has been dean of Williams College. Dean Howes has written for the Harvard Studies in Classical Philology and for other classical journals.

In regard to plans for his sabbatical year Dean Howes said that he is expecting to spend the rest of the winter in Florida, and then some time in Washington, before departing for his summer home in Vermont.

CHESS POPULARITY IS GROWING AT VERMONT

University of Vermont students have become chess minded according to local photos who report express increasing sums of chess sets to students. The mania for the ancient game whose origin antedates written history, is confined largely to the upper classes.

It is rather a common sight according to fraternity members, to see several groups sitting about the houses, poring over the complicated and none too swift moving game. Last season bridge of both its contract and auction varieties engaged the students with brief excursions into the fields of poker, red dog and other less well known games but this season bridge and others have gone by the board in favor of chess.

It is not definitely known when bids will be asked for the construction of the building or whether the contract will be awarded by the committee in charge. Actual construction is expected to start as soon as weather conditions are suitable.

A shakedown test, a rescue, and a hundred thrills

A SCORE of carefree Coast Guard sailors, and with them a Westinghouse man from the Boston Office, headed in a "bum boat" for the cutter Chelan peacefully at anchor in the harbor of Hamilton, Bermuda Islands.

It had been an exciting shakedown test-cruise. The Westinghouse turbine generator, motor and condensers had functioned perfectly, the sea had yielded up its bag of tricks, the Bermudas had fascinated every soul. And soon they would be bound for home.

But fate held new experiences in store. Five hundred miles off the Azores, the Newport, New York State training ship, had lost her propeller. The Chelan was called to the rescue. And with her, of course, went the Westinghouse man.

The Chelan, like four other Coast Guard Cutters recently completed, is equipped with Westinghouse turbine electric drive.

Three days at top speed on tropical waters, the excitement of rescuing a helpless crew, twelve days at a lazy towing speed, men overboard and a rescue at sea—thrills like those come to many Westinghouse men in line with their work at electrifying the world.

For Westinghouse, in a commanding position in electrical development, enters every field of industry where electricity is or may be employed. And Westinghouse men get a taste of every brand of human activity.

Says Who?

The disreputable Maul states its lofty aims in part as follows: "We the editors, men of no particular class no particular society nor clique, have written this Maul, not with the mere desire to say whatever hard things we could against our fellow students, but wishing to show forth the true condition of the college, to lay out on an open page the vices of the students, side by side, with some faint hope that this public exposure may produce amendment. . . . If any of our statements are untrue, and being so, give pain to innocent men, to those we sincerely apologize; to all others we say, "If the cap fits you, wear it." As to the faculty, it pained us to turn our weapons against that hand that taught us to wield them, but we dare affirm that any student in college will vouch for the truth of our article."

And what they did to the faculty! Left them without a rag to stand in! We blush even at this late day to print some of the indecencies given in good part and taken as meant. Here's just a tasty bit, remarkable for the way it reverses the truth while going in high.

Goodrich, better known as "Old Snakey," the meanest man in the Faculty, is the concentrated essence of personified lie. His greatest delight is to prowl about the mill, taking the names of students indulging in any irregularities. We cite his performance at Ray's last winter, as an instance of his spying propensity. In lying he rivals the Prex himself; but here let us discriminate somewhat, and observe that while "Snakey" excels in magnitude and multitude, the Prex far surpasses in subtlety and art. It is characteristic of the man, that at his lecture on Temperance he slipped in two cocktails before beginning.

And then we read of how a certain young lady, whom we shall not mention, saved a certain young gentleman's life, whom we shall not mention, by throwing her arms devotedly around his neck and breaking his boil. Those were the ripe days when the whole co-ed question was a boil and the Maul does it more or less justice. But let us pause for a few bromide fillers.

Infinitesimal of first order—Tupper's feet.

Infinitesimal of second order—Stinson's mouth.

Concentrated meanness—Professor Rice.

Fuller, if thy feet stinketh, cut them off.

PARLEY WILL DISCUSS THE STATE IN BUSINESS

H. Odegard of Williams College, leading authority on lobbying, will present the scholar's view.

Although the two men may agree on many points, it is possible that a clash of opinions may issue that will remind the audience of the warm argument between Norman Thomas and Admiral Plunkett at the 1928 parley on war.

Dr. Raymond L. Buell, research director of the Foreign Policy Association, will speak on imperialism as an outgrowth of business and political factors. Morris Hillquit, internationally known socialist, will give his views of the growing social and business functions of government.

John T. Flynn, former managing editor of the New York Globe, well known for his magazine articles on business and government, will take that general subject. Prof. Myron W. Watkins of New York University, an authority on mergers, will discuss governmental regulation of business.

Invitations have been sent to the student bodies of forty eastern colleges and universities. It is expected that Wesleyan fraternities will assist in entertaining the visitors.

Former Wesleyan parleys have touched upon religion, war, education and athletics, and have brought to Middletown such men as Norman Thomas, Admirals Plunkett and Magruder, ex-President Meiklejohn of Amherst, James Harvey Robinson, John Haynes Homes, and Rabbi Wise.

At the University of Virginia, the students are in the habit of stamping or shuffling their feet whenever they wish to express satisfaction or applause. In like manner they feel perfectly free to talk, and cause unnecessary disturbance when they feel that a speaker has talked long enough.

Only three of Rutger's 443 freshmen came to college to participate in athletics. One student came so that he "might go home on very short notice"; another came "to develop my mind and body"; and another "aspires to attain the highest standard of manhood that exists."

Campus Comment

To the Editor of the Cynic:

Vermont is a college steeped in tradition, a college which loyal graduates want to revere, a college old and famed, noted for its scholars and its gentlemen.

But like the state itself, it is unprogressive, a sulking monarch hide-bound, as is its chiseled contours, by Puritannical convention.

The statement applies not to the college as a whole but it is undoubtedly traceable to a link in the chain, a well-defined part of the University's venerable foundation. The particular group to which I refer is the Athletic Council of this institution, a group so staid and narrow minded in its prerogative, that, unwittingly, the whole University, its standing and its ideals, are indirectly becoming despoiled, a mere joke to a class, cynical and critical.

This may sound farfetched and unreasonable to the sane village burgher but to the interested participator in college affairs it is, I fear, the barren truth.

Parodies in magazines, the advance of sport in the national opinion, and the national collegiate attitude has raised the extra-curricula side of college life to its position of present prominence.

It is now my endeavor to promulgate the facts whose question was aroused by the Vermont athletic teams in the past year. Vermont ventures to send men, bearing the name of and representing the college as a whole, onto the field of sport with poor equipment, badly trained, and finally, as the greatest detriment, wretchedly coached. The result is first, defeat, second, pathos, and lastly, to outsiders a monstrous farce.

The college is getting notoriety, not of the desired sort, but of that which has considerable influence on important people today, namely, deserved contempt.

Books might be penned and scathing pamphlets filled in covering the details in which this body of men, who presumably are trying to further and raise the standard of this institution in athletics, have failed miserably in their purpose.

I now will present for inspection the literal interpretation of a reporter in the New York World. "The hapless University of Vermont basketball team, which had 62 points run up on it last month by Dartmouth, appears to be due for another shellacking tonight, when it plays the rôle of guest at the Crescent Athletic Club in a game with the powerful Half-Mooners five.

"It seems to be the fate of Vermont sports outfits to set records every season as being the weakest teams in the country. The visitor's football team lost by 77-0 and 89-0 scores to N. Y. U. and Yale last fall, establishing some sort of a record, and their basketball team has made a splendid start toward duplicating that dubious feat.

"Every man on the Crescent squad, perhaps even including the bucket boy, is slated for a chance against the New Englanders."

Now must we, a state college and a loyal group of students, allow the interests and representatives of our University to be openly derided because of an incompetent Athletic Council?

In closing, I refuse to declare this article the bombastic ravings of a radical or anarchist, but merely a concise declaration of the opinion of the whole student body and, in short, a clear exposition of the situation as it exists at present.

INVESTIGATION REVEALS THE TYPICAL PRESIDENT

Statistics on college and university presidents are not as easily picked up as statistics on high school or grade school principals and superintendents. The teachers' employment bureaus devote their time more to school men below the rank of president. The selection of a president for any college or university these days is no small job. It is of interest therefore to look over an article, "Some Facts About College Presidents," by Homer P. Rainey of Franklin College, published in School and Society for October 26 and summarized by the Alumni Features Service.

He finds that about 97 percent of our college presidents have come from two professions teaching and the ministry and believes that these form excellent training. Examining the teaching experience of 124 college presidents he finds the median year to be between 14 and 15, "surely a worthy period of apprenticeship." As to what these presidents taught in their ante-presidential days, Greek and Latin lead all other subjects. Regarding degrees, more held LL.D.'s than any other kind, with Ph.D. second.

BAND WILL BROADCAST TONIGHT OVER WCAX

This evening from eight o'clock until eight-thirty the University of Vermont R. O. T. C. band will broadcast over station WCAX during its regular Friday evening broadcast. The program will consist of marches, popular hits and college songs. The Vermont band has always enjoyed a fine reputation and is said to be the best college band in the East. This year's freshman class brought in a number of good bandsmen and under the direction of conductor Joe Lechnyr the band has attained to a higher quality than has ever before been reached.

The band has been ready to play at all athletic contests at which it has been asked to be present and has added greatly to the pep of these games, but the function of the year at which the band comes most into its glory is the Kake Walk. At this event the band is indespensable and the success of the whole enterprise depends in large part on their performance. Besides its two rehearsals a week the band is now holding extra practices in preparation for this event.

The broadcast will be somewhat of an advertisement for the Kake Walk and those who listen in will be well rewarded with the strains of "Cotton Babes." This will be the first time the band has played this piece publicly since last year and anyone who hears it will surely feel a tingle in his toes and find it hard to remain quietly seated.

The program:

1. March, "The Spirit of the First Division"—Frank
2. Vermont Songs:
   a. "Our Colors"
   b. "Ring the Bell"
3. Popular Hit, "Tip Toe Thru the Tulips"
4. "Cotton Babes"
5. March, "The Rising Eagle"—Frank
6. Popular Hits:
   a. "How Am I to Know"
   b. "Painting the Clouds with Sunshine"
7. Vermont Songs:
   a. "Vermont Victorious"
   b. "Champlain"
8. March, "The 8th Field Artillery" Frank

CREATIVE SCHOLARSHIP ESSENTIAL TO TEACHING

Former Vermont Professor tells Research Club of Necessity for Productive Work in Colleges

other research work, it can be secured from this fund. Many universities are making available funds to be used particularly for research work in these days and those which are not doing so are likely to find themselves left behind in the march of educational progress.

"Only members of the faculty of instruction of the medical department were admitted to membership at first and the membership was limited to 30," told Prof. J. I. Lindsay of the English department and president of the Research Club, who gave an interesting history of the club at Saturday night's meeting.

Professor Lindsay told how the first step toward the organization of a research club at the University was taken on February 6, 1905, at the state laboratory, when a committee of three medical men, Dr. B. H. Stone, Dr. C. F. Dalton and Prof. H. L. White was appointed to formulate a constitution and by-laws for an organization to promote and encourage study and research in medical and allied sciences. The club was actually organized on February 13, 1905. Doctor Dalton is the only one of this committee now living.

The first group of officers included Dr. Lyman Allen, president; Dr. B. H. Stone, vice-president; Prof. H. L. White, secretary-treasurer. Only members of the faculty of instruction of the medical department were admitted to membership at first, and the membership was limited to 30.

Doctor Jones, Saturday evening's speaker, was the first to be elected to membership outside the medical faculty. It was specified that every member should take part in the program at least once a year.

Tobacco Experiments

At an interesting meeting held on April 15, 1912, Doctor Marvin informed the members of the club that "if one must or will use tobacco, it will be least harmful from the hookah pipe, cigarette, cigar and pipe in the order named." Some experiments were performed on a cat and a frog to show the effects of nicotine. Evidently the effects were terrifying, according to Professor Lindsay, for the records show that "only a few cigars were smoked during the evening, although a large number of men were present."

During December, 1912, it was decided that the club must have more members and they began admitting members from other colleges of the University.

The membership mounted in 1916 to 74, but the doctors began to drop out after faculty members from other colleges were admitted and the scope of the programs were broadened to include other subjects than those pertaining to medicine and health.

Wipe Them Out!

Now the last question What should be done about these defunct societies? The answer is simple wipe them out! Drive them out of existence! Make way for those activities which are concerned with worthwhile things. Only in this way can we aid in preventing the disintegration which is going on in so many colleges. If we can cut out this factor at its source we will be only fulfilling an obligation that is due to those who come after us.

A dip into the history of just one institution at the University of Vermont provides some interesting and amusing data. The variety and number of names almost deserve a lengthy historical account.

Students from various towns throughout Vermont often had enough individuals from their respective towns to form clubs such as the Castleton Academy Club, Bennington H. S. club, Montpelier Seminary Club, Peoples Academy Club, Randolph High School Club as well as many others.

Names formerly appear to have been quite connected with political questions than nowadays. Such names as Political Club, Prohibition Club, Suffrage Club, and Taft and Sherman Republican Club are indicative of the trend of thinking at that time.

How long would the Websters Club exist today, or what would the Lincolnites say to a Potter Club? One thing that would flourish would be the Debate Club. Do you suppose the students ever invited the professors to the Debate Club?

Among other suggestive organizations were found Global Me Club, Go Hang Historians, Dustmans Inc. Clothes Clean Pin Club, Smart Club, Sis-Qua Non Club, and Thirteenth Ladies

Wanted: The Four Class Constitutions

Perspiring Cynic Reporter Seeks Them in Vain from Class Presidents and Secretaries

Where are the constitutions of the four classes of the University of Vermont? In vain we have searched the campus for those useful documents. Nowhere is there a copy of a constitution.

A Cynic reporter has spoken to the presidents, secretaries and former presidents of every class in the University in determining the whereabouts of the constitutions but to no avail. We have also interviewed others concerning the matter. The president of the junior class, asked if he knew where the class constitution was replied

I'm sorry but I haven't our class constitution. I think that last year's president has it.

The president of last years class finally found deposed as follows

I think I gave the constitution to this years president

The most careful search indicates that neither man has it. Wanted: The plans of the constitution of the class of 1930.

1931 at a Loss

The president of the class of 1931 does not know where his class constitution is. "If you will call on the president of the class of 1931, two years ago, he may have it," he told the perspicacious and perspiring Cynic reporter.

Immediately the reporter phoned the former president who said that he had given the constitution to the president of the freshman class, to be used as a model for enacting a 1933 class constitution.

I'm sorry stated the president of the freshman class but I have been looking for the class constitutions my self and I haven't been able to obtain any. The freshman class hasn't drawn up it's own constitution as yet, and I have been looking for the other class constitutions to serve as models for our own."

In a last brave hope of obtaining a constitution, the still persistent reporter sought out the president of the class of 1932.

Yes, said the president, I know where you can find our constitution. If you phone the secretary of the class I am sure she has it, and you can obtain it from her."

With a new and enthusiastic hope, the reporter phoned the class secretary.

"The class constitution?" she asked. I'm awfully sorry, but I haven't the constitution. I haven't seen it, or heard anything about it."

"Thank you," said the reporter, and he hung up.

If anyone knows the whereabouts of the class constitution it would be much appreciated if he informed the Cynic. The Cynic, unfortunately, does not possess a detective agency.

COAST GUARD TO MAKE GRADUATE APPOINTMENTS

The United States Coast Guard contemplates the appointment as temporary ensigns, in July, 1930, of a class of 15 graduates, in engineering, of certain colleges. Prof. A. D. Butterfield calls attention to the fact that University of Vermont seniors are eligible to apply for this appointment. The candidate must be 21 and not over 26. He will be required to present himself in person before a board of commissioned officers of the Coast Guard, who will pass upon his general fitness and adaptability.

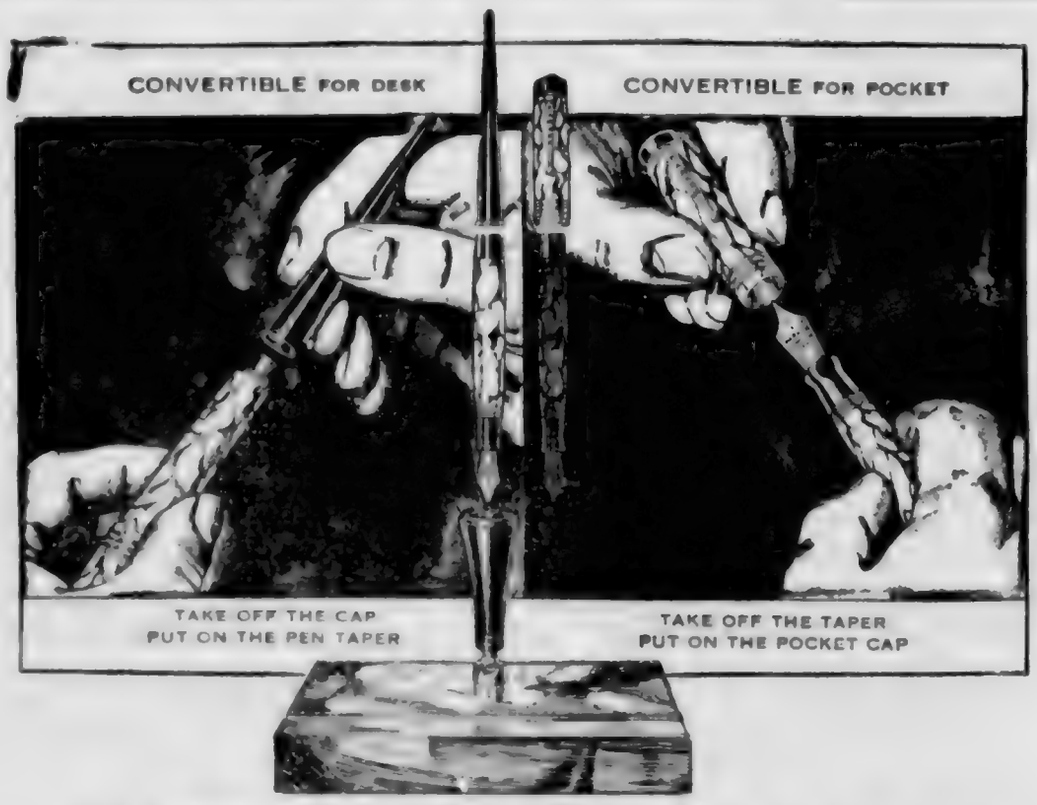
Tracy, a member of Phi Mu Delta Fraternity, was nominated from the floor upon the withdrawal of Porter Tracy was editor of the Cynic in 1928-29 and elected editor of the Ivy. Borkland also nominated from the floor, is a member of Phi Delta Theta Fraternity, and is captain of the varsity tennis team. Billings a member of Sigma Phi Fraternity, was nominated from the floor. He is a member of the Student Senate, was business manager of the Ariel. Stearns, nominated from the floor, is a member of Kappa Sigma Fraternity, and was last year managing editor of the Cynic. Lawrence, a member of Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity, was class president in his freshman year. He is a member of the Student Senate and of Boulder Society.

Women's Orations

Dorothy Gurney of Burlington was elected to give the Class History.



The Class Poet was unanimously chosen to be Janice Goodrich of Richmond.

Mabel Freeman of Morristown, Vt., was chosen to give the Ivy Oration.

Dorothy Gurney is a member of Kappa Beta Phi Fraternity, and has been especially prominent in women's athletics. Janice Goodrich, a member of Pi Beta Phi Delta Delta Fraternity, is one of the most active women in the class of 1930. She is editor-in-chief of the Knowings from the Mill, is a member of Tau Kappa Alpha, and is manager of the women's debating team. Miss Goodrich two years ago won the poetry prize in the New England Literary Contest. Mabel Freeman, a member of Kappa Alpha Theta, is president of Masque and Sandal, and is a member of Mortar Board. Her oratorical ability has also won her membership in Tau Kappa Alpha.

Herrick Macomber, president of the senior class and Boulder man, will deliver the President's Address. The author of the Boulder Oration will be named by the senior society.

A Student Union Council meeting will be held Tuesday, February 18, in the Old Mill Chapel at 1.30 p.m.

LIKE TWO PENS
for the Price of One
—a Pocket Pen for Classroom Notes, and a Desk Pen for Your Room
—Guaranteed for Life!

If you buy a Parker Pocket Duofold you now can have a Desk Set without buying a second pen. Or if you buy a Parker Duofold Desk Set you also now receive a Duofold Pocket Pen guaranteed for life. Either way, you save the price of a second pen—$5, $7 or $10, according to the model.

By adding a tapered end, you convert your Duofold Pocket Pen to a Desk Pen in 10 seconds. By removing the taper and putting on the Pocket Cap you restore it to a Pocket Duofold on leaving office or home.

Thus every owner of a Parker Pocket Pen owns half a Desk Set. Getting a Desk Base completes it. We now include pen taper free with that.

And to every buyer of a Parker Desk Set, we now give a Pocket Cap with Clip. Thus his Desk Pen is also a Pocket Pen—like 2 Pens for the price of one Set. Be sure to ask for the Pocket Cap with your Desk Set.

Parker's new streamlined Duofold Pens (and Pencils to match) set lower in the pocket than others because the clip starts at the top—not halfway down the cap. This smart, balanced shape feels "at home" in the hand—and writes with our famous 471⅝ improvement—Pressureless Touch.

VOLUME 48 | BURLINGTON, VERMONT, TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1930 | NUMBER 35

LOCAL STUDENTS PREFER VERMONT

Questionnaire Shows that Seven Out of Ten at Burlington High Plan to go to U. V. M.

200 IN BURLINGTON AND WINOOSKI CHOOSE U. V. M.

That the University of Vermont is the overwhelming choice of students in the Burlington high schools who are preparing for college, is indicated by the results of a questionnaire circulated last week among the students of the Burlington and Winooski schools by the Burlington Chamber of Commerce.

200 Would Go Here

The replies to this questionnaire indicated that 215 Burlington High School students, 69 now attending Central High School and 44 in Winooski High School plan to attend college somewhere. Out of the 215 Burlington High School students planning to go to college, the University of Vermont is the choice of 142. The same institution is the choice of 44 of the 69 planning to attend college from Central High, and 14 out of the 44 from Winooski High School.

The Burlington Business College is listed by 21 Winooski High School students as the institution of higher learning which they expect to attend. Other institutions selected by Winooski High School students are Boston University, University of Wisconsin, Hamilton, Schenectady, Trinity, Stanford University, and two are undecided between Vermont and Boston College

RECORDS OF REGISTRAR FAIL TO REVEAL EITHER ATHEISTS OR AGNOSTICS

Results Duplicate Those of Last Year's Survey; Fourteen Denominations

No atheists or agnostics are enrolled at the University, according to the records of the registrar. The same source also discloses the existence of 14 different religious denominations among the 1,200 students of the academic and medical colleges.

Almost eight hundred students indicate their religious preferences to be Protestant, 210 are Roman Catholic, 92 are enrolled as Hebrew, and two are listed as Greek Catholic. Of the Protestant denominations, the Congregational has by far the largest representation with 343 of that creed enrolled at the University. Other Protestant denominations represented are: Methodist groups, 154; Episcopal, 106; Baptist, 75; Presbyterian, 45; Unitarian, 20; Universalist, 19; Christian Scientist, 9; Community Church, 2; Dutch Reformed, 1. Nineteen who enrolled as Protestant indicated no other Protestant. About one hundred students failed to indicate any church preference at all.

The results are similar to those obtained from a like survey made last year.

PROF DESCRIBES GERMAN SCHOOLS

Carpenter Tells of Strenuous Requirements There, in International Relations Club Talk

"STUDENTS BECOME OLD PREMATURELY," HE SAYS

"So strenuous is the work in the German schools that students there become prematurely old," asserted Prof F. D. Carpenter at a meeting of the International Relations Club last Thursday. "German students who have completed a preparatory training equal to that of our high school and first year at college are intellectually superior to the average American university undergraduate," declared the speaker further, in a review, "Some Personal Reminiscences of the German University and School System."

Professor Carpenter indicated the German school system to be virtually parallel to the French and Italian. The German university, which corresponds to the American graduate school, offers only the doctor's degree. The courses offered by this institution number four: Law, medicine, theology and psychology.

There are now 23 universities in Germany, in comparison to only 15 in the pre-war period. Most of these schools are very old, dating back as far as 1409. The second largest of these universities, situated in Berlin, accommodates about 25,000 students. Turin, the smallest German university, is about the size of Vermont. A fairly large university here in the United States would be considered small in Germany. The schools are crowded with students, and positions after graduation are very hard to obtain.

The "Gymnasium"

In the "Gymnasium," which corresponds to our college in relation to educational position, two languages, Latin and Greek, are required through the entire course, which lasts for six or seven years. The schools in Germany proper have separate sections for women and men.

The examination in the gymnasium, which must be passed at the completion of the course, averages one hour orally in the major subject and three-fourths of an hour in each of the minor subjects. There is no formal graduation; but instead credit is given at the completion of the course, so that entrance to the universities can be secured. A student is not compelled to attend lectures and may go to class whenever he wishes; also, these courses are not paid for in full, but only for the number of attended hours.

When a student attends class he brings a small blank book which he hands to a student selected by the professor because of high scholastic rating, who sits before the door. This student, at the close of the lecture, gives the professor all the books, which are then stamped to record the number of times the student attended class and also to determine the salary of the professor, which is based upon the number of students he has.

Fraternities Barred

German students have some outside activities, but such organizations as we have are prohibited because of a state law against fraternities, which prevents those who do join, from holding a government position after graduation.

The whole aim of the German school system is to turn out scholars who have the qualities for original research work. The schools attempt to get the students to think for themselves.

Their sports are limited, because a student is less able to keep up with the strenuous school work if he becomes very active in sports; nevertheless, today, individual interest in sports is growing and any student taking the state examinations must show that three semesters of his work were partly utilized in sports.

The general make-up of the body of students that now attend German universities is very much different from that of the pre-war period. Many who should not be in the universities, and who would not have been before the World War, are now attending them and many of the professors bitterly regret this situation because they

Students Denounce Military Training in the Universities

Conference of New England Colleges Particularly Attacks Compulsory Element of R. O. T. C. Training in First Resolution Ever Adopted on Militarism in Education

STUDENTS OF FIFTEEN COLLEGES VOTE 99-8

Northfield, Mass., Feb. 16 (Special to the Cynic).—A resolution roundly attacking military training and denouncing the compulsory feature found in many of the universities of the United States was adopted here today by the New England Student Conference, concluding its annual three-day session. Fifteen New England colleges voted in favor of the resolution by a vote of 99 to 8. The action is the first of the sort ever taken in New England.

The resolution in full follows:

"We, as a Student Conference assembled at Northfield, Mass., on February 16, 1930, believe that compulsory military training in the universities, colleges and high schools of the United States is to be condemned on three grounds:

1. It violates the moral freedom of the individual in case he is a conscientious objector in the matter of bearing arms.

2. Military discipline is not conducive to the inquiring and critical attitude of modern education.

3. It is not in harmony with the present world situations in which peace has become the guiding aspiration of humanity.

Therefore, BE IT RESOLVED, That we are opposed to compulsory military training in the universities, colleges, and high schools, of the United States."

Outgrowth of MacIntosh Case

The consideration of the compulsory military training problem, grew out of the implications involved in the MacIntosh citizenship case, which was the initial issue discussed by the conference.

The first event of the conference was the presentation of the legal and moral aspects of the MacIntosh citizenship case on Friday evening, February 14. Jerome Davis, professor of sociology at Yale Divinity School, discussed the moral implications of the question. James T. Cashman, representative of the National Security League, stated the legal technicalities involved. Both men presented their views clearly and sincerely, arousing considerable interest among the students. Actual student discussion took place the following morning.

It will be remembered that Douglas Clyde MacIntosh, Dwight professor of Theology at Yale University was denied citizenship by the courts because he would not promise to bear arms in a war which he considered to be morally unjust. Dr. MacIntosh believes that an individual should hold the will of God above that of the state. He has appealed the decision to the higher courts.

On Saturday evening, Dr. C. F. Andrews, English missionary in India, outlined the high points of man's development from the brute. He emphasized especially the practical application of non-resistance, or soul-force, as he called it, as more powerful than violence in settling disputes of every nature.

Dr. Andrews, during the past thirty years of missionary service in the East, has won the confidence and affection of the Indian people by his own personal qualities. To illustrate the affections of soul-force, he pointed to the personalities of the great Eastern philosophers: Buddha, Jesus, Tagore, and Ghandi.

Vermont was represented at the conference by four students, each class sending one delegate.

ANNUAL CO-ED WINTER CARNIVAL ELIMINATES SPIRIT OF COMPETITION

Women Sponsor Play Day Saturday for Sport Alone Without Individual or Class Rivalry

The Women's Annual Winter Carnival, featured this year as a real Play Day with "Sport for Sport's Sake" as a slogan, took place Saturday afternoon, on back campus, beginning at 2:30 and continuing until 4.00. Christie McLeod, '31, was chairman of the carnival committee which planned the program of interest to everyone. The other members of the committee were in charge of the following events: Dorothy Nash, '31, snowshoeing; Elizabeth Mandigo, '32, skiing; Lillian Mount, '32, skating; and Katherine Rauh, '32, obstacle races and publicity.

The girls present were divided into four teams. The captains were Flora Remillard, '31, Red; Elsie Waters, '30, Green; Dorothy Nash, '31, Yellow; and Lillian Mount, '32, Blue. In this way the new feature of a real play day for winter carnival was introduced, in contrast to the interclass and individualistic competition characteristic of previous years. "Sport for Sport's Sake" was not only the slogan but the motive of the fun.

After each team had practiced cheers everyone gathered around the skating rink where the program started off with a couple race in three heats, in which Lillian Mount, '32, and Antoinette Hubbard, '33, won first place for the Blues against Alice Gay and Helen Don Leavy, '31, of the Red team. Continuing with a long-distance race, in three heats, Lillian Mount, '32, Blue, came out first with Martha Whitlock, '33, Green, a close second. A potato race was the first of the skiing events. This was won by Juliette Marston, '33, Green, followed by Caroline Taft, '33, Red. In the fifty-yard dash, Rhoena Barnes, '33, Red, came out first, followed by Bertha Safford, '31, Blue. Snowshoeing events started out with a fifty-yard dash which was won by Caroline McGinnis, '31, Blue; Dorothy Nash, '31, Yellow, came in second. The program continued with the relay race in which the Blues won first place, and Greens second; and the tug-of-war in which the Reds and Blues were victorious over the Green and Yellow teams. The obstacle race was won by the Reds with the Yellows second. The program concluded with the singing of Vermont songs, led by Estabel Perelman, '30, around the bonfire after which it was announced that the Blue team was the winner, having a total score of thirty three points. The Reds came second with sixteen points; the Greens and Yellows having twelve and eight points, respectively. Each member of the Blue team was awarded a blue ribbon with "Winter Carnival, 1930" printed on it.

Christie McLeod, '31, the chairman of the carnival, is a member of Sigma Gamma fraternity, chairman of the hiking committee, a member of W. A. A. Council and has been a member of varsity baseball and class teams.

The judges for the contests were the Misses Alice Blanchard, Constance Brown, and Charlotte DeVolt, all members of the University faculty.

CYNIC BOARD ENDORSES NEW PLAN OF ELECTION

Passed by an overwhelming majority of the Cynic Board, the new plan of staff elections, as outlined in the issue of the Cynic of February 11, has already gone into effect.

Data presented at a recent meeting of the Cynic Board showed no impracticalities in the scheme. The Board also adopted a series of regulations proposed by the editor for guidance in the apportioning of credits, and provided for the semi-weekly publication of credits earned by each reporter in the last previous issue. The plan goes into effect as of February 7, 1930.

Physicians, brought from an adjoining room, resorted to the use of adrenalin without avail.

Kake Walk Three Days Away—And Again We Reminisce of Early Days

Eight Fraternities will Compete to Enter Stunts in 1930 Kake Walk, Winter Classic which Dates From 1893 and has Seen a Strange and Varied History

Eight fraternities will compete [illegible] night for the privilege of [illegible] stunts in the Kake Walk the coming night and Saturday. The fraternities are: Lambda Iota, Sigma Delta Psi, Phi Delta Theta, Kappa Sigma, Sigma Nu, Phi Mu Delta and Alpha Delta.

With Kake Walk only three days away, grads once more begin to reminisce, and the Cynic reprints, for the benefit of those who have never heard the tale and for the delight of such as read it year after year with increasing gusto, the story of Kake Walk at Vermont.

The First Kake Walk

The first Kake Walk came in the winter of 1893-94. Dr. E. G. Randall, writing in the Cynic of March 16, 1894, tells how "F. T. Sharp, after a conference with a few of us in the south College, wrote a poster inviting all those who might be interested to partake in a Kake Walk to be held in the old 'drill hall' under the chapel the next evening." This drill hall has since been divided into rooms now occupied by the college of the department of education and the rooms adjoining. "The nature of the festivity was left to the ingenuity of the participants and the sponge with which all the classes entered into the affair augered well for the perpetuity as a college custom.

"Very little was done in the way of preparation of the hall. Lanterns and lamps were produced to help out the illumination. A good cake, notwithstanding that it was an issue of the 'hash house' was provided. To quote from the '95 Ariel:

"Three squeaking fiddles, a melodeon and a trombone of brasse furnished the toon. The mery was the more as they played, and joyous was the daunce as any mayde.'

"There were couples from the high-born of military glory to the most barbarism of the South Sea Islands. There were high tinted but manly ballet maids howbeit of masculine proportions, clowns and gypsies. Hilarity was the order of the day and everybody did stunts. The Kake Walk itself was the concluding event. A procession of couples marched around the hall several times and then each couple separately doing their grotesque best. There is no recollection of the cake being won and it is believed that the whole company fell upon it and devoured it."

'Laborate 'Freshments

Kake Walk was first advertised as a minstrel show but it resembled vaudeville more. One of the posters (this was not for a public exhibition) read: "Dere will be a Kake Walk in de Armory T'Night. Ebery-body-kum. It won't kost you nuffin'. 'Laborate 'Freshments will be Serb Durin' de Ebenin'." The posters have always had darky characteristics and catchwords such as "Koonville," "Coonlet Quartette," together with darky pictures. The reason for this custom was the popularity, at the time the entertainment originated of coon songs, coon costumes, and, in fact, coon everything.

Students have noted four stages in the evolution of Kake Walk. The first, the impromptu stage, when it was a private affair. The second, in the armory days; the third, when the fraternities began putting on stunts, which, however, were staged with very little preparation; and the fourth, the present era of careful preparation, and elaborate execution.

Walkin' Popular

For many years the actual Walkin' for' de Kake was the chief event of the evening, and for this the best prize was awarded. There would be a parade of all participants in the night's performance, and a stunt put on by any group of men, who happened to want to do it. A typical prize-winning stunt was "Varsity vs. Co-eds," a mock football battle between the men and the women. The men's team wore the regular football suits, the co-ed team wore huge hats and flowing veils and had wide lace flounces on the bottoms of the trousers. Between plays they lifted the great veils and "powdered" their noses with whiskbrooms dipped in a conveniently placed bucket of cornstarch. The University women, who were present in the armory, were so indignant that they left, many of them weeping copiously.

PADDLES

A tempest in a teapot has been stirred up by those of our correspondents who have variously been taking to task and defending the honor society of the sophomore class, the organization which, in an open letter, styled itself "the omnipotent and deadly Gold Key."

No longer, however, is Gold Key either omnipotent or deadly. Its true status today, as described by one of our correspondents, is that of an honorary society. "Gold Key exists in contemplation of, and under the control of, Boulder, . . . and it is heartily disgusted with the attitude all the classes have shown toward it this year."

With the unappreciated Gold Key man we sympathize. But it is laughable to see Gold Key men trying to make up for loss of their prestige by reveraging themselves on the freshmen.

The freshman rules, which Gold Key is once more to begin to enforce and the penalty of whose violation will no doubt be the traditional paddling, is but a symptom of that ancient disease, collegiatism.

Close to the heart of the American is the collegian, an unnatural creature found everywhere but in colleges. It is an essential part of the collegian that he come from an atmosphere of freshman caps, interclass sophomores and a hatter class rivalry.

We confess that we have never been able to understand just why a group of upperclassmen should see fit to inflict corporal punishment on freshmen because of a violation of a set of rules arbitrarily laid down for them by those who pretend to be their superiors. We confess that we have never been able to discern the educational value of a cap of green and gold or the favorable effect on the molding of character of the denial of the right to walk on a given street or to pass through a certain door.

We admit that to wear the freshman cap, to abstain from walking on the north side of College Street and not to enter the Old Mill through its western portals is traditional for freshmen at Vermont. But we submit that these traditions have in them less beauty than old age. Grown decrepit with age, the great body of nonsensical and worthless freshman rules disappeared from this campus some two years ago. We have yet to discover the acclimation to Vermont afforded by the College Street rule, or the feeling of fellowship created by the wearing of the freshman cap which distinguishes these few remaining rules or anything but severity from those that have gone.

But if freshman rules be the outgrowth of collegiatism then the means used for enforcing them can be nothing but rowdyism. We do not consider it prowess in Gold Key to paddle offending freshmen. We consider it sadistic pleasure in inflicting pain upon another while at the same time manifesting a sophomoric assertion of power.

As a sample of how excess energy is expelled in some other colleges, we offer this week-end dispatch for the perusal of our readers.

"Some 800 Ohio College students went to their rooms early this morning after several hours of riotous celebration in the course of which they broke the doors off the city jail and forced police to accept a peace which was considerably less than a victory.

"At least half the students were registered as police court defendants that found having been issued by jurors who had failed in efforts to incarcerate them in the jail and in the back room of a theater.

"The students had stormed a theater in celebrating a basketball victory over Akron College. Some of them said that the manager had promised three free shows on occasions of victory during the school term, but balked down when told that one of the performances was wanted last night."

The students of Akron College, it seems to us, acted like so many children in adopting the methods they used to vent their spleen on one who had displeased them. The methods of Gold Key, in penalizing with corporal punishment those who have displeased it, seem to us a product of the same sort.

Ten Timely Topics

TARA TANTARA TEENO

When the Vermont Glee Club goes to Springfield when thirty men step out on the stage with green and gold ribbons stretched across their bosoms, it almost reminds us of what has happened in the past few years. From an organization bearing such a shady reputation that one of our neighboring cities arranged a concert provided the Glee Club should not stay in town over night, it has grown to be a worthy representative of Vermont in intercollegiate competition. How much Vermont owes to that quiet and little known man Prof. Howard G. Bennett is amply illustrated by this as by other musical successes. The Choir, the annual operas and the Lenten and Christmas concerts speak for themselves, and in so doing they speak volumes for the man who has made them possible. Hats off to Professor Bennett, and three rousing cheers for the plucky Glee Club that for the third year will do its best for Vermont in spite of adversity.

Thoughtful consideration and intense cogitation has evolved this plan. Why not install a subway running through trains from North College to South? Football men in place of spring trainees would act as guards to hold back the crowd and insure equal right of transportation for each and every student. This would greatly simplify the traffic problem at such conversational centers as the Coffee Corner and the Old Chapel.

The next few weeks will see two orgies of fraternity activity. Kake Walk and sorority rushing. Sometimes we wonder why college doesn't close up altogether except when fraternities are taking a vacation.

I wonder how many students are friends with their instructors? Or how many regard them as taskmasters to be artfully dodged when one is on the street the day before an hour quiz? And when they are friends, is the instructor expected to "give them a break" as the famous phrase of last year's discussion put it, or is he regarded rather as a partner in the enterprise of learning, a partner who has climbed the path a little ahead, and now extends a hand to help the student over the rough spots? In the traditional quiz, recitation and examination system, it is certainly not the latter aspect which is emphasized in the undergraduate mind.

Just the same, nine times out of ten the instructor is your friend if you'll only give him a break. And no man is more of a friend to any student than Professor Swift, after you give him a break and forget that he is the assistant dean. It is only too bad that more students cannot know him as a man, and not as the nemesis of delinquents.

Vermont, situated within the borders of old New England, is steeped with her traditions. To Vermonters then, a book which portrays the hopes, the fears, the prejudices of New England, a book which looks into the heart of the people who made their traditions, cannot fail to be of interest. Such a book is Daniel Chase's "Hardy Rye," which came out some three or four years ago, and which the Book-a-Week Club recommends.

We can't help feeling that in imitating the Cynic's new headline policy the Free Press has sacrificed that conservatism of makeup which has been one of its strongest points. It has been a rest and a relief to read it. But perhaps we should not blame the Cynic for that; the change was in the air, and the Cynic merely caught it a week or two in advance of the Free Press, the Burlington Daily News, and the New York Herald-Tribune.

We wonder just what would happen if the chapel speaker should some day make his appearance in the Old Chapel instead of the new? We fear it would be a college tragedy—he would die of shock at the size of his audience, while they would die of unexpected exposure! Truly, there is no more democratic and representative institution at Vermont than the Old Mill Chapel.

Ten years ago, says a recent issue of the Free Press, Middlebury College received another bequest, the proceeds to be devoted to athletics. That is another example of why colleges are now run by athletics. If this overemphasis is to be corrected, the money giving public must be educated. Our propaganda must be "Money, not for athletics, but for true education." Until then the great American student will continue to go to college to be gridiron fodder—and literally, in some colleges.

The recent comments in the Cynic, upon successful athletics leads one to inquire what their value is. Does it not lie in the game well played, rather than in the unbeaten team backed by shouting mobs? If this be the case, endowed athletics are unnecessary. High salaried coaches, and expensive equipment, grinding out victory at any price, defeat the purpose of athletics. Sport and finance should be divorced, once and for all.

Campus Comment

To the Editor of the Cynic:

T. C. H. has looked on one side of the past policy of the Athletic Council. He forgets that there are two other sides: my side and the right side.

The fact that he presents "a literal interpretation of a reporter" does not prove anything detrimental to the Council. The fact that he waves the red flag of our hide-bound traditional "puritanical" as he labels it—proves even less. I would wish that those who work with the destruction crew would weigh and reflect on their satirical but no doubt well-meant criticism of policies wholly justifiable. Too many are there at the present time who "bushwack around the edges of the inscrutable," pontificate about the policies of the Athletic Council in the realm of the mind as if "they had ultimate truth by the tail."

The matter boils down to this: Why did the Council pursue that policy? Here I shall hand the reins to the editor of the Alumni Weekly; perhaps T. C. H. may get some information which may lessen his confidence in his "Concise declaration of the opinion of the whole student body."

"The situation has not been the result of rashness or thoughtlessness on the part of the schedule makers—primarily the graduate manager, whose work is ratified by the Athletic Council. . . . Things have happened as they have largely because of necessity. . . . It takes a lot of money to run football. . . . Well, anyhow, what we are getting at is that the athletic association has been down in a hole financially and the only rope it could find by which to lift itself out was those big games. Nobody liked those games after it was realized that Vermont teams no longer were equal to them but the association had to save itself in some way and so grabbed the rope. But now the association has a handhold on the rim of the well, and to some extent can let go of the rope which means that schedules will be lighter."

Have I made it clear? Let us ever realize that our college is as strong as its weakest link. If the Athletic Council has been the weakest—as T. C. H. puts it—what should we do—trample on it more? despise and calumniate it? Nay, rather if a rational explanation can be given or if we have faith enough in them—resolve, we should that that link shall not be weakened a whit more, at least not by any act of ours without a plenary exercise of our critical judgment. Too often is it the practice today of soliciting the attention of the public to the belief that not a thing should happen without its nose being brought very close to the scene of action. All practice more true than judicious; as long as the dear public is paying the cost of higher education—some will doubt whether the investment will bring in the shekels.

To the Editor of the Cynic:

Lest there be any false impression, the band wishes to state that it was not late to the Lowell Tech. game. A rehearsal for the broadcast was to be held in the radio shack and the men all voted to play for the game after the rehearsal, although no definite arrangements had been made as many of them were without basketball tickets. With the cooperation of Babe Abell the band was admitted to the game at the gym as the game was starting. During the half the band drew great cheers and applause from the crowd when it outdid itself in the "Three Babes." As long as the time would permit the band played college songs, marches, and popular airs with more than the usual pep. The band contributed materially to the cheering in the gym, and also in the Springfield game as it always does.

This loyal spirit of the band as a whole and of each member is something to be praised. At such a busy time for the band to turn out as well together is certainly rather exemplary conduct which could well be more universally followed. For some time the band has been responsible for a great deal of added pep in the college games not only by its playing but also by its cheering. "Joe" Lechnyr is a busy man but he is always ready to play for these college games though often as on Thursday night, he has a dance engagement later in the evening.

There might have been a different story to tell had Bernstein, fast offensive player, been present and had Captain Halligan played throughout the entire game. Bernstein was absent due to a confining illness, but, however, may be in condition for Tuesday night's fray with Middlebury. The final score stood 39 to 22 against Vermont.

Tonight the Vermont basketball quintet will be at Middlebury to meet the strong Blue and White five in their first encounter of the season. Middlebury has had a number of setbacks this season and few victories. There is, however, no prediction for Vermont, for the outcomes of all the previous games have generalized the sentiment and therefore the results of tonight's fray is doubtful.

More Eliminated In Frat Tourney

First Round of Basketball Games Completed—Second Set of Contests Stars Next Week

Several more teams were eliminated in games Saturday afternoon which marked the end of the first round of the Interfraternity Basketball Tournament. Until Kake Walk is over no more games will be played. A week from tomorrow, February 26, Phi Delta again takes up the battle by tackling Sigma Alpha Epsilon in League I. As a result of winning games in the first round of the tourney in League I, Kappa Sigma, Tau Epsilon Phi and Phi Delta Theta are allowed to continue the competition while Sigma Nu, Alpha Tau Omega, the Independents and Phi Sigma Delta will strive for leadership in League II.

In one of the biggest upsets of the current Interfraternity Basketball Tournament the fast Phi Delt team eliminated the Delta Psis, last year's interfraternity champions, by the score of 26 to 19, in the gym Friday night.

The second half was characterized by better basketball on both sides with the Delta Psis managing to cut down the Phi Delt's margin of victory to seven points. The main reasons for the Delta Psi's defeat were their uncertain passing and their failure to cash in on their shots from the free throw line. The star performer for the Phi Delts was Hawley who tossed the ball through the hoop from all parts of the floor for 17 points. Parks and Talbert were the shining lights for the losers with six points each.

Sigma Nu defeated Sigma Phi Saturday afternoon by the score of 20 to 4 in a slow game featured mainly by rough play. Grant starred for the losers and McGowan and Buzzell for the winners. Sigma Nu thus enters into the second round and tackles the A. T. O. team next Tuesday.

The Independents won their game 2 to 0 by default of the Owls.

The feature game of Saturday afternoon was the Faculty versus Phi Sigma Delta. The Faculty uncorked a strong defense but were defeated by the score of 24-13.

Dinniman and Fienberg were the stellar performers for Phi Sigma Delta and Campbell and Leonard for the Profs.

PHYZ ED NOTES

Saturday afternoon saw one of the greatest events of the college year when the "profs" emerged from behind their desks and waged active warfare upon the student body. This attempted slaughter took place in the gym in the form of a basketball game with Phi Sigma Delta.

The faculty team was composed of a galaxy of would-be basketball players drawn from every department of the College save the Home Ec. The Germans were in the preponderance, weightily speaking, with Carlson and Carpenter in the starting line-up. Nevertheless, the signals were called in English, the code word being, "defense."

A running account of the game is as follows: Smith tapped to "Blitzer" Carpenter who lost the ball to the opposition. "Defense," roared the burly Professor Smith. And defense it was—an airtight defense that no simple student could pass. The ball was snapped to "Murphy" Fineberg, who put a prayer on the ball and dropped it through the net for two points.

The ball bounded hither and thither, and yon for a space, occasionally bounding into the basket to roll up eight points against the profs. Then "Charley" Leonard countered with a neat basket from the floor. Now the profs could not be stopped and rolled up the immense score of six points. Between times, however, their rivals had plunged through for a total of 14. The profs could not solve this, and it looked as if they would flunk out at mid-years, i.e., half time.

At the half "Peter Pan" Gershoy floated in to replace Carlson. Other substitutes for the prof team were, Hartwell, Smith and Sears.

During the last half the game was rough and ready, mostly rough. Post called a foul on "Bunny" Prentice for cribbing from the sidelines, but this

Mahoney Stars for Green and Gold Five—Return Game at Hanover Tonight

Dispelling the unlucky thirteenth theory, Coach Howard Prentice's yearlings defeated the strong Clark School five of Hanover Thursday by the score of 25 to 20 in a game featured by the sensational shooting of Mahoney, ex-Cathedral High star who was high scorer of the evening with a total of nine points. The Kittens opened up the game with a tally by Mahoney who was continually under the opponent's basket. Soon the passing of Captain Grant's men began to take effect upon their heavier opponents who found the frosh defense impregnable. A listless period ensued with the half ending with the score 14 to 5 to the credit of the frosh. The closing periods of the game found the Hanover youths sinking baskets from all angles. Funston's height at center began to show to advantage and the game ended with the frosh holding a five-point lead.

Tonight, the frosh team open their three-day invasion of foreign territory when they meet the Clark School five in a return game at Hanover, N. H., which promises to be a thriller as

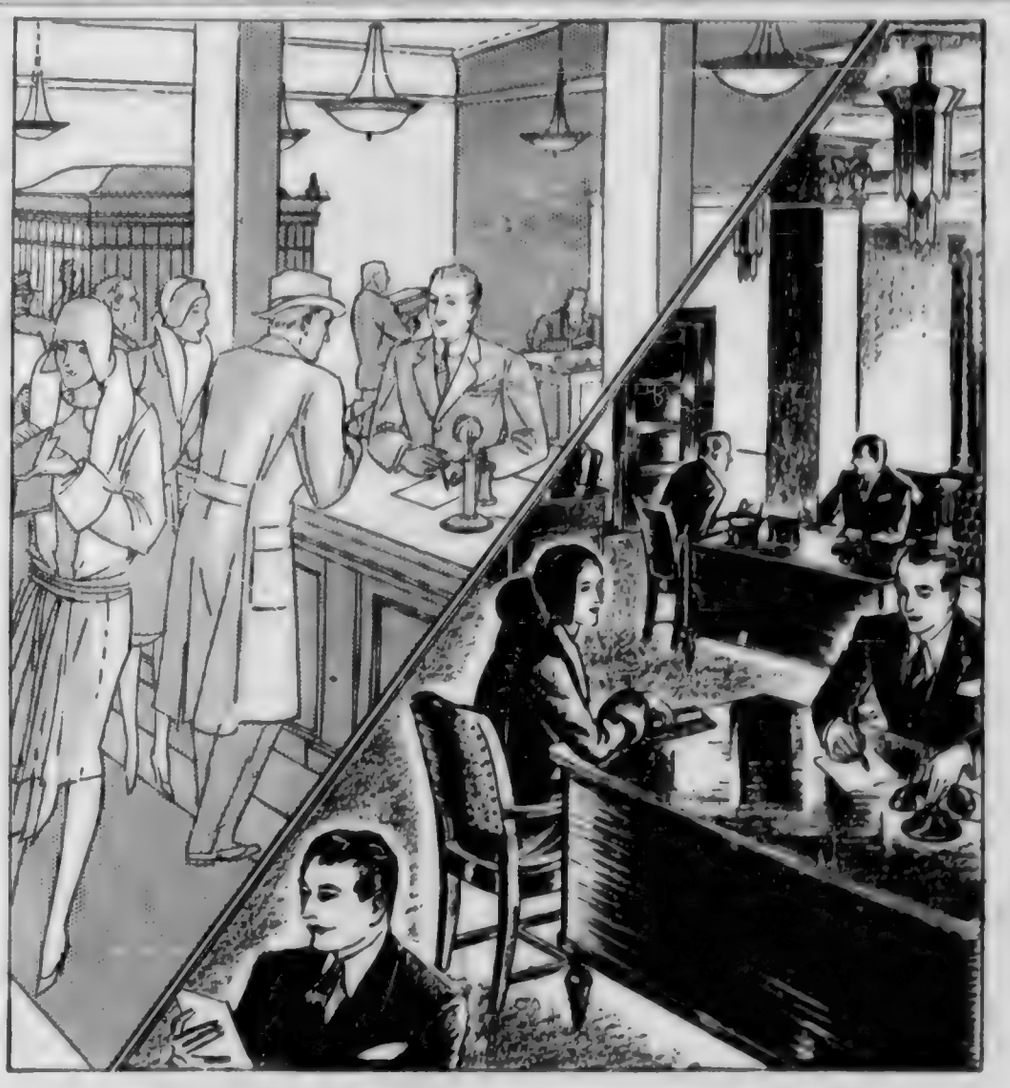
ST. LAWRENCE TO BE CATS NEXT OPPONENT

Last Saturday at Middlebury the powerful Midd team defeated the Vermont sextet in hockey by a 4 to 1 score. The Vermonters were handicapped by the sickness of a star performer, Mercier, who, although he played a part of the game, was unable to display his customary speed and lightning shots.



The Middlebury team was led by "Red" Melbye, former Wellesley Hills and Williston Academy Seminary, who scored all of his team's goals and provided the whole offensive attack. He slammed the puck past "Rob" Hendricks twice before the Catamount line started to function and scored again early in the second period.

"Dick" Swain, the freshman defense star who has been teaming well with Captain Segal, got away with one of his famous solo dashes and went the length of the ice to give the Vermonters their only goal of the contest.

Mekala, Blue and White wing, succeeded in scoring the final tally in the last period to put the home team on the long end of the score.

This week will see the completion of this season's hockey schedule. Tomorrow the St Lawrence sextet will be here to engage in battle and Friday the Vermonters will go to play Union in the last game of the season.

Removing mental barriers

In the Bell Telephone System men are constantly studying new ways to make the customer's dealings with the company easy and pleasant. The new "counterless" idea, now being introduced in the telephone company's business offices, is a case in point.

Here the customer is placed at once on a friendly personal basis with the company representative. He is invited to sit down comfortably and discuss his business. Certainly more satisfactory than standing at a counter.

This single instance represents a point of view which telephone men think is important. Telephone service calls for engineering skill and more—it needs human understanding.

"Who could pass your course?" interpreted the curly-headed student, who majored in frosh math.

But all to no avail. The final score was 24 to 13 and the profs had flunked out cold.

Although there is logic to my picking Dykes the choice is extremely critical. Campbell is big and should be able to steer his team to victory. Carlson mops in on his aggressiveness and pretzel shots. Although it is unusual for students to participate the meetings of the John Dewey Club the rule of faculty speakers will be broken this evening when Franklin Sears and George Nelson address the philosophy psychology club. The plan of student speakers which begins at this meeting will be continued by the club throughout the semester. Philosophy and psychology are the fields from which speakers may draw their subject matter.

Both Sears and Nelson are well known on the campus. Both are varsity debaters, and Nelson has been active in journalistic and literary work.

From Germany comes the solution of the mystery of a war veteran's disappearance. An iron cross was found in the stomach of an 80-pound sturgeon caught in the Rhine. The veteran's name was on it. He disappeared seven years ago.

On these shores some time ago an angler caught a huge codfish. Its stomach was greatly dilated and when opened revealed a large enameled sign on which was printed, "Barber Shop."

CAT'S MEOW

SPORTING EDITOR—

Perhaps we can straighten out a couple of interested individuals regarding a controversy in Campus Comment on why Vermont football teams have been playing so called big foot ball.

One expresses aversion to the situation as it has existed for the past few years and the other attempts to give an explanation of what he thinks has been a necessity.

There may have been a cause for playing strong teams in order to make money. But the facts have reached us that the effort has lost a series of serious annual football games which has finally convinced the Athletic Council that the football is entirely unsuccessful.

Nineteen Thirty is the transitional year, and for 1931, as we brought out a few weeks ago, a schedule has been arranged in which class A teams are conspicuous by their absence.

A little agitation and actual figures (which certainly do not lie) have straightened the matter out.

One of our arguers will ask how deficits can be avoided without large guarantees, when deficits occurred with large guarantees.

Let's not forget gate receipts at home games. A winning team is certain to draw crowds. Home gate is the outstanding phenomenon of modern football. Why not get a taste at Vermont?

Easier schedules, good coaches, winning teams, more home games, larger gate receipts, and profit.

Hereafter the track and cross-country managership will be separated. The assistant track manager who is second in elections will become cross-country manager. The system is similar to that used in other sports.

Baseball and track start in the cage and gym on Monday. The annual "crack-of-the-bat" and "clatter-of-the-soles" will be heard for the rest of the year.

Only batter candidates will be in the cage Monday and in a week or so the rest of the squad will be out. In fact, several veterans have been seen warming up daily for the past couple of weeks.

"Doc" Newton will handle the pitchers until the southern trip. After that he will spend most of his time with the junior varsity.

With all the veterans from last year back in school, and eligible, the outlook is bright.

Two weeks until the fraternity relays, which will be concluded with the frat track meet.

With the coming of spring, the Harvard Socialists are again active. They are training special stump speakers in the style that will enable them to shout down all objectors and even to outtalk the Boston police.

Hockey Team Meets Union Sway in Final Game This Afternoon—Players Are Hopeful

LOSE TO MIDDLEBURY BY 6-0 SCORE MONDAY

[illegible] home rink. This will be the end of [illegible] Vermont hockey team has enjoyed for [illegible]

[illegible] Before a few hockey enthusiasts [illegible] the Blue and White sextet from Middlebury collected another [illegible] Catamounts Monday afternoon in a mild uninteresting game to the wide margin of 6 to 0. Nelson scored the first goal for Middlebury in the early part of the first period when he grabbed the puck at his own defense, passed to Makela who circled the Vermont defense, and then Nelson took the return and batted it past Hendrick. U. V. M. goalie. Vermont tried to retaliate but its first passes were intercepted by the Blue and White forward line which was checking back to perfection. Toward the latter part of the opening stanza the Blue and White forward men, who were skating like demons, teamed up for their second goal. Nelson, stealing the disc at center ice, zigzagged his way through the Green and Gold forward line, picked up the red-haired Melbye at defense, and shot a bullet forehand at the harassed goalie, who came out of his citadel and flung it aside but Melbye, at the mouth of the cage, had Hendrick at his mercy and slammed the puck through the strings for the prettiest goal of the afternoon. Captain Segal and his mates were trying to pierce the impregnable Midd defense when the gong sounded ending the period.

The second period opened up with Captain Segal and Swain getting through the Blue and White defense and narrowly missing a goal. Middlebury, astounded at Vermont's prosperity, teamed up for two more goals in rapid fire order. Melbye, in a lone dash down the rink, stick-handled his way through the whole Catamount team and poked the puck home for the third counter. Makela, not to be outdone by his team mate, let go a knee-high shot which Hendrick found impossible to stop. This sally closed the second frame.

The Vermont team was outclassed in every department. Its teamplay was ragged and without "Frenchy" Mercier, the forward line lacked cohesion and speed. Quite a reversal of form for the team which defeated the Norwich Cadets.

The third period opened with the Green and Gold making determined rushes down the ice but lack succumbed against the valiant Catamounts and Middlebury quickly scored two more goals on individual efforts by Makela and Nelson, making the score 6 to 0. The period ended with the Midd coach sending in all his substitutes.

The line-ups:

VERMONT	MIDDLEBURY
Howard, l.w.	r.w., Makela
Marvin, c.	c., Nelson
Palmer, r.w.	l.w., Melbye
Wood, r.w.	l.w., McLeod
	l.w., Yomans
Segal, l.d.	r.d., Crocker
Collins, l.d.
Swain, r.d.	l.d., Foote
Hendrick, g.	g., Webster

Score: Middlebury 6, Vermont 0.

Goals: First period: Middlebury, Nelson (pass from Makela); Melbye (unassisted). Second period: Middlebury, Melbye (unassisted); Makela (pass from Nelson). Third period: Middlebury, Makela (unassisted); Nelson (unassisted). Penalties: Nelson, Melbye, Swain, Segal. Referee: Winchenbach.

VERMONT DELEGATES WILL ATTEND MODEL ASSEMBLY OF LEAGUE

Yale Meeting will Discuss Problems of Arbitration and Security at Annual Parley

Delegates of the University of Vermont will be in attendance at the annual Model Assembly of the League of Nations, which this year will be held at Yale University. Arbitration and security will be the chief topics of discussion.

Timely Topics

"Discussion of the topics," writes the director of the league, "will be particularly timely in 1930, as there is now a great deal of agitation for a revision of the Covenant along these lines. It has been widely felt, by both statesmen and members of the general public, that great steps towards the clarification of ideas about peace have been taken with the formulation of the principles of the Geneva Protocol of 1924 and the passage of the Briand-Kellogg Pact. The former, though accepted by very many states, did not become international law owing to its failure to win universal approval within the league, but the motives which inspired it have since then been continually seeking embodiment in some similar but more acceptable form. The Peace Pact, though accepted universally, was an expression of intention and good will, without any machinery to make its aspirations effective. What is now in the air, and has been since the drafting of the 'General Act' by the Third Committee of the Assembly in 1928, is a document which will combine the ideas of these two: and the latest discussion is concentrating on achieving this by a revision of the Covenant, so that, side by side with disarmament achieved by agreement in conference, there may be in the charter of the league itself full machinery for the outlawry of war by the peaceful settlement of all disputes, and for the security of nations abiding by such obligations of peace.

"It is towards this idea that study will be directed for the morning and afternoon discussions of the 1930 Assembly. Within a very short time the full projected revision of the Covenant will be sent out to all colleges with a brief summary of the principles at stake in each amendment and of the leading arguments likely to be brought up pro and con. And there will be a statement of the particular articles of the revised Covenant which will be singled out for a decision by vote in the Model Assembly and will be the occasion for a discussion of all the wider principles involved."

Program

The assembly will open with a dance the evening of Friday, April [illegible]. The rest of the program follows:

Saturday, April 26

9:45 a.m. Meetings opened by chairmen of the Nine Emeles Committees.

10:00 a.m. Address of Welcome by President Angell of Yale, temporary president of the Advisory Council for the assembly.

Two To Speak In Home Meet

Lisman and Nelson Alone Will Face M. A. C. Thursday in First Home Debate

NELSON TAKES STAND; LISMAN CROSS-EXAMINES

Once again Louis Lisman and George Nelson will combine to uphold Vermont's forensic prestige when they face off against M. A. C. Thursday night in the first home debate of the year. Vermont will argue for world disarmament.

Lisman and Nelson first debated together without any other team mates when as 1st freshman debating team of the class of '31, they soundly trounced the sophomores two and a half years ago and gained the Bailey cup. They also debated together last year when, united as partners they met the cowboys of Howard Payne College in the most unusual debate ever to be staged at Vermont. Since early in their freshman year the two have participated in almost every varsity encounter with Franklin Sears, Tau Kappa Alpha president, as team mate. Illness prevents him from debating Thursday.

Will Use Oregon Plan

The debaters expect to use the Oregon style of debate, and as Coach M. D. Peaslee has it planned now Nelson will open for Vermont to present the constructive case. For two or three minutes he will take the witness stand to submit to a barrage of questions from Manley of M. A. C. who will be on the team which defeated Vermont at Amherst last week. Nelson had had much experience on the witness stand in Oregon debates and expects to repeat the success he had against Baker College in November encounter last year.

Lisman who has cross-examined consistently for Vermont in the past will in turn cross examine the constructive speaker for M. A. C. and at the close of the speech of rebuttal and then the respond for Vermont. Each side will get exactly an hour and a quarter. It is called for eight o'clock in the old Mill Chapel.

Carl Sandburg will Appear in Gymnasium Tonight in Final Lecture with Unique Program

[illegible] of the foremost figures in American literature will appear at the Gymnasium tonight in the last and most unusual lecture of the entertainment series when Carl Sandburg comes to the platform of his own accord and reads from his own works on the lecture platform of the gymnasium. The recital will begin at eight o'clock.

A Strange Career

Successively farmer and soldier employed in [illegible] and newspaper offices, Sandburg's career has been of the strangest. Quitting school at the age of thirteen to drive a milk wagon in an Illinois village he worked [illegible] working his way through a mid western college, where he captained the basketball team, edited the college paper, and shone as a musician and orator.

Sandburg has worked in the wheat fields of Kansas, has washed dishes in Denver, and has shovelled coal in Omaha. He fought in Porto Rico during the Spanish American War and was a reporter in Norway and Sweden during the World War.

It is as the poet of American Middle West, however, that he is best known. Back in 1914 he had already taken first prize in a competition of the Poetry Society of America. His "Chicago Poems," the first volume of poetry he ever published which appeared in 1914, was hailed by critics with the greatest acclaim. "Cornhuskers" took the Pulitzer prize in 1918. Abraham Lincoln, is still one of the most popular biographies of the great American. "Good Morning, America" his most recent volume contains the poem that was read at the Phi Beta Kappa meeting at Harvard in June 1928. Translations of his poems have been made in the French, Spanish, Yiddish, Bohemian, Danish and Italian languages.

Stranger Yet

[illegible] to add to the accomplishments of the many-sided Sandburg, [illegible] is known among his friends as a long distance hiker, eats in one arm lunch rooms, always has his pockets full of clippings and manuscripts and gets letters from aspirants and admirers all the world over.

In relation to his poetry an American critic has said of him:

"Carl Sandburg is a gang leader of the stockyards and a dreamer among the stars. In his verse the cadence of modern discords, an abundance of unpolished rhyme and metre, diction ranging from streetcorner slang to the language of learned societies, [illegible] rush of the present and hesitancies of the future are put to unconventional purpose to express his strong and vital personality.

VERMONT DELEGATES WILL ATTEND MODEL ASSEMBLY OF LEAGUE

Yale Meeting will Discuss Problems of Arbitration and Security at Annual Parley

Delegates of the University of Vermont will be in attendance at the annual Model Assembly of the League of Nations, which this year will be held at Yale University. Arbitration and security will be the chief topics of discussion.

Timely Topics

"Discussion of the topics," writes the director of the league, "will be particularly timely in 1930, as there is now a great deal of agitation for a revision of the Covenant along these lines. It has been widely felt, by both statesmen and members of the general public, that great steps towards the clarification of ideas about peace have been taken with the formulation of the principles of the Geneva Protocol of 1924 and the passage of the Briand-Kellogg Pact. The former, though accepted by very many states, did not become international law owing to its failure to win universal approval within the league, but the motives which inspired it have since then been continually seeking embodiment in some similar but more acceptable form. The Peace Pact, though accepted universally, was an expression of intention and good will, without any machinery to make its aspirations effective. What is now in the air, and has been since the drafting of the 'General Act' by the Third Committee of the Assembly in 1928, is a document which will combine the ideas of these two; and the latest discussion is concentrating on achieving this by a revision of the Covenant, so that, side by side with disarmament achieved by agreement in conference, there may be in the charter of the league itself full machinery for the outlawry of war by the peaceful settlement of all disputes, and for the security of nations abiding by such obligations of peace.

"It is towards this idea that study will be directed for the morning and afternoon discussions of the 1930 Assembly. Within a very short time the full projected revision of the Covenant will be sent out to all colleges, with a brief summary of the principle at stake in each amendment and of the leading arguments likely to be brought up 'pro' and 'con.' And there will be a statement of the particular articles of the revised Covenant which will be singled out for a decision by vote in the Model Assembly, and will be the occasion for a discussion of all the wider principles involved."

Program

The assembly will open with a dance the evening of Friday, April 25. The rest of the program follows:

Saturday, April 26:

9.45 a.m. Meetings opened by chairman of the New England Council.

10.00 a.m. Address of Welcome by President Angell of Yale (honorary president of the Advisory Council for the assembly)

10.15 a.m. The introduction of the President of the League Assembly by the Chairman of the Council.

10.20 a.m. Model Plenary Meeting of the League Assembly. (Eleventh session of the Sixth Plenary Meeting.) Topic: "Compulsory Settlement of all International Disputes by Peaceful Means." The discussion will take the form of a debate on an amendment to the Covenant designed to "close the gap" which at present permits of war as a means of settlement for some disputes. Several amendments would be necessary to embody the new principle completely, and these will be drafted and circulated in toto, but one of them will be selected as the key one for debating the principle. After a short explanation by the president, the amendment will be presented by the rapporteur of the committee which has supposedly been drafting the revisions of the Covenant, and a debate will take place, followed by a vote.

12.30 p.m. Meeting adjourned.

2.00 p.m. Meeting of the League Assembly. (Eleventh ordinary session of the Seventh Plenary Meeting.) Topic: "Security and Sanctions against Aggressor Nations." As in the morning meeting, one amendment will be selected from a number necessary to

Two To Speak In Home Meet

Lisman and Nelson Alone Will Face M. A. C. Thursday in First Home Debate

NELSON TAKES STAND; LISMAN CROSS-EXAMINES

Once again Louis Lisman and George Nelson will combine to uphold Vermont's forensic prestige, when they face off against M. A. C. Thursday night in the first home debate of the year. Vermont will argue for world disarmament.

Lisman and Nelson first debated together, without any other team-mates, when, as the freshman debating team of the class of 1931, they soundly trounced the sophomores two and a half years ago and gained the Bailey cup. They also debated together last year when, attired as farmers, they met the cowboys of Howard Payne College in the most unusual debate ever to be staged at Vermont. Since early in their freshman year, the two have participated in almost every varsity encounter with Franklin Sears, Tau Kappa Alpha president, as teammate. Illness prevents him from debating Thursday.

Will Use Oregon Plan

The debaters expect to use the Oregon style of debate, and as Coach M. D. Powers has it planned now, Nelson will open for Vermont by presenting its complete constructive case. For twelve minutes thereafter, he will take the witness stand to submit to a barrage of questions from Marcus of M. A. C., who was on the team which defeated Vermont at Amherst last year. Nelson has had much experience on the witness stand in Oregon debates and expects to repeat the success he had against Bates College in a similar encounter last year.

Lisman, who has cross-examined consistently for Vermont in the past, will, in turn, cross examine the constructive speaker for M. A. C., and at the close of the debate, as anchor man, will give the rebittal for Vermont. The debate should not exceed an hour and a quarter. It is called for eight o'clock in the Old Mill Chapel.

Carl Sandburg will Appear in Gymnasium Tonight in Final Lecture with Unique Program

One of the strangest figures in American literature will tonight appear at the University in the last and most unusual lecture of the annual series, when Carl Sandburg sings to the strumming of his own guitar and reads from his own works on the lecture platform of the gymnasium. The recital will begin at eight o'clock.

A Strange Career

Successively farmer and soldier, employed in brickyards and newspaper offices, Sandburg's career has been of the strangest. Quitting school at the age of thirteen to drive a milk wagon in an Illinois village, he ended up by working his way through a mid-western college, where he captained the basketball team, edited the college paper, and shone as a musician and orator.

Sandburg has worked in the wheat fields of Kansas, has washed dishes in Denver, and has shovelled coal in Omaha. He fought in Porto Rico during the Spanish-American War and was a reporter in Norway and Sweden during the World War.

It is as the poet of America's Middle West, however, that he is best known. Back in 1914 he had already taken first prize in a competition of the Poetry Society of America. His "Chicago Poems," the first volume of poetry he ever edited, which appeared in 1915, was hailed by critics with the greatest acclaim. "Cornhuskers" took the Pulitzer prize in 1918. "Abraham Lincoln" is still one of the most popular biographies of the great American; "Good Morning, America," his most recent volume, contains the poem that was read at the Phi Beta Kappa meeting at Harvard in June, 1928. Translations of his poems have been made in the French, Spanish, Yiddish, Russian, Danish and Italian languages.

Stranger Yet

As if to add to the unusualness of his makeup, Sandburg averages only five hours' sleep a night, is a long distance hiker, eats in one-arm lunch rooms, always has his pockets full of clippings and manuscripts and gets letters from vagabonds and missionaries the world over.

In relation to his poetry, an American critic has said of him:

"Carl Sandburg is a grim realist of the stockyards, yet a dreamer among the stars. In his verse the casual reader discerns an absence of organized rhyme and meter, diction swinging from crashing tramp dialect to language of haunting delicacy, revelation of the beauty and beautality of life. There are quick sensitiveness to impression, power to express new ideas, and startling contrasts."

The English point of view, one largely of amazement that a poet of Scandinavian origin should so well interpret the spirit of the American prairie, is well expressed by one English critic who says:

"It is typical of modern America that this forceful singer should be a Scandinavian born of Swedish parents in the United States. Perhaps only the alien can see America in all its portentiousness. Sandburg represents the Middle West. His outlook on life is the virile outspoken one of Walt Whitman, whose tradition he has upheld,—but being a European—he has the sense of beauty inherent in an older civilization. He is essentially modern; he can see the romance of adventure, and the tragedy of great steel railway lines stretching across a continent."

Eight o'clock classes have been abolished at the University of Rochester and the initiative was taken by members of the faculty who objected to having students appear in tuxedos.

NOVEL COSTUMES MARK WALKIN' FO' DE KAKE

Vermont's Kake Walk went down into history for the thirty-third time since its inception when Sigma Phi and Phi Delta Theta took all first prizes Saturday night at the close of the two-day performance.

First prize in stunts and the Briggs cup went to "Upper 13," presented by Sigma Phi. The Southwick cup for second place went to Phi Delta Theta for its presentation of "Virtue Triumphant." In the peerade, Sigma Phi, annexing the Hayes and Carney cup, took yet another first place for "Professor Conner's Invention," a unique method for arousing the student to the realization of eight o'clock military. Second prize in the Peerade, carrying with it the Preston cup, went to "Campus Silhouettes," by Sigma Nu. N. P. Park, '31, of the Delta Psi Fraternity, took the individual prize in the Peerade. The Boulder cup for the best kake walking couple went to Phi Delta Theta, the Student Senate cup to Kappa Sigma, and honorable mention to Sigma Nu.

A Unique Performance

Stuntsters went from Pompeii to the moon, traveled back 1,200 years and went forward a century and a half, mingled Victorianism with Pullman cars, and added satire and fantasm, to put their part of the performance on as high a level as that of other years.

Peeraders, taking their cue from experiences of former years, eliminated the monotony of a lengthened performance and further added to the originality of the entertainment by presenting everything from the "Blunder Bus Twin Coach" to the Naval Conference in a spirit of pleasant sarcasm.

Kake walkers, well-matched in ability of performance, attempted new and startling steps or unusual sorts of costumes.

"Professor Conner's Invention," first-place winner in the Peerade, was one of the familiar but intricate mechanisms for awakening a reticent sleeper. A drum surmounted by a painted clock face, by setting off an alarm, released a gun which, when its missile hit a target, caused a ball to roll down and strike a mallet, which painfully but surely awoke the sleeper by striking his head. "Campus Silhouettes," second-prize winner, presented take-offs, in the form of silhouetted portrayals, on the collegian from Converse Hall to Campus House.

Kake Walk Winners

Nelson Gray and Charles DeRose, again stepping it for Phi Delta Theta, repeated their last year's success when, attired in blue costumes with electric-lighted trimmings, they drew the applause of audience and judges alike. An all-white costume featured Kappa Sigma's walkers, who emerged with second place.

"Upper 13," rated first among the stunts, staged a scene in a Pullman car, where a traveler, who bribes a porter for a berth, has a hectic night of it when berth number 13, which he is occupying, is claimed by a woman and the imp who passes for her son. For the remainder of the night he shares the berth below with another traveler, only to discover in the morning that the thirteenth berth is the only one occupied in the whole train.

"Virtue Triumphant"

Phi Delta Theta, in the second-prize stunt, presented three scenes, two set in the Victorian days of the dime novel and the Old Gold advertisement, and the other at the court of the king of the moon. Of course, there is a mortgage, a pretty but weak heroine, a wealthy villain, and a poor but ambitious hero who loves the girl and is also loved by her. But there is also a Man in the Moon, surrounded by an elegant court, and there is also a grand idea for utilizing the holes in green cheese. The hero, his fortune made by this clever project, returns to earth from his conversation with the moon-king and, with a wallet full of money and a heart full of Victorian love, frustrates the villain, pays off the mortgage and marries the heroine.

COMPULSORY MILITARY TRAINING

No more welcome news has come to us in many a day than that of the resolution adopted last week at the New England Student Conference at Northfield condemning compulsory training in military science and tactics in the universities of the United States.

We hold no brief for the pacifist. We do not here suggest the abolition of military training in any of its phases. But it has long been a source of wonder to us that on so controversial a subject, on the issue of which various elements of the student body have such sharply defined opinions, no one has yet dared to take a stand of opposition. That a body of students including representatives from our colleges has finally expressed open dissatisfaction with the situation as it now exists, regardless of the merits of their contention, is a healthy symptom of a thinking attitude.

We recognize the argument of the defender of the R. O. T. C. who tells us of the physical and moral advantages of military training of its disciplinary value and its necessity to the national defense. But we realize that the opponents of such training also have plausible arguments. We know that they deny the contentions of battalion colonels. And we realize also the force of the resolution in which they asserted that "Compulsory military training is not in harmony with the present world situation in which peace has become the guiding aspiration of humanity." Staunch defenders of the R. O. T. C. have long contended that it is a farce. That it may also be harmful, is a new attitude for the students of Vermont to take.

Hot upon the heels of the Northfield resolution, comes this letter from an alumnus of the class of 1885, who asks:

"Do the alumni wish to have compulsory military training continued at U. V. M.?

Churches are passing resolutions against war and in favor of the reduction of armaments. Many organizations of citizens are calling attention to the dangers of military "preparedness." Cartoons in the illustrated magazines are showing how the burden of armaments rests upon the shoulders of taxpayers.

Recently we heard King George speak at the opening of the London naval parley. Just now, when five great nations are seriously considering the reduction of their naval armaments, it is a good time for the colleges to counteract the psychology of militarism. College graduates are expected to be leaders of thought. The college should prepare them to think in terms of peace rather than in terms of war. Colleges should reason upon the idea that peace talk is unpatriotic.

Military drill has some value in physical development, but that benefit can be obtained from athletic exercises without uniforms and guns. Guns are made to kill. Carrying a gun suggests the idea of taking life. I have heard the opinion expressed that the military drill at the University takes time and strength which should be given to studies.

Most objectionable of all is the annual spectacle of bringing members of the graduating class to the platform on Commencement day in military uniform to take the oath and receive commissions as officers in the government service.

"Of course we want an efficient army. Military schools have their place and they offer a useful curriculum. If a young man desires to train himself for military service, let him go to a military school. My question is to making military training compulsory at a state university. In the discussion which was held recently at our University, the advocate of military training said it would be impossible to maintain it unless it is made compulsory. That is a give-away. The students do not want it. Do the alumni approve of it?

"Possibly it would be well to assign this subject for discussion at the annual meeting of the alumni in June."

Some years ago, on the occasion of a federal inspection day, the CYNIC carried an editorial which, in strident phrase and ringing cadence, hailed the fifes and drums, at whose sound "even the firmest advocate of disarmament waves his hat and shouts."

We cannot conceive how such bunkum ever made the columns of the CYNIC. We do not endorse here the stand of the pacifist; but, between the militarist and the opponent of compulsory training, we submit that the attitude of the latter is the saner and, in the light of world trends, quite probably the sounder.

THE MUSE CONVERSES

In the February number of the American Magazine appears an interview with Irene Bryan of Tokyo Imperial University. It is entitled "How Foreigners Find Men of Japanese Years." The gist of the most interesting article is found in the following extracts as to why women students:

"It isn't what we learn at all in connection that is of value to us. It is the attitude of mind we acquire. The students may learn as much [illegible] by working on what he is interested in and is going to use later in life than by working on distasteful subjects for which he will never have any use.

"Bear in mind that since the war standards became more and more standardized, the range of knowledge has almost incredibly widened. One cannot know everything, nor even double in every field of knowledge available today. There is a limit to the work that can be got out of a human body or a human brain. He is a wise man who wastes no time on pursuits in which he is not interested.

"Many of our most hidebound notions about the curriculum are the results of accidental happenings back in the sixteenth century. We have gone on adding to it, but almost nothing has been taken out. What the ordinary curriculum today represents is simply the accumulated débris of the past three or four hundred years of hit or miss instruction. Never was there a time when the curriculum as a whole was in greater need of rigorous overhauling than now. Some of it is plainly superfluous and some of it should be dismissed immediately as the merest flubdub and flapdoodle inherited rubbish.

"One thing we have inherited from the sixteenth century is the conventional notion that it should take four years to complete a college course. In this respect American colleges are modeled after the English, which, in turn, are modeled after the French. There is no logic whatever in this four-year college idea. Many educators are now convinced that after two years in college a boy is mature enough for graduate work—or for business. By eliminating the unessentials we should be able to get a boy who knows what he wants to do started right in two years.

"Don't think that I wish to belittle the value of college degrees, honestly conferred and honestly earned. Perhaps they are a necessary part of our educational system. More or less I regard them as a necessary evil. The main trouble with conferring degrees is that the recipient accepts the degree as a fixed symbol of accomplishment. Once he has it, he is likely to feel he is finished with learning; whereas, the real student is never finished with learning. For this reason, I sometimes wish we could abolish degrees altogether.

"In recent years, in the United States we have had a regular Ph.D. craze. Thousands of students have gone in for post-graduate work for which they are not fitted. At least a third of all America's graduate students, I should say, are 'drifters'—students who don't know what they want to do, and are waiting for something or somebody to decide for them. In years gone by, many students of this type would have gone into the ministry.

"As for the undergraduate—much the same system is in vogue. He is the product of a stuffing machine—crammed with facts, with information of a more or less unrelated and useless nature. This information is poured into him. If he has a memory that can retain it long enough, he pours it back on the examination day. Finally, when he has poured back enough to score his point, he is branded with an A.B.—and put on the market as a pure product.

"Both the A.B. and the graduate degrees are held at a pretty low discount by most intelligent people today. We all seem to understand that the degree is simply the symbol for one who has marched in time with the educational goose step. This decline in respect for college degrees will continue, I suppose, until by some process or other we are able to sort out and keep out students of the type that should not go to college.

"The administrators of our big universities would unquestionably like to be more progressive, reorganizing the curriculum, eliminating useless subjects and snap courses. They are restrained by the enormous power of the organized alumni, who are at the best conservative and at the worst out-and-out reactionary. As against a reorganization that would make college training in America really stand for something, the organized alumni seem to prefer entrance requirements and courses sufficiently easy to permit of a large enrollment. This large enrollment is important, to be sure, for those who want alma mater to excel in football, rowing, and elaborate class day exercises.

"In the end, we may have to recognize the advisability of having three kinds of colleges in America—one for the sons of the rich and well-to-do, who want to follow a curriculum for four years merely as an entertaining way of coming into contact with so-called culture and acquiring the A.B. label, another for the 'drifter,' those who don't know what they want and consequently need a sort of 'shotgun' course to help them find out; and a third for bright boys."

OFFICE OBSERVATIONS

To the Editor of the CYNIC:

To one working on the staff of the CYNIC the material facilities and conveniences are outrageous. It is a wonder that the busy editors (and they are far busier now than they ever were before in the history of the college) can maintain their sweet temper very long and work to the greatest advantage and with the maximum efficiency with such a cramped editorial office as that within which they are forced to work.

With some twenty-five news editors, scrubs, etc. needing the office every day to write and rewrite stories, there are at present only two typewriters and one of these has no ribbon. A big help!

There are never such accessories as ink, pencils, pens, glue, erasers, and sometimes no paper in sight. The floor is usually littered with CYNICS, exchanges, paper, and all sorts of rubbish. What kind of atmosphere does this create for the aspiring journalist?

I do admit that one of the greatest advances that the editors have made within the last few months was to place a fine lock on the door. But the door itself is a sight for a lover-of-southern-old-mill-bulletin-boards! The assignment sheets are looked at quite frequently by others than those who have orders to do so. We do not want to deny others this privilige of seeing how the assignments are given out to get news, but we do maintain that the door looks extremely untidy. The men's sheet is placed in such a position that it is difficult for the men to check in and out without getting a perfectly good pencil caught in the fancy edge of the door panel.

We would consider it highly desirable for a large corkmat to be placed on the door so that the various notices and assignments could be neatly tacked on each day.

There should be a waste basket for each of the work tables in the office and this would perhaps keep the tables free of some of the rubbish they now contain and make it easier to find the headline sheet.

But after all, the office is much too small and too dreary a hole for such busy journalists as work (or would enjoy working) on the great college organ of propaganda known as the CYNIC.

Therefore be it proposed:

That the CYNIC become business-like and find a larger room for its activities. The room adjoining it and the southwest room in the other side of the old mill would both make splendid headquarters for the CYNIC to proudly call its editorial office. The business department could perhaps very well keep the old location where it now is. Let me portray for you in a few words the new office after the CYNIC moves in and swings smoothly into action a potent molder of public opinion:

The floor is varnished and does not groan although it might like to under the strain of the increased number of men and women who use its marvelous facilities to GET THEIR ASSIGNS IN ON TIME.

There are around its sides at least half a dozen desks or tables with drawers, typewriters, pens, pencils, paper, glue, and everything needed to save embarrassment, worry and trouble. There is in a convenient position A TELEPHONE, for the use of the CYNIC board and scrubs. Every important editor and editoress, has his or her name on a plate over the desk which is for the personal use of this person.

There is a file for all business letters, etc. The address machine would be in the business office as would be the advertising plates and business-of-advertising-sheets.

The sports editor would have his desk in the editorial office, and his assign sheet would have its place on the door with the men's and women's news sheet. Along on side there is a large shelf for filing CYNICS SO THEY CAN BE LOCATED.

There would be of course [illegible] the esthetic qualities of the [illegible] old pictures of the former [illegible].

The exchanges would be [illegible] where they can be seen and [illegible] the exchange editor would be [illegible] and merit a desk of his own.

We might suppose that [illegible] alumni would provide the [illegible] a fund with which to keep a [illegible] books on journalism in an [illegible] brary for the edification of the [illegible] and prospective members.

The news would be if possible always typed and legible.

And as a final item (you may think of more) there would be [illegible] cloaks, etc.

And most important — COMFORTABLE CHAIRS AT EACH [illegible].

P.

Over 25,000 degrees [illegible] awarded by Yale University [illegible] was founded.

A mysterious scandal [illegible] ing the professors, students [illegible] ternities at Ohio Wesleyan [illegible] has appeared. No one knows [illegible] responsible for the sheet. The indoor stadium is located at Atlantic City and has a seating capacity of 45,000 persons and no pillar posts to obstruct anyone's view of the proceedings. Punting will not be impeded either, for the arched dome of the stadium rises [illegible] from the ground. The promoters of the contest intend to have sod stretched over the hard floor, painted and marked.

INTERFRAT TOURNEY FINISHES THIS WEEK

Eight Teams Compete in Second Round of Elimination—Semi-finals to be Played Friday

FINAL GAME SATURDAY TO DECIDE CUP WINNER

Kappa Sigma and Tau [illegible] in League I began the [illegible] last night and the winners of the first four games played [illegible] nights this week will [illegible] the semi-finals Friday night, Saturday morning, March 1, the winning team in each of the two leagues will play in the final contest to decide who shall have the cup, emblematic of the interfraternity championship.

Tonight at 6:45 two League II teams will struggle for a position in the semi-finals when Sigma Nu, which conquered the Sigma Phi five 19 to 15, will engage in battle with the A. T. O. team which defeated Sigma Delta 30 to 20. This game should develop into a close contest with each quintet consisting mainly of men from the frosh team. Mahoney and Chiolino are the main threats of the A. T. O. quintet, while the outstanding performers for the Sigma Nu outfit are McGowan and Buzzell.

Tomorrow the powerful Phi Delta Theta basketeers who eliminated Delta Psi last year's interfraternity champions, by the score of 26 to 19, will encounter the S. A. E. five which drew a bye in the first round. Hawley is the high point man of the Phi Delta quintet, while the S. A. E. team will probably center its attack around the play of "Mike" Valerio, frosh star. This game will be the preliminary to the Vermont-Middlebury contest.

In the last game of the second round which will be played on Thursday before the Norwich game, the Phi Sigma Delta aggregation, conquerors of the Faculty five 24 to 13, will meet the Independent quintet which won their game from the Owls on a forfeit. Little is known about the Independent team and therefore the probable results of this contest are uncertain.

KITTENS RETURN WITH WIN AND TWO DEFEATS

Thursday night the Vermont freshman basketball quintet finished a three-game trip by being defeated at the hands of Montpelier Seminary 31 to 24. With this result the Kittens return from their invasion with one victory and two defeats.

On Tuesday night Coach Prentice's charges met Clark School at Hanover, N. H. and succeeded in winning the game by the score of 36 to 29. This was a return match after the Kittens had previously downed the prep school team in the U. V. M. gym 25 to 20.

The second game of the trip proved disastrous to the Vermonters. In this fray the Dartmouth Freshmen chalked up its eighth victory by defeating the U. V. M. yearlings by the count of 41 to 15. The Green first-year men were much superior to their opponents and were leading at half time 23 to 5.

In the last game Montpelier Seminary defeated the Kittens 31 to 24 Thursday night. The game was featured by a whirlwind comeback by the Kittens after they had trailed 19 to 5 at the end of the first half. Grant scored six times from the floor in this period in a vain attempt to overcome the lead of the opponents.

CANCELLATION OF GAMES CLOSES HOCKEY SEASON

Friday's hockey game with Union at Schnectady was cancelled on account of the poor condition of the ice. The recent warm weather has caused the last two contests on the Vermont schedule to be cancelled. Last Wednesday's game scheduled with St. Lawrence is the other cancellation. The Middlebury game played Monday, February 17, on the home rink was the final contest of the season.

CATAMOUNT QUINTET ON LAST LAP OF SCHEDULE

Home Games This Week With Middlebury, Norwich and Holy Cross Bring Season to a Close

Tomorrow night the Vermont basketball team begins a series of three home games which will complete the schedule for this season. The Middlebury quintet will be entertained here tomorrow night and Norwich will be in town Thursday for the final battle in the state series. The last contest this year will be played Saturday with Holy Cross.

From all appearances this last lap will provide a set of very difficult games. Each of the opponents on this week's list has a defeat over the Catamounts on their records. Middlebury trounced Vermont by the score of 34 to 16 while Norwich is credited with a 36-to-16 win.

Tomorrow night's fray will find the Blue and White making a strong bid toward the Green Mountain Conference championship title. In Johnson, Ashdown, Humeston, Spooner and Casey Middlebury has a set of veterans that is hard to beat. Johnson at forward is fast and the center of the offensive power. It will be up to the equally fast Vermont guard, Manning, to keep the Midd star in check. Ashdown is the other forward who teams well with Johnson. Humeston, center, and Spooner and Casey, guards, complete the line-up that will be sent against the Vermonters tomorrow.

On the following night the Norwich quintet will appear here to again engage in battle with the Catamounts. Hartford, forward, and Fanos, center, are the leading offensive players on the Cadet team, and may be expected to cause more than their share of trouble. Besides these two men the Horsemen will probably start the game with Sipsey in the other forward position and Grandy and Vietseer guards.

Coach Berry's team has been strengthened by the addition of Durfey in a forward position. By his teaming up with the other members of the quintet, Vermont should present a stronger attack than what has appeared in the previous contests with Middlebury and Norwich. Although the Catamounts have a discouraging record for this season, a win in either of the first two games this week would be a reconciliation.

Probable Vermont line-up for the games of the week:

Bernstein, l.f.
Winant, r.f.
Durfey, c.
Manning, l.g.
Captain Halligan, r.g.

The student council of the University of Louisiana has been forced to require a pledge from the students that they will not shave the hair from the heads of unruly freshmen, but will resort to saner methods of regulating their conduct.

CAT'S MEOW

—SPORTING EDITOR—

The Holy Cross game and the first half of the Springfield contest caught the Green and Gold in an unfamiliar mood while the home teams were traveling at top speed.

Halligan and Manning were the only Vermonters who could find the net in the St. John's gym at Worcester. The others just couldn't click while Holy Cross had the biggest night of the season. Driscoll and Desautels had to do nothing but shut their eyes and shoot.

Holy Cross can now be rated one of the best teams in the country. After a good start Coach Reed took sick and the team had to get along without a mentor. Since Reed returned the team has improved tremendously and has not lost a game. Captain Clancy was also sick during Reed's absence. Judging by his work against Vermont, he certainly was missed. He always was good, but watch him Saturday!

Vermont got the break in foul shots on the trip by scoring 14 times out of 29 attempts while their opponents totalled 12 out of 34.

The scoring was divided as follows: Manning 10, Sargent 10, Winant 7, Captain Halligan 6, Collins 6, Bernstein 5, Tobin 4, Durfey 2.

Vermont played for about five minutes with no available substitute. Eight men made the trip and Halligan and Bernstein were out on fouls while Tobin sprained an ankle.

Winant and Manning were the defensive stars in both games.

Durfey thought he might not return to Burlington in time to go to church Sunday morning, so Winant, the thoughtful, appropriated a hotel Bible.

If Vermont continues to play the way it finished up at Springfield, Middlebury and Norwich will lose here this week.

Holy Cross ends the season Saturday. Many fans are expected to stay away after the defeat the Crusaders handed the Catamounts last Friday, but those who want to see a crack outfit in action—undoubtedly the best to appear in Burlington this year—won't miss that tussle.

St. Michael's has been building up to a state championship team for the past few years, and finally reached the goal by defeating Middlebury Saturday 18 to 15.

FRESHMAN FIVE ATTACK MERCURY IN LAST GAME

Thursday night Coach Prentice's yearling quintet will finish this season's schedule of games by journeying to Rutland to engage in battle with the Mercury Club team of that city. Previously the Mercury five defeated the Kittens on the U. V. M. gym floor by the score of 36 to 29 and the Vermonters are especially anxious to turn the tables.

Thus far this season the freshmen have broken even, for out of eight starts four have been victories and four losses. The victories have been Burlington Business College, Waterbury and Clark School twice, while Mercury, Checkerboys, Dartmouth Freshmen and Montpelier Seminary have all succeeded in defeating the Green and Gold yearlings.

The Kittens' starting line-up will probably consist of Captain Grant and Valerio, forwards; Farwell, center, McGowan and Mahoney, guards.

Springfield Retains Lead Despite Sensational Comeback by Vermont—Holy Cross Wins 58 to 18

GREEN AND GOLD LOSES HOLIDAY TILT 38 TO 32

WORCESTER, MASS., February 21 (Special to the CYNIC)—After no more than five minutes of play in the Holy Cross-Vermont basketball game played here in the St. John's Gymnasium tonight it was evident that the Cross would overwhelm the Catamounts by a score similar to the 58 to 18 count which the scoreboard finally carried.

Holy Cross was the smoothest running team the Green and Gold has faced this year. Coach Reed tried his entire squad in various combinations, each one of which was more than equal to the task. The Holy Cross offense was fast and accurate with five men and the ball on the go all the time. Their shooting was superb. It made no difference whether Captain Clancy threw a long shot from the center of the floor or Red Desautels banked a shot from the side, or Luke Driscoll followed up under the basket or Freddie Maffeo lifted a five-fingered fling from a corner—the ball was drawn through the net like a nail to a magnet.

Vermont did succeed in halting the famous Purple guard pivot-feed but the home team had other tricks up its sleeve. Clancy handled his team well and besides doing some scoring on his own account he made many assists. Driscoll, six feet three inch center, had 13 points to his credit, and Desautels, who started in place of Hyme Shanahan, injured Cross ace, led all with six field goals and a brace of free ties for fourteen points. The visitors did not have possession of the ball long enough to do much scoring. They were on the defense, such as it was, during a large majority of the forty playing minutes. The Holy Cross machine was bewildering. When Vermont got the ball it usually lost it, in an attempt to work it up the floor, by throwing it outside or through interceptions.

The score at half was 26 to 3. Clancy opened with a scientifically banked shot and together with Desautels and Driscoll kept the score on the incline. A foul shot by Manning broke the ice for Vermont when Holy Cross had 14. Soon after that, Collins sneaked through cagily and tallied the only Green floor goal of the period. In the second half Manning took advantage of a gift try and the Crusaders decided to get going again. Captain Halligan broke the monotony with three spectacular long shots. Manning, who was more or less at home on the St. John's gym floor on which he frequently cavorted in his high school days also as a visitor, scored six points in this half and played a steady all-around game. Bernstein did some timed cutting under the basket but had to hurry his shots on account of the hermetically sealed Crusader defense, so that they were not effective.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., February 22 (Special to the CYNIC)—A mountainous little green team from the Green Mountains towered above the Red and White Springfield five in the second half of the annual Washington's Birthday contest in the Massachusetts city until the home team was almost blue in the face. In that period Vermont was playing its best basketball of the season in direct contrast to the poor showing made against Holy Cross the night before and in the opening frame of the holiday clash. The figures tell the story. Vermont outplayed and outscored Springfield in the second half 25 to 16 and fell short by seven points of overcoming the 22 to 7 lead Springfield enjoyed at the half. The final score was 38 to 32.

The beginning was sad from a Vermont point of view with Springfield having unusually good luck in shooting while Vermont got no breaks. A pretty long shot by Bernstein and a step shot after a typical Durfey feint brought the only Green and Gold baskets of the half while Sargent was collecting a brace of free tries and Winant one. On the other hand Cook, Ackerman and Captain Cameron were very friendly with the Springfield hoop and net.

Springfield continued the fine playing and shooting in the second period but Vermont was better. Sargent led the onslaught with four goals from the floor and was assisted by Winant with four free tries, two goals by Collins, and three points each by Bernstein, Manning and Tobin. Manning opened with a basket and free try and Captain Halligan was ejected for excessive personal fouls. Bernstein made a perfectly timed follow shot after missing a close

KAKES GO TO SIGMA PHI AND PHI DELTA THETA

Phi Mu Delta presented "Animated Bunkum," a take-off on modern court procedure and the wiles of the clever lawyer featured by a grotesquely attired jury, a melodramatic appeal by counsel, a Boston bull terrier and a musical cow.

"When Women go to War" was the title of the Kappa Sigma stunt. The treatment was highly fantastic, and the paradoxical inversion of woman for man with the former adopting all his rugged vices and virtues, and the latter turning into the meekest of creatures was highly amusing.

In "A Modern Pompeii" Delta Psi presented a vision of Burlington 1,200 years hence buried beneath the ashes of Mount Mansfield on the night of the production of the thirty-third annual kake walk at the University of Vermont. The ashes removed, there come to light the college campus, a room in the Hotel Vermont filled with mummified celebrities, and strangest of all a kake walk scene, with the fossilized spectators still in their places.

Fire! by Lambda Iota, was certainly the most sardonic of the lot, with two languid Englishmen preparing to leave a hotel which is burning lustily. Firemen who fiddle while the hotel burns, the ruddy light of the conflagration, the conversation of the Englishmen, and the sight of the group sitting down to watch the babies being thrown out of the nursery made this last of the stunts one of the most startling.

The Judges

Four sets of judges were selected by Directors Hawley and Puffer, one group each to decide in tryouts, peerade, stunts and kake walking.

Judges of try-outs were Prof. D. B. Carroll of the political science department, Prof. L. W. Dean of the English department, and Prof. J. T. Metcalf of the psychology department.

Judges of the peerade were Lt.-Col. F. F. Black of the military department, H. D. Pearl, assistant superintendent of schools of Burlington and D. W. Howe, manager of the Burlington Free Press Association.

Judges of stunts were Dr. T. S. Brown, superintendent of the Mary Fletcher Hospital, S. R. Moulton, master of the Vermont Supreme Court, Thomas Bradlee, director of the Agricultural Extension Service, G. D. Smith, librarian of the Fletcher Free Library, and Elijah Swift, acting dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

Judges of kake walking were Col. R. W. McClure, collector of customs at Burlington, Prof. George F. Eckhard of the engineering department, and Major O. H. Stanley of the military department.

Directors and Committees

R. G. Hawley and J. C. Puffer did a good piece of work as Kake Walk directors with the assistance of R. J. Maxcy and F. S. Smith. In addition the following committees appointed by the directors also helped to make Kake Walk a success.

U. V. M. SONGSTERS TO COMPETE FOR HONORS AMONG N. E. COLLEGES

Thirty from Men's Glee Club to go to Springfield in Third Successive Try for Music Laurels

[illegible]

Rehearsing Steadily

The Glee Club has been holding rehearsals two nights a week under the supervision of Prof. H. G. Bennett. The entering colleges are under definite requirements for not more than thirty may represent any one college and all of the members must be undergraduates.

Glees and Madrigals

Each college will sing three songs. One song, known as the prize song, must be sung by each college. This year the prize song is an old English madrigal entitled "Hark Jolly Shepherds" written by Morley. Madrigals are characteristic of the sixteenth and seventeenth century while the eighteenth century brought the music world the glee.

Following the prize song, each college sings a choice song. Vermont's choice song is one written by Doctor Callcott, "To All You Ladies Now On Land." This is an eighteenth century glee, and incidentally Doctor Callcott was one of the members of the original London Glee Club. Each group then sings a college song for the third and final number. Vermont will sing her classic, "Champlain."

The winner is chosen on a percentage basis. The prize song counts 50 per cent, the choice song 30 per cent, and the college song 20 per cent. The value of the presentation of a song is based on five points of equal worth, pitch, ensemble, tone, interpretation and diction.

Stunts: R. A. Lawrence, '30, chairman; W. H. Burr, '30; H. D. Butterfield, '31; R. B. Aiken, '31; P. E. Weston, '32.

Peerade: R. P. Billings, '30, chairman; P. E. Manning, '30; W. E. Craig, '31; J. E. Tracy, '32.

Lighting: F. E. Beckley, '30, chairman; R. A. Daley, '30; R. F. Bigwood, '31; A. L. Howard, '31; G. S. Flagg, '32.

Offer Two Cups

The blue stars are to be [illegible] a period of one year or for [illegible] the standing of the battalion [illegible] federal rating remains unchanged. [illegible] an added incentive for the [illegible] to keep this high rating, [illegible] have again been offered for [illegible] tion at the inspection in May.

Scabbard and Blade, senior honorary military society, again offers [illegible] for the men who last longer in [illegible] the competitive drill in the manual of arms at the federal inspection. Last year the sophomore trophy was won by J. O. Percival, '31, while [illegible] Irish, '32, won the freshman cup.

In addition, the Reserve Officers Training Corps will again offer a cup for the fraternity entering the best drill squad. This cup, which was first awarded last year, brought forth warm competition from both the fraternities and the independents. Delta Psi won the cup with a smooth working squad under the command of B. W. Gustafson, '29.

The [illegible] will contain the following articles: [illegible] on the South Side of a Barn," by Daniel Cady; "War and Peace," by Edmour Germain; "Life [illegible] Attentive," Geneva Cook; [illegible] a poem, by Lois Taylor; [illegible] a story, by Hope Ranslow; [illegible] a poem, by Elizabeth [illegible] "The Lantern"—a one-act play, by Persis Campbell; News and Notes and the Market Column.

Cady is Guest Author

Mr. Daniel Cady, the author of "Collection on the South Side of a Barn," a Vermonter now living in Burlington, and a well-known figure in the state. It is a practice of the Literary [illegible] to publish in each issue a [illegible] by a well-known writer [illegible] the State of Vermont. This will be Mr. Cady's first introduction to the magazine's subscribers.

The essay on "War and Peace" written by Edmour Germain, will be of particular interest to members of the R. O. T. C. This contribution by Mr.

WIG AND BUSKIN NAMES BUSINESS BOARD MEN

Roy Worrell will manage the next Wig and Buskin production, succeeding Warren Burr as business manager following the annual mid-winter elections last Wednesday afternoon. Hugh Mattison succeeds Franklin Sears as advertising manager, while Robert Tobin takes Charles Mace's position as manager of properties.

It is expected that these men will be initiated into the honorary dramatics society next week.

1931 ARIEL FORM NOW IS NEARING SEMBLANCE OF FINAL ARRANGEMENT

Finishing touches are now being applied to the 1931 Ariel, the contribution of the class of 1931 to a long series of junior year books. The editorial side is already sending trial copies to the engravers, and cuts have already been purchased. No cuts, however, will be published until paid for.

There is still an opportunity for a limited few to purchase copies of the Ariel. The quota of Ariels which the management intends to publish is fast filling. However, any student wishing a copy of the Ariel may secure one, if he sends in his subscription immediately. If this is not done the student will go without his Ariel, since the management will publish only the subscribed number of copies.

Institute Will Bring Speakers

V. C. A. Backs Second Annual International Institute Due Here on Wednesday

RETTIE, ELVIN AND SMITH ARE AMONG LECTURERS

With the close of the University lecture series, the International Institute, under the auspices of the Vermont Christian Association, will bring four speakers to Burlington Wednesday and Thursday to speak before University and city audiences. They are James Rettie, of Yale University; Herbert Elvin, Commonwealth Scholar from Cambridge University; and Tucker P. Smith, executive secretary of the National Committee on Militarism in Education; with the fourth still being arranged for.

Second of Institutes

The University of Vermont Christian Association brought a number of speakers to the campus last year, when the lecture session was named the International Institute. Last year, the V. C. A. brought Dr. Samuel L. Joshi, professor of comparative religions at Dartmouth, and Ernest Gruenig, editor of the Portland Daily News.

The men who are appearing here next week are men who are intensely interested and active in the economic, political and social phases of world movements. They will speak in the Old Mill Chapel at times to be announced next Tuesday and will also speak before classes in history. Two of the speakers will appear at the City Hall Auditorium Thursday night.

Tucker P. Smith, who will speak here Thursday evening at the City Hall Auditorium as one of the speakers of the institute, has already appeared on the campus. Last fall he took the affirmative stand in a debate on the question "Resolved, that military training should be voluntary instead of compulsory in the colleges and universities of the United States," which was part of the International Relations Club conference. Tucker P. Smith is very much opposed to the compulsory element of military training in American colleges and universities and would eliminate war propaganda from the curriculum of a university course. He insists that "the way to prepare for peace is not by preparing for war."

James Rettie

James Rettie, another International Institute speaker, is a graduate student at Yale. He has been active in writing, being a constant contributor to various magazines. He is also a student of economics. He graduated from Williamette University, and was a member of the American Seminar in 1927 which studied the social, political, and economic conditions of England, Germany, and the Balkans.

Herbert Elvin, Commonwealth Scholar from Cambridge, was a member of the Cambridge debating team which toured the United States in 1927. His father has been for years a member of the General Council of the British Trade Union Congress.

The following committees are in charge of the institute:

Executive committee: R. I. Stewart, '30, chairman; E. R. Germain, '31; J. C. Carter, '32. Entertainment committee: C. W. Walker, '31, chairman; R. A. Backus, '31, J. L. Cogland, '31; J. O. Percival, '31; E. B. Rand, '31, A. O. Eaton, '32; W. C. Perry, '33. Publicity committee: E. A. Germain, '31, chairman; L. Lisman, '31; J. C. Carter, '32. Finance committee: W. J. Brock, '32, chairman; S. K. Carter, '33. Program committee: H. B. Butterfield, '31, chairman; S. B. Barker, '32; H. I. Varney, '32; E. G. Wilder, '32; Alice Dean, '30, Annette Rosenberg, '30; Hilda Smith, '31, Edith Thomas, '31. Invitations committee: R. H. Cowles, '31, R. F. Holbrook, '32; C. L. Park, '32, R. F. Colburn, '33, Priscilla Campbell, '30, Ruth Burroughs, '31, Elizabeth Cory, '31, Katrina Munn, '32.

HONOR GREEK SOCIETY WILL MEET MARCH 4

Eta Sigma Phi, honorary Greek society, will meet Tuesday evening, March 4, at the home of Professor Bassett, 295 South Prospect Street. Officers will be installed at this time.

Sandburg Talks of Culture, Poetry, Lincoln, Democracy

Poet Jokes, Sings, Lectures and Reads in University Address Tuesday Evening—Entertains Audience with Readings From His Poems and Singing of Folksongs

FOURTH LITERARY TILT NOW ENGAGES VERMONT, MAINE, NEW HAMPSHIRE

Prizes Best Work in Fields of Poetry, Short Story and Essay Again Offered

With formal announcement made of the fourth annual Tri-state Intercollegiate Literary Contest, the English department issues the first call for contributions. The contest was established by the Universities of New Hampshire, Maine and Vermont four years ago as an annual event to encourage interested students to write. Essays, narratives or poetry may be submitted for the contest. Prizes of $25, $15, and $10 are awarded to the three best entries in each type of writing.

Restrictions on Contestants

The restrictions for submitted articles are lenient enough to warrant attempts by many aspiring authors. Short stories may be simple, plotless narrative sketches, as well as of the more conventional type. A limit of 5,000 words has been fixed as the maximum length of narratives. Poetry of any type or style is eligible, but it is not to exceed 100 lines. Essays must be in familiar, conversational or personal style as illustrated by the works of Holmes, Irving and Stevenson, as opposed to the type associated with Macaulay, Arnold and Emerson.

The English department requests that all manuscripts be in before the Easter vacation, that it may select three of each kind to be sent in to the contest. One copy is all that the department requests of anything offered in the competition, but three copies will be necessary of all offerings that survive the local trials.

The following are the rules for the contest:

1. All contributions must be in triplicate and typewritten form.

2. Neither the name of the competitor nor any indication of his university shall appear on or in the manuscripts submitted. Each manuscript must be signed with an assumed name which together with the student's real name shall be enclosed in a sealed envelope and passed in with the manuscript.

Must be Original

3. Each manuscript shall be accompanied by a signed statement on a separate sheet that the author has received no assistance of any kind in writing the paper submitted.

4. Contributions must not be used for any other purpose prior to their being submitted in this competition. No restriction is placed on their use after the awards of the contest have been announced.

5. No restriction is placed on the number of contributions which may be submitted by any one student, but no student may be awarded more than one place in each of the three contests.

6. All contributions submitted by each university must be in the hands of the official at a date to be designated later.

For the past four years, with the exception of last year alone, Vermont has made an excellent showing in the contest. The first year of the contest, Vermont students took all three places in the short story. In 1927 Vermont took five places out of the possible nine. Two years ago Vermont again rated higher than either of the other two colleges. Last year Vermont took third place in the contest with three third places, one in each class. New Hampshire State winning the contest with four places, including two firsts, a tie for first and one second. The University of Maine took two places last year, a tie for first and a second. Maine picked the poetry judges, New Hampshire the essay judges and Vermont the short story judges.

GUITAR AFFORDS MOST NOVEL ACCOMPANIMENT

We do not have a definition to guide us in judgment as to whether or not a production is a work of art," declared Carl Sandburg in a lecture last Tuesday evening which the poet devoted to the expounding of a philosophy of life in relation to art, the reading of some of his own poems, and the singing to the accompaniment of his guitar, of American folksongs and spirituals.

"What is art? What is worth looking at or listening to as we go through life?" asked the famous prairie poet.

"When we have discovered the answer to these two questions," continued Mr. Sandburg, "we shall have found the main weave, or the foundation stones of the culture of peoples and of nations."

Lettuce and Poison

Mr. Sandburg explained that war is caused by a conflict that goes back to differences in the cultural viewpoints of nations. He quoted a rustic American philosopher when he further pointed out that "what is one man's lettuce may be another's poison ivy."

An old settler, who had lived upon his Kansas farm for three or four years, happened to be leaning on the gate post in front of his house when a westward bound pioneer in a covered wagon drove up and stopped his horses.

"Can you tell me what kind of folks live hereabouts, stranger?" the pioneer questioned.

"What kind of folks was there where you came from?" asked the old settler.

"W-h-y, they were pretty generally a low-down, mean, sneaky kind of people back home," replied the pioneer.

"I guess," answered the old settler, "that that is the kind of folks you'll find around here, too."

The pioneer drove on. Soon another traveler drove up, stopped, and asked the old settler, who was still leaning on the gate post, the same question.

"What kind of folks was there where you came from?" the old settler asked again.

"Why, back home the people were pretty much at peace," was this man's reply. "They were a neighborly, kind hearted folk."

"I guess," the old settler answered again, "that that is the kind of people you'll find here."

In this way Mr. Sandburg showed that wherever one may go, what one will get depends on what he is carrying with him.

"Poetry," said the historian of the Mid-west, "is something that cannot be explained." He continued by saying that anyone who attempts to describe poetry who has not experienced toil, overwhelming grief, certain depths of tears, laughter and love, would be merely parading his predilections, merely ventilating his mind of pseudo-culture.

Friends' Thoughts No Help

The poet admitted that there have been, in his life, companions, book lovers and men with depths of prayer who have helped him; but, only in directly and by their fine companionship, not through words.

Mr. Sandburg has found Abraham Lincoln to be the most companionable character in all history. Lincoln has a wide range of the tragic and the common. Lincoln was a man who was never satisfied with himself, yet he was the most portentous personality that has been on the earth since the word democracy came into the language. Lincoln embodies the very genius of democracy, and his traditions are most valuable. One never thinks of "Old Abe" in connection with exquisiteness, but truly has it been said that Lincoln's sense of justice was exquisite.

Back of this experiment in democracy is human behavior and, as Mr. Sandburg explained, the great problems of democracy will be solved when every one of us develops a sense of justice that is exquisite.

Although once before he had said that poetry has no explanation, Mr. Sandburg submitted a few of his 'a tentative definitions of poetry. These definitions should serve, if nothing

R. O. T. C. Band Devours Prize Cake, Reward of Kake Walk Performance

Joe Lechnyr Hangs up Long Distance Trumpeting Record by Playing Twenty Consecutive Minutes and Sixty Minutes with only Two Stops

Members of the R. O. T. C. band, last Tuesday afternoon at Converse Hall regaled themselves with sandwiches, [illegible]s, coffee, cheese, apples, pickles [illegible] ice cream and smokes, as Joe [illegible]hnyr cut up the cake which was awarded to the band at the Kake Walk and passed it out to the boys. The [illegible] is given to the men in the band each year by the military department and the band wishes to thank the department and especially Captain Rattet for his part in the spread. They also wish to thank the Kake Walk committee for the fine cake which was devoured with relish.

After the band men had eaten all they could hold they invited in several of the boys in Converse Hall who managed to take care of what was left.

The F. V. M. Kake Walk this year was quite a success, both as to stunts and walkin' fo' de kake. Perhaps the band will not be over assuming in claiming for itself some responsibility for the success of this event.

For thirty minutes before the opening of the Kake Walk the band gave a concert of really high merit. The program began with a new march—"Chicago World's Fair Centennial Celebration March," by Carl Mader. This was followed by a good band overture—"Tulane Tournament," by Edw. Hazel. This was well played and sympathetically interpreted. Another new [illegible] "Sailors Aweigh," by Zimmerman and the popular hit, "Painting the Clouds with Sunshine," completed the concert and the peerade started. [illegible], for twenty minutes without a rest the band played "NC-4," "Loyalty," "Lucky Slim" in rotation [illegible] the entire peerade. Despite the long duration of time the boys' lips [illegible] and kept up the snap and pep [illegible].

[illegible] intermission between the [illegible] with stunts the band played [illegible] and "Rising Eagle." Before the stunts and walkin' fo' de [illegible] played two popular airs, "Through the Tulips" and "All I Do Know."

[illegible] the second time in the [illegible] band played for twenty [illegible] minutes—this time "Cotton [illegible] song of the Kake Walk [illegible] has not had experience in [illegible] can quite realize the difficulty [illegible] up this long, without [illegible] or rhythm, and the [illegible] up remarkably well in [illegible] no easy task; the men took [illegible] lay offs. However, Joe [illegible] performed an unusual feat by playing the whole time without rest and at the same time held the band to the rhythm most suitable for the kake walkers.

After the Kake Walk was over the band played marches while the crowd made its exit. In compensation of its hard and faithful labor and the high quality of the result, the band was presented a cake by the Kake Walk committee. This cake was consumed at the annual blowout on Tuesday afternoon.

It cannot be denied that the university as a whole is lucky to have so dependable an organization as the band and with such a man as Joe Lechnyr to pilot it. All the committee has to say to Joe is—"Will you please play for the Kake Walk?" and they can go off assumed that every detail will be looked after and the result will be highly satisfactory.

Can anyone picture a Kake Walk without the band?

The members of the band who played for Kake Walk are:

Joseph F. Lechnyr, director.

Joseph F. Merola, assistant director.

Richard H. Cowles, second assistant director.

E. G. Hurlbert, drum major.

MULTIPLE ACTIVITY

The growth of outside activities during the past few years in the campuses of our universities and colleges is something unprecedented in the history of education. Whether or not this feature of college life is regrettable is a matter for argument. Most certainly there is some question of its value if it comes to supersede entirely the curriculum, as in some cases, it seems to do. On the other hand, there is not the slightest doubt that a certain number of outside activities, providing they are of the right kind, are an essential part of the individual's preparation for later life.

The campus of the University of Vermont is no exception in regard to the multiplicity of outside activities. An excellent example of this situation is found in the activity calendar of yesterday.

At four o'clock in the afternoon the International Relations Club held its bi-monthly meeting in the Old Mill. In the evening a variety of functions confronted the students. In the University gymnasium a basketball game was in progress between Vermont and her traditional opponent, Norwich. The University of Vermont debating team made its last home appearance in the Old Mill Chapel at 8 o'clock last evening. Down at the Strong Theater the Theater Club of Burlington was presenting "The Concert." As faculty members belong to this club and take part in their presentations, and as many students enjoy attending the performances of the Theater Club, we can include this in our program. Last, but not least, should be mentioned the movies, which depend a great deal on college students for support. No college student should have been caught studying on such a night.

It is true that not every night in the week is filled to such an extent, but not many nights go by without the meeting of an organization, or some other college function. Last night, however, illustrates a very serious problem. Suppose one wanted to go to the basketball game and to the debate or, to complicate matters further, to the Theater Club play also. Evidently somebody slipped up, so to speak. One certainly cannot blame the administration, since it has a social calendar posted right on the official bulletin board in the Old Mill. Anybody who wants to fill in a date with a meeting of some organization or other has a perfect right to do so. Why don't he do it? Is it because of pure laziness or just plain indifference? In either case, one cannot have much sympathy with the reason.

There is an evident need for some sort of central executive committee whose main function would be to iron out all conflicts of outside activities. Every organization should, as far as possible, plan its meetings for the entire semester. Then the executive committee, with the plans in its hands, could coordinate all of these meetings into a comprehensive whole, and conflicts would be few and far between.

Besides the lack of proper coordination and cooperation in such a case as that as appeared last night, another serious problem arises. Which of these various functions shall the student attend? On the one hand is the Norwich-Vermont basketball game, and every loyal Vermonter should be there to support his team by cheering and singing. There is, moreover, the love of the sport itself. Everyone likes to see a good, fast basketball game, and the closer it is the more he enjoys it. And so, one is drawn to attend the game. On the other hand, the Vermont debating team is making its first appearance on the campus this year. A new style of procedure is being used—the Oregon method. Besides the fact of giving support to the team, one's curiosity is aroused concerning this new method of debating, and the urge to attend the debate is strong. Lastly, there are those who are just as loyal Vermonters as the basketball rooters, and those who attend the debate, yet they enjoy a good play. To them dramatics present a part of the culture which they are striving to obtain during their four years here. And so, they go to the play. Yet, you will find some who would have enjoyed attending all three functions. Would not there be a more united college spirit if such conflicts did not occur?

Ten Timely Topics

TARA TANTARA TRIBO

Tropical Vermont comfort was shown at the first performance of the season, Kake Kake walk, the audience, and in a small group of students, encouraged for the door as the last Kake walked couple left the floor without waiting for the finale.

And now that Kake Walk has come and gone we wish that the same pains which goes to make that a success could be carried over to other student activities. The same ingenuity and zest applied to the College Play, the Glee Club, the Winter Sings, the International Relations Club and the other worthwhile activities of the campus, would make them as outstanding as is Kake Walk itself and put Vermont on the map as a wide-awake college.

If it did not seem the part of wisdom to make any attempt to institute a system of comprehensive examinations as before, a tentative step might be taken in that direction. All students having an average of 87 percent or better for their junior year might elect not to take the regular mid-year and final examinations, but to be examined, sometime in May, upon their general knowledge and their ability to apply it in the field of their major and minor subjects. As the result of this examination they would receive either an honor (A) grade, a pass (B), or a failure, in all their courses. If they failed they would be forced to take in June, both mid-year and final examinations.

The assumptions in such a policy are twofold. First, that a student who is capable of doing B plus work need not be as closely checked for his knowledge of fact as the poor student; second, that college seniors have enough maturity of mind to govern their own conduct without rigid rules. The truth of the first assumption is seen when one realizes that a student studies to attain an attitude, not to retain an encyclopedic knowledge of facts. As for the second it seems to us that colleges should be for those who can do the work of their own initiative, and not those who have to be spoon fed through four years and wheeled across the platform in a baby carriage, to receive a diploma.

James Branch Cabell is very fond of using the term economist, referring to a man who arranges his life with deliberation, retaining that which gives him a maximum of satisfaction and achievement, and ruthlessly sacrificing that which gives him less return for his time and effort. In this view, every college student should be an economist; out of the maze of organizations, activities, studies and social functions which face him, he must pick those which give him the maximum of satisfaction and achievement, and those which enable him to best cope with life and its problems.

An education consists of learning attitudes and establishing habits of independent thought and creative scholarship. But college life does more than this; it must furnish the contacts that would ordinarily come from the hurly-burly of the non-collegiate world. And more than that, it must incorporate a certain amount of pleasure and diversion to lubricate the wheels of progress, and a certain amount of attention to physical perfection, to keep the machine in good running order.

To take it from Cabell's view, then, the student must be an economist. And the first step in our economy is this: if the student's life were bare and drab, if time hung heavy on his hands, any sort of harmless diversion would be justified to break up the monotony of his existence. But that is not the case. The life of the student is so full that only the very exceptional, if any, can really make the most of it. One phase or another will be neglected. This being the case, we can, obviously, no longer tolerate upon the campus any organization or activity which fails to make a definite and positive contribution to college life.

Speaking of Cabell—his book "Gallantry," another tale of Poictesme, contains some of his cleverest turns; and no one can deny that he is clever in his use of words and ideas. For this week, then, the Book-a-Week Club turns Cabellist.

Yesterday saw the Theatre Club Play, the Norwich game, and the M. A. C. debate, all in the same evening. It was just another example of the University student's crowded calendar, and of the lack of cooperation between college organizations and townspeople. Burlington and U. V. M. are not big enough to need to run a three-ring circus.

They tell the story of a professor who stepped into the classroom and backed out almost instantly as he saw an eraser in mid-flight. He didn't see the window broken. We don't know whether it is true or not, but it sounds like Professor Aiken. A student will go a long way hunting for a man who is more human and more willing to meet him halfway.

Campus Comment

To the Editor of the Cynic:

The lecture in the gymnasium given by Carl Sandburg Tuesday evening, February 25, brought home a few pleasant and also a few unpleasant facts rather sharply to me. In fact these are imprinted so sharply on my mind that I'm going to relieve my feelings by letting off a little steam as it were.

It seems to me that when a lecturer who is noted, as is Carl Sandburg, is going to appear at eight o'clock, that people could at least [illegible] time for his lecture. It [illegible] the great American [illegible] sense of etiquette what[illegible] lege life is supposed t[illegible] men and young women a [illegible] and give them a broader [illegible] Why not, then, include a [illegible] etiquette at the Univers[illegible] mont. Nothing ruins a [illegible] more than a poor start and [illegible] get off to at least a fair [illegible] chairs are scraping, people [illegible] ing and such noises tend [illegible] all that he is trying to say [illegible] was the beginning of Mr. [illegible] lecture ruined but also [illegible] finest treats that could [illegible] given to the students. Because [illegible] of hearing beforehand that [illegible] that their representative [illegible] Club contest, was going to [illegible] bore up wonderfully well [illegible] across their song to the [illegible] rows at least but the rest [illegible] dience heard little if any of [illegible] Club's songs. It appears that [illegible] one was in a hurry to be [illegible] hear Carl Sandburg speak [illegible] that was the cause of it. So [illegible] it was the ruination of two w[illegible] have been, but for that, [illegible] selections.

It Has Been Said At Vermont

As one member of the English department remarked "It was rather remarkable to find hundreds of people hanging on the word of a man engaged in defining poetry." It was very remarkable if we fail to take into consideration the nature of the man and his definitions.

Carl Sandburg appears a tallish diffident man until he speaks. When he does speak you realize the force which has put him in the position of one of the greatest living American poets. His voice is low and vibrant; his tones are calm and matter of fact; he has a disconcerting habit of suddenly shouting out an insignificant phrase and following it by one very important; he has a very noticeable accent, one almost as unlovely as the Vermont accent, and this leads him to mispronounce many words, "exquisite, poem, wide" and a number of others.

The other reason why the audience listened to his definitions may be found in a consideration of the definitions themselves. Some of them are apt but that is beside the point. They are, all of them, startling. They would undoubtedly have a hard time finding a place in a dictionary but they do wake up an audience. They are startling and affective but their other virtues are few. "Poetry is a slice of the moon in the belly of a green frog." Now that is good. It is startling and expressive, but of what? It would do just as well for a definition of the Burlington Free Press or a severe attack of dementia praecox. "No, Carl," I'm saying this with a sad shake of the head; "I'm afraid you were being clever."

"The Wilderness" was undoubtedly the best of the poems which he quoted. He had a quiet strength in his voice and again that peculiar trick, mentioned above, of shouting out unimportant words. The other poems read were less affective.

He found it necessary to apologize for his abrupt transition from poetry to Abraham Lincoln, but his anecdotes from Lincoln's life were as entertaining as his poetry. It has its humorous side to see the abject hero worshipper's attitude which Sandburg evidences in every mention of Lincoln. To Sandburg, Lincoln would seem to be all the gods in Olympus and all the great men of every age. This affection is childish and touching, yet in spite of this, inspires respect.

The third part of Sandburg's program consisted of folksongs of older days. They are good and melodious in the conventional folksong fashion but I wish he could have sung "Franklin and Johnny."
